Aluminium took the opposite tack and reached its second new high in as many days. The stock rose ⅛ to 31 with volume of more than 3,000 shares.

Trading among base metals was spotted with Noranda, Hollinger, ahead ⅛, and Noranda, up ⅛. Opemiska gained 20 cents to a new high of $8.60. Action was otherwise dull.

Golds were colorless with few changes. Specialties featured Chimo, ahead 12 cents to $3.38 after reaching a new high of $3.46.

The exchange index reached a new high of 132.51, up .01, while base metals rose .10 to 61.09. Industrials dropped .01 to 141.78, golds .03 to 136.70 and western oils .33 to 83.37. Volume was 1,063,000 shares compared with 1,060,000 shares traded at the same time Wednesday.

The market finished Wednesday's session by setting record highs in the industrial and exchange indexes in moderate trading.

The 77-stock industrial index closed the day at 141.79, ahead .71, while the 108-stock exchange index rose .59 to a new high of 132.50. Golds fell 1.66 to 130.73. Volume was 4,252,000 shares compared with 3,797,000 shares traded Tuesday.

The industrial board showed gains in almost all sectors, with liquors, steels, oils and foods taking the lead. Among liquors, Labatt's reached a new high of 19 with a gain of ⅝, while Distillers-Seagrams rose ¾ to 53¼ and Walker-Gooderham ¼ to 63¼.

Foods featured gains to Loblaw A, M. Loeb and Oshawa Wholesale A in the ¼ range, but Weston A and B both fell ¼.

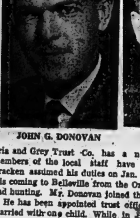
Twelve-Storey Building Falls, Fear 25 Killed

PARIS (AP) — French firemen and army engineers today abandoned hope of finding any more survivors beneath the wreckage of a 12-storey apartment house that collapsed in a sudden roar, killing at least 15 workers. Officials feared the toll might rise as high as 20 or 25 men killed.



The building, part of a low-cost housing project on Boulevard Lefebvre, fell early Wednesday as workers were putting one of the last steel and concrete beams into place. The skeleton of the structure turned into a twisted mass of wreckage over a wide area.

Throughout the night, engineers used ultra-sensitive listening equipment at the scene, such as that employed to find earthquake victims. Traffic in the area was halted and all machines, such as generators, which might affect the equipment, were turned off. Officials said the listening devices disclosed no sign of life.

An official prospectus may be obtained from any Agency of Bank of Canada.

Liberals Stoking Engines of Inflation

- - Diefenbaker

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Wednesday the Liberal government of Prime Minister Pearson is stoking the fires of inflation in Canada.

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke on a CBC television network free-time political broadcast, the Nation's Business, in an interview with radio-TV personality Joel Aldred, himself an unsuccessful PC candidate in the last federal election.

"They're stoking the engines of inflation in this country," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "They are doing this apparently because of some dialogue in Washington."

He referred to an increase in the money supply in the last few months, a rising cost of living, higher prices and an increase in the federal budget deficit.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberal government was elected on the promise that it would establish "a dialogue" between Washington and Ottawa, but that the threatened imposition and later withdrawal of a tax on American investment earnings Canada had "a damaging effect on the Canadian provision abroad."

The Liberals promised a new spirit of Confederation, but "I have never known the cleavages within exist today," the Conservative leader said.

The Liberals had promised to establish eastern and western ministers of agriculture, but this proposal now has been "swept under the carpet."

Madoc

MADOC — The arena is going strong in Madoc with hockey, skating, etc. Volunteer workers are busy practically every night.

There were some 200 people skating on Sunday afternoon, giving the children from the village and the surrounding district an afternoon of sport and relaxation.

MADOC MINOR HOCKEY

Saturday morning in Madoc is like any progressive village in Hastings county. Some 150 children were at the arena to play hockey.

Thanks to the many "fellows" who help along coaching, tying skates, etc. and just seeing that all of the kiddies get their time playing hockey.

Sweaters, gloves, pads are supplied by the Minor Hockey Club, and every child has a fair chance to make a team.

Cpl. Devey has been on the Madoc detachment of the OPP for the past 11 years. He and his wife and three children will be moving to Sharbot Lake next month.

Cpl. Harvey Adams moved to Madoc last July from Sharbot Lake, and is now residing in Madoc. Cpl. Adams and family have bought a home in Madoc.

C. OF C. OFFICERS

Mr. George Martin was elected president of the Madoc and district Chamber of Commerce. George is a past president of the Kiwanis Club and is secretary of the Madoc Public School.

Other officers for 1964 are: vice president, James Watson; secretary, Roy Eden; treasurer, Percy Rowe; directors, Gordon Pigden; George Devolin, Frank Downey, Ken Broad, Allan Ketchenson and Walter Armstrong.

ICE FISHING

There are some 30 fishing huts situated on Moira Lake at this time.

Fishermen report fishing good, and Mr. Bill Fahey caught a nice 7 lb. pickerel on Friday last. It is quite a sight to drive by the lake, and see the numerous lights from the huts at night. The ice is about 10 inches deep now, and fishermen are able to drive out and put a hole in practically anywhere on the lake.

COMMUNITY CENTRE

This committee is meeting regularly and planning a big night in Madoc arena on Feb. 18th.

The N.H.L. old timers are going to be playing in the arena that night and a fine program is being arranged. There will be further reports forthcoming in this regard.

Buchan's Law: "People Have as Many Rights as Automobiles"

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

Plans

mounting as a wave of nationalistic fervor with extreme-left trimmings swept the country. From all sides — civic and professional groups, labor unions, students, some of the clergy and the man in the street — came demands for a new treaty providing for ultimate nationalization of the canal rather than the perpetual control the United States has under the 1903 treaty.

President Johnson was under opposite pressure from Congress to stand pat. The White House has said it would not yield basic American rights in the Canal Zone.

In Panama City, U.S. dollar bills circulated with the slogan "Yankee assassins go home" printed on them. In virtually every street-corner conversation, Panamanians talked as if the canal was theirs and it was just a question of time until the United States had to give it up.

EXPECT MORE VIOLENCE

New violence appeared to threaten, and the U.S. Army moved small units up to the Canal Zone border. But in the area itself life was back to a semblance of normalcy and ship traffic passed through the waterway undisturbed.

Many Panamanians feared an attempt by the 3,000-man National Guard, the little country's army, to overthrow Chiari and check the anti-U.S. movement. The guard commander, Col. Bolivar Vallarino, has maintained a hands-off policy in the crisis and is believed loyal to Chiari. But there was suspicion that others with different sympathies might try to supplant him.

The new flareup between the United States and Panama resulted from differing interpretations of the agreement U.S. negotiator Edwin M. Martin and Panamanian Foreign Minister Galileo Solis reached early Wednesday after long sessions with the Inter-American Peace Committee of the OAS.

The Panamanian government said the agreement provided for "negotiations" or "formal discussion" of all issues between the two countries. The state department said it provided only for "discussion."

The agreement made no specific mention of the canal treaty, but the state department pressed officer, Richard I. Phillips conceded under questioning that wording was broad enough to include discussions of the treaty.

Uranium

culty in creating new jobs in the Elliot Lake and Bancroft areas stems from the fact that they are not attractive for the location of new industries. The economies of the two areas were tied to uranium mining "and if the metal can't be sold they're bound to be in trouble.

"Many people are racking their brains to find some kind of a solution for this problem which will disappear in the early 1970s when uranium again will be easy to market," he said. "Nothing concrete has developed as yet but there still is some time to go before the stockpiling program comes to an end."

Mr. Gilchrist said one possible action that could be taken would be the provision of some form of long-term credits to enable countries that will require uranium in the 1970s to buy and stockpile supplies during the remainder of the 1960s.

MIGHT GET CUSTOMERS

"This kind of arrangement might attract some customers during the lean period," he said. "However, it would not have to be a long-term arrangement because in the 1970s countries requiring uranium will be coming to us for their supplies."

Mr. Gilchrist said world demand and production should be roughly in balance by 1970. But five years later requirements would be double that of 1970 and in 1980 will have surpassed the highest point of the boom years of the 1950s.

He estimated that Canada's share of the Western World's market in 1970 will not likely be more than 3,000 or 3,000 tons. However, from that point on the market will rise rapidly in size and should reach 10,000 tons or better by 1975.

Canada's uranium production in 1958 was a record of more than 15,000 tons. It has declined steadily since and totalled some 6,000 tons last year.

LONDON (CP) — Self-reproducing cars, multiplying like rabbits . . . cars spreading across England's green meadows like a thick, dirty carpet . . . cars piled upon cars until they submerge skyscrapers.

This pedestrian's nightmare—in the shape of a privately produced animated movie cartoon—was shown reporters covering the publication of Prof. Colin Buchanan's Traffic in Towns, hailed in Britain as a revolutionary document.

After the not-so-subtle brainwashing, the reporters were shown another, only slightly less frightening, movie of real-life traffic conditions in Britain which faces a monumental task to catch up with the motor age.

By this time the movie impressionable viewers may have been grinding their teeth at the "beloved monster," as the automobile was termed.

HAS NO RIGHTS

But Buchanan a motorist himself, stressed he has no grudge against cars—he merely feels that people are as much right to the earth as cars, perhaps a little more.

"If the report has its way, in the great clearances it envisages, roads will not eat men," says the Manchester Statesman.

Even some British observers were surprised to learn that traffic here is denser — and more dangerous on a per-car comparison—than in the United States, a country which foreigners are firmly convinced has a permanent open season on the highways.

The Buchanan report says that in 1961 Britain, with 9,908,000 vehicles, had 7,019 fatalities —one fatality for every 1,410 vehicles.

The ratio was higher in France, West Germany and Italy. The U.S., with 78,090,000 vehicles, had 38,000 fatalities—one for every 2,000 vehicles.

EVIDENCE SLENDER

"This is slender evidence on which to generalize, but the ratio for the United States suggests that, in some way, matters are better contrived than in Europe," says the report.

Buchanan holds that the traditional structure of towns—buildings along streets with direct access—has been entirely outmoded by the motor age. If someone set out deliberately to design a situation to cause traffic jams, he could do no other than follow the traditional pattern, says the architect-engineer.

He wants towns to be rebuilt in terms on the one hand of traffic and on the other of "environmental areas" — places where people can live or work or both free from the dictatorship of traffic.

Buchanan says his document is not to be compared with the Marsh Beveridge Report which added a word to the language—"Beechingized," meaning closure.

The Beeching report sounded the death knell for many railway branches while Buchanan regards his work as a message of hope, not despair, for motorists and motorists.

Buchanan, 56, now occupant of the new chair of transport at Imperial College here, is the son and grandson of engineers but he admits he did not plan on becoming a planner—it was a job that came his way in the depression of the 1930s.

A book on traffic entitled Mixed Blessing brought him to the attention of Transport Minister Ernest Marples and resulted in his appointment to the three-year study that led to the Buchanan report, described by Marples as the most comprehensive ever made.

In the Buchanan view a town would be: "A cellular structure consisting of environmental areas set within an interlocking network of distributory highways. . . . The function of the network would be to serve the environmental areas and not vice-versa.

"This may seem elementary but in fact it is one of the things which this report puts in the right perspective. It brings it home that traffic and roads are not ends in themselves, they are services only; the end is the environment for living and working."

St. Thomas A.B.W.A. Lists 1964 Officers

The annual business meeting of the Afternoon Branch of St. Thomas' W.A. was held in the parish hall on January 14th.

The Rector opened the meeting with prayers and Mrs. F. Aiker read the Scripture lesson. There was a good attendance with several visitors present. The business for the month was completed and followed by the annual reports from the different departments. Mrs. B. Feather, recording secretary gave a detailed report of the year's work. Mrs. C. Coleman, treasurer showed a busy year in her department with all obligations having been met.

Mrs. S. E. Morton reported for the Little Helpers and appraised for greater co-operation from the parents. A report from Mrs. Alber and Mrs. Mac Smith on the work of the Junior Auxiliary was read. This is a most active group. Mrs. F. Bromfield gave an interesting report for the sick and shutins. Roses are sent to the hospital and cards to the homes. Birthday greetings are sent to older members.

Mrs. G. R. Beamish reported that there are 33 subscribers to the Living Message. Mrs. A. S. McConnell expressed her thanks to the recorder and times for their co-operation in publicity. She also reported 175 calendars had been sold.

Mrs. R. Smith, president is also visitor to out-of-town patients in the hospital which is sponsored by the Diocese under the convenership of Mrs. J. Uttley, Trenton.

An optimistic report was given by Mrs. F. Clarke, Dorcas convener. Bales of new and used clothing were sent to the west. These included a large quantity of children's flannelette and knitted articles made by members of the Women's Church Year. A hospital bale was also sent. The W.A. make quilts during the year to be included in these bales. The school quota was also completed. A Christmas parcel was sent to a western clergyman and his family.

The rector was asked to take the chair and Mrs. S. E. Morton convener of the nomination committee gave the new slate of officers as follows:

President, Mrs. H. Smith; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. Watson; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. A. Leach; recording secretary, Mrs. B. Feather; treasurer, Mrs. C. Coleman, correspondence and publicity, Mrs. A. S. Mc. Connell; flower convener, Mrs. F. Brumfield; "extra-cent-a-day" fund, Mrs. F. Rainbird; social, Mrs. F. Alker; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. F. Clarke; Little Helpers, Mrs. S. E. Morton; Junior Auxiliary, Mrs. A. Alber and Mrs. Mac Smith and literature, Mrs. J. Watson.

The Rector invited the officers to their chairs and voiced his appreciation of the work being done by all.

Mrs. W. Smith expressed pleasure in having Mrs. M. F. I. Jones, the newly appointed president of the Women's Church Year with vice-president Mrs. H. Crowe present at the meeting. An announcement regarding the visit of one of the missionaries, Miss W. Gray from Bengra, India, was made. This meeting will be held in Christ Church, January 30th, and all W.A. members and those interested in the district are cordially invited to attend. There will be a combined effort of the three Belleville churches.

Afternoon WA Lists Officers

The annual meeting of Christ Church Women's Auxiliary, Afternoon Branch, was held recently with a good attendance despite the bad weather.

Mrs. W. Ashton, president, presided and the 1963 business was cleared up before she called for the annual reports. In every department it was most gratifying to hear the results of the year's work.

Rev. J. Smith, in the absence of the rector, presided at the election of the officers and thanked the officers and members for their co-operation in promoting the work of the W.A.

The following officers were elected:

Hon. president, Mrs. R. G. Fleming; president, Mrs. W. Ashton; vice-president, Mrs. R. H. Gilkin; secretary, Mrs. D. Stewart; treasurer, Mrs. L. M. Hall; Dorcas secretary, Mrs. R. E. Wallbridge, Mrs. H. Wright; thankofferring secretary, Mrs. R. H. Gilkins; "Extra-Cent-a-Day" secretary, Mrs. J. Chapman; Living Message secretary, Mrs. M. Kerrigan; educational secretary, Mrs. R. G. Fleming; prayer partner secretary, Mrs. E. Ward; social service secretary, Mrs. J. Miles.

Appointed were:

Vestry council representative, Mrs. R. H. Godden; press secretary, Mrs. D. Stewart; refreshment convener, Mrs. W. Heath.

A minute of silence was observed in memory of all departed W.A. members, especially for the three this branch lost last year.

It was agreed to continue to send coffee to Miss E. Peters, Pakistan, also the booklet, "Forward" to the Old Home.

Church Groups

ST. MICHAEL'S C.W.L.

Mrs. Brown reported for civic action. Presents were distributed at Hasting's County Home at Christmas time. Welfare money was given to three parish councils. Mrs. L. Dalton reported that a large number of Christmas baskets were distributed, as well as the usual assistance to the needy during the year. In future this will be looked after by the Civic Action committee. The first cheque has been received from the United Appeal for welfare work of the Civic Action committee for the coming year.

Mrs. Rashotte attended a Brownie Christmas party, held in the league room. She felt credit was due the Brownie and Guide leaders who worked so diligently all year.

The marathon bridge commenced January 8 and will continue until April.

A Valentine dance will be held in the auditorium on February 7th.

The St. Patrick's tea and home-baking sale will be held in the auditorium this year.

Mrs. Bennett spoke briefly on the March of Dimes and asked for volunteer canvassers.

Mrs. Brown read the history of the league covering the terms of past presidents, Mrs. H. Brown and Mrs. J. Bonner. She also read a humorous poem of encouragement for future presidents.

The lucky winners of a draw on two braided floor mats were Mrs. J. Deryaw and Mrs. M. Sheehey.

White Cane Week Planned By Club

A cold frosty night did not dampen the spirits of the members of the Belle Valley Club who met on Monday evening at the Kiwanis Centre. However several of the faithful were missed due to illness and the inclement weather. Hostess Wardhaugh, the president presided and introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Ralph Ed. Brown, soloist and Mrs. A. V. Barkley who sang in a duet J. Mellowday, who accompanied. Ted Rowe thanked the guest artists for their, fine program and they in turn assured the Club that they would be happy to entertain again.

Mrs. Harry Rollins read several interesting items from the Canadian Council of the Blind Commentator. It noted that the blind of Canada are now in receipt of a $10 increase in their monthly allowance.

White Cane Week is to be held from February 2nd to the 8th. The theme is "Better Sight — It's Importance, It's Usefulness to the Blind." The slogan will be "Take the time to See." Clarence Morris is in charge of the publicity for the Belleville area.

Artle Scott won the birthday draw for the month of January. The club members were pleased to learn that Sarah O'Shea and Bella Verity were convalescing in their homes after long stays in the hospital. Betty Wood is ill in the hospital.

The remainder of the evening was spent in playing bingo using the braille boards supplied by the Kiwanis Club. Mrs. Lorna Fish Burton entertained with his amplified guitar. Artle Scott moved a vote of thanks to the Kiwanis Kweens for the lunch served by Mickey Macdonald, Mary Preston and Lillian Walton. A special thanks was voiced to the members of the Lions Club who took charge out on such a bitter cold evening to transport the blind members to and from the meeting.

St. Andrew's WMS Marks 100th Birthday

Special attention was paid the 100th anniversary of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church in Canada at the annual meeting held January 8th in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville which was well attended by members from all points in the Presbyterial.

The president, Mrs. John Craig opened the meeting and Mrs. J. Johnstone and Mrs. B. Cook of Stirling led in the worship service using the theme of the meeting "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us," and closing with prayers from workers in the mission fields.

Mrs. Barlow warmly welcomed the ladies and a letter of greeting from the Synodical of Toronto and Kingston was read by the secretary.

The regular business of the annual meeting followed when delegates were elected to attend the Synodical meeting in Orillia in April, and the 100th anniversaries in Montreal in May. A beautiful scroll of the aim and purpose of the Society provided by Mrs. James Broatch was used by Mrs. G. Williamson of Trenton in presenting the annual reports. Each secretary gave her report under the headings "prayer," "study" or "service".

Workshops followed, organized by Mrs. H. Keefer of Trenton with the following as leaders; personnel, Mrs. Taylor; finance, Mrs. R. A. Sinclair; presidents, Mrs. C. A. Smart and Mrs. W. Ewing; girls' work, Mrs. James Broatch; supply, Mrs. J. Button. The findings of the groups proved most interesting.

The report of the nominating committee was then installed by Mrs. Weir to the installing officer Mrs. Keefer and the following officers were installed by the Rev. A. Sutherland: past president, Mrs. V. Weir; past president, Mrs. J. Craig; 1st vice-president, Mrs. J. Wallace; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. R. Orford; third vice-president, Mrs. M. Lyons; secretary, Mrs. G. Scott; treasurer, Mrs. R. A. Sinclair; supply secretary, Mrs. C. A. Smart; evening groups, Mrs. R. O. Offord; young women's, Mrs. Pringle; children's work, Mrs. K. D. Taylor; home helpers, Mrs. E. Hall; literature and welfare, Mrs. H. Yorke; literature, Mrs. J. Bonner; glad tidings, Mrs. F. Allan; Indian work, Mrs. Laren; supply, Mrs. J. Button; life members, Mrs. W. Mantle; historian, Mrs. C. Huiser and members without portfolio, Mrs. Murray and Mrs. R. Brain.

A highlight of the dinner commemorating the birth of Belleville, was the 100th anniversary cake which was cut by Mrs. R. Orford. Entertainment at the head table was Miss Helen Acton of the Jobat Mission Hospital, Nigeria. During the dinner a most amusing sketch entitled "Packing the Bale" was enacted by the Belleville ladies dressed in costumes the height of fashion at the turn of the century and this was climaxed by the playing of the harmonium. This portion concluded with a presentation by the Trenton Auxiliary illustrating some of the attributes with which members have been blessed through the passing years.

To close the celebration of this 100th anniversary a service of worship was conducted by the Rev. A. Sutherland at which time the junior choir of St. Columba Presbyterian Church rendered a selection and Mrs. Rollins and Mrs. Mantle of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church favored with a duet.

The speaker was Miss Agnes Gollan B.A. whose home is in Kingston, but who is at present home on furlough from Nigeria where there are now five W.M.S. workers. Miss Gollan who works mainly among the youth dressed that at no time in the history of Nigeria have missionaries been needed more than now. The big issues in Nigeria at the present time is church union and it is hoped that by 1965 the formation of the Church of Nigeria may be known.

Rev. D. A. Wilson of Trenton expressed appreciation to the speaker for her fine address. The day was closed with a communion service dispensed by the Rev. M. Young, Moderator of the Presbytery and the Rev. R. A. Sinclair, clerk, assisted by elders from churches in the area.

SUCCESS IS A PROBLEM — Heather Thompson, 22, who has become a successful member of the Canadian Opera Company since leaving a teacher-training course at the University of British Columbia, says being a star has its problems. Keeping a sense of proportion about how hard she works at her career is the biggest problem, she says. (CP Photo)

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

On Saturday evening a pleasant time was enjoyed by friends and relatives in honor of Everett and Beryl Wood who were married on December 28. Euchre was played for most of the evening.

Preceding lunch, a nephew, Lionel Bovay called upon another nephew Art Adams who presented Everett and Beryl with an envelope of money along with various other gifts from friends.

Argyll Chapter IODE Plans Future Events

The regular monthly meeting of the Argyll Chapter IODE was held in the Armories on January 8th instead of the usual night, the first Wednesday.

Reports were given re the Christmas hampers and welfare.

An article was read from "Echoes" by Kay Kokesh on Confederation of Canada 1867-1967 — a timely write-up at this time. A rummage sale has been planned for a later date and tickets for the "Winter Fantasy" dance were distributed. Posters have been made and placed. Plans were made for decorating for the dance and all are asked to support this effort.

The slate of officers for the new year was given and this will be reported at the next regular meeting.

The sewing convener is anxious to have work turned in as well as knitted articles.

Refreshments were served by the committee.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The road to singing success has been a relatively smooth one for Heather Thompson. Sometimes the 23-year-old soprano worries about it.

The Vancouver-born member of the Canadian Opera Company has never been short of work since she left a teacher-training course at the University of British Columbia four years ago to try singing.

"Engagements keep piling up so quickly that I don't think I can find time to do anything except keep working for the time being.

"But I have to be careful. There is a danger of doing too much or backsliding. People always remember a bad performance and I don't want to be remembered that way."

The attractive young singer, seen by some as destined for the fame that came to Teresa Stratas, has in the last four years made radio and TV appearances, won the Northwest Regional Metropolitan Opera auditions and the semi-finals in New York and studied at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto.

THREE LEAD ROLES

She was in Vancouver in December on the Western Canada tour of the Canadian Opera Company production of Cosi fan Tutte and will spend 10½ weeks in Eastern Canada in Die Fledermaus starring late in January.

She says she has found her rapid rise to success rather frightening. Not only is there the problem of maintaining a sense of proportion, there is also the occasional jealousy of some older singers.

She won her first major role last summer as Yum Yum in The Mikado at Stratford, Ont., and since then has had three COC leads.

She feels lucky in not having to make any major sacrifices for her career beyond curtailing a few social activities. But at the same time she's not looking for success for granted—"you can't plan too far ahead in this business."

This level-headed attitude is reflected in other facets of her character, especially the question of temperament.

"The days of the temperamental prima donna are past," she says. "I have tried to stand on my own two feet. As for temperament, I haven't time for it."

Hospital Auxiliary Members Hear Excellent Reports At Annual Meeting

Mrs. F. A. Beeby presided at the annual luncheon meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Belleville General Hospital, and Mrs. Kenneth Bird introduced the head table guests who were: Mrs. J. M. Parrott, assistant luncheon convener; Mrs. Kenneth Bird, convener; Mrs. S. Kwarda, social convener; Mrs. R. E. Wood Samaritan cupboard; Mrs. J. H. Forrester, bulletin editor; Mrs. A. B. Dale, chairman Region No. 9 Hospital Auxiliaries; Mrs. J. E. Buchan, director of volunteer services; Miss Doris Smith, director of nurses; Mrs. W. G. Harvey, corresponding secretary; Dr. N. Macdonald, president Medical Association; Mrs. Herbert Brown, 2nd vice-president; Mr. Charles G. Long, warden, County of Hastings; Mrs. M. F. I. Jones, past-president; Mr. S. J. Johnston, hospital administrator and guest speaker; Mrs. F. A. Beeby, president; Mr. Ross Bailey, representing Mayor Ellis, for the city; Mrs. J. B. Casey, 1st vice-president; Mr. J. N. Warner, chairman, Hospital Board of Governors; Mrs. B. E. Burley, recording secretary; Rev. C. W. Coleman, president, Ministerial Association; Mrs. J. E. Nelles, treasurer; Mr. H. Pike, auditor; Mrs. J. W. Cavers, coffee cart; Mrs. J. Lennox Smith, puppets; Mrs. R. O. Clarke, holiday treats; Mrs. C. Campbell, bulletin secretary; Mrs. W. J. Musgrove, press; Mrs. R. Safe, medical convener; Miss Nell Merry, bursary.

Greetings were brought from civic and hospital officials with Alderman Ross representing Mayor Ellis. Mr. Bailey commended the Auxiliary for the work done, and asked the members to explain the need for a new hospital to their neighbors, because each taxpayer was going to have to pay for it with his tax dollar to pay for it. Warden Long brought greetings from Hastings County council remarking that the county had had a pleasant year in their association with the city of Belleville. The County is sharing the cost of a new hospital on a 15-85 percent basis, and Mr. Long felt that the co-operation between city and county was commendable.

Chairman of the Board of Governors for the hospital, J. N. Warner explained that what is of a new hospital would be about $7,200,000 with grants amounting to $2,900,000. The plans have been approved in principle by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission and is expected the first stage of the program will start next summer. The building will have eight levels and 442 beds, and will have new modern facilities for many services.

The hospital employs at the present time 250 personnel, including part time employees plus 150 students in nursing, X-ray and laboratory. The budget this year will amount to $2,950,000 with a payroll of $1,900,000.

Dr. N. MacDonald, President of the Medical Association spoke in appreciation of the work of the auxiliary and the friendly relationship between the medical staff and the Board of Governors.

Miss Doris Smith, Director of Nurses, brought warm and sincere greetings from that department. The Auxiliary had done many things to facilitate their work. Co-operation, interest, and graciousness predominated in the Auxiliary's attitudes to the hospital interests, and the patient's care.

Mrs. Dales of Kingston, regional chairman for District No. 9 attended with two other guests from Kingston and spoke briefly.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. M. F. I. Jones introduced Mr. Stan Johnson, hospital administrator, who was the speaker for this occasion. Mr. Johnson traced the development of hospitals from their early beginnings when they belonged to religious orders to their present state, describing it as a magnificent tapestry woven over the years.

"A hospital is more than a building and services," said the speaker. "Its greatest asset is dedicated people."

Voluntary hospitals commenced about 1716, and the idea that a private, community could be superior to a public one was abhorrent to many people. But it showed many benefits that had been hidden.

Voluntary hospitals became hubs which influenced the city social services. After the cholera epidemic people became aware that public health was the duty of the state, and that pure drinking water and sanitary disposal of waste were necessary.

Progress was rapid with the acceptance of scientific facts and new discoveries in medicine and laboratory examinations. The 20th century saw the age of electronics and the hospital was in the forefront in the care and treatment of patients. Canada is in the front of medical research, and the Belleville General Hospital now has a radio active isotope laboratory.

Mrs. J. B. Casey thanked the guest speaker and presented him with a gift.

The election of officers was conducted by past president Mrs. M. F. I. Jones, and the following in office for 1964: past president — Mrs. M. F. I. Jones; president — Mrs. F. A. Beeby; 1st vice-president — Mrs. J. B. Casey; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. Herbert Brown; recording secretary — Mrs. W. Dallas; corresponding secretary — Mrs. W. G. Harvey; treasurer — Mrs. J. E. Nelles; press secretary — Mrs. R. Blackburn. Mrs. Nell Davidson will be in charge of the coffee cart. The conveners remain in office for another year.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary Excels Previous Years

President of Auxiliary Presents Report

It has always been a source of amazement to me that the auxiliy goes from strength to strength, with its members so enthusiatic about each phase of its work. I think, since assuming this office a year ago, that I have discovered the secret of this success. I believe it is because our work has one focal goal no matter what our job is or to which we lend our ideas and energies, we all work for the same end, the benefit of our hospital, its patients and staff without thought of personal triumph or reward.

And now for a short look back and a long look forward. We are sorry to lose the valuable services of our secretary, Mrs. N. C. Macfie through ill health and hope to see her restored to her former happy efficient self before very long, so we bid goodbye and happiness to our coffee-cart convener, Mrs. W. Cowern, who has gone to make her home in Toronto.

Our membership reached its highest peak in 1963; the Opportunity Shop had the best year in its 18 years of operation; the coffee cart, our newest venture in filling a need and holding its own financially; our in-hospital volunteers continue their valuable and humanitarian service. The Puppet project and those who work for the Samaritan Outpost, those who provided gifts and money for patients and those who helped make our Hallowe'en show a happy twenty-fifth anniversary party, and so many others, all have had a share in this good year.

If any one circumstance should merit special mention it is the fact that there has been such wonderful interest shown by women outside the organization, offering their services in many ways. This is a trend that should continue as more and more people come to think of the" hospital as "our" hospital. We confidently welcome the interest of the women of the county and look forward to working more closely with them.

Most exciting happening in 1963 was the gift of $2,000 from one of the Auxiliary's charter members. This money was put to work immediately to purchase thirty overbed tables for the elective beds provided by the auxiliary a short time before.

Most satisfying to all of us was the occasion in December when, through the joint efforts of all, we were able to turn over a cheque for $8,000 to the hospital board as a large part payment on the boiler folder for the laundry.

I have been pleased to represent you at convention in Toronto, at conferences in Ottawa, Kingston and here in Belleville; on special events such as graduation of nurses and lab technologists and at meetings of the Nurses' Registry and to be your voting representative on the the hospital Board of Governors. This is a privilege that many auxiliaries do not yet enjoy.

This is an exciting period in the history of our hospital and we are happy to have a part in the dream which we hope will become a reality before too long. As the dream enlarges there will be more need for enthusiastic auxiliens. There will be all kinds of jobs for all kinds of people. If you have much time to give or only a little to spare, you can do your share. You will find it rewarding to work with people who put their zeal in first place and themselves in the background.

First project in 1964 is to be a small display cabe in the waiting room which we hope, may be the forerunner of an auxiliary Gift Shop someday. This case will be stocked at first with baby sets, knitted by our Samaritan Group and puppets from the puppet shop. We hope the "Gift Corner" will be popular and that some of our talented members will want to add some original gift ideas to the stock. We shall have more news of this soon. Our first objective will be to complete the payment for the laundry equipment; and then on to new goals. After consulting with our administrator, Mr. Johnson, I find there are many ways that the auxiliary can help in making our nurses' quarters more comfortable so perhaps that will be where we can direct our energies next.

And now, I should like to thank all of those who have been of great assistance to me during the past year, particularly the members of our executive, each an expert at her job and co-operative at all times. To our Board of Governors, Administrator, Director of nurses and all members of the hospital staff who make us so welcome and our work so pleasant; to the Corby Public Library and its staff for its assistance with the Library cart service. To the Ontario Intelligencer and Radio Station C.J.B.Q. who are always ready and willing to bring our efforts to the attention of the public. And to all of you, members and fellow-workers, thank you.

Many Services Given by Volunteers

This was a year of expansion for this department of the hospital. Our volunteer staff which numbered 66 more than doubled in size in 146. These volunteers gave 3,474 hours of service to their hospital—1,813 more hours than were given in the previous year.

During 1963, we added two new services to the nine already established. Our first Junior Volunteer project, the Admitting Escorts having been accounted such a success in the hospital, we were asked to set up a mealtime service in which Juniors would come to the hospital after school and help to feed patients unable to feed themselves. This service has been operating most successfully since May 1963. It requires a staff of at least 65 volunteers and keeps us hustling to recruit, instruct and supervise these enthusiastic young people. Ten a day, five days a week, they are on hand in their crisp, yellow uniforms to carry out their assignments. We understand it is popular, both with patients and staff.

The second service was added when the Hospital Auxiliary provided a long felt need for a coffee cart in the out-patients' waiting room.

LIBRARY CARTS

Our library carts remain a source of great pleasure to our patients, so much so that we felt they should be maintained during the summer months when the other projects take a holiday. We were much indebted to the two volunteers who worked so efficiently that during the dog days our patients were able to refresh themselves with quite chilling mysteries or coolly relax with Adventures in the Arctic.

Miss Shirley, chief librarian of the Corby Public Library is responsible for the operation of this valuable service and she and her staff and a group of carefully trained volunteers maintain a high service of which we may be justly proud.

A special thank-you also goes to the volunteers who have undertook to maintain our hairdressing appointment service during the summer months.

OTHER SERVICES

Our other long established services are ably described by their titles: The information desk; junior admitting escorts; out-patients' hostess; waiting room magazine service; occupational therapy volunteers; hospital guides, who are taking a sabatical until the hospital is less crowded; Typists, who come to the aid of the party when there is an office overload; wardrobe mistress, who is the woman behind that well groomed look for which our volunteers are noted.

New in-hospital services are now being discussed with the hospital administration. These will be developed and more members of the community will become involved in this particularly satisfying work. It is a mutual exchange — the hospital provides the community with a means of meeting the human need to give service, while the volunteer has the part, brings an extra measure of warmth and humanity to the hospital.

LIVE WEALTH

Livestock remains the principal wealth of Mongolia, which has perhaps the world's highest per capita possession of horses, camels and cattle.

Rec. Secretary Shows Year Of Activity

Membership has reached a record high of 231 this past year through the energy and initiative of Mrs. J. B. Casey membership convener. During the year the executive and ten general meetings were held and the splendid average attendance of the general meeting of 41 was indicative of high standard and interesting programs. The various topics presented greatly enhanced the knowledge of our members and made them more conscious of the role of the hospital and the Auxiliary in the Community.

On January 16th last 110 members and guests were present for the annual meeting. Mrs. C. W. Sheridan, President Hospital Auxiliaries Association of Ontario was the guest speaker and the following year's good public relations was stressed by her. This speech was taped and also was heard on Station C.J.B.Q.

PURCHASED OVERBED TABLES

Mr. Leslie Reid, Principal of Quinte Secondary School spoke on the Nursing Assistants Course. A valued member of long standing was honored and ferred a cheque to the Auxiliary in the sum of $2,000.00 with which the Auxiliary purchased 30 overbed tables. In acknowledgement of this thoughtful gesture, the donor Jerry presented the donor with a life membership and a bronze plaque was placed on the wall of a hospital room in her honor.

The Opportunity Shop was highlighted with a delightful skit written and directed by Mrs. Herbert Brown convener of this project.

"In Hospital Volunteers" were presented and Mrs. William Lockyer one of the first volunteers on the Library Cart, spoke on "The Library Service". Official notice was received from the Board of Governors that the Coffee Shop would shortly be relinquished to provide urgently needed space for more hospital beds.

Mrs. George Hume was a guest speaker and her topic was "Citizenship". The film "The Sentinel that never sleeps" was also shown. This film was produced by Mrs. Hume our Hospital several years ago.

A meeting of the Hospital Council of Region No. 4 was held in Education Hall with Mrs. Myra Brown chairperson of the social aspect of it. The famous "Strip Tea" was much enjoyed by the Hospital Auxiliary members from Picton, Trenton, Kingston, Brockville, Campbellford, who thoroughly visualy seen this. On an invitation from the Provincial President, Mrs. Ross Hall, we journeyed to Ottawa when Regions 9, 10 were treated to a viewing also.

PRESENT CHEQUE FOR $2,000

Mr. Werner Daechsel, former administrator of the hospital and Mrs. Daechsel were presented with mementos from the Auxiliary. Ex-mayor A. MacLean Hall, representing the half of the Board of Governors a cheque for $2,500 and the Auxiliary and the Opportunity Shop cheque for $2,500 was handed to the president. A dessert luncheon preceded the June meeting.

Following the summer recess the administrator, Mr. Stanley Johnson addressed the Auxiliary and a delicious food for thought. He said that the Auxiliary work in part was to bring the outside world into the patients and the hospital to the community, stressing the importance of public relations.

Mr. W. G. Brown of the Department of Cardiology addressed the meeting and showed interesting slides depicting the work of this department. On October 21st we delightfully ed our 25th year of organization with our 25th Fashion Show convened by Mrs. Fred Burley. The commentator was first president, Mrs. George H. Stobb and the models were Belleville for this occasion. The show was called "An Affair to Remember". Mrs. Burley was presented with a past presidents pin. Mrs. Eva Doolittle; fashion co-ordinator for all 25 shows was presented with a remembrance pin, as was Mrs. A. Victor Barkley, musical director for several shows.

A reception for all taking part was held in Education

This was partial payment of the Combi folder installed in the laundry as a memorial to the late Mrs. W. H. Finkle, chairman of the nominating committee presented the slate of officers for 1964.

During the term the social committee, Mrs. Sheridan, Mrs. Safe and Mrs. Stan Kvarda have been busy. Two dessert luncheons were held during June and December meetings were delightfully arranged by Mrs. Safe and social hours added following all other meetings. On May 18th they arranged the mother and daughter tea when the graduating class when gold lilies were presented to each graduate. Mrs. Safe is another tea pary was arranged by them for the graduating laboratory technicians.

Miss Nell Merry, bursary convener held several meetings with her committee and Miss Doris Smith, director of nurses. The Public relations committee was an industrious one during the year. Mrs. J. H. Forrester rolled nine meetings. Mrs. C. Campbell, processed 3,050 bulletins for mailing and Mrs. J. E. Buchan typed all of the stencils. Mrs. B. E. Burley director of public relations, planned the November luncheon in the absence of Mrs. Forrester, arranged for pictures with Mrs. Jerry interviewed on radio station C.J.B.Q. procured membership pins for past presidents and members from the Ontario Association. Mrs. W. J. Pearce press convener compiled all releases for the press and radio.

CORRESPONDING SECRETARY

The volume of correspondence for 1963, although not as great as for 1962, again reflects the variety of activities conducted by the Auxiliary.

The breakdown of correspondence for the year is as follows: invitations — 94; thank you notes — 85; general business — 21; get well notes — 7; sympathy notes — 7. Total — 226 items.

All of these items were prepared on the Auxiliary's typewriter. The Auxiliary and they do not in any way indicate or reduce the large volume of correspondence conducted by the separate activities within the Auxiliary.

"Op" Shop Has Best Year Yet

For many of the Opportunity Shop volunteers 1963 was the year that a dream was realized. Due to the splendid work done by the staff which numbers approximately 78, it was possible this year to transfer to the auxiliary the sum of $5,000 representing about 2,500 hours of volunteer work.

The financial gain in this project plays only a small part in comparison with the alleviation of hardship in many needy families, by making it possible for them to purchase clothing, and household articles at a fraction of their value.

Occasionally a surplus of heavy clothing in the shop is given to church women's groups who in turn send them to the missions in the northern areas.

A great deal of credit for the successful year goes to the efficient staff convener Mrs. Ross Hall, secretary treasurer Mrs. W. W. Shaw, shop keeper Miss Ivy Eggleton and Mrs. Mac D. Young, Mrs. R. vanEverdingen, Mrs. Robert Long and Mrs. R. Geiathorpe.

Mrs. Ross Hall was also organized at the beginning of the year which helped to keep the shop well stocked.

An advertisement of the shop hours and its merchandises in the social radio station C.J.B.Q. each month to be broadcasted many times in the month. It greatly increased this valuable publicity. The shop was also kept before the public through frequent notices in the local paper.

Although Japanese political parties started growing unrestricted after the Second World War, it wasn't until 1952 that they began forming effective governments.

Holiday Treats Mark Each Special Day

The purpose of the Holiday Committee is to observe each special day of the year, and these occations come along, we keep in some small way to brighten the day for each patient. During the past year many youth groups of Belleville have been most co-operative and helpful in this endeavor.

Valentine tray favors were made by the Girl Guides and Brownies of South East and North West districts, St. Paul's day favors by the Rangers of Belleville and the Girl Guides of Belleville West.

At Easter, the hospital Auxiliary, presented each patient with a small house plant, and Paediatrics were remembered with an Easter basket for each child. The basket was made by the C.G.I.T. girls of Tabernacle United and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Churches.

On Mother's Day hand knit bootees were given to each new baby born in maternity, they were knit by friends and members of the Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary remembered every Christmas day patient with a small gift, while the C.G.I.T. girls of Eastminster United Church made decorations and coloring books for the children in Paediatrics.

The C.G.I.T. of Belleville made attractive favors for the Christmas eve supper trays. found their colorful paper serviettes in a Hallowe'en favor, on their tray. They were made by the Girl Guides and Brownies of North East district. On such a special night as books for children, they were remembered with suitable favors, gaim made by the Auxiliary.

Puppets Give Pleasure to Little Ones

During the year just ended, the puppet group, has been active making sufficient puppets to cover the needs of the hospital. A total of ten ladies meet every month, excepting July and August, to turn in 70 puppets a month.

To Mrs. N. O'Neil and her ladies of Bridge St. United Church Mrs. R. J. Patterson of Stirling and the ladies working with her, we extend our sincere thanks for their efforts on our behalf.

The following financial report was submitted:

Receipts: Dec. 31st, 1962, bank balance $72.50; cash on hand $5.32; 1963 sale puppets $16.25; 2 cheques from auxiliary $225.00; bank interest 6ic $2.19; $319.26.

Disbursements: bank charges $1.20; postage 32c; name tags $7.25; fees $26.16; duty on faces and name tags $45.61; supplies $41.44; petty cash $3.50; total $127.85. Bank balance Dec. 31st, 1963 $31.36; cash on hand $10.38 .. $319.50.

Layettes Fill a Need for Baby Clothes

Layettes are placed in the Samaritan-Cupboard to be given to needy mothers when they leave the hospital with their new baby. Each layette consists of two nightgowns, two shirts, three diapers, a knitted bonnet and bootees, a receiving blanket and a heavier blanket. Some mothers receive a complete layette, some only part layettes. In all, 44 needy mothers received clothes for their infants during the past year.

A total of 270 articles of baby clothing have been placed in the cupboard at a cost of $150. Before donations of knitted items were received.

At present, there are 25 women making baby clothes for the cupboard. During the past year they have sewn 150 yards of flannelette and knit 157 balls of wool.

Coffee Shop Becomes Coffee Cart

The Coffee Shop operated successfully from January, 1st until the end of April when, with the lack of space the shop had to be dismantled to make room for bed patients.

The operation of the extra outlay of monies for paid help incurred after such a short period of operation, we have netted a profit of $510.66 in the four months. In June a cheque for $325. was turned over to the auxiliary and $185. was transferred to the Coffee Cart account for future operation.

COFFEE CART REPORT

The Coffee Cart began operating May 15th, 1963. With an average of 15 volunteers a month totalling 651 hours over a period of six months, the Coffee Cart has become a successful self-supporting and profitable venture. It is fulfilling a need that has been lacking in the hospital since the closing of the Coffee Shop. Mrs. J. E. Buchan, Director of Volunteers, Mrs. A. T. Reynolds, secretary and staff and Mrs. L. G. Lennox, treasurer have been untiring in their efforts to keep the cart operating successfully. Through the skill and generosity of Mr. F. A. Beeby we have an exceptionally beautiful coffee cart.

In December a cheque for $200 was presented to the Auxiliary, proceeds netted from the Coffee Cart for the past six months, making a total of $525. from shop and cart.

Ann Landers

Parents Are Driven Nutty By Their Car-Crazy Son

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 14-year-old son is driving me crazy. In this state he can get a learner's permit at 15, but he won't be 15 until May. For the last three months he has spent every extra minute in the car — starting, stopping, backing up and going a few feet forward. It's driving me nutty. My husband said the boy used half a tank of gas over the weekend and didn't go anyplace.

He insists the girls will not look at a boy unless he has a car. Furthermore, he has said he intends to take on the idea that a car is the key to success. In the meantime, their grades are just fair. Please tell us what to do. — BOXED IN.

DEAR BOXED — The first thing you can do it put the kibosh on Granny's gift. A 17-year-old who is doing just fair in school should not have a car.

Next you can do yourself why your sons seem to have so much spare time. They should be busy with school work, Scouting, science projects, sports, hobbies — the list is endless.

Boys who are encouraged to channel their time and energy constructively will not be sitting in the driveway by the hour, draining the gas tank.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a retired farmer, 88 years of age, with a grown family. My wife passed away two years ago. I've taken out a few women, but I was never interested in getting married again. Now, I'd marry Dolly in a minute, but one thing is standing in the way. I am not sure she is married.

Dolly's husband died four years ago. She is 52 years of age and looks like 35. Dolly says she likes me as a friend but that's as far as it goes.

When I try to hold her hand she says, "Stop the foolishness." Ann, I want this woman for a wife not a pal. What is your advice? — NOT DEAD YET.

• • •

DEAR NOT YET — Date other women. This may encourage Dolly to retool her thinking. After six months if Dolly still insists to be your pal, give her a Methodist handshake and find a woman who is interested in marriage.

• • •

DEAR ANN — My cousin and I went all through school together and have been lifelong friends. We've had crushes on the same fellows, and were competitors in debate and oratory.

Recently she has made some cutting remarks. I was shocked last evening when she told a number of people in my presence that it was embarrassing to have me visit. She said I was such a poor housekeeper I used to ask my dates to pick me up at her house. The truth is that when our home was being remodelled I did this once.

Today I called her and asked why she said such a thing and she replied, "You're too sensitive." I'd like your opinion. — NOT LAUGHING.

DEAR NOT LAUGHING — People who make cutting remarks and then criticize your sense of humor are destructive and they don't deserve to be counted as friends.

Tell your cousin your sense of humor is just fine which is more than can be said for her integrity. And next time don't wait till the next day. Nail her on the spot.

• • •

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

— PATRICIA LEWIS —

THOUGHTLESSNESS IS FOOD FOR THOUGHT

You can get mighty thoughtful when you think how thoughtless some people can be.

Thoughtful, perhaps philosophical — but never resigned. I'm the sort of optimist who believes that the thoughtless ones may change their ways if they are made aware of their social lapses.

There's a certain executive in midtown New York who isn't so optimistic.

This gentleman put some papers and magazines he wanted to study in a cardboard carton and left the half-filled box in a corner of his office until he got a chance to take them home.

Thereafter he was amused to see visitors drop ashes, gum wrappers, empty cigarette packages and crumpled envelopes into the carton.

His amusement diminished in inverse ratio as the pile of debris grew and grew. Obviously, his later visitors, seeing the pile of trash in the box, assumed it was all right to make contributions of their own.

Never did anyone inquire if the strange-looking receptacle actually was a "waste basket." No one asked permission to deposit his litter in the carton.

"The box became a symbol to me of the thoughtlessness of people, many of whom hold high positions in the office," the executive said. "I decided to leave the carton there until it was filled to the top.

"I finally got rid of the thing when one rare specimen doused his cigarette in the ash tray on the desk and then flipped the butt towards the box. His marksmanship was bad, but I admired some pretty caustic remarks at him.

"His defense, of course, was that he thought the box was meant for trash. All I kept thinking afterwards was what a kind of executive he thought I was to use a cardboard carton in my fancy office for a waste basket."

So it goes.

COMMUTER TYPE

There's the commuter type that uses the seat opposite as a foot rest, dirty shoes and all. And the other who plops down in a seat meant for two and uses the other space for his overcoat and briefcase. True to type, he acts miffed when a ticket-punching passenger comes along and asks if the seat is taken.

Have you met the one who shoves into line ahead of you at the bank or ticket counter? Or the driver on a slushy day who won't slow down and splashes you or your car with mud as he speeds past?

The cigar or pipe smoker who blows smoke into your face or belongs with the others. And let's not forget the type who considers all employees and salespeople as underlings who are economically dependent on him.

Horrible examples, all, and too common to shrug off.

Maybe some publicity will help. Perhaps, when they read about themselves, they won't think I'm talking about someone else.

WAGE GAINS

Average hourly wage for adult workers in Swedish industry in August, 1953, was 6.5 per cent higher, but for female workers alone 8.8 per cent more than the previous year.

U.C.W. Meeting

SPRINGBROOK U.C.W.

On Thursday about 60 members and visitors sat down to an enjoyable pot-luck dinner, after which the ladies gathered for their meeting at 2 p.m. The president, Mrs. Murney Mason welcomed the ladies and read an appropriate poem.

Mrs. Gerald McFall conducted the worship service using the theme "Alive with His Life," with Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Broadworth and Mrs. Pilkin taking part.

Mrs. Ralph Wellman gave the topic, "Life's Little Sanctuaries" in four parts "Home", God's Nature", "A Friend" and "God Himself".

A letter was read from Mrs. Sawyer inviting any ladies who would like to take the bus trip to Toronto on Jan. 29 to visit the Supply Depot, United Church House, and the Bread Victor Mission.

A donation was voted to the Sunday School to help pay for supplies. The Belleville Presbytery United Church Women will meet in Napanee on February 18. It was decided to decorate the Church basement this month.

A reading was given by Mrs. Gerald Broadworth and a musical game conducted by Mrs. Lorne Baily.

Hostesses for the February meeting will be Mrs. Ralph Wellman and Mrs. Murney Bateman.

Successful Living

Belittles Wife Because Of His Deep Inferiority

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — My husband has belittled me so much during our marriage, that now I find it very hard to live with him and be happy. I have everything to live for except "love."

He will do for other people more than he will do for me any time. If I want any affection at all, I have to make the move and he gives me the impression that it makes no difference whether I love him or not. If I do, all right, and if I don't, all right.

He has made fun of my love for him so much that I can't enjoy myself in his company. I want to put my arm in his, and sit close to him when we drive, as I see so many others do, but I just can't do it, because there is that horrible feeling comes to me, "If I do, when he gets with friends he will make fun of me." He has made fun of me playing the piano so much now that I cannot play a note when someone is present.

Doris, it's a horrible feeling to want love and live with someone who makes you feel that you are nobody. — LAUGHING STOCK.

* * *

DEAR LAUGHING STOCK — Yes, isn't it? I am reminded of the old rhyme:

"Big fleas have little fleas upon their backs to bite 'em, Little fleas have lesser fleas and so ad infinitum."

Your big flea must have been bitten very young by a bug he couldn't shake off. He gets his revenge on you (without knowing why.)

A man belittles a woman (and vice versa) because of his own deep feelings of inferiority. Then he feels superior. It's an uphill job to change the trend, but it has been done; sometimes with, others without, the help of an outside person. Send me your address, and I'll direct you to trained help near you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am worried because I am so far behind at school. I am 19-and only finished grade 8. My parents could not help me because they are not Canadian, and my teacher did not care.

Is there a school where I could go and catch up with my grade? — MAXINE.

* * *

DEAR MAXINE — Go to the school in your district and ask for an appointment to discuss this. If you want to badly enough, you can do it.

When parents come from other countries, and talk a foreign language in the home, getting educated has hazards for the children. Dad simply can't help solve a geometry problem he has never seen the like of; not to mention the parent-child dilemmas that go with teen-age type socialibility for the newcomer to Canada.

* * *

To CHAIRMAN — Getting members to speak up often takes some doing, especially if the meeting is large and formal. Get things rolling by-priming one or two of the bolder ones ahead of time. Praise any small comment and repeat it; call on a past president by name — or someone similarly situated — to express pros or cons. When asking for comments, wait long enough for the spirit to move the timid!

* * *

(There's a way to cope. A letter to Doris can get you a new way of looking at your special dilemma.)

Treat Family and Friends To Homemade Bread

by Mary Moore

To revert to more reasonable cooking than the two exotic columns on mushrooms and lobster I gave earlier this week, I am going to show you how to make a different and delicious loaf of bread. Believe it or not, we served this with Mulligatawny (see next week) for dinner on New Year's Day. (I'll have to admit though, that to my usual an elegant turn, I made Crepes Suzettes for dessert to bring the New Year in with a flourish.)

This loaf I am about to describe calls for cornmeal and molasses and the name has a comical if corny source. A Maine fisherman had a lazy wife who habitually served him cornmeal with molasses for dinner. One evening he came home to an empty house but the same old pot full of cornmeal was kept on the stove. Weary of the same old mess of pottage, he threw in some flour and yeast and baked himself a loaf of bread and as he put it in the oven exclaimed "Anna, damn her". It was good so that was how Anadama Bread was born.

ANADAMA BREAD (makes wonderful toast):

1 package granular yeast, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon or 1 cube sugar, 1½ cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup cornmeal, 1-3 cup molasses, 1½ tablespoons shortening, about 4 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

In a large mixing bowl soak the yeast with the 1 teaspoon sugar in the ¼ cup lukewarm water for 10 minutes. Meanwhile to the boiling water in a pot add the salt, then stir in the cornmeal until boiling. Remove from heat and add molasses and shortening. Cool to lukewarm and add to risen yeast liquid in mixing bowl. Beat in 2 cups of the flour. Put ¼ cup of the remaining 1 cup flour on kneading board, turn dough out of bowl onto it and knead 200 times, endeavoring to knead the flour on the board into it. Grease bowl and return dough to it and let rise, covered, until tripled in size. Flour kneading board with remaining ¼ cup flour, turn risen dough out on it and knead 200 times again, trying to work remaining flour in. Shape into an even round mound and place on buttered layer cake pan. Brush top of dough with cornstarch - paste made by stirring 1 tablespoon cornstarch, into ½ cup water until thick over medium heat. Now if desired, sprinkle thickly with sesame or poppy seeds for cornmeal and milk! Let rise until at least tripled in size and at least 3" above rim of pan. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 40 minutes or until when tapped with fingertips, it sounds hollow. A delicious and different and economical loaf of home made bread.

Go ahead, try it!

District Residents Invited To View New Curling Club

PICTON (Staff) — On Sunday, the people of the area are cordially invited to inspect the new Prince Edward Curling Club premises.

They will see what can be done when a determined group of people decide they wanted something badly enough to "stick their necks out" and go after it.

The new rink is a tribute to a few dozen men, dedicated to the ancient game of curling, which has become so popular with Canadians over the past few years. It is not a new sport by a long way, history goes away back in the curling sport.

On Sunday, some of the members will be out either practising, or having a game with other members, which will allow the visitors the opportunity to see just how the game is played. It looks very simple, but it takes more than a few minutes to learn how to line one of those "rocks" or "stones" and get it away easily. They weigh 40 pounds each and I for one can testify to the fact that after about the fourth end, the weight seems to be about twice that amount.

It is not like throwing a tenpin ball down an alley. I soon found that out. It is more a matter of co-ordination and perfect balance. There is a decided trick (which I have yet to master) in a smooth delivery of the stone.

Then there is the matter of "weight." That is what it takes to get the stone to the other end. If you throw too hard, your stone goes right through the "house," if not enough weight, it does not get to the "hog line" and is out of play.

For those who do not understand the terms of curling. The "house" is that part of the rink where the circles are painted, 12 feet in which to seek a resting place. The "hog line" is a line a few feet in front of the "house."

The skips are the bosses of each four-man team. They call the play, and direct each curler where they would like the rock to end up, you will notice I said "would like" as not too many of the curlers have the knack of placing their rock exactly where the skip directs. They come awfully close at times, and one thing about it, be it poor or a good shot, you will never hear anything from the skip, but "good one." It is a fascinating game, and once the muscles that I never knew I had get back into shape, I know I will be an addict to curling like the 130 members the club now has.

Some work still has to be done at the clubhouse, but there are many willing hands to do this work, and when it is finished, it will be about as fine a place as there is in the province.

The heating system, the wash and cloak rooms are in and ready, in the basement of the clubhouse. The kitchen is set up for coffee and there is a "Coke" machine.

The 130 membership is expected to reach 130 in the very near future, and future memberships will be accepted only until the 200 mark is reached, at which time, it is expected, the membership will be closed.

Don't put it off until the directors are forced to say "sorry, we are all sold out."

UPHOLDS SENTENCE

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas' highest court for criminal cases upheld Wednesday the eight-year prison sentence given Billie Sol Estes, whose financial bubble burst with millions in losses to U.S. lending companies. Estes, 38, was convicted of swindling by a state court jury in Tyler on Nov. 7, 1962. Estes has 19 days in which to seek a rehearing.

Corporal Charlie Fletcher, left, thanks Pat McKenna, after a TV set was presented to him. In background is Jack Hartwick, master of ceremonies for the evening.

OPP Corporal Presented With TV Set by Friends

PICTON (Staff) — Corporal Charles Fletcher of the OPP here, has been transferred to the Napanee detachment. He is leaving next Monday to take up his new duties.

Picton OPP Constables Earl Graves and Pat McKenna decided that Charlie's 15 years of service to the Picton detachment should not go unheralded, and these two enterprising young men started out to have a farewell party for Charlie.

Almost 200 men contributed over 120 of these, jammed the Elks' Hall last night to pay tribute to not only a fine police officer, but an all-round real good man.

Lance Nethery, Prince Edward Crown Attorney, paid tribute to the guest of honor when he said, "He is an excellent officer, one who is richly deserving of his recent promotion to corporal. Napanee is not too far away, perhaps he will visit us soon, we all hope so."

Corporal Fletcher will be missed by a lot of people, as in addition to his duties as an officer of the law, he was always willing to lend a helping hand to any worthwhile organization.

He is a member of the Picton Rotary Club, and the Prince Edward Curling Club. He has been active in the P.E.C. Horticultural Association and the Agricultural Society.

Charlie will leave Monday to start work, but his wife, Teressa, will remain in Picton for the time being.

SENTENCED TO LIFE

BARRIE (CP)—Melville Hodgins, 28 was sentenced to life imprisonment Wednesday for shooting his eldest brother Percy, 36, with a .303 calibre rifle in December, 1962. Hodgins pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of non-capital murder. The jury deliberated only three minutes.

Pays $43.80 For Harboring Vicious Dog

PICTON (Staff) — Only two cases were heard at Magistrate T. Y. Will's court here Wednesday morning, but they took over three hours to complete.

Carl Chapman, who works on the Glenora Ferry and lives on Bay Street in Picton, was fined a total of $112. when he was found guilty of impaired driving. The charge was reduced from drunk driving.

Picton Constable Cecil Farrington testified that he followed the accused around parts of the town on Dec. 11 at about one a.m. and noticed that he was driving little faster than a walk.

When the accused was apprehended on York St., according to the constable, he showed the usual symptoms of being under the influence of alcohol and was arrested.

In the witness stand, accused admitted to having only Grade 6 education, he broke down and cried while giving evidence. He was defended by Reg. Nourse.

In the second case, Clifford Hill, 18 Centre St., was ordered to have his dog destroyed and was charged with the costs of court in the amount of $43.80.

Hill was charged with keeping or harboring a vicious dog. The charge was laid after the dog had bitten Miss Jean Jenkins, R.R. 1 Milford while she was walking on the town hill (Bridge St.) on December 24.

Rev. Frank C. Bell, Anglican rector of Milford told the court that he had seen the dog biting Miss Jenkins on the ankle and had stopped his car to go to the rescue. The girl had teeth marks on her leg, one of which drew blood.

Sgt. Scott Hale, told of following the dog around for some time, eventually having it lead him to the Owens St. address.

Magistrate Wills was not satisfied with the evidence, "I have no evidence here that this is the dog that attacked this young woman, so far you have only proved that the dog was vicious," he said. "You have not, however shown that this dog belonged to the accused," he added.

After a second five minute adjournment, Sgt. Hale went out and brought Mrs. Donald Leverton, a next door neighbor of the accused to court, and she testified that the dog Sgt. Hale was following and that had been identified as the dog that had bitten the girl, was owned by the accused.

"It has been proven to me that the dog was yours and it will be destroyed, and you will pay the costs of this court," His Worship told the accused.

Accused brought to court Edward Brooks to whom he had given the dog. Mr. Brooks told the court that he had not wanted the dog and had given it to a friend. This friend claims the dog is very young and very playful and plays with his children all day long. "I would think the dog was only about 15 months old," said Mr. Brooks.

'Jest a Second'

"Dear Henry's tremendously sensible about this drinking and driving business. He's sold the car!"

Guards Trim Signals Corps

PICTON (Staff) — Canadian Guards of Picton went on a scoring spree last night and walked over R.C.S.S. to the tune of 21-5 in a Kingston Garrison Hockey League game.

Guards Gold now have first place in the league standings with six wins, no losses and one tie — and they proved their right to be in that position last night.

D. Slaven led the scoring with five goals while Howie Byers and J. Ryan triggered four apiece. S. James scored three and the others went to E. Conroy, T. Kennedy, P. O'Brien, H. White and J. Frenette.

J. Payne tallied four times in a losing cause and R. Price netted the other goal.

with Ontario's current water shortage stresses the efforts needed to meet agricultural requirements but ignores the shortage of water as a limitation on development of industry in southern Ontario cities.

GOVERNMENT CONCERNED

Dr. Bissel said in a statement the government's announcement was an indication of its concern for the universities and their problems.

The Crown corporation will help meet the massive capital needs of the universities, he said.

Father LeBel emphasized in Windsor he was against any government control of academic programs. But he was pleased with the government's concern and confident it would not interfere with academic freedom.

The throne speech debate begins today following the pomp of the legislature opening Wednesday. Lieutenant - Governor J. Rowe rode to the legislature in an open carriage drawn by four prancing white Arabian stallions.

In the legislative chamber, he read the speech under CBC television cameras, the first time the cameras were allowed in the chamber for the opening.

Modify Bill To Create New Department

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec government has introduced in the legislature a modified version of its bill creating an education department, a number of the principal changes apparently won from suggestions by the Prince's Roman Catholic bishops.

The bill, based on recommendations of a royal commission, puts responsibility for education in the hands of one cabinet minister for the first time in Quebec's history.

But the modified version appears to go at least part way in meeting suggestions by the bishops to guarantee the denominational character of Quebec's Roman Catholic and Protestant education systems.

The bishops were among 34 groups that offered suggestions to change the bill after it was first introduced, then shelved, last June.

SHOWS SPEED

It was among 16 measure introduced Wednesday — second day of the new legislature session — as the government showed it intends to get down to business as quickly as possible.

The government said, in a prepared statement, that the redrafted education bill "reproduces the essentials" of last year's version. Sections dealing with teaching of religion and morals were "formulated in more clear and precise terms."

The education bill creates an advisory body called the Superior Council of Education, five of whose members will be named by the Assembly of Roman Catholic Bishops. It will have the right to institute policy on teaching of religion and morals, which must be approved by the cabinet.

Under the existing education system, the cabinet has little say in education matters. The cabinet will draw the line on what is or isn't religious or moral matters.

The government says the department will co-ordinate the varied and often unrelated sectors of the province's educational system.

Fall Could Have Caused Fatal Injury

TORONTO (CP) — Pathologist DF. Roderick Ross said Wednesday injuries which resulted in the death Sept. 25 of Peter Campbell, 62, could have been caused by a fall.

Any relationship between a baseball bat and marks on Campbell's body was "speculation," he said at the capital murder trial of two men charged in connection with the death.

Kenneth Feltham, 25, and John Mooney, 36, both of Toronto, were charged after Campbell's battered body was found outside the home of Norma Leibrecht, 34.

Police testified at the Ontario Supreme Court jury trial that the pockets of Campbell's clothes were turned inside out, his ring and watch were missing and his wallet contained no money when he was found.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart R. Rosenberg

"Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." This is one way of understanding what the name Adam means. Adam is literally the "dust of the earth", he is taken from the humblest of creation, and, after a life of aspiration to the highest, is returned unto the ground. This is his tragedy, but it is also his triumph.

Dust of the earth — like the earth itself — belongs to no man. Adam does not belong to Adam. "For the whole earth is mine" — again and again the refrain runs through Scripture: Adam is earth, and he cannot keep what does not belong to him; here is his despair. But he can borrow — and this is his victory. What he "owns", is taken as he is, from the earth. But that which is his, like he, himself, may be enkindled with the spark of the breath which transforms his poor earth into the "image of God."

Dust of the earth — Adam — has no national origin, no racial pigmentation, no political ideology, no ecclesiastical organization. Adam is Everyman — irrespective of his land, his ethnic tie, his government or his church. Adam is God's man, not man's man, and God is silent about the very things over which we are so vocal. Dust — and nothing more — describes his origin. The universal commonality of humble origin is the only reference we have to the stuff of which he is made. In the end, not what he is made of nor what he makes of himself is important — only, that he is made. This is why it is dust that tells the tale — for only a living, living Creator could elevate that which is so lowly to so high an eminence, by lending earth something of Heaven.

Dust of the earth can be used to serve false ends. "Thou shalt not make unto thee a graven image, nor any manner of likeness, of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath. . ." Adam is dust — but so are a thousand known or unknown idols, born of Adam's lust, ambition and servitude to the passing but popular fancy. Adam's idols are symbols of his earthly weakness — he plays the god and fashions his creatures from the dust. But his dust is not God's dust, it is only from his own backyard, crude, localized, provincial, unmistakenly his.

Adam is God's dust, God is not his symbol, he is God's Adam, dust made in God's image, is the natural symbol of Heaven in earth. Adam is our brother, and man is called by his name; in him and in us all God has symbolized Himself, forever.

As long as Adam knows what he symbolizes, even his borrowed life, while no paradise, can lead him in the direction of the blessing.

missioner's office a spokesman said they would not land but were standing by to protect British lives if necessary.

The British survey party flown will begin resurveying British evacuation Friday. Most Britons are believed remaining.

Armed volunteers rounded up hundreds of Arabs and Africans Wednesday on suspicion of sniper - revolutionary activity and herded them into a barbed wire compound behind the new president's office winow. Most of those taken into custody were Arabs believed plotting to assist Prime Minister Mohammed Shamte Hamadi's Zanzibar Nationalist Party.

Zanzibar radio, in a policy statement, described the coup as "an anti-feudal revolution." It said all unclaimed land was being taken over by the government and all goods stolen and pawned after the coup would be returned to their owners.

The broadcast said a "misunderstanding" a Zanzibar radio broadcast reporting that two ousted officials would be hanged. He did not say whether the two, including former finance and development minister Juma Aley Juma-Akwawy would be sent to prison. All former ministers of the overthrown government have been ordered sent to prison for 15 years.

Teamsters Sign New Contract With Truckers

CHICAGO (AP) — James R. Hoffa's International Brotherhood of Teamsters and U.S. truckers reached agreement on an unprecedented master contract early today affecting more than 400,000 workers, averting a strike for midnight Wednesday.

The jubilant Hoffa said the new contract, which he described as the first national labor agreement reached without a major strike, would bring more than 400,000 Teamstyr members and 600 locals into a single bargaining unit.

"This is one of the finest contracts ever negotiated in the United States," Hoffa said at a press conference.

The three - year contract, which expires March 31, 1967, provides for a 32-cent pay increase spread over the contract period. Truckers' salaries will increase 10 cents the first year, eight cents the second year and 10 cents the third year.

HEEDS RATIFICATION

The contract still must be ratified by the membership of the Teamsters.

Negotiations became snarled earlier this week when the truck lines' negotiating team, headed by C. G. Zwingle of Oakland, Calif., insisted on a 10-8-4 salary table.

Hoffa said that the wage-fringe benefit package would total 45 cents an hour. Zwingle agreed that Hoffa's estimate was "reasonably close," but did not elaborate.

Hoffa said the Teamsters' original demands were 80 cents an hour wage increase and about the same increase in fringe benefits.

He added that the contract "contains intangible benefits which cannot be determined until the end of the year." He did not go into specifics concerning fringe benefits.

Zwingle, appearing at the press conference with Hoffa, expressed satisfaction with the agreement, but said trucking rates would increase to absorb costs of the contract.

City Horses Win Prizes

He was delegated in buy two teams to haul logs from the city watershed to picking stations where they are loaded on trucks. It was estimated this would save $1,875 a year compared with the cost of hiring horses by the day.

The husky horses—two pintos and two blacks—were so hand-some they were entered in the local Loch Lomond Fair where they won two first prizes, two seconds and a third.

The city decided to try for bigger things and entered the teams in the Atlantic Winter Fair at Halifax. The result—also prizes and $100 in prize money.

Canada and Japan Natural Trading Partners But Japs Want More Equal Trade

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congressman Cornelius Gallagher said the U.S. delegation to the joint Canadian-U.S. interparliamentary conference Wednesday expressed "grave reservations" about the proposed increase in the Canadian withholding tax on foreign investment.

Unless the Canadian government takes steps to revise this law, "we will consider this as discriminatory and we will have to consider what steps to take in return," the New Jersey Democrat said at the completion of the two-day interparliamentary meeting.

At a press conference called to sum up findings of the legislators, the chairmen disclosed there was agreement on some issues but differences on others, including the question of trade with Communist countries and the approach to the Kennedy round of tariff bargaining to begin in May.

Later, the Canadian parliamentarians and heads of the U.S. delegation were entertained at the White House where President Lyndon Johnson said he treasures U.S. relations with Canada and says this relationship will always improve. He said also he looks forward to meeting with Prime Minister Pearson here next week.

MEET JOHNSON

Johnson met briefly with the delegates in the White House state dining room where Mrs. Johnson mingled with the guests after they had been conducted on a tour of the executive mansion. Mrs. Johnson told Alan Macnaughton, speaker of the Canadian House of Commons, that she never had been in Canada and looks forward to making a visit at some future time.

Mrs. Johnson paid particular attention to the women delegates, pausing to say a few words to Dr. Pauline Jewett, liberal member of the Commons for Northumberland, Ont., and Mrs. Florence Elsie Inman, Liberal senator for Prince Edward Island.

The parliamentarians and their wives fly to Cape Kennedy, Fla., after a morning visit to Arlington Military Cemetery where a wreath will be placed on the grave of the late president John Kennedy.

Under the Canadian withholding tax law, the tax on dividends repatriated to the U.S. drops to 10 per cent from 15 for corporations which offer at least 25 per cent of their stock to Canadian purchasers. However the tax rises to 20 per cent from 15 next year for corporations which decline to make the minimum 25-per-cent stock offering to Canadians. The U.S. has been strongly critical of the proposed tax increase.

The delegations, meeting for the first time in two years, prepared a confidential summary of their conference saying that Canadian group did not share the view of the U.S. group on the maintenance of a formal embargo on trade with Cuba and China.

CREDIT LIMIT

The U.S. legislators, representing both the House and Senate, stressed the need for limiting western credit to the Soviet Union to force the Russians to dip into funds allocated for other purposes in order to buy needed food and other products. But the Canadians argued that aside from restrictions on the shipment of strategic goods, there should be no discrimination in trade among countries.

The confidential document, disclosed to reporters, said the Canadians did not share U.S. enthusiasm for offering large-scale, category - by - category reductions in the 1964 Kennedy round of tariff bargaining. The Canadians would rather negotiate on the basis of individual products.

At the press conference, Senator George Aiken, Vermont Republican later described by President Johnson as a "our Canadian ambassador - at - large," said trade is more important than the U.S. in trade with Communist countries.

He suggested U.S. restrictions result in part from U.S. commitments to the government of Nationalist China. The U.S., however, would not reduce its total embargo on trade with Communist China until the Communists renounce the use of force to settle international disputes, Aiken said.

ARGUES FOR TRADE

Senator Maurice Bourget, speaker of the Canadian Senate, noted Canada has a large deficit in trade with the U.S. and suggests that Canada must trade with other countries, including the Communists, to help reduce this trade and payments gap.

Macnaughton, asked whether Canada would recognize Red China, said that the Communists have been in control of the mainland for many years but he doubted Canada in order to recognize the regime "until the U.S. is about ready to do so."

Touching on the question of possible Canadian entry into the Organization of American States, Macnaughton suggested Canada is moving closer to-wards a final decision on the membership question but he observed that this decision rests with the Canadian government and Parliament rather than with the Commons speaker—"Thank God."

On the Great Lakes labor problem, Aiken said the U.S. is opposed to the general principle of government trusteeships over unions but now that the Canadian government has imposed restrictions on Canadian maritime unions, the U.S. would do everything it could to prevent violations of the law.

Jack Teagarden, Trombonist, Found Dead

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Jack Teagarden, considered one of the great white exponents of jazz, was found dead Wednesday in his motel room, within earshot of the Dixieland clubs where he played his famous blues trombone.

Police said cause of death would remain unclassified until the coroner's office performs an autopsy.

The 58 - year - old musician, whose lazy, lyric trombone had throbbed through jam haunts for the last four decades, was found face down on the floor.

He had been staying in New Orleans during a night club engagement in the French Quarter. Police listed his home address as Pompano Beach, Fla. He died in a New Orleans hospital, said Teagarden had been a patient for two days around the New Years holidays. A spokesman declined to disclose the reason for Teagarden's hospital stay.

NOTED AS LEADER

Teagarden, also noted as a band leader and singer, played with Louis Armstrong's All Stars, Paul Whiteman's band and Louis Armstrong's combo.

"When I first heard him play," Armstrong once said, "I got goose pimples."

Almost entirely self - taught, Teagarden, whose real name was Weldon John (Teagarden), was born in Vernon, Tex. He started playing at the age of seven with his father — a trap drummed trumpet and baritone horn—gave him his first trombone.

At age of 15 he began working in honky-tonk circuit with a four-man unit. He rose to prominence in New York jazz circles in the 1930s.

Teagarden, once talking about Basin Street Blues, said he and Armstrong "were never able to discover the real origin of the song."

"But," he said, "since we put down our version on paper, it sold millions of copies."

In his book of 1957, jazz expert Leonard Feather said Teagarden had "a tone that is unmistakably his own, and style that varies from the earthiest of blues—generally considered his forte—to such technically challenging items as Lover which he plays . . . without ever running out of breath or ideas."

LEAVES BIG ESTATE

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Duncan MacTavish, who died last year in a car accident on Toronto, left an estate of $859,030. His will, filed probate Wednesday, leaves his widow a life income from the estate. At her death the remainder will be divided into four equal shares to the MacTavish children. The senator also left $2,000 to Queen's University.

Kennedy, Will Make Effort To Cool Sukarno's Hostility Toward Malaysia Federation

TOKYO (AP)—Attorney-General Robert F. Kennedy arrived in Tokyo today for talks with President Sukarno of Indonesia in an effort to cool Indonesia's hostility toward the new Federation of Malaysia.

Kennedy said he is counting a "bond of friendship" between the United States and Indonesia" to help ease the dispute. He meets with Sukarno Friday.

The 38-year-old attorney-general added, however, that the Malaysian crisis is "best decided, resolved determined by Asian countries by themselves."

Kennedy met Sukarno in 1962 on a Far East tour by his brother. Although Sukarno has been openly critical of the United States, he said to expect Kennedy's honesty and ability.

WILL TALK TO ALL

Kennedy's personal efforts in the Malaysian dispute will take him around the world to meet with all the principals. Monday, he flies to Manila to confer with President Diosdado Macapagal of The Philippines. He also is expected to talk with Malaysian Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman in Kuala Lumpur and British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home in London.

Under British sponsorship, the British territories of Malaya, Singapore, Sabah (British North Borneo) and Sarawak formed the Federation of Malaysia last September. From the start, it was opposed by The Philippines, which claims Sabah, and Indonesia, which occupies the rest of Borneo.

Sukarno, by far the more militant opponent, vowed to crush Malaysia, calling it an instrument of British neo-imperialism. He also began an economic boycott aimed chiefly at the port of Singapore, principal outlet for Indonesian goods.

Philippine opposition to Malaysia has been milder, and Macapagal is trying to mediate between Sukarno and Abdul Rahman. The Indonesian and Philippine presidents conferred in Manila last week and agreed to seek a peaceful solution of the dispute.

MORE DIFFICULT

Kennedy's task appeared more difficult following a defiant statement by Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio Wednesday warning that economic action against his country might lead to a change in its policy of non-alignment.

Subandrio said Indonesia would look elsewhere for political and military ties if Britain began a "general offensive" against his country. "Else-where" clearly meant the Communist bloc. The Soviet Union has given Indonesia more than $1,000,000,000 in military aid.

Canadian Beer Industry Against Excessive Taxation

OTTAWA (CP)—The Carter royal commission on taxation was told today that the Canadian beer industry is being held down by excessive taxation.

The complaint came from the Brewers Association of Canada, whose brief said that the brewing industry, because it is among the most heavily taxed in the country, has been prevented from growing at the same rate as other segments of the economy.

Beer consumption hasn't been growing in line with other products and the reason "is the present excessively high beer prices and its relation to the prices of other alcoholic beverages."

This was due to taxation.

Beer consumption per capita increased by only 2.8 per cent between 1952 and 1961, said the brief. In that period consumer expenditure on beer increased 34.4 per cent while it rose 61.5 per cent on other alcoholic beverages and 65.6 per cent on overall expenditures.

WANTS TAXES REMOVED

If the government removed its special taxes and duties from beer, the selling price could be dropped by 25 per cent, the commission was told. "This would be the case if beer were considered a normal commodity and not subject to special taxation."

The submission said bureau of

Police Services In Ottawa Ask for Probe

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ottawa Police Commission has asked the attorney general's department for an inquiry into "both the general and specific aspects" of the administration of police services" in the capital.

The inquiry was requested in the wake of an Ontario Police Commission report that cleared three Ottawa detectives of allegations of criminal conduct.

A statement issued Wednesday by Magistrate Glenn G. Strike said the director of public prosecution for Ontario had found no basis for laying any criminal charges against the three officers. The report was made public.

The policemen — inspector of Detectives Borden Hobbs, Detective-Sergeant Cecil Norton and Acting Detective Tom Reggazin—had been accused of engineering a frame-up of a drug trap two men.

They were suspended Dec. 19 by Police Chief Reginald Axcell pending investigation of the charge. While the report cleared the policemen of criminal charges, the police board said the facts justified a further inquiry into police administration.

The suspensions followed the court appearance of Royal Bard, 32, who was one of three men arrested in a police trap at the home of a wealthy Ottawa businessman during an attempted breakin Nov. 17.

When Bard was convicted and sentenced to three years in penitentiary, he told the judge that he had worked with police to set up the breakin as a trap for the other two men. He since has appealed the conviction.

statistics figures how that the brewing industry makes up 1.438 per cent of Canada's total industry. Yet, in 1961-62, the brewing industry contributed eight per cent of all the sales and excise taxes collected by the government.

"In other words, the brewing industry carries a sales and excise tax burden which is almost six times as large as its relative weight to total industrial production."

The association said the industry also had difficulty with the administration of the federal sales tax, applied on the manufacturers selling price. Problems arose because brewers sell to customers at different stages in the distribution process and there is no way of equalizing the tax base.

Proposes New Tax Formula To Stop Flow of Canada's Human Resources to U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — A Vancouver businessman Wednesday suggested a new tax formula which he hoped would stop the flow of Canada's human resources to the United States.

"Something must be done to stem the tide," said Alexander K. G. Reid, president of Mutual Funds Management Corporation Limited.

Since 1820, he told the royal commission on taxation, 3,647,140 people have left Canada for the U.S., and when the natural increase rate is considered this means that 10,000,000 persons now are living in the U.S. instead of this country.

As part of a new formula, Mr. Reid would divide taxpayers into three main groups — the business entity, the conduit entity and the personal entity.

INCLUDES CO-OPS

The business entity would cover all companies, including co-operatives, that carried on any type of business.

The business entity would pay the 50-per-cent rate of corporate tax. Dividends paid by the firms to shareholders would not be subject to any additional tax.

The conduit entity, involving such enterprises as investment pools, would not pay the corporate tax. But it would be required to distribute all of its income to members, and it would be taxed at personal rates.

The personal entity would be the personal taxpayer. As a first step he would be given complete tax exemption for old age pensions, family allowances and dividends from taxable corporations.

After deducting this exempt income, he would pay a five-per-cent tax on income now considered the basic exemption—$1,000 for a single person. Beyond the basic level he would pay an additional 10-per-cent tax until his income reached $50,000, and after that his tax rate would jump by another 50 per cent.

HAS 3 STEPS

This would give all taxpayers a three-step rate—five, 25 and 65 per cent.

He estimated that his proposals would lower income tax revenue by about 10 per cent. This could be made up by overhauling the federal sales tax, now a "jungle of variably applied, exempted, and rained sales tax which is undeniably discriminatory, inequitable and economically expensive. . . ."

Instead of being applied at the manufacturers' level, the tax should be moved to the retail level.

Earlier Wednesday, the Canadian Wholesale Council presented a brief that took a firm stand against any suggestion that the sales tax should be removed in the wholesale level. If wholesalers were forced to collect the tax, said the brief, it would create inequities between retailers who are supplied directly by the manufacturer, and retailers who depend on regular wholesale channels.

Any Agreement Among Arab Leaders Would Be Surprising

By JIM PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Reading the significance of reports of harmony coming from the Cairo meeting of Arab leaders is a difficult task.

In the face of almost constant quarrelling among nations, any agreement among the leaders might seem surprising.

However, most Middle-East observers are more likely to point out that in view of the purpose of their Cairo summit meeting, the Arab leaders are to be expected to show a certain unity.

The Arab leaders were brought together to discuss means to challenge Israel's planned Jordan River diversion project. And to agree on how any, issue on which the Arabs have always been united, it is in their aggression to Israel.

EARLY OPPOSITION

Their unanimity in this area was displayed from the beginning—on the day after the British mandate over Palestine was ended with the proclamation May 14, 1948 of the Jewish state of Israel, Arab troops from Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Iraq and Egypt invaded the new Middle East dent state.

In light of the Arab hatred for the Israelis, few were surprised when all 13 members of the Arab League responded to Egyptian President Nasser's invitation to this heads-of-state meeting in Cairo.

Reports from Cairo say there have been no ripples of disharmony. They say there have been agreements, in fact, in areas not concerned with the Israeli issue, resulting from private talks among heads of state recently at bitter odds.

This sort of harmony raises the threat of renewed Arab-Israeli hostility much more than it indicates a less - troubled Arab world. Arab League history is filled with reported agreements quickly followed by fresh outbreaks of bickering and fighting.

A COMMON POLICY

Israel plans to tap Lake Tiberias (the Sea of Galilee), through which the Jordan flows, to irrigate the Negev Desert in the south. Only Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Israel have a claim to the Jordan waters, but all Arab states interest they are involved in the issue because they share a common policy against Israel. This policy would not be served by Israel's strengthening its economy and boosting its population.

There have been proposals for a region-wide development of the Jordan, with outside financial help, but the Arab League blocked these in 1955 on grounds that the plan would benefit Israel as well as the Arabs.

The Arab leaders talked in 1961 of using military force or of cutting off the Jordan's headwaters to counter Israel's irrigation plans, but no head-on clash resulted.

Today, the rivalries and divergencies within Arab ranks lead outsiders to believe there is little prospect of agreement among the Arab leaders for joint military action. Israel has said it will oppose with force any Arab plan to cut off the Jordan waters, and any such obstruction of the river system would be so costly and complicated, the Arabs seem unlikely to undertake it without outside help.

These indicators, along with the general improvement in relations among the big powers, have led some to suggest a Middle East campaign would be an unpopular issue at present.

With the uncertainties of the Middle East, however, few will wager that a clash will be avoided.

New University Will Be Opened At Guelph

TORONTO (CP)—A bill will be introduced in the Ontario legislature to establish the University of Guelph, the government said in the speech from the throne at the legislature's opening.

The new university will include an arts college, to be known as Wellington College, plus the three existing agricultural colleges in Guelph.

"A widening of the teaching facilities at Guelph will enable the students attending our agricultural colleges to broaden their educational opportunities," the speech said.

The speech said the opening of other institutions of higher learning in the province will raise to 16 the number of degree-granting schools in Ontario. Twenty years ago there were five.

Trent University is to open in Peterborough in September and Brock University, to be located in temporary quarters in the Niagara Peninsula, would open in 1965.

The University of Toronto was proceeding with plans for Scarborough and Erindale Colleges to serve the eastern and western respectively, of the metropolitan area.

Reviewing other educational developments, the government said new trade institutes were under construction in Ottawa, London and Sault Ste. Marie. Other institutes were planned for Hamilton and Welland.

A technical institute was being built in Ottawa and an addition was planned to the one at Kirkland Lake.

The government also had reached agreement with the University of Western Ontario in London for the operation of a new college of education. Tenders for the building were to be called soon.

Canadian Unity Much Desired Says Robarts

TORONTO (CP) — Canada has achieved its present prosperity through a working partnership of all the provinces acting as a single nation and the Ontario government hopes that "people in all provinces will work to keep it that way."

The statement in the speech from the throne read at the opening of the Ontario legislature was one of a series dealing in pointed fashion with Canadian unity, a subject frequently dealt with by Premier Robarts in the past.

The speech said Ontario must "continue to play, as in the past, a major role in the promotion of unity in the Canadian nation."

"One cannot fail to realize that in the development of such a huge land, differing from region to region in resources and economic opportunities, in language and in the customs of its people, continuing understanding and indeed sacrifices are required," it said.

This was the reason Ontario conquered its "natural reluctance" about arrangements agreed on at last November's federal-provincial fiscal conference, the speech said, stressing that future fiscal arrangements must not impair Ontario's ability to finance its own growth.

Making More People Than Jobs Barbados Faces Crucial Problem

The crowded Caribbean island of Barbados is having difficulty creating new jobs to keep pace with the growth of its population. In this story a Canadian Press reporter discusses some of the colony's economic problems.

UNEMPLOYMENT HIS ENEMY — Premier Err ol Barrow of Barbados says his crowded Caribbean island's No. 1 proble mis unemployment. To combat it, the graduate of the London School of Economics is seeking foreign investment capital to develop industries and expanded export markets for Barbadian products.

(CP Photo)

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (CP)—Archie Braithwaite, 25-year-old Negro taxi driver, says that for more than a year he hasn't been able to afford the $1.75 weekly rent for his small four - room government - built house.

But he has a job and this, he realizes, makes him better off than many in this eastern Caribbean sugar island, one of the world's most crowded pieces.

His burning ambition is to possess his own taxi but there's little prospect of that as long as he continues in his present job. And he dare not quit no matter how lean the pickings.

"The trouble here," he said in his quaint Irish-Welsh Barbadian dialect, "is that if I'm unwilling to settle for what I have, there's always a next man ready to take my place."

His problem is not an uncommon one in this self-governing British colony, a 166-square-mile island with 240,000 people, caught in the squeeze of mounting social and economic pressures arising largely out of its population growth.

"Our No. 1 problem is unemployment and underemployment," says Premier Errol Barrow, a graduate of the London School of Economics. "We are placing the emphasis on creating more jobs."

To achieve this goal, the premier says, Barbados needs outside help—a vast inflow of investment capital for new industry, more purchases of such Barbadian products as rum by Canada, Britain and other countries, and perhaps some kind of Colombo plan co-operative aid scheme to embrace Barbados and other West Indies islands.

In keeping with election pledges, the Democratic Labor Party premier has launched a costly program of public works.

Incentive legislation has been passed to make it easier for the island's development board, directed by K. C. Bath, former industrial commissioner at Orillia an Oshawa, Ont., to woo new industries.

Tourist promotion has been stepped up and an agreement signed between the government and Hilton Hotels Corporation for erection of a 150 - room $3,000,000 luxury hotel near Bridgetown.

One windfall has been the unprecedented prosperity of the sugar industry, still the major source of revenue and employment. Not only did Barbados reap a bumper crop in 1963, it was harvested at a time when prices hit their peak.

Also working for Barbados is its established reputation for stability, one of the reasons the United States as agricultural workers.

As to the future, Premier Barrow has his eye on gaining independence—achieved in 1962 by Trinidad and, Jamaica, former partners with Barbados in the now defunct West Indies federation.

But before taking the plunge he is waiting to see whether proposed eastern Caribbean federation comprising Barbados and probably six smaller islands materializes.

He has set no date for independence but has stated his intention.

The government has a mandate from the electorate to get independence within or without federation.

Reinforcing this image are the replicas of the Crown jewels on display at the airport, the Anglican parish churches, the narrow lanes, the Trafalgar Square with Nelson's statue, cricket pitches, the high literacy rate, and the Parliament, third oldest in the Commonwealth.

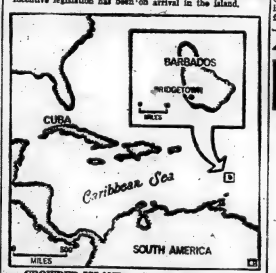
"Barbadians are an ultra-conservative people," says Ernest Deighton Motley, 56-year-old Negro businessman who heads the opposition with political savvy picked up with Tammany Hall, the Democratic party organization in New York City.

The observation applies to the white minority of 10,000—mostly descendants of the landowners and merchants who until recently held the reins of all economic and political power—and to the Negro majority, descended from former slaves.

Thus, for the unemployed, including thousands on the sugar estates who work only part of the year, the prime concern remains one of having and holding a job.

"All I want to do is earn money," said a youth currently employed as a part-time delivery boy for a grocery store. "I will work for whoever pays the most."

If there is unemployment, those without jobs rarely are left to starve and sleep in the gutter. Most can find food and shelter among relatives.



Those are able to migrate to Britain or, to a much lesser extent, to Canada. Others go to the United States as agricultural workers.

As to the future, Premier Barrow has his eye on gaining independence—achieved in 1962 by Trinidad and, Jamaica, former partners with Barbados in the now defunct West Indies federation.

But before taking the plunge he is waiting to see whether proposed eastern Caribbean federation comprising Barbados and probably six smaller islands materializes.

He has set no date for independence but has stated his intention.

CROWDED ISLAND — The Caribbean island of Barbados, a self-governing British colony, is one of the most crowded areas in the world. A population of 240,000 jams the islands 166 square miles.

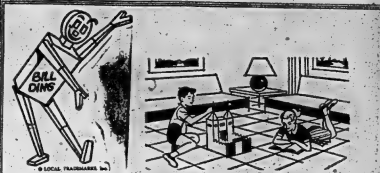
Junior Farmers Beneficiaries Under Loans

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government plans to double the maximum loans provided under the Junior Farmer Establishment Loans Act, the speech from the throne said Wednesday.

The new maximum for loans will be $40,000, up from $20,000.

The speech, read at the opening of the legislature, said the new level will "provide more adequate credit opportunities for junior farmers and assist in further strengthening the family farm."



Unlike previous years, when the speech dealt extensively with agriculture and rural interests, this year's speech touched on it only briefly.

It noted that 14 projects costing more than $3,000,000 are under way under the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act, passed last year, covering community pasture projects, alternative land use, soil and water conservation and research.

"In the coming year, emphasis will be given to the agricultural water supply projects which are of paramount importance to the economic growth of rural Ontario," the speech added. It also promised a joint federal - provincial program to eradicate common barberry, which harbors stem rust on oats, under which "it is hoped to eliminate this weed within five years."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Incidents that would bring immediate arrest if they occurred on city streets are permitted to go unchecked in ice rinks in the name of hockey, a Montreal judge commented the other day.

The judge, His Honor Jean Tellier made several acid remarks in reference to the goings on permitted on ice as he sent a 21-year-old part time hockey player to jail for a week for an assault that occurred in a Montreal auditorium a year ago.

The assault, a Montreal story says, carried out by Yvon Trudel on a player of an opposing team in so-called "grudge match" was described by the court as "cowardly, brutal, deliberate and intentional."

Trudel was ordered to pay a fine of $100 and costs or spend an additional 10 days in jail. He was also ordered to post a bond of $500 to keep the peace for the next year.

The victim of the assault suffered a fractured skull and remained unconscious in a Montreal hospital for many days before it was decided if he would live or not.

The story says: "The gist of the judge's remarks was that while homicide was not permitted to go unpunished on the streets of Montreal everything seemed to be allowed in a hockey rink."

"One gets the impression," the judge is quoted as saying, that hockey players believe there will be no police intervention and no criminal charges regardless of what they do on the ice."

According to press reports the current hockey season should go down in the archives as "that was the year that was" for ice brawls, battles, free-for-alls and penalty-box populations.

And the Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks didn't help matters any when they engaged in that wild December 7th melee in Toronto while thousands of hockey-minded youngsters from coast-to-coast watched their National League idols indulge in senseless brawling.

True they felt the heavy "fine" hand of the powers-that-be as have others in the minor pro leagues and upper amateur brackets.

A number of junior coaches have been fined or suspended or both for alleged inability to control their charges when an altercation breaks out on the ice. In all fairness it would take nothing but a superman to hold in check a bunch of hot-headed youngsters once they take it in their heads to charge out on the ice from the players bench.

But if they make no effort to restrain them or got them back, then the onus is on the coach.

True several players have been "punished" by fine or suspension of a game or two. And a lot of them have repeated their offences.

It seems there is no "turn the other cheek" in hockey, junior or otherwise. Generally it's a case of "if he hits me I'll hit him," regardless of whether the "first hit" was accidental.

Rough play and disregard for officialdom in hockey especially in the junior ranks is getting to the point where the powers-that-be should make the punishment fit the crime. It seems a one or even a three-game suspension is not much of a deterrent.

Perhaps suspension for life on the part of those who repeatedly turn their noses up at good play and respect for coaches and officials would have the desired effect.

The other day Coach Eddie Plata of the Belleville Junior B club, resigned his post. He said his players were non-co-operative and this was substantiated by a member of the club's executive.

Plata may never reach the NHL as a coach but at least he has sufficient hockey know-how to demand the rights of any coach, the respect and co-operation of his players.

Out-of-town newspapers have "blasted" the Belleville club on more than one occasion for their behavior on the ice. Some of the stories have been exaggerated but there was a lot of truth in them otherwise.

A new coach has been appointed and it is hoped the club executive will get behind him and help to instil in the players a spirit of playing to win without resorting to tactics that are no credit to themselves or the club.

Bears Claw Hornets 6-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Don't look now, Quebec Aces, but that hot breath you feel on your shoulders belongs to a pack of Bears. Hershey Bears, that is.

Pittsburgh's smallest American Hockey League crowd of the season, 2,360 watched Hershey move within one point of eastern division-leading Quebec with a 6-2 victory over Hornets Wednesday.

Hershey jumped off to a three goal lead in the first period and then coasted the rest of the way. Keith McCreary and Bruce Cline scored two goals each for Bears.

The defeat cost Pittsburgh a chance to climb into a tie for the western division lead with idle Cleveland Barons, who hold a two-point margin.

Hawks Call Esposito

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Phil Esposito had just enough time to lead St. Louis Braves into second place in the Central Professional Hockey League before he was called up by Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Esposito, the league's leading scorer, fired two goals to pace St. Louis to a 7-3 win over St. Paul Rangers Wednesday night. He was called up after the game.

The victory left the Braves 15 points back of Omaha Knights, who dumped Cincinnati Wings 6-2 Wednesday in Cincinnati. The Knights have 58 points.

Bathgate's three assists in the night's only game gave him a total of 4 points and lifted him ahead of Wharram into fourth place in the list.

His teammate Phil Goyette, meanwhile, added no assist to his mark and moved into a 39-point tie with Gordie Howe for No. 6 spot.

Sparks Rangers 5-4 Win Over Leafs ★ ★ ★ ★

Trade Andy?-Not After Last Night!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The New York Rangers, a couple of days ago, let Andy Bathgate know that he was not indispensible.

This must have made Andy painfully aware that the men in the front office felt he wasn't putting out his all, for the handsome dark-haired native of Winnipeg has been performing magnificently in the National Hockey League since.

ANDY BATHGATE

In the NHL's only game, the Rangers shaded the Maple Leafs 5-4 before a crowd of 14,007 in Toronto Wednesday night and Andy collected three assists.

The Rangers scored the first five goals of the game and preserved the win in the face of a three-goal surge by the erratic Leafs in the final period.

GOALTENDING KEY

Jacques Plante's goaltending was a key factor. The Leafs, squandering an opportunity to break a second-place deadlock with Montreal Canadiens, outshot the Rangers 39-24.

Bathgate, a golfer and author as well as a hockey player, actually created the trade talk that developed between the Rangers and Maple Leafs by coming up with a big game against the Red Wings in Detroit last Sunday night.

Although the Rangers blew it 5-3, Andy collected a goal and assist and coach Red Sullivan said later his boy "played one of his best games of the season."

"Any and all deals we had pending have fallen through," said Red with finality.

THREE ASSISTS

In Toronto Wednesday night, Bathgate helped set up goals by Vic Hadfield (NO. 11), Don McKenney (6) and defenceman Junior Langlois (4). Rod Gilbert (15) and Earl Ingarfield (9) got the other goals for the fifth place Rangers.

Jim Pappin, a promising rookie, found the mark twice for the Leafs, his seventh and eighth goals of the campaign in a late start. Frank Mahovlich (18) and Bob Pulford (11) were the other Toronto scorers.

Toronto's Bob Baun was sitting out an interference penalty when Langlois beat Don Simmons. Pulford clicked on a breakaway while teammate Carl Brewer was in the penalty box.

Coach Punch Imlach of the Leafs yanked Simmons for a sixth starker in the dying seconds but the bid for the tying goal was in vain.

The NHL's four other clubs go into action tonight. Chicago Black Hawks meet the Canadiens in Montreal and the Bruins take on the Red Wings in Boston.

Favor Folley In Chuvalo Bout

By JERRY GLADMAN

TORONTO (CP) — George Chuvalo was a forgotten man in boxing circles around here two years ago. Now the name of the former Canadian heavyweight champion is back in circulation.

One - time Chuvalo boosters, who jumped off his band wagon shortly after his career took a nose dive when he lost the Canadian title in 1960, have suddenly shown an interest in stepping back aboard.

Their decision could be made when the 26-year-old boxer takes on Zora Folley, sixth - ranked world heavyweight, in a bout in Cleveland Friday which will be televised nationally in the United States.

Folley, 32, has been among the top 10 world heavyweights for eight years. A win for Chuvalo would mean a giant stride in his comeback.

Chuvalo, a Toronto native who fights out of Detroit, is ranked ninth. His career, after a meteoric rise, has been a sad series of ups and downs.

COULD UPSET

George is rated an underdog in the Folley match, but some of his Toronto associates think he's got the material for an upset.

"He's got a tough job in front of him," Earl Walls, another former Canadian heavyweight champion, said Wednesday. He said he is impressed by Chuvalo's recent victories, including one over Mike DeJohn last September in Louisville.

"Folley's not a bad fighter and he could give George trouble," Walls said. "But I think Chuvalo has improved enough the past year to come out all right."

Vince Bagnato, who along with his brother Joe promotes amateur boxing in Toronto, is in George's corner. The Bagnatos, the most popular fight family in the city, have been associated with Chuvalo for some time.

WILL BE TOUGH

"This will be his toughest fight to date," said Vince. "He's good and strong and has never been off his feet. If he keeps his hands up I think he can take Folley in seven rounds.

"Father time and strength should tell the tale. After all, Folley is 33 and George only 26."

Jack (Deacon) Allen, Chuvalo's manager after he turned pro in 1956 and until George went it alone last year, thinks the fighter made a bad move.

"I think the boy had made a bad mistake taking on Folley. It's a bad match. This game is like checkers—you wait for the right time to make a move.

"If Chuvalo would have waited longer he could probably back into the big money matches. But he has an even chance with anybody. He's got the ability, the physique and he's the most durable around today. He's got all the tools."

15-Year-Old Said Sensation
Claim Orr Another Hull

By ALLAN BAILEY

OSHAWA (CP) — Bobby Orr, a 15-year-old sensation in his second season with Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, is one of the hottest National Hockey League prospects in years.

The husky, fair - haired defenceman has scored 20 goals already this season and seems destined to break the all-time OHA Junior A scoring record for defenceman of 36 goals in one season held by Jacques Laperriere, now of Montreal Canadiens of the NHL.

A native of Parry Sound, Ont., Orr was discovered during a midget Ontario Minor Hockey Association playoff game three seasons ago in Gananoque, Ont., by Wren Blair, general manager of the Generals and a scout with Boston Bruins of the NHL.

Blair signed Orr that summer, allowing him to commute to the Generals' games when the club played in the now defunct Metro Junior A League.

Although he is the youngest player on the team, Orr is the undisputed leader and plays more than 40 minutes of almost every game.

He scored his 30th goal Tuesday night against last-place Kitchener Rangers, helping his club to a 10-3 victory.

What does a general-manager or coach tell a hockey player like Bobby Orr?

Doug Williams (former coach of the Generals) used to say: "I don't tell him anything. He is such a good hockey player I am afraid to tell him anything for fear I might hamper him."

Russians Thump Our Olympics 8-1

'No Excuses' - Bauer

MOSCOW (CP-AP) — The fast-skating, smooth-passing Russian Olympic hockey team trounced Canada's young Olympic squad 8-1 Wednesday in an exhibition game.

About 15,000 Muscovites at the Sports Palace howled approval as the hard-working but outclassed Canadians were overwhelmed. Only a second-period goal by Marshall (Hayseed) Johnston kept the Canadians from being blanked.

The Canadians had arrived here by air during the day and seemed to show the effect of their long flight. However, Rev. David Bauer, their coach, offered no excuses for the stunning defeat.

Father Bauer, who teaches at St. Mark's College at the University of British Columbia, said:

"When you are beaten 8-1 there's nothing much you can say.

"The Russians were better. We were weak in all departments, except maybe goal."

MARTEN CHEERED

The goaltender, Seth Martin of Trail, B.C., was the only Canadian to gain enthusiastic cheers from the Russians — a partisan crowd which cheered whenever its side scored but gave only a few desultory cheers when Johnston, of Birch Hills, Sask., got the Canadians' goal.

The score at the end of the first period was 3-0. It was 5-1 at the end of the second.

The Sports Palace rink is more than 12 feet wider than most Canadian rinks. Canadian rinks are usually 85 feet wide and 200 feet long. European rinks are 91½ feet wide and 200 feet long.

Terry O'Malley, Terry Clancy and Gary Begg did not play in this game.

Father Bauer said he hoped the team would do better when it faces the Russians again Friday.

HAS NO EXCUSES

Canadian observers who have seen the Soviet team play in North America the last two winters generally rate is as the Olympic favorite.

The Canadians now are midway in a 10-game European tour. The loss to the Russians was their third on the tour, on which they have won three and tied one.

In West Germany, the Canadian Olympians defeated E. V. Fuessen twice, 9-3 and 4-1 and Rosenheim 13-0. The Olympians were hard pressed to gain a 4-4 tie Monday night in Garmisch against a team of Canadian pros and coaches who now perform in Europe.

Cepeda Boosted To $52,000

Willie Signs Record $105,000 Contract

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two of San Francisco Giants' big guns signed contracts Wednesday, with Willie Mays receiving an estimated $105,000 for 1964 and Orlando Cepeda a boost to about $52,000.

Mays's agreement came as no surprise. Willie and the management have been amicable as his salary rose to the highest plateau in baseball history.

On the other hand, Cepeda has usually been a holdout. It was March 12 last year before the slugging first baseman came to terms.

Mays's signing could well revive the 1963 debate over whether he or Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees receives the most money. After Willie signed a year ago, Mantle received a $100,000 pact. Giants president Horace Stoneham then declared, "Willie is not second."

In previous years, Joe Dimaggio, Stan Musial and Ted Williams reached the $100,000-a-year level.

Cepeda had held out in 1962 until he gained a $18,500 raise to $46,500. Then he slumped near the end of the pennant-winning season and the first 1963 contract offering reflected it with a cut. Orlando held out and finally won a token raise.

The new contract is believed to call for a $5,000 increase, making Cepeda the second highest salaried Giant.

The 26-year-old led the Giants with a .316 average last season. He hit 34 home runs and batted in 97.

Even with Cepeda in the fold, the Giants still have problems. Pitcher Jack Sanford and utilityman Harvey Kuenn aren't agreeable to proposed cuts from their respective 1963 salaries of $40,000 and $35,000. And Willie McCovey, who tied for the home run crown last year with 44, doesn't think his proposed raise is enough.

Despite an early season slump Mays hit .314 last season with 38 homers and 103 runs-batted-in. When the Giants won the 1962 National League pennant he was home run king of the majors with 49 and led in RBI with 141 although his batting average was lower than last year's.

LCA Charges Are Dismissed

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Liquor Control Act charges against Windsor Bulldogs hockey team manager Sam Fox, and Kenneth Wilson, coach of the Toledo Mercurys hockey team, were dismissed Wednesday.

The two men were charged with having liquor in a place other than their residences.

Police testified they searched an office in the Windsor Arena Jan. 5, and found a bottle of liquor on a desk, and two glasses containing liquor.

Magistrate Angus MacMillan dismissed the charges when defence counsel argued no evidence had been presented to prove the liquor was in the possession of either of the men.

WELCOMES CUP

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson welcomed the Davis Cup back to the United States Wednesday with a Texas sizeting for the tennis player, who won it back from Australia. Johnson said the victory proved that the young men possess an important attribute, "the desire for the pursuit of excellence."

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Jack Adams and Eddie Shore probably have influenced the hockey playing habits of as many or more players in professional hockey than anyone in the game.

Both of them were always great sticklers regarding the importance of keeping the hands apart on a hockey stick in order to get the most leverage in shooting the puck, passing or just controlling it.

Jack has his name on the Stanley Cup, nine times, twice as a player. Seven times he had it inscribed on the cup as coach or manager, in his 35 years with the Detroit Red Wings.

I've seen Jack get so mad with players because they didn't have their hands far enough apart on the stick to get the maximum leverage he'd insert the player tape the glove of the lower hand to the stick.

Eddie Shore won the Hart Trophy, as the most valuable player in the National Hockey League four times in his 12½ years with Boston. He's been coaching and managing teams some 20 years. He also has used player's gloves to their sticks.

Jack never taped my glove, because I had him a little confused, shooting with both hands as I do.

Again, when you're at close quarters, especially near the boards, you should have both hands on the stick.

You're working real hard to check the puck, get it away from the opposition.

If you have possession of the puck, naturally you should have two hands on the stick.

Using your strength and your weight, there shouldn't be any opportunity for a fellow to reach at full length to just tip your stick up and hook the puck away from you.

Again, your lower hand slides up and down the shaft quite often, adjusting to the situation, depending on whether you're playing the puck in close or you're driving down the ice with it.

Executive Meets With Junior Club

With everyone apparently agreed that changes and improvements should and have been made, Belleville Junior "B"s settled away for a "second chance" after a team meeting last night.

Coach Ed Plata resigned earlier because of "lack of co-operation" and Bob Taylor was named as the club's new coach.

Gordie Bell, Mel Richards and Jim "Snipe" Matthews told the players last night that "Taylor is in charge of the team and you are expected to do as he says."

Some players voiced their beefs but it was Stu Muirhead who told his fellow players, "We have been given a second chance so let's make the most of it and prove on the ice that we are not the bunch of boobs a lot of people seem to think we are."

Taylor took over the coaching chore for a practice following the meeting and will handle the club for the first time in league play against Gananoque Islanders here Friday night.

Make Pre-Bonspiel 'Deal'
Top Rinks 'Split' Prizes

CALGARY (CP) — The president of Masters Sports Limited said Wednesday there was much more at stake during the Masters Bonspiel than four automobiles and four television sets.

Norm Austman, president of the curling attraction, was commenting on a statement Tuesday by Hec Gervais of Edmonton and Ernie Richardson of Regina who said they had agreed before the last game to split the first prize—four cars—between the two rinks.

Mr. Austman said the winning rink received $800 in shares in Masters Sports Limited, other cash and other prizes which were not split. The winners also were named directors of the company for one year.

"The fans were not gypped," said Mr. Austman. "The last rock may not have been a $10,000 rock but what's the difference between throwing a $5,000 or a $10,000 rock. The teams were playing to win."

He said there had been no protest from fans who watched the final which Gervais won 8-7.

Mr. Austman said had he known that a deal was being made, the prize could have been set up in a manner that only the winner could capitalize. He denied a statement attributed to him earlier that he would have prevented the deal had he known about it.

He also reiterated that deals such as this one were made frequently in curling and other sports—particularly in car bonspiels.

Junior 'A' In London, Says Leafs

TORONTO (CP)—Buck Houle, director of Toronto Maple Leafs' amateur farm system, said Wednesday the Leafs hope to have an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A team in London, Ont., next season.

He said the Leafs have been impressed with the success of London's Junior B club which has drawn some 39,000 spectators for its 11 home games in the city's new arena.

"This would seem to indicate a Junior A club would do well there, and that is what we have in mind, although details haven't been worked out yet," said Houle.

Boston Bruins is the only National Hockey League club currently sponsoring two teams in this league—the Flyers and Oshawa Generals.

The Leafs would have to apply to the OHA for a Junior A franchise in London, Or, they could move the Toronto franchise to this Western Ontario city. Either would require OHA approval.

Marlboros Rally To Nip Flyers

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Toronto Marlboros came up with two third period goals to break a three - three second period deadlock and down Niagara Falls Flyers 5-3 in OHA Junior A action here Wednesday.

With their win, Marlies moved 13 points ahead of second place Montreal, extending their unbeaten streak to eight games.

Mike Walton's third goal in the game at 10:47 of the third period broke a 3-3 tie and three minutes later Wayne Carleton clinched the game. Brit Selby scored the other Toronto goal.

Referee Merle Glassford assessed nine penalties, six to Marlies, including a second period misconduct to captain Andre Champagne for throwing the puck at Glassford.

SET FINAL

VICTORIA (CP) — The final of the American zone badminton championship will be held in Victoria March 13-14 and the semi-final in Vancouver March 6-7. Bob Macmurchie, chairman of the Canadian Badminton Association's arrangement committee, made the announcement Wednesday. The Thomas Cup is for badminton what the Davis Cup is to tennis. The final will be played in Japan in May.

IT'S A FAVOR

MONTREAL (CP) — J. I. Albright, on the scouting staff of Dallas Cowboys, says his role in discussions of a United Football League franchise here is strictly an intermediary one. "I'm doing this as a favor for some friends," said the onetime director of player personnel for the Eastern Football Conference's Montreal Alouettes.

Australian LTA President
Raps Tennis 'Shamateurism'

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Norman W. Strange, president of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia, made a bitter attack Wednesday on the International Lawn Tennis Federation's attitude toward "shamateurism."

At the LTAA's annual conference he accused the ILTF of having let tennis down badly, and claimed it never had made a real attempt to overcome the problem.

Strange made his attack during the conference's discussion on payment of expenses to visiting players and after delegates had asked whether Australia's adherence to its limit of $14 a day was the real reason why international players were not interested in playing the Australian circuit.

"There is no doubt some countries pay very much more than they should," Strange told the meeting. "Players who go to Caribbean tournaments get hundreds of dollars and nothing is done to stop it. I am quite satisfied the ILTF has never made any real attempt to get evidence of what is really going on. It has let us down very badly.

DOING NOTHING

"When I was last in Europe I asked the ILTF what it was doing to stop these practices, and no one could tell me—because it was doing nothing."

The conference also foreshadowed tighter control of Australian players in the future when it appointed a special committee to investigate sections of the LTAA constitution relating to its powers over and control of players.

Some of Australia's top players, including Roy Emerson, have threatened to move to England to avoid the taut controls of the LTAA. Emerson won the Australian championship last week and in December took both his singles duels in this country's losing defense of the Davis Cup.

Championships Start Today

NORTH BAY (CP) — Figure skaters from as far away as Vancouver and as young as 11 years old begin competition in the 1964 Canadian figure skating championships today.

The three-day meet features 80 contestants and three 1963 major title holders. The only vacancy in the four major divisions was created when Don McPherson of Stratford moved to the professional ranks last year.

Wendy Griner, 19, of Toronto will defend the senior ladies singles class. Debbie Wilkes and Guy Revell of Unionville, Ont., the senior pairs title and Paulette Doan and Ken Ormsby of Toronto the senior dance honors. All were 1963 winners in their respective events.

For others, like Cathy Lee Irwin, 11, also of Vancouver and the youngest competitor, it's the big time for the first time.

Miss Irwin, a protege of former European men's champion, Edy Rada, is competing in the junior women's singles. Rada, also here for the trials, is competing for the men's singles crown.

Miss Kenworthy, who has made a number of close bids for the Canadian women's singles crown epitomized the general feelings of the competitors this way: "I'll be in there trying. I guess all you can do is your best."

SEEK MEN'S TITLE

The men's singles title will feature four competitors. They are Donald Knight of Dundas, Ont., runner-up to McPherson last year, Dr. Charles Snelling of Toronto Granite, Bill Neale of Stamford Skating Club and 15-year-old Jay Humphrey of Vancouver. Humphrey was junior men's winner last year.

Championships will be held in all junior classes with 126 girls vying for the junior singles crown. Three Northern Ontario entries—the only ones from that part of the province to qualify for the national meet—are Carol Sindaert of South Porcupine, Candance Karlsen of Fort William and Elizabeth Paveck of Kirkland Lake.

Players Hold Answer
Decide 'Dogs' Fate Sunday

WINDSOR (CP) — Windsor Bulldogs of the International Hockey League will remain in operation until at least Sunday, it was decided here Wednesday night.

Players have reserved their decision on whether they will take over the management of their own team and will attend another meeting tonight. With Windsor games scheduled for Chatham Friday, Toledo Saturday and at home against Toledo Sunday, the league is guaranteeing financial backing through Sunday.

The players' meeting Wednesday night was called after John Wismer of Fort Huron, who has been financing the Windsor team, withdrew his support Tuesday. The team has been losing money this season.

Jack Costello, spokesman for the Bulldogs, said since the club will definitely operate through Sunday, they will take adequate time to consider their position.

"A majority of the players are interested in continuing but there are also some in favor of ceasing operations immediately," Costello said.

Unnamed representatives of the team will attend an emergency league meeting today and the players will meet again tonight to discuss the afternoon meeting.

Jacques Plante, New York's uninhibited goalie, who turned in a 33-stop performance when the Rangers shaded Toronto Maple Leafs 3-4 although mustering only 24 shots against Toronto's Don Simmons.

Trenton Jrs. Clobber Gananoque

The victory was only the second of the campaign for Trenton and snapped a 12-game losing streak. Trenton had not won a game since nipping Belleville 4-2 in the first game of the schedule back on November 11.

The loss was a costly one for Gananoque. The Islanders dropped into a tie with Napanee for last place tie with Napanee Red Wings with a win last night. Napanee has 28 points, Picton 17 and Gananoque 16.

Auditions for Variety-Show Talent Will Be Resumed

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Do you sing, dance, tell jokes or walk a slack wire?

This may be your big chance. CBS announced Wednesday it soon will resume regular auditions for variety-show talent.

The auditions, stopped five or six years ago, produced several bright stars, including Carol Burnett, Don Knotts and George Gobel.

Vice-President Michael Dann said the auditions will be held in New York and attended by producers of all network variety shows.

NBC, after two postponements, plans to broadcast two related White Paper programs about the Cuban situation on Feb. 4 and Feb. 9. The repeated shifts in scheduling the documentaries—one on the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion and the second on the missile crisis—are a star has had a rough journey since he quit the show. It is among those scheduled to disappear at season's end.

Recommended tonight:

Suspense Theatre, NBC, 10-11 EST—Who is Jennifer? With Gloria Swanson playing a widow suspected of murdering her daughter.

WORSLEY IS BETTER

QUEBEC (CP) — Goaltender Lorne (Gump) Worsley practised with Quebec Aces today and will play Friday night in an American Hockey League game at Baltimore against the Clippers. Flu left Worsley unable to play here Tuesday night against Providence Reds. With Jean-Guy Morrisette in the nets, Aces won 3-2.

FRASER WINS

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Australia's Dawn Fraser, the Olympic champion and world record holder, won the Victorian 110 - yard freestyle swimming title in the fast time of 60.8 seconds Wednesday night. It was the fastest 110 yards by a woman since Miss Fraser set her world record of 59.5 at the Commonwealth Games at Perth in 1962.

Won't Need Field Goal Specialist

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The West will take its chances against the East without benefit of a field goal-kicking specialist in Sunday's third annual American Football League All-Star Game.

Gillman explained Wednesday that because of restrictions on the number of players he can use, he couldn't afford the luxury of such a specialist.

Gillman said he also believes Jim Fraser of Denver Broncos, who is essentially a punter, can fill in satisfactorily if called on for field goals and conversions.

"I'm willing to take my chances with Fraser," Gillman said. "He has a good strong leg."

Y Basketball

The Warriors edged the Buckeyes by a slim 37-36 score while the Ramblers whipped the Celtics 79-41 in a pair of "Y" Youth Basketball League games last night.

The Warrior-Buckeye tilt was a battle all the way, featuring rough play at times, as Warriors overcame a half-time deficit of 20-27 to get the one-point nod.

Ron Walsh paced the winners' attack with a big 30 points, aided by John McKibbon's 16. Ralph McCabe hit for six, Dave Templer had five and D. McKibbon two bold pointless.

Bob Williams starred for the Buckeyes with 21 points but high-scoring Murray Swan was held to 12. Dave Hurst collected 15, Dave Purcell six and Ted Casson two.

Ramblers led all the way, 33-16 at half time. Jack Jary, with 27, Dave Anderson, with 24, and Bob Dunsmore, with 20, sparked the attack. Don Desaulnier dropped in the other seven points.

Jim Muir led the Celtics with 22 points. Stan Woodcock hooped six. Bill Burley six, Ernie Deacon four and Grant Freestone two.

A.L. Owners Meet In New York

Expect 'No' To Finlay Request

NEW YORK (AP) — American League club owners are expected to turn down Charles O. Finley's request to move the Athletics franchise from Kansas City to Louisville at special meetings here today.

Joe Cronin, president of the league, has called a meeting of the five-man board of directors to be followed by a full-scale league meeting. Top political figures from three states are due to attend with an antitrust action always a possibility.

Although Finley signed a contract Jan. 6 with the state of Kentucky to play at the State Fair Grounds in Louisville in 1964 and 1965, the pact is subject to approval by the owners, who are headed up Hyman Kreamer. Marvin Jackson and Steve Bone potted the Wing goals.

Hawks also copped a one-goal decision, edging the Macs 3-2. Tim Manley and Tim Gawne fired the Hawk goals while Martin Thistle replied for the Macs.

Canadiens also won by a shutout, 3-0, over Flyers. Cliff Ralph and Warren Day potted the goals.

Minor Hockey Results

Squirt All-Stars downed the Pewaus Browns 5-3 last night with five players sharing the winners' goals.

Tight scores were again the order of the day in the six games played in the Tyke division.

Hawks also copped a one-goal decision, edging the Macs 3-2. Tim Manley and Tim Gawne fired the Hawk goals while Martin Thistle replied for the Macs.

Tony Curtis Becomes Zealot For Smokers Anonymous

By BO THOMAS

Well, almost anyone. He started with himself a year ago—"before it was so fashionable to quit smoking."

How did he do it?

"One day I decided I wasn't feeling as good as I should," he recalled. That was on a Sunday. On Monday morning I stopped smoking. I kept telling myself: 'Look, you've gone six hours without a cigarette after 15 years of smoking. Don't you feel good?

"And I did feel good. By Monday night I was so elated that I wouldn't think of smoking a cigarette. A pipe or a cigar now and then, yes. But I never think about cigarettes. I never ask people not to smoke in front of me. I never worry about the smell of the smoke getting to me. I'm through, finished."

NOW A ZEALOT

But he doesn't let it lie there. He has become a zealot, turning the Sex and the Single Girl set into daily meetings of smokers anonymous.

"So far I've got about 12 people on the set to quit entirely," he reported.

"Twenty minutes is all I need. I give them 20 minutes of talk that is a combination of persuasion, hypnosis and plain old-fashioned bull."

"Me and you smoking? No, I tried it twice in my life, both times for a month, and it was miserable.

"I've been smoking so long that I'd probably die sooner by giving it up than I would by continuing."

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Fifteen years ago, Walter Brown of Boston Bruins in the National Hockey League made a big pitch to get Jaroslav Drobny of the Czechoslovakian Olympic hockey team to the United States. Drobny wasn't particularly interested.

The Czech had defected to the West following the 1948 Winter Olympics and Brown, president of the Bruins, figured the left-winger, with considerable more hockey know-how than the average European player, would be a drawing card in Boston. He was convinced, too, that Drobny could help the Bruins.

Now, NHL clubs are showing more than a passing interest in European hockey. Lynn Patrick of the Bruins and his brother, Muzz, of New York Rangers, have gone to Europe to watch world amateur tournaments.

Suddenly, it seems, the pros are beginning to show more than usual interest in players from Europe. Some of this was heightened, no doubt, last year when Trail Smoke Eaters went to the world championships in Stockholm and finished fourth behind the Russians, Swedes and Czechs.

WILL WATCH OLYMPICS

This was the worst showing of any Canadian team in world or Olympic play.

Now, at least two NHL club officials will be on the scene at the Jan. 29 - Feb. 9 Winter Games at Innsbruck, Austria. They are president Staff Smythe and executive vice - president Harold Ballard of Toronto Maple Leafs.

"We're just going over to take a look at the Europeans," Ballard said. The Leaf official will be particularly interested in the play of winger Karl Oeberg and goaltender Kjell Svensson of the Swedish team who attended the Leafs' training camp last fall.

"We just want to see how far hockey has advanced in Europe," Ballard said. "We've heard all sorts of talk about some of the European teams being of NHL calibre or close to it. We want to see for ourselves.

"We've watched the Czechs and Swedes and Russians on exhibition tours in Canada. We now want to see how they compete against one another.

There's another angle to the trip.

"We are thinking about holding our training camp in Sweden this fall," said Ballard. "The Swedes are anxious to have us over there and if the right financial arrangements can be made, we'll probably do it."

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 17

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Cycle is rising. You will have more freedom of thought, action. Use it wisely! Realize conditions are due to change. Don't rush into new project. Take time to think.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): One in authority may express opinion. Be wise and follow suggestion. Delight fine new relaxation, attending theatre, being with friends. Key is moderation. Avoid extremes.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Assert beliefs. Enlist allies. Your sparkling personality can now attract new friends. Business advantage likely if you make initial contacts. Don't hold on to "routine."

Cancer (June 23 to July 23): Favorable lunar aspect late in day coincides with good news from afar. If practical, remain close to home. You can gain much through "journeys of the mind." Study, read.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 21): Accept challenges, but resist "spur-of-moment" action. Consultation with expert is advised. Especially where money matters, investments enter picture.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Day to obtain results. Past efforts now due to pay off. Look to future. Study potential. Draw upon knowledge of experienced associate. You needn't walk alone!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Special interest could tie up [illegible] Strength in [illegible] Avoid [illegible] Your creative abilities are [illegible] Adaptation [illegible] Will power [illegible] natural [illegible]

Specialists in Art of Serving Elizabethan Feasts Coming To Canada End of Month

LONDON (CP)—Three "serving wenches"—specialists in the art of serving Elizabethan feasts—are going to Canada to promote this year's celebrations in Britain of Shakespeare's 400th anniversary.

Margot Dachy, Hylda Sims and Roseanne Law, serving wenches at the Elizabethan Room of London's Gore Hotel, will be on duty in their 16th century costumes at feasts in Vancouver Jan. 28, Toronto Feb. 4 and Montreal Feb. 7.

The dinners, being arranged by the British Travel Association, will recreate the atmosphere of an Elizabethan feast down to the smallest detail.

Under leadership of Miss Dachy, head wench at the Gore, they will serve nine - course feasts for press, radio, television and travel industry guests.

The wenches will also visit Edmonton Jan. 29, Calgary Jan. 30, Winnipeg Jan. 31 and Ottawa Feb. 1.

Experts in the customs, food, music and dining etiquette of the bard's time, the wenches steer guests through four hours of "feasting and merriment" each evening at the Elizabethan Room, a faithful reproduction of the 16th century dining chamber.

NOT WAITRESSES

They don't like to be called waitresses, feeling their jobs take much more ability than that of simply waiting on table.

In Canada, as in London, they will instruct guests in the use of Tudor cutlery and dishes, the customs of the period (the women are served after their "lords and masters") and also entertain with songs, nursery rhymes and madrigals.

They explain the origins of the foods and beverages, such as mead, the aperitif made of honey and cider which people of Shakespeare's time believed to be an aid to virility (mead was drunk for one month, or moon, by newlyweds and gave the world the term honeymoon).

They reprimand guests who become too rowdy, show them how to applaud the minstrel's songs by thumping on the table with their fists, and encourage them to join in the singing. At the end of each feast, they participate in a loving cup ceremony and distribute tobacco, clay pipes and snuff.

Menus will include such Elizabethan delicacies as sturgeon with wine sauce, boar's head, salmagundy salad, winter salet, lamb in coffin, whole baby chicken with maize sauce, artichoke pie and sillabub, a dish in which cream or milk is mixed with wine.

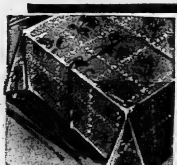
15 Dismissed, 22 Walk Out In Protest

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Women workers at a paper plant here said Wednesday that 15 employees were dismissed Tuesday and another 22 have since walked out in protest.

They said the workers were dismissed by Specialty Paper Products without explanation after attending a meeting Monday to discuss membership in the International Printing Pressmen's Union (CLC).

Plant worker Barbara Parkin said the dismissed women and the 22 who protested their dismissal have joined the union since Monday.

The union has applied for certification, but no date has yet been set for the hearing.



The women said top-rate workers Wednesday were offered $1.05 an hour to remain at work. Eight non-union employees stayed at their jobs.

The women, who describe pay rates and conditions at the plant as "deplorable," said they were being paid between 80 and 90 cents an hour.

U.S. Consul Held In Zanzibar Now Released

Embassy Secretary Remains in Country

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department received word today that U.S. Consul Frederick P. Picard, seized at gunpoint Thursday in Zanzibar, has been released and has reached Dar es Salaam, Tanganyika.

Donald K. Petterson, third secretary at the U.S. embassy on the island off the African east coast, was released from house arrest, the department reported, but remained voluntarily on Zanzibar.

He is expected to resume contacts with the new Zanzibar government which ousted the regime that took over when Zanzibar gained independence.

The four American newspapermen restricted by Zanzibar officials to their hotel are also expected to be released, but there was no word this had actually been accomplished.

Picard, who has been acting as charge d'affaires in Zanzibar, was flown to Dar es Salaam, Tanganyika, in a plane provided by the Tanganyika government.

ZANZIBAR (Reuters) — United States Consul Frederick Picard was under house arrest here today after being taken into custody by a machine-gun carrying group of officials led by President Abeid Karume.

The arrest was made at the Hotel Zanzibar Thursday night as Picard was talking to four American newspapermen who had been detained by the new revolutionary government earlier in the day.

(A Canadian newspaper man, Bob Miller of the Toronto Globe and Mail, and a British journalist, Clyde Sanger of the Manchester Guardian, were taken into custody along with the Americans, but, apparently were released and later offered freedom of movement. The Americans were not.)

Foreign Minister Abdul Rahman Mohammed Babu and four armed guards rushed into the hotel. Following an angry exchange of words Picard was led out of the hotel's machine-gun pointing at his back.

HELD BY GUARD

This morning, Picard, 33, told reporters by telephone he still was restricted to his home under heavy guard.

During the hotel exchange Karume, who returned here Thursday from neighboring Dar es Salaam, Tanganyika, told Pi-

To Reduce Number Of Committees

TORONTO (CP) — The opposition voiced criticism but there was no formal opposition Thursday to Premier Robarts' proposal to reduce the number of standing committees of the Ontario legislature to 10 from 18.

The premier's statement was a follow-up to an announcement in the throne speech Wednesday that the government planned reorganization of four departments and the creation of two new ones — university affairs and energy and resources management.

He said Thursday in the legislature the reduction in committees would not interfere with the functions carried out by the larger number of committees. He hoped the reorganization would make it possible for only one committee to sit at any one time.

The premier rejected a suggestion by Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) that committees be reduced to eight or 10 members from the usual total which goes as high as 50. Mr. Robarts said this would exclude members who wanted to serve.

Mr. Singer said the reduction in number of committees was not likely to solve the committee problem. He proposed attaching civil servants to committees to do research work.

TOO MANY LAWYERS

Another Liberal, Elmer Sopha, member for Sudbury, said the new committee dealing with labor, legal and municipal bills would be overburdened with lawyers who might interfere with labor legislation. Legal and labor legislation should not be handled by the same committee.

He said, however, his party would take no steps to formally oppose the consolidation.

At the urging of two New Democrats, the premier said he would give the public works committee some work to do this session.

Ken Bryden of Toronto Woodbine and NDP Leader Donald MacDonald referred to the Canada Dar es Salaam, Tanganyika, told Pi-

"My name is Simon MacTavish," he whiskered to an applauding audience of 375 banquet-ers.

But his name was not MacTavish.

The club, founded in 1775, originally consisted of veterans of the northwest Canadian fur trade who assembled in Montreal to spin yarns about their exploits and adventures and to feast off the fruits of the forest.

The Beaver was dissolved in 1824 when the old Northwest Company of traders was absorbed by the Hudson's Bay Company.

Mr. Gordon and the other latter-day Beaver-baiters had come together for the sixth yearly get-together of the organization since it was reactivated in 1958.

The CNR chief had plenty of top-brass company at the head table, all robed in the manner of the pioneer days. Besides the club president, Edward Hamilton of Boston, there was Donald E. Kerlin, president of the Montreal Trust Company and the Beaver's incoming head.

And as if one bewhiskered man in a frock wasn't enough, there were six bank presidents too, all bowing in delighted response to the shenanigans of their toastmaster and the performances of a dozen singing waiters dressed as "coureurs des bois."

Parading in were such pale-ale-teasers as the smoke of 1812 while white terrapin served in turtle shells and, topping it all off, the meat of buffalo.

"Another traditional Beaver Club ritual was honored—The Calumet, a large Indian pipe, was passed for all to puff.

Even the ladies present, or the more hardy of them, joined in this ritual, designed to symbolize the ties of friendship among members.

Deadlock In Bitter Dispute

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP)—Panama and the United States remained deadlocked today in their bitter dispute over the Panama Canal. Neither government budged an inch, but neither government did anything to make the situation worse.

High sources in American and Panamanian official quarters said there was a slight hope that some formula would be found to get the two governments together again.

Reports from Washington said U.S. diplomatic troubleshooters were working behind the scenes in the U.S. capital and in Panama.

PAT

Chiari made no move to carry out his threat to call his embassy staff home from Washington and demand the departure of U.S. diplomats from Panama. This would complete the rupture of diplomatic relations he broke last Friday during the violence along the Canal Zone in which 20 Panamanians and four U.S. soldiers were killed.

Official Panamanian sources said Chiari would complete the break unless the United States agreed to negotiate a new treaty to replace the 1903 pact giving it perpetual control of the Canal Zone.

In Washington, the White House reaffirmed U.S. willingness to discuss all issues with Panama. But State Secretary Dean Rusk told the Senate foreign relations committee the United States would not do so "under pressure or threat of violence."

Rusk told reporters his government feels the situation "can be handled in the absence of violence through negotiations and discussions between the two governments."

Chiari is under strong pressure from civic, professional and business organizations to insist on negotiations for a new treaty giving Panama eventual ownership of the canal. Some influential, conservative Panamanians called on the president Thursday to express their views and worry about the canal later, but this group appeared to be a distinct minority.

Asks Politicians to Avoid 'Rash, Reckless Statements'

SARNIA (CP) — Provincial Secretary Bona Arsenault of Quebec appealed Thursday to politicians, inside and outside Quebec, to avoid "rash or reckless" statements on relations between French and English Canada.

Speaking to the Sarnia Chamber of Commerce, he said there must be a "greater dialogue" between the two groups to produce better understanding.

"This would be the starting point for eventually drafting a new constitution," Mr. Arsenault said.

Speaking in English, he appealed to "politicians of all parties and at all levels from taking stands or saying things that tend to reflect our differences" rather than the common heritage of the two groups.

"Rash and reckless statements are made in Quebec province also," he said. "I am not minimizing them and this is why I again appeal to all politicians to understand that we must try and work out our differences in a spirit of partnership and in any aggressive mood."

Mr. Arsenault said French-Canadians living outside Quebec should have the same rights as the English-speaking minority in Quebec.

"This does not mean we want to force our will upon the rest of Canada, nor are we so unrealistic as to expect that whole communities outside Quebec where no French is actually spoken should become bilingual."

There were many cases, he said, where common sense could avert misunderstanding and frictions between French and English. One was the question of Toronto radio station CJBC which the CBC plans to turn into a French-language outlet.

"... We in Quebec see no reason why 167,000 French-speaking Canadians in Toronto should not have a radio station in their own language when some 25,000 English - speaking people in Quebec City, most of them bilingual, have had for years, in the very heart of French-Canada, not only their English radio station but also their English television station."

MONTREAL (CP) — Edward J. Little, vice-president of the Canadian Public Relations Society, Thursday proposed the creation of a national centre to promote cultural exchanges between French- and English-speaking Canadians.

Mr. Little, an English-speaking Montrealer, told a Lions Club meeting that such a centre "could provide us with the kind of bridge that we have needed in Canada for 200 years."

He said the institution could be known as the Natural Cultural Affairs Centre.

"While such a need has been evidence in Canada from the beginning," he went on, "an interchange on the social necessary has never gotten off the ground and such efforts will always be haphazard and inadequate until they are properly done — ordinated and adequately stimulated."

Arab Use Of Jordan Planned

CAIRO (AP) — Arab leaders entered the final day of their 13-country summit conference today with an agreement to strengthen their military posture against Israel and develop their own program for the waters of the Jordan River.

Despite the public facade of unity, an unusually long meeting that continued into the early hours this morning hinted at differences between some Arab leaders on issues other than Israel. The leaders had scheduled the meeting to give routine approval to a four-point resolution already agreed upon by their foreign ministers.

A conference spokesman said the Arab leaders had approved the resolution, which envisions punitive measures against Israel.

The five-day conference was convened to seek ways of preventing Israel from tapping Jordan River waters to irrigate the Negev Desert.

U.S. Astronaut John Glenn To Seek Ohio Senate Seat

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Lt.-Col. John H. Glenn made the plunge from the space program to national politics today. He formally announced he is a Democratic candidate for U.S. senator from Ohio.

In a packed hotel ballroom, the first American to orbit the earth made his expected announcement to reporters that he will oppose Senator Stephen M. Young for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Ohio's primary election set May 5.

Glenn, 42-year-old native Ohioan who made his historic three-orbit trip Feb. 20, 1962, said that as soon as possible he is resigning his commission from the marine corps.

Young, asked how he is in the primary race to stay, replied: "Indeed I am. Not only am I in the race, but I surely shall be nominated for United States senator May 5 this year."

Glenn, on Jan. 25, 1962, became the first American to orbit the earth, nearly five hours before Soviet Maj. Gherman Titov.

The astronaut outlined part of his philosophy when he spoke last year to the annual luncheon of the Associated Press. He proposed a national clearing house for space data, with access to it for "friendly foreign elements."

Pearson Is Told Common Market Not Closed Shop

De Gaulle Says Group Is Outward-Looking

CP from AP-Reuters

PARIS — Canadian Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday that President de Gaulle has assured him France wants the six-country European Common Market to be an "outward-looking" factor in world trade.

The Canadian leader also disclosed that Canada is interested in selling Uranium to France, where it could help build France's independent nuclear force.

Pearson related this to a press conference following a second long talk with the French president in the Elysee Palace, this time in the company of French Premier George Pompidou, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Canadian External Affairs Minister Paul Martin.

"We were assured," Pearson told reporters, "that France hopes and intends that the Common Market—as soon as it gets its own affairs in order—will be an outward looking organization.

"We were told that France feels the Common Market must not be regarded as a 'closed shop.'"

Pearson said this was the expression employed by the spokesman for the French side, presumably de Gaulle himself.

LOOK AHEAD

The prime minister said he could not disclose exactly what de Gaulle had said in their confidential talks, but he said both sides agree on the importance of the forthcoming "Kennedy round" world trade negotiations in Geneva to reduce commercial barriers in the free world. Pearson made this comment in reply to a question on the outlook for Canadian farm exports to the Common Market.

Pearson acknowledged there were differences of opinion between himself and de Gaulle on the foundations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization but the role of the United Nations in world peace, but he said de Gaulle is firmly convinced of the need to maintain a strong Atlantic alliance.

The prime minister said he told de Gaulle that Ottawa feels the United Nations can be "very effective" in certain circumstances "in preventing little

Ookpik, Sealskin Owl, Star Turn at Trade Show

He's also the hottest property going in the trade and commerce department's export drive.

Currently, he's in terrible short supply and — largely because of the soft coat of sealskin—he sells for perhaps somewhere up to $20, depending on size.

Ookpik has a fascinating success a story, culminating last fall in Philadelphia where he was Canada's star turn at a trade show.

"It became pretty obvious we needed a real gimmick," recalled a trade department official who helped plan the Canadian trade fair in the U.S. city.

The usual list was brought out — Mounties, cowboys, the Parliament Buildings — and finally the department, none too happy, settled on the old standby the Maple Leaf.

Then, northern affairs department got in the act. It sent the trade department a catalogue of Eskimo art products in case there might be something which would catch on in Philadelphia.

There was Ookpik.

"It was right then I knew that was what we had been looking for," says F. R. Hamilton, director of trade editorial and art services division.

A poster publicity campaign was quickly launched for the Philadelphia show, picturing Ookpik staring wide - eyed and reading:

But Ookpik nearly didn't come. When the time came to ship him — Eskimo to the United States, it was suddenly discovered he wasn't where he was supposed to be —in the warehouses.

Panic buttons were pushed. The northern affairs department was asked to radio to Fort Chimo to place new orders. But the northern communications delays and then it

Shastri May Succeed Ill Nehru

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A little statesman who lost the home ministry in a cabinet shakeup last fall seems to be regaining standing as the most likely successor to ailing Prime Minister Nehru.

He is Lal Bahadur Shastri, 59, a slim five-footer who was highly regarded as prime ministerial timber before Nehru dropped him from the government.

A mild-mannered disciple of Mohandas K. Gandhi, Shastri had made a reputation within the ruling Congress party and the cabinet as a self-effacing mediator of differences between right and left wings.

Thursday, he called at the home of Nehru, who has begun to see signs of public pressure on him to relinquish permanently many of his duties. There was no announcement on what happened, but just the fact Shastri was admitted seemed significant.

Earlier in the week Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, was barred from seeing the prime minister as part of her effort to shield him from politics and protect him from excitement.

Now Indian newspapers are speaking for the first time of a growing feeling in the Congress party "that Nehru, 74, and sick since he was stricken 11 days ago by fatigue and high blood pressure, should make clear arrangements for the government to be carried on without him.

Political reports centred on the possibility of Shastri returning to the cabinet as leader of the Congress party in Parliament. This would be a key job, clearly marking Shastri as the most likely successor to Nehru.

Reliable sources said President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan, moving to establish clear lines of authority, talked privately with Shastri on Wednesday. The president saw Nehru for 10 minutes Monday, but that is believed to have been a social call.

Under vague provisions of India's constitution, Radhakrishnan could influence selection of the governmental power. But the president, a 75-year-old scholar and philosopher, seemed to be looking for a solution better fitting into the nation's political system.

The most optimistic medical opinion is that Nehru may, in a month or two, be able to resume work for four hours a day. Others believe that he will never again be able to run the government.

Bobcats Being Seen in Southern Ont.

WALSH, Ont. (CP)—A bobcat is suspected of killing dogs, sheep, calves and other domestic animals and keeping people awake with its spine-chilling screams in this Simcoe area village.

Robert Landon, a Simcoe naturalist, said he saw the animal while driving near here in Charlotteville township, and described it as about the size of a cocker spaniel.

D. R. Johnston of the lands and forests department at Aylmer said he has received several reports of bobcats being seen in southern Ontario.

U.S. Consul Held In Zanzibar Now Released

Embassy Secretary Remains in Country

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department received word today that U.S. Consul Frederick P. Picard, seized at gunpoint Thursday in Zanzibar, has been released and has reached Dar es Salaam, Tanganyika.

Donald K. Petterson, third secretary at the U.S. embassy on the island off the African east coast, was released from house arrest, the department reported, but remained voluntarily on Zanzibar.

He is expected to resume contacts with the new Zanzibar government which ousted the regime that took over when Zanzibar gained independence.

The four American newspapermen restricted by Zanzibar officials to their hotel are also expected to be released, but there was no word this had actually been accomplished.

Picard, who has been acting as charge d'affaires in Zanzibar, was flown to Dar es Salaam Thursday, in a plane provided by the Tanganyika government.

ZANZIBAR (Reuters) — United States Consul Frederick Picard was under house arrest here today after being taken into custody by a machine-gun carrying group of officials led by President Abeid Karume.

The arrest was made at the Hotel Zanzibar Thursday night as Picard was talking to four American newspaper men who had been detained by the new revolutionary government earlier in the day.

(A Canadian newspaper man, Bob Miller of the Toronto Globe and Mail, and a British journalist, Clyde Sanger of the Manchester Guardian, were taken into custody along with the Americans, but apparently were released after limited freedom of movement. The Americans were not.)

Interior Foreign Minister Abdul Rahman Mohammed Babu and four armed guards reportedly burst into the hotel. Following an angry exchange of words Picard was led out of the hotel, a machine-gun pointing at his back.

HELD BY GUARD

This morning, Picard, 33, told reporters by telephone he still was restricted to his home under heavy guard.

During the hotel exchange Karume, who returned here after flying to neighboring Dar es Salaam, Tanganyika, told Pi-

To Reduce Number Of Committees

TORONTO (CP) — The opposition voiced criticism but there was no formal opposition Thursday to Premier Robarts' proposal to reduce the number of standing committees of the Ontario legislature to 10 from 18.

The premier's statement was a follow-up to an announcement in the throne speech Wednesday that the government planned reorganization of four departments and the creation of two new ones — university affairs and energy and resources management.

He said Thursday in the legislature the reduction in committees would not eliminate any of the functions carried out by the larger number of committees. He hoped the regrouping would make it possible for only one committee to sit at any one time.

The premier rejected a suggestion by Vernon Singer (L—Downsview) that committees be reduced to eight or 10 members from the usual total which goes as high as 50. Mr. Robarts said this would exclude members who wanted to serve.

Mr. Singer said the reduction in number of committees was not likely to solve the committee problem. He proposed attaching civil servants to committees to do research work.

TOO MANY LAWYERS

Another Liberal, Elmer Sopha, member for Sudbury, said the new committee dealing with labor, legal and municipal bills would be overburdened with lawyers who might interfere with labor legislation. Legal and labor legislation should not be handled by the same committee.

He said, however, his party would take no steps to formally oppose the consolidation.

At the urging of two New Democrats, the premier said he would give the public works committee some work to do this session.

Ken Bryden of Toronto Woodbine and NDP Leader Donald MacDonald referred to the bureaucracy as the "orphan committee." But Mr. Bryden said fewer committees might pave the way for a smoother operation.

The premier said legislature sessions would be eliminated one day a week when the government feels it necessary to enable members to work on standing committees. But he said there would be no return to the practice followed before 1962 of scheduling Wednesday as a day of committee meetings.

PLAN CAMPAIGN

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police launch an all-out campaign against jaywalkers today. Chief James Mackay said Thursday as many as four police officers will patrol busy intersections.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — An intense storm centred in southern Saskatchewan will move eastward across Northern Ontario tonight, resulting in snow and rapidly moderating temperatures. The snow area is expected to be confined to central and northern regions with mainly cloudy and mild weather continuing in the southern area.

Deadlock In Bitter Dispute

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP)—Panama and the United States remained deadlocked today in their bitter dispute over the Panama Canal. Neither government budged an inch, but neither government did anything to make the situation worse.

High sources in American and Panamanian official quarters said there was a slight hope that some formula would be found to get the two governments together again.

Reports from Washington said U.S. diplomatic troubleshooters were working behind the scenes in the U.S. capital and in Panama.

Manuel Trucco of Chile, chairman of a U.S.-Panamanian committee established under the auspices of the Organization of American States, met Thursday with Panamanian President Roberto Chiari and Foreign Minister Galileo Solis.

STANDS FAST

Chiari made no move to carry out his threat to call his embassy staff home from Washington and demand the departure of U.S. diplomats from Panama. This would complete the rupture in diplomatic relations he broke last Friday during the violence along the Canal Zone in which 20 Panamanians and four U.S. soldiers were killed.

Official Panamanian sources said said Chiari would maintain the break unless the United States agreed to negotiate a new treaty to replace the 1903 pact giving it perpetual control over the Canal Zone.

In Washington, the White House reaffirmed U.S. willingness to discuss all issues with Panama. But State Secretary Dean Rusk told the Senate foreign relations committee the United States would not do so "under pressure or threat of violence."

Rusk told reporters his government feels the situation "can be resolved in the absence of violence through negotiations and discussions between the two governments."

Chiari is under strong pressure from civic, professional and business organizations to insist on negotiations for a new treaty giving Panama eventual ownership of the canal. Some influential, conservative Panamanians called on the president Thursday to express fears and worry about the canal later, but this group appeared to be a distinct minority.

Asks Politicians to Avoid 'Rash, Reckless Statements'

SARNIA (CP) — Provincial Secretary Bona Arsenault of Quebec appealed Thursday to politicians, inside and outside Quebec, to avoid "rash or reckless" statements on relations between French and English Canada.

Speaking to the Sarnia Chamber of Commerce, he said there must be a "greater dialogue" between the two groups to produce better understanding.

"This would be the starting point for eventually drafting a new constitution," Mr. Arsenault said.

Speaking in English, he appealed to "politicians of all parties and at all levels from taking stands or saying things that tend to reflect our differences" rather than the common heritage of the two groups.

"Rash and reckless statements are made in Quebec province also," he said, "I am not minimizing them and this is why I again appeal to all politicians to understand that we must try and work out our differences in a spirit of partnership and not in any aggressive mood."

Mr. Arsenault said French-Canadians living outside Quebec should have the same rights as the English-speaking minority in Quebec.

"This does not mean we want to force our will upon the rest of Canada, nor are we so unrealistic as to expect that whole communities outside Quebec where no French is actually spoken should become bilingual."

There were many cases, he said, where common sense could avoid misunderstanding and frictions between French and English. One was the question of Toronto radio station CJBC which the CBC plans to turn into a French-language outlet.

"... We in Quebec see no reason why 167,000 French-speaking Canadians in Toronto should not have a radio station in their own language when some 25,000 English - speaking people in Quebec City, most of them bilingual, have had for a years, in the very heart of French-Canada, not only their English radio station but also their English television station."

MONTREAL (CP) — Edward J. Little, vice-president of the Canadian Public Relations Society, Thursday proposed the creation of a national centre to promote cultural exchanges between French- and English-speaking Canadians.

Mr. Little, an English-speaking Montrealer, told a Lions Club meeting that such a centre "could provide us with the kind of bridge that we have needed in Canada for 200 years."

He said the institution could be known as the Natural Cultural Affairs Centre.

"While such a need has been evidence in Canada from the beginning," he went on, "an interchange on the scale necessary has never gotten off the ground and such efforts will always be haphazard and inadequate until they are properly co - ordinated and adequately stimulated."

"My name is Simon MacTavish," he chirped to an appreciative audience of 275 banqueters.

But his name was not MacTavish.

The club, founded in 1775, originally consisted of veterans of the northwest Canadian fur trade who assembled in Montreal to spin yarns about their exploits, adventures and to feast off the fruits of the forest.

The Beaver was dissolved in 1824 when the old North-west Company of traders was absorbed by the Hudson's Bay Company.

Mr. Gordon and the other latter-day Beaver-baiters had come together for the sixth yearly get-together of the organization since it was reactivated in 1958.

The CNR chief had plenty of top-brass company at the head table, all robed in the manner of the pioneer days. Besides the club president, Edward Hamilton of Boston, there was Donald E. Kerlin, president of the Montreal Trust Company and the Beaver's incoming head.

And as if one bewhiskered man of 74 wasn't enough, there were six bank presidents too, all bowling in delighted response to the antinanigans of their toastmaster and the performances of a dozen singing waiters dressed as "coureurs des bois."

The gathering was true to Beaver Club tradition — happily wolfed down heaping rounds of traditional delicacies.

Paraded in were such palate-teasers as the smoke lish of white whale, terrapin served in turtle shells and, topping it all off, the meat of buffalo.

"Another traditional Beaver Club ritual was honored—The Calumet, a large Indian pipe, was passed for all to puff.

Even the ladies present, or the more hardy of them, joined in this ritual, designed to cement the ties of friendship among members.

Arab Use Of Jordan Planned

CAIRO (AP) — Arab leaders entered the final day of their 13-country summit conference today with an agreement to strengthen their military posture against Israel and develop their own program for the waters of the Jordan River.

Despite the public facade of unity, an unusually long meeting that continued into the early hours this morning hinted at differences between some Arab leaders on issues other than Israel. The leaders had scheduled the meeting to give routine approval to a four-point resolution already agreed upon by their foreign ministers.

A conference spokesman said the Arab leaders had approved the resolution, which envisions punitive measures against Israel.

The five-day conference was convened to seek ways of preventing Israel from tapping Jordan River waters to irrigate the Negev Desert.

U.S. Astronaut John Glenn To Seek Ohio Senate Seat

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Lt.-Col. John H. Glenn made the plunge from the space program to national politics today. He formally announced he is a Democratic candidate for U.S. senator from Ohio.

The gathering was true to Beaver Club tradition — happily wolfed down heaping rounds of traditional delicacies.

Paraded in were such palate-teasers as the smoke lish of white whale, terrapin served in turtle shells and, topping it all off, the meat of buffalo.

Even the ladies present, or the more hardy of them, joined in this ritual, designed to cement the ties of friendship among members.

Glenn, 42-year-old native Ohioan who made his historic three-orbit trip Feb. 20, 1962, said that as soon as possible he is resigning his commission from the marine corp.

Young, asked if he is in the primary race to stay, replied: "Indeed I am. Not only am I in the race, but I surely shall be nominated for United States senator May 5 this year."

Glenn, in May, 1962, became the first American to orbit the earth made his expected announcement to reporters that he will oppose Senator Stephen M. Young for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Ohio's primary election set May 5.

Pearson Is Told Common Market Not Closed Shop

De Gaulle Says Group Is Outward-Looking

CP from AP-Reuters

PARIS — Canadian Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday that President de Gaulle has assured him France wants the six-country European Common Market to be an "outward-looking" factor in world trade.

The Canadian leader also disclosed that Canada is interested in selling Uranium to France, where it could help build France's independent nuclear force.

Pearson related this to a press conference following a second long talk with the French president in the Elysee Palace, this time in the company of French Premier George Pompidou, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and Canadian External Affairs Minister Paul Martin.

"We were assured," Pearson told reporters, "that France hopes and intends that the Common Market—as soon as it gets its own affairs in order—will be an outward looking organization.

Around the Tee

At the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday the annual playdowns for the Silver Tankard will be played. There are three clubs entered, RCAF Station, the Quinte Curling Club and the Kingston Curling Club. The draw has been made and Quinte will tee off against RCAF at ten o'clock and the winner of this match will meet the Kingston Club for the right to advance to the district playoffs at Orleans on January 30th.

This competition is a two-rink affair with the scores of each rink being added. The local rinks will be composed of Al Shuniker, lead, Jim Pettigrew, second, Murray Johnson, vice and Dave Brown skip and Doug Gardiner, lead, Wes Andrews, second, Ron Cass, vice and Stan Reston, skip. The RCAF rinks will be skipped by Haverstock and Puters.

The public is invited to witness these interesting matches, one being played in the morning and the other game in the afternoon. It is a knockout draw and all games are of twelve ends.

Two rinks from the Quinte Curling Club are competing in the Kingston hospital this weekend and both rinks are pinning their hopes on the first game. Max Wallis and his rink had a narrow escape against Bill Pettigrew of Kingston, when they came to an extra end. Wallis tied the game on the eighth end when he made a takeout on his own rock and his rock staying for the second counter. In the extra end Spalding had a stone in by a "cole" draw but was heavy and went through the houses. T. A. Carruthers and his rink had an easy win in their game. Both rinks play again at five o'clock this afternoon and then start the long grind on Saturday, when they always have to play four games.

A rink of Bill Gault, Fred Mason, Don Adams and Ernie Wilkinson are in Utica, N.Y., competing in the annual bonspiel. A Belleville rink has been going to this spiel for some years and each time the boys come back reporting the hospitality better than ever. No prizes are given, winners, just a pin signifying their superiority.

card: "You have interfered with our government."

He said whatever relations Zanzibar had remaining with the U.S. were broken off.

Picard was also forbidden to communicate with American diplomats in Dar es Salaam by telephone.

Karume also told Picard all U.S. citizens on this east African island were under house arrest.

But it was not believed any American citizens, even the two government officials and four newspaper men were left on the island.

Sixty - one Americans were evacuated from Dar es Salaam by the U.S. navy destroyer Manley earlier in the week.

It is not clear why the journalists—Jack Jones of Newsweek magazine, Bill Smith of Time-Life, Robert Conley of the New York Times and Peter Rand of the New York Herald Tribune—were arrested.

They were taken into custody Thursday morning along with Miller and Picard.

CAME BY BOAT

All six arrived in Zanzibar by boat from Dar es Salaam and were taken into custody at the harbor. They were held at the Zanzibar hotel, being used by the government as headquarters.

Anyone wanting to leave the hotel had to prove his nationality and it appeared the Americans were not being allowed to leave.

Newspaper men of other nationality were permitted to enter and leave the building freely.

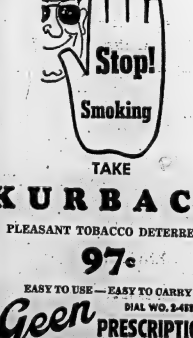
The detained men reported they were not mistreated in any way.

Earlier reports said the men were detained for entering the country illegally and for filing distorted news stories.

The island, a former British colony, has had eight successful coups since it became independent Dec. 10. It chose to remain in the Commonwealth at that time.

Official figures said eight persons were killed and 500 wounded in the coup which promised to bring "socialism" to the island.

The Associated Press reported that the "restricted" Americans were given the option of leaving the island aboard the British survey ship Owen at the termination of the state department. The Owen is here to evacuate British residents.



A squad of revolutionists took the American journalists out of the hotel one at a time this morning and "searched" them against a wall—then took their photographs.

All news cables were subject to censorship and foreign journalists could only file stories they were temporarily allowed to travel on by car between their hotel and the cable office in Dar es Salaam and the phone calls out of the country also were forbidden.

ARREST ESCAPADE

EDMONTON (CP) — City police said Thursday that John Douglas Stewart, 34, who escaped from the federal medium-security penitentiary at Joyceville, Ont., in October, was arrested last weekend and charged with possession of stolen property. Rev. M. Twilley Preaches at Final Service

Sunday services began with a record attendance at Sunday school of 213 scholars. Mr. Twilley preached at both morning and evening services which were well attended. At the close of the evening service six people were baptized upon profession of faith.

The evening service was followed by a time of testimony and fellowship, held in the church basement. Several spoke of the blessings they had received through Mr. Twilley's ministry. Among those who spoke were three teen-age girls who have lived in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Twilley during the past year. All said how much they had come to love Mr. Twilley and his wife and thanked them both for so unselfishly opening their home to them.

The church and congregation gave Mr. Twilley a love offering and Mr. Wilson Blake on behalf of the Ladies' Missionary Fellowship, presented Mrs. Twilley with a gift.

The prayers of all at Parkdale go with Mr. Twilley as he seeks to serve the Lord in Southwest India.

Crash Sends Woman to Hospital

Police say the collision occurred when a car driven by Thomas Hunt, 18, of Belleville, turned off the Wallbridge Road onto the concession — into the path of an oncoming automobile driven by Donald Robert Demille, 35, R.R. 2 Belleville.

The Irwin car was struck broadside.

6 Local Cars Entered in Kingston Rally

Six Quinte Auto Sport Club cars are in Kingston today, entered in the 175-mile Queen's University "Snowball Rally". The six cars, driven by Robert Boyce, James Jenkins, Dr. Robert Johnston, Bruce Wallbridge, Norman Storms and Fred Blake all of Belleville, represent the Quinte club's entry in the Q.A.S.C. members in an out-of-town rally. Driving in the Kingston rally, they can collect points for the Q.A.S.C. "Nomad Trophy" — for the driver-navigator team collecting the most points in events sponsored by other clubs.

Most of the drivers also plan to enter a Q.A.S.C. event, the "January Rally" beginning early Sunday afternoon at the Plaza. The rally is a 65 to 70 mile course, with no tricks planned to catch the inexperienced. Most of the drivers entering the "Snowball Rally" will enter the local event for fun only, not for points toward the club championship.

Bata Air Cadet Squadron Gets Diplomas at Banquet

TRENTON — About 100 guests attended the first father and son banquet of the Bata Air Cadet Squadron No. 732 in the Batawa Community Centre Wednesday night. They listened to several distinguished speakers and witnessed some important presentations.

Seated at head table were W/C Maitland, Transport command Headquarters who gave the address of the evening; Douglas Whitley, Trenton village chairman of the Provincial Committee for the Air Cadet League of Canada; Flt. Lt. Rowe, Commanding Officer of Air Cadet Squadron 732 Trenton; Holt Madill; Rev. W. H. Dunphy; Rev. H. M. Beech; Joseph Mackechnie; Harry Seymour; F/O E. Day and Flt/Lt. Arthur Malarkey, Commanding Officer of the Bata Squadron.

Tribute was paid to the rapid growth and progress of the squadron. Mr. Whitley praised members for their fine appearance and said that squadron Flight had made much its mark in achievements and with such excellent facilities, equipment and training there soon be rated with the best in the land.

W/Commander Maitland urged the boys to continue their education as long as possible in school and "stick with it". He could from good reading and study in public school work. "These are days that require experts and specialists in practically all fields of endeavor and without skills and technological training there will be little of security in the days ahead".

PRESENTATIONS MADE

Graduates of the recently held courses in aircraft recognized officers were presented with their diplomas by Wing Commander Maitland and Mr. Whitley, Provincial Committee vice chairman, presented the athletic shield to the cadet squadron to Flt. Sgt. Paul Duncan.

Greetings were extended to those present by Frank Rabel of Bata Engineering Division, for company officials unable to be present. Mr. Bata, Dr. Hers and Mr. R. H. Wright. Mrs. Duncan, chairman of the local sponsoring committee was chairman for the evening. The Squadron now has 65 enrolled members and the quota has been set at 75 members for the current year.

Expressions of gratitude were extended to Quinte Dairy Company, the sponsoring committee and the ladies of the cafeteria staff for their excellent evening that was enjoyed by the air cadets and their fathers.

BANNER YEAR EXPECTED

The Bata Air Cadet Squadron is looking for a banner year of activity this year. Last night it was announced they would go on a special flight over the end of January and since this is the 20th anniversary of the establishment of Batawa and the Bata Shoe Company of Canada Ltd., the flight may also be called upon to assist with special functions and celebrations.

Committee Will Meet Trenton Hospital Board

TORONTO (CP)—A committee appointed by the provincial health council will meet in Trenton today in an attempt to solve the Trenton Memorial Hospital dispute, Health Minister Rowntree said Thursday.

Mr. Rowntree said the board will meet representatives of the Trenton hospital board and with the Building Services Employees International Union (CLC).

The three-man board, headed by Judge Colin E. Bennett of Owen Sound, was appointed primarily to decide whether compulsory arbitration should be applied in this and other hospital labor disputes.

Judge Bennett said in a letter to the labor department, read in the legislature by Mr. Rowntree, that the board would attempt mediation in the strike, even though this might be somewhat outside its terms of reference.

The judge said one previous mediation attempt had failed. The union went on strike at the end of October to protest what it said was the hospital board's failure to agree on terms for a first contract with about 75 employees who are members of Local 183.

Mr. Rowntree, replying to a question by Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the New Democratic Party, said the board does not plan to submit an interim report to the labor department.

WILL UNVEIL BUST

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—A memorial to Prince Edward Island's best-known author, the late Lucy Maud Montgomery, will be unveiled at Prince of Wales College here later this year. First Look at New YMCA To Be Given Local Citizens During National 'Y' Week

Rehearse For Y Week

Hundreds of children and young adults gathered at the YMCA building on Campbell Street Thursday night for rehearsal of the program in which they will be taking part next week during "Y" Week.

Demonstrations were displayed by each of the many classes, including trampoline, judo, flying rings, square dancing, tumbling and water exhibitions.

The rehearsal was filmed by CKWS-TV and will be shown tonight at 6.15 p.m. and again at 11.20 p.m. and on Saturday night at 6.15 p.m.

Next week is Y.M.C.A. week across Canada and the United States. Throughout North America, YMCA's will be throwing open their doors to the general public, for people to see what the local "Y" has to offer the citizens of its community in recreational, spiritual and physical activities for people of all ages. In Belleville a varied program has been arranged by the local YMCA.

The various events will take place each afternoon and evening during "Y" week from January 19th to 26 at the present YMCA building on Campbell Street and on Friday evening, Jan. 24, a "spectacular" will be staged at the new YMCA building on Victoria Avenue, just east of Herchimer Avenue.

The "Y" week program will include boys', men's, women's, and girls' physical demonstrations featuring gymnastics, judo, weightlifting, trampoline exhibitions, tumbling, girls' judo displays, a co-ed jamboree, an "aquacade" at Albert College swimming pool, a Hi-Y Club church service at Holloway United Church on the Friday night "spectacular" featuring a weightlifting demonstration, police holds, a fencing display and a tour of the new YMCA building. Following the church service on Sunday, "Y" week will conclude with a So-Ed jamboree of winter sports activities at Oak Lake.

PRIMARILY FOR YOUNG

The YMCA is composed primarily of young people, but it is a fellowship of both youth and adults. Young people are encouraged to take as much responsibility for their own programs as they are willing and able to assume.

For many, the "Y" supplies a home away from home, a place for recreational and health activities, a centre for fellowship and resources of counsel. Commencing with these often unmet needed services, more and more persons find their way into an increasingly responsible, relationship where they share in planning and join in extending the influence of what becomes their Association.

Although formed as an organization of men and boys many YMCA's today include in their membership a considerable number of women and girls and activities are frequently co-educational in character. In small cities and towns, community YMCAs often include whole families in their membership. This is true of the local YMCA.

Responsible membership in a YMCA involves taking part in program planning, joining in financial support of the enterprise, and in other ways helping to carry out the purpose of the organization.

Members have opportunities to engage in a wide range of activities according to their interests; to share in satisfying experiences of study, play, religious worship and community service; to associate with others in small, closely knit groups; to develop capacity for leadership by membership on committees, councils or boards and to be of service to others throughout the nation and the world.

71 YEARS OLD HERE

The first YMCA was introduced to this city 71 years ago, back in 1893. At that time, it occupied quarters above what is now known as Lettimer's Drug Store on Front St.

As its membership increased and space became crowded, it was necessary for the "Y" to seek new quarters, and so, in 1910, men, women and children began the planning and construction of the present YMCA building on Campbell Street a community affair.

By 1911 the new building was ready and the "Y" took over in its new residence.

And now—some 53 years later—another move is being made because of the lack of room and facilities and a new building is under construction. It will be a big day for Mr. D. G. Diamantides and his staff when the move is made sometime during the late spring to the new quarters in the east end of the city on Victoria Avenue.

During his 11 years as General Secretary of the local YMCA, Mr. Diamantides, assisted by his staff, has had to overcome many obstacles, the greatest being lack of room and ough floor room and the ceiling is low because of an overhang ing balcony.

POOL IS SMALL

When the YMCA was built in 1910 the swimming pool installed measured 32 feet by 18 feet. This same pool is still being used today and has caused many headaches because of its smallness. Only a few are allowed into the pool at one time, and because of the extensive program carried out by the YMCA and the large membership, classes using the pool can do so for only a short period of time.

The new YMCA will feature a pool measuring 60 feet by 25 feet, almost triple the size of that in the present building.

Until one sees for oneself, one does not realize exactly what happens to a building, no matter how well constructed, over a period of 53 years, in spite of constant maintenance.

Over the years the floors have been reinforced, old wiring replaced and left in the open, additional rooms have been added in the basement which makes for difficult maneuvering for a tall person. Furniture has become old and worn beyond repair.

The gymnasium of the "Y", because of size, makes it difficult to hold basketball or volley ball games as there is not en-

FINE FACILITIES

The new YMCA building will feature a dual entrance, one for adults and one for youths, a youths' lounge and a separate adult lounge, an adult club room, an exercise room, three locker rooms (there is one in the present "Y"), a steam bath, a swimming pool measuring 60 feet by 25 feet, and a sunbathing patio located at the south side of the pool. From the adults' lounge parents will be able in watch their children swim through a large picture window, which overlooks the swimming pool.

After the new building is opened, other additions will be made, such as a large, modern gymnasium, more club rooms and a health club.

These are some of the many things which will be seen next Friday night when a tour of the building will be conducted. Those taking in the tour will have an opportunity to see the filtration units for the swimming pool, miles of electrical wiring and in general, a skeleton of the building in its constructive stage. The tour at this time is being staged to give the citizens of Belleville a birdseye view of how money for the new YMCA is being used.

Mr. Diamantides says he hopes the move will be new location, will be made some time in the spring, but adds it will probably be late spring.

GETTING IN THE SWING of things is this group of young square dancers instructed by Mr. and Mrs. M. Gordon of Belleville. Picture was taken just before the young group performed before the TV camera at a rehearsal last night of the numbers they will perform in "Y" Week programs next week.

FLYING HIGH is John Sager as he demonstrates his act on the trampoline at the YMCA rehearsal Thursday night in preparation of program to be staged during "Y" Week, next week.

Milltown Ghost Is Silent When Reporters Pay Call To Home of His Friends

There are no such things as ghosts! Everybody knows that. They just don't exist. Sure. But sit for a half hour some night in the darkness of a house reputed to be haunted, listening to the tick of two unsynchronized alarm clocks and a woman and a girl speaking to a ghost they've known for nearly two years. Things somehow seem different then.

The woman was Mrs. Myrtle Palmer, the girl her Linda Palmer, Mrs. Palmer's granddaughter, and the ghost was supposed to be Louis Carpenter, Mrs. Palmer's great-grandfather. He was killed by Indians—probably Iroquois — in the Shannonville area just before the American Revolution, if Mrs. Palmer's knowledge of the family history is correct. Mrs. Palmer and Linda were trying to coax the ghost to speak—for the benefit of CJBQ news director Dave Sovereign, and an Ontario Intelligencer reporter. The ghost was silent. He stopped speaking to strangers some time ago. All sorts of people have heard the ghost speak though.

DAUGHTER ESCAPED

Louis Carpenter came to the Shannonville area from Montreal, just before the American Revolution, planning to buy timber limits. He was killed by Indians but his daughter, travelling with him, escaped, according to the story. The daughter later married an United Empire Loyalist by the name of Mabe and about 70 years ago Myrtle Mabe—now Mrs. Myrtle Palmer — was born.

Mrs. Palmer moved two years ago into a 12-year-old single storey frame house on Milltown, near Shannonville, with her daughter Nellie, her granddaughter Linda Palmer, and Gerald, when Louis Carpenter, almost all these years, apparently moved in at about the same time.

The indication was when something began knocking on the wall, during the night, in the bedroom shared by Mrs. Palmer and Linda. The family didn't know it was a ghost then, of course. As the knocking continued on following nights, however, they invited friends and neighbors to hear it. Eventually someone — nobody remembers exactly who—suggested it might be a ghost. The family devised a simple code of knocks by which the ghost—if ghost it were—could communicate, and communication was established.

THEN GHOST TALKED

About a year ago the ghost began talking. It told the family that it was—or had been —Louis Carpenter. More or less friendly relations were established and the family settled down to life with a ghost in the house. The only really disconcerting incidents were when some hobby pins were scattered from a dresser onto the floor, when a square flashlight lying on a table began to roll over and over, and when something banged so hard on the bedroom window that some knick-knacks on the windowsill were knocked off. There was little wind and nothing in sight near the window at the time.

Ghosts are unusual in Milltown though, and people began to talk about Mr. Carpenter.

"People began to say we were crazy," is the way Mrs. Palmer put it. This was the situation when the radio news director and the reporter arrived on the scene, complete with tape recorder, camera and doubts.

FAMILIAR PATTERN

The doubts were modified though, during an hour-and-a-half interview. The family didn't believe in ghosts, but the story, as pieced together from the four people, began to fit into a familiar pattern. The pattern of the poltergeist.

Throughout recorded history ghosts have been reported romping through houses making noises, breaking objects and generally making a nuisance of themselves. They were so convincing at times that in England and in Europe several semi-scientific societies have been organized to study them. During past years these societies have accepted the name poltergeist, (a German word meaning "mischievous ghost") to refer to a specific type of ghost which appears only under certain circumstances and acts in a predictable manner.

Where there is a poltergeist, for example, there is almost always an adolescent child, usually a girl, and often under nervous stress. Linda Palmer is 11 years old and though she shows no obvious signs of nervous strain, she says she dreams a lot and often has nightmares. Poltergeists make noises and move things — as the "Carpenter" ghost does — and poltergeists always seem to be especially protective toward the adolescent to whom they may be connected. The "Carpenter" ghost always takes Linda's point of view in a discussion.

MANY EXPLANATIONS

There are all sorts of explanations for the poltergeist phenomena too, most of which include a complete disproof of all other explanations. One of the most interesting explanations is that the phenomena are produced by the accidental application of an adolescent's psychic abilities. One of the latest theory is that the existence of these abilities (such as telepathy—sometimes called "mind-reading," telekinesis—the ability to move an object without touching it, and levitation—the ability to resist the regard of the laws of gravity, has not been established. Some research in parapsychology at the schools which studies such abilities is showing interesting results, however.

But the sleek and semi-scientific explanations fade away and are lost in the darkness of the room as the old woman and the young child sit, with the lights out, speaking to the ghost. Dave Sovereign showed his appreciation of the situation by starting the motor of his tape recorder and holding his finger on the button that stops the tape. If he had fainted the button would have been released and the recorder would have started—recording the voice of . . . what?

THE GHOST IN THE HOUSE (or something) knocked these two china cats, belonging to 11-year-old Linda Palmer, off the windowsill one day. Milltown housewife Mrs. Gerald Whan watches to see if it will do so again. The family believes house is haunted by the usually friendly ghost of Mrs. Whan's great great grandfather.

Hospital Bd. Elects Officers On Jan. 29

The 1964 slate of officers for the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors will be chosen at a board meeting scheduled for Wednesday, January 29th, it was reported today by Hospital Administrator Stan Johnson.

The inaugural meeting of the board was scheduled for January 24th, but this date conflicted with the inaugural session of Hastings county council.

Accordingly the hospital board meeting was set back a few days until new appointments to the board from county council were known.

The county council meets for its inaugural session on Jan. 21 and appointments to the hospital board will be made later in the week.

Bishop Evans Visits St. Margaret's

On Sunday, January 12th, the Rt. Rev. K. C. Evans M.A. D.D., Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario administered the Apostolic rite of confirmation to 48 candidates presented by the rector of St. Margaret's, the Rev. J. A. Dunlop.

Mr. Fraser Ritchie was ilicenced as lay reader by the bishop and four servers received their server's badges, George Mason; Douglas Fraser, Scott Bradford and Michael Hume.

The bishop brought New Year greetings to the large congregation and preached on the Epiphany season, using as his text the three Epiphany collects, the manifestation, the baptism of the Lord and the Missionary work of the church.

Agreement on the Columbia

An agreement between Canada and the United States on the power development of the Columbia River now appears certain.

Terms of the accord are being kept secret until signatures are affixed, probably later this month when Prime Minister L. B. Pearson meets President Lyndon Johnson in Washington.

Reading between the lines, though, it would appear that Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia has won his points and Canada's share of power which would be generated in the U.S. as the result of the erection of dams in Canada will be sold by Canada to the U.S.

This was the snag which had prevented earlier ratification by Canada of the Columbia treaty signed in Washington in 1961. Premier Bennett had wanted sale of power authorized. The Diefenbaker Government, largely due to the persistence of Hon. Davie Fulton, had held out against such an arrangement.

Premier Bennett would now appear to have won. It may be 20 years before we can say for sure who has lost, but there will be many who will share the evident fears of Mr. Fulton that the loser may be Canada.

British Columbia had sought treaty revisions which would approve the sale of power to the U.S. for 20 years.

One cannot help wondering, though, whether the "repatriation" of this U.S.-generated but Canadian-owned power will be possible two decades from now. South of the border, industries will spring up dependent for their life on this power. Unless there is some alternative source of cheap power in 1984, can we be sure that these industries will abstain from lobbying for pressure on Canada to permit continuation of the sale? We may need the power then, to encourage the growth of new industries in B.C., but will we not be told that the very existence of prosperous communities already is being south of the border should take precedence over our needs for expansion?

All past experience suggests that temporary sale of power is likely to prove permanent.

If those who have so staunchly opposed Premier Bennett should prove correct, we shall live to regret this capitulation.

Movie Dilemma

Britain is in the midst of a dispute over its movie industry.

At stake is the future of British Lion, which is a government-owned company. It is proposed to sell this to private interests. However, by some system which we do not fully understand, the facilities of this government-owned company have been used by independent producers, who have made some of Britain's best movies. Those who oppose the sale of British Lion apparently fear that, if this organization becomes privately-owned, it will be given over to the production of the movie equivalent of the literary pot-boiler.

One of the troubles, it is said, is the proliferation of bowling alleys and bingo halls in suburbia. These are providing more competition than cinemas in smaller communities can handle. Nothing is said about the competition which comes from the British pub and from home TV. The former, we presume, is considered normal, while the attraction of the latter may be wearing a little thin. After all, the British have had TV considerably longer than we have and, being a naturally discriminating people, must long since have discovered that the small home screen is outclassed by the possibilities of the big theatre screen, if these are properly exploited.

Bowling alleys and bingo halls are poor substitutes for cinemas—if good pictures are shown. Physical exercise is all very well, so that bowling alleys are not an entirely regressive development, but there is nothing wrong with giving the limbs a rest providing the mind is given an opportunity to exercise itself. British production is reported by Alan Harvey of The Canadian Press to "waver unevenly" with some outstanding movies and many poor ones. The same, of course, holds true on this continent.

The difficulty is that the poor shows are oft-times the money-makers. Too often those who ought to help raise the standard of film-making by patronizing good films are content to waste their time at bingo halls, to over-stress the importance of physical exercise, or just to bovinely accept TV fare for the sake of cheapness and family "togetherness." Even a good book deserves to be abandoned when a good movie comes to town; the book will wait, the movie will not.

Pipe-Smoking Is Worth While

Wall Street Journal

There is something to be said for, or at least about, pipe smoking.

We live in an age of warnings: Don't drink more than couple a day (it'll rot your innards); don't drive without safety belts (they'll save you from a flight through the windshield); don't overdo the calories (God, for thin heart and wardrobe); and when on the golf course, don't take your eye off the ball (you'll kill your game and, possibly your partner).

But the biggest "don't" these days seems to be: Don't smoke cigarettes because what tobacco does to your lungs shouldn't happen to a barrel of rivet tar. Nevertheless, many continue to use the set weed, possibly because it's quieter than gum-chewing and cheaper than whittling. But, from our own observations, it appears that more and more people, chiefly men, are taking up the pipe.

Smoking a pipe, however, is not the same as smoking a cigar or cigarette. With a cigar or cigarette once the article is lighted, you're stuck. This is not true of a pipe. A pipe-smoker's work is never done.

The man who decides to take up a pipe must first select the model that suits him best. It's something like shaving or a new car except there are many more models to choose from. Pipes come in curves, straights and many sizes, but the beginner usually picks a conventional - looking device as a safe limize the impact on the boys in the office.

If the beginning puffer were to lean on the water - cooler and produce self-conscious item Job with Beethoven's head carved on the bowl, the reaction would be immediate and, very likely, unkind.

When the pipe is bought, the owner assumes the responsibility for "breaking it in." All this amounts to is smoking it awhile to char the inside of the bowl. This charring process occurs whether the smoker tenderly thinks about it or whether he just starts smoking without the slightest thought to proper procedure.

The newcomer to the art is not really initiated until he has had his first taste of backbite. This occurs when, in the midst of a particularly satisfying pipe grant and smolding puff, the human tongue is suddenly shrivelled by a flame of backbiting tobacco juice. The difference between this substance and carbolic acid is small.

It is popularly believed that the pipesmoker is strong-minded and reflective. The strong-mindness myth developed because the pipe - smoker usually had his teeth clenched, an act which squares the jaw and tends to rigidify certain head muscles. This gentle grimace may indicate firm determination and an iron will, or it may mean the smoker doesn't want the pipe to fall out of his mouth.

The reflectiveness myth is probably based on the fact that he can smoke a pipe without reflecting upon the likely possibility that the thing will suddenly decide to extinguish itself. To keep one match ahead of a pipe takes some thought and the most measured respiration.

But all in all, there is nothing quite like a pipe. There is really some small pleasure in taking it apart and putting it back. And, when the insides have been restored, the bit adjusted and the bowl filled with Well-Aged, there is genuine satisfaction in looking at the pipe and reflecting upon a job well done.

Letter to the Editor

Really Great Artists All Had Training

Ontario Intelligencer.

For the past while, I have been digesting your editorial based on a news story about Montreal artist Michelle Bastin.

All the years I have read on great artists of the past mentioned they had some training, and they offered most to mankind for their contributions in range of expression and experimental works and the study of color; Picasso, Mondrian, Hozel, Klee, Renoir and others too numerous to mention.

Nuances of the early artist I have read about who was untrained or who did not seek instruction from artists of his work. You may suggest Grandma Moses as an example. Her work is of a primitive nature and was limited to one style.

The fact, as stated in the news story from Montreal, Bastin is not interested in Art Galleries, nor has she any favorite artist whose work she admires is also a rare attitude. We have the interest of Van Gogh in the impressionistic period of her how he walked miles to get constructive criticism of his work from an artist friend, Emile Bernard, sitting to Renoir, Mondrian and Van Duxberg working together in Holland and Germany at the School of Bauhaus by artists whose contribution to present day architecture and design was one of great benefit to mankind. The book on Bauhaus may be obtained from our Public Library.

I doubt that this artist's latest form of self-expression is going to be greatly admired or followed. Every form of activity is a growing process and one rarely starts from the beginning on one's own to try and learn all that has been learned but covers through an available source the different movements of the past on a subject and when that is learned, tries to move onward. This is obvious in all other forms of activity such as writing, making a pie, or a dress. I don't imagine a philosopher never having read Plato, nor can I imagine a composer, never having listened to Beethoven; nor a cook, never having read a cook book nor an artist never having looked at any cost else's work.

There are instances of a person showing a talent but this is not necessarily classified as greatness. I do not think that the artists mentioned above who had no formal training, will ever be considered great masters.

Yours truly,
A Reader.

Muskeg Moss May Be Asset

Saskatoon Star-Phoenix

The widespread acreage of mossy muskeg in northern Canada is a potential asset of importance, in the opinion of Dr. John Ingebrigtson, a former MP, recently summarized the present limited uses of sphagnum moss. All of its uses are likely to expand in the future, and he forecasts a new use that make an impressive list. He foresees moss being used for producing cellulose, as a stabilizer for wood in paper pulp, and even in fabricating clothing and plastics.

Peat moss is now in demand as a soil conditioner for use on lawns, and even in horticulture and other agricultural fields, especially on the Pacific Coast sphagnum moss may emerge as a competitor.

Sphagnum moss has better moisture retention than peat moss. Sphagnum moss rots down more slowly, thus preserving its soil-conditioning purposes for a longer time.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 17th, 1944.

One hundred years of service with youth throughout the world will be completed by the Y.M.C.A. this year. Canadian observance of the Centennial will be held in Montreal early in June, L. E. Shaw, president of the National Council of the Canadian Y.M.C.A.'s announced. The Y.M.C.A. was founded in London, England, by George Williams, a 23-year-old dry goods clerk.

The Y.M.C.A. was formed as a society for the improvement of the spiritual condition of young men engaged in the drapery trade." Soon the "v" broadened its program to include educational and athletic activities. Seven years after its founding the Y.M.C.A. came to Canada to open a Y.M.C.A. in Montreal. Today the Y.M.C.A. operates in 86 countries. Its 12 original members have grown to many millions.

The work of this local "Y" is well known. Members have increased and the service is extended to the whole community. With the extra war work and service to men and women on active service, the work load on the local board and staff has been exceptionally heavy. The Local Board is now working on extension plans which will be a boom to the Youth of this Community.

Woodley's Fur Store was robbed during the night of January 16th, and between $19,000 and $20,000 worth of furs were taken. The break-in was discovered by Constable William Evans and he immediately notified police headquarters. It was about one o'clock a.m. when Mr. George Woodley and his two sons, Russell and Harold, were notified of the robbery and upon arrival at the store they saw at once that the best of their fine stock of furs and fur coats were missing. The show window was not touched. Entrance to the cost valued at $400 and which was on a former near the window, was taken. The rear door of McKeown's Drug Store was found forced open, and it is thought that the robbers made a mistake in the door leading to the fur store. It is certain that the large amount of sixbeagenda sand not have been carried off without the use of a car or truck, and it is thought that the lanway from Pinnacle Street was used. Tools taken from a truck owned by Mr. Stafford Hawcamp Company were used to force an entrance to the fur store. There are many stories being told today of suspicious looking characters being about town the day of the robbery.

Link Keeler With Suez

Victoria Times

It's rather disconcerting to learn, from the Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar, that Egypt plans to produce a motion picture about Christina Keeler which will also deal with the "British espionage affair" of 1963.

Since Miss Keeler was only 16 years old at the time of the British - French intervention in Suez and had never figured in her remarkable career as Britain's demimonde, the connection between the two is difficult to discern.

However, historical accuracy has never been too carefully observed by the movie moguls of Hollywood, so who is to say that the Egyptians should not be allowed considerable literary license in their cinematographic efforts?

As box-office, the movie would have much to recommend it — sex, scandal in high places and the spectacle of ravaging hordes of tommies and pollus being beaten back from the sacred shores of Egypt by the undaunted fellahin army of Col. Nasser. Maybe it won't be history, exactly, but it could be great "art." The only improvement we can suggest is that Ken Tauk be worked into the plot somewhere. . . Perhaps as a beavy.

Vitamin Pills Described As "Anything But Worthless"

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I read recently that vitamin pills are worthless and that the public is being fleeced out of millions of dollars a year.

Is this true? — Mrs. R.

No, vitamin pills are anything but "worthless."

Yet it is true that the public is being fleeced in many instances.

Vitamins, no matter where you get them, are necessary for health. In the final analysis, they are necessary for life.

The person who eats a reasonably well-balanced diet gets the vitamins he needs.

Dumping more vitamins in him, via pills, is an utter waste. You can't get "twice as healthy" by taking twice as many vitamins. You can use only so much. Anything beyond that is superfluous.

Most of the fleecing of the public in this regard is done by high pressure salesmen or by conscience people who say "can't be healthy" unless they eat such-and-such brand of vitamin and mineral supplements."

Even worse, some of these high-pressure lads have been caught promising people that such pills will cure or protect against everything from diabetes to cancer. This, of course is downright falsification.

And the price charged for "a month's supply of such pills is enough to make ethical pharmaceutical manufacturers gnash for the aspirin bottle.

Do not fall for the claim that you have to eat pills to be healthy.

On the other hand, vitamin property used can be very helpful. Some people habitually stick to a meat-and-potatoes diet, rarely eating vegetables or fruits, maybe not even bothering with juice for breakfast.

They get some of the vitamins they need, but they miss others.

The same is true for elderly people, and many those living alone, and those who because of poor teeth or other reasons have difficulty eating. They often limit themselves to things that are easy to eat — and over the years acquire considerable vitamin deficiencies.

Use your head and you won't waste good money on vitamins you don't need. But by the same token, let your doctor notice that you aren't getting your vitamins through daily meals, he will supply what you lack.

Dear Dr. Molner: Some people say TV is harmful to the eyes and some say it is not. I have heard that a small light should be burning between the viewer and the TV set. — P. R.

No, TV does not harm the eyes. Nor do movies. You don't need a light between you and the TV set, but it is easier on the eyes if there is some illumination in the room.

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter gets kidney infection every once in a while, and she has to have shots and pills, which runs into a lot of money.

Would drinking a few glasses of water every day help?

Mrs. M. M.

Most likely, yes. Drinking lots of water may not give her sudden relief from her trouble, but it can't help but be of considerable utility would aid considerably — if she keeps it up.

From your letter I don't know your daughter's age, how much water she drinks, and her other health habits. But if she is skimping on water, she is playing asking for trouble. If she drinks as many glasses as two a day — every day — she can expect it to help. Some types of kidney and bladder infection in girls and women are apt to be recurrent and hard to eradicate.

Strictly Personal

People Must Learn to Think More Clearly

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

All we can do is to reason from the known to the unknown. One of my favorite extrapolations deals with the human mind and the human mind. It indicates to me the possibilities and potentialities within us.

The human ear has a range of only about 10,000 cycles. We can hear sounds from 15 cycles per second up to 20,000 cycles per second. This may seem to be a lot, but it is really an extraordinarily narrow range.

Dogs and cats, as we know, can detect sounds inaudible to us, up to 30,00 cycles per second. And the new science of ultrasonics has carried frequencies up to 100,000 cycles per second—five times greater than the unaided ear is able to distinguish.

Shifting our inquiry from the ear to the mind, we know that the low end of the mental scale in adults is about an I.Q. bf 60; the high end of genius is about an I.Q. of 200. This, also, is an extremely narrow range of mentation.

It seems more than plausible to me that the human race has an enormous potential for increasing its intellectual powers, if we but found the way to release the powerful energy within us and to throw off the inhibiting factors.

The differences between an Einstein and a cretin seems so great only because our scale is so narrow. There is a smaller distance between Einstein and the cretin than between Einstein and the fullest resources of the human mind. Our common ignorance far outstrips the gaps between the meanest mind and the broadest.

Some minds may have six cylinders, some may have eight and a few may have twelve, but almost all of us run on only one or two cylinders, utilizing only a fraction of our power. One of our chief tasks is to learn the "ultrasonics" of the mind.

I remember reading a few years ago about a 100-pound woman whose child was trapped under the rear wheel of an automobile. The woman lifted up the car by the rear axle — a task calling for 10 times the strength she thought she possessed. Under exceptional challenge, she rose to the occasion — and was only in the hospital a day or two with a strained back.

The real problem is calling upon us to achieve our fullest potential in solving the complex and overwhelming problems before us. We must not only learn to think better; we must learn to cast off the emotional chains that distort and obscure our free thinking. Just as there are sounds in the world we cannot yet hear, so are there ideas and processes we have scarcely begun to grasp with the mind's ear.

The 106-stock exchange index rose .21 to 133.10 while the 77-stock industrial index gained .27 to 142.40. Golds were unchanged at 133.45 and base metals ahead .21 to 81.34. Western oils fell .53 to 83.64. Volume was 917,000 shares compared with 1,062,000 at the same time Thursday.

Among banks, Royal and Imperial Bank of Commerce gained ¼. Montreal was off ¼. Liquors were led higher by Schiock A, up ½, and by Canadian Breweries and Distillers Seagrams, ahead ¼ and ¼ respectively. In steels, Ontario Steel and Dominion Foundries rose ⅛ and ¼ respectively.

In speculative trading Chimo dropped two cents to $1.43 after touching a new high of $1.48 and Consolidated Mogul fell five cents to 84.95 in light trading. Among senior base metals Noranda dropped ⅛ and Consolidated Mining and Smelting ⅛ while Rio Algom rose ⅛.

Trading in golds and western oils was light with few changes. McIntyre Porcupine Mines highlighted gold trading by turning over 18,804 shares during the first hour of trading, at 57½ unchanged.

The market moved through a day of record highs Thursday in only moderate volume. Speculative interest was high amid rising prices.

The industrial list showed a wide range of fractional gains, with papers, liquors and banks leading the list. Among liquors, Distillers Seagrams and Corby's voting both rose ¼, while Canadian Breweries gained ⅛. Walker - Gooderham was the lone dissenter, dropping ¾.

In papers, Abitibi and MacMillan Bloedel advanced ¼ each, while Price Brothers rose ⅛. Abitibi landed on the daily most active industrial list with volume of 8,075 shares.

Banks were strong, with Montreal ahead ½. Royal was next with a gain of ¼, followed by Nova Scotia and Imperial Bank of ahead ⅛ and ⅛ respectively.

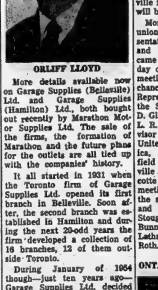
WILSON CONCRETE

Management of Wilson Concrete products Ltd. have decided the firm is too big now, for the sort of free-wheeling organization it started with, in a barn in 1949. With more expansion likely during the coming year, the firm is getting organized. No grey flannel suits yet but people who have been doing the jobs all along are getting official titles like sales manager, chief engineer, etc.

Company president Charles Wilson bases some of his hopes for expansion on the enquiries the firm has been getting on its products. Sounds like there are a lot of big buildings and bridges planned for the coming year.



Just finishing up now on a $250,000 contract for the metal hospital at Palmerston, and people are talking about another one, perhaps somewhere in Northern Ontario. Making prestressed roof slabs for the Kingston Transit Commission's new bus garage—18,000 square feet to cover, and preparing a tender on a second building—part of the same complex.

Biggest jobs in the shop now are materials for three of the 13 bridges to be built at the intersection of Highways 400 and 401, in Toronto. The ten bridges Wilson's are not involved with include curves—and you can't make a curved prestressed beam. The whole intersection is costing about $6,000,000—the biggest single contract let by the Department of Highways. More than 80 beams involved, most of them in the more-than-thirty-ton and more-than-forty-foot class each gorp. The beams will go to Toronto on 30-wheeled truck semi-trailer rigs.

ELECTRONIC CONTROLS LTD.

Still wading into international markets, Electronic Controls Ltd. has received a cable from Venezuela, asking sales manager Bill McPherson if the firm's bid to supply some equipment down there still stands. It does. Mr. McPherson will be off to Detroit area for a couple of days next week, keeping tracks of the firm's U.S. outlets and sales possibilities.

GARAGE SUPPLIES

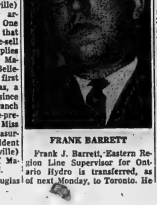
ORLIFF LLOYD

More details available now on Garage Supplies (Belleville) Ltd. and Garage Supplies (Hamilton) Ltd., both bought out recently by Marathon Motor Supplies Ltd. The sale of the firms, the formation of Marathon and the future plans for the outlets are all tied up with the companies' history.

It all started in 1931 when the Toronto firm of Garage Supplies Ltd. opened its first branch in Belleville. Soon after, the second branch was established in Hamilton and during the next 20-odd years the firm developed a collection of 16 branches, 13 of them outside Toronto.

During January of 1956 about the last ten years ago—Garage Supplies Ltd. decided to get rid of all the branches outside Toronto. The branches were all sold to the employees, the name of the location was included in the corporate name registered to the new owners, (as, for example, Garage Supplies (Belleville) Ltd.), and various other arrangements were made. One provision of the sale was that should the new owners re-sell the firms, the Garage Supplies name would be dropped. Also for shareholders in the Belleville operation after the first sale were Fred S. Douglas, a Garage Supplies employee since 1929, manager of the branch when it opened and vice-president of the new firm; Miss Quene Tees, secretary treasurer, and Orliff Lloyd, president of Garage Supplies (Belleville) Ltd., and vice-president of Marathon Motor Supplies Ltd.

Miss Tees and Mr. Douglas both retire within the next month or so but the retirements have no effect on the formation of Marathon Motor Supplies or the sale of Garage Supplies's firm, according to Mr. Lloyd.



Marathon has been formed mostly as a holding company for the three being, and will continue to operate both the Belleville and Hamilton outlets operations as before, and with the same staff. No final word yet on the name. In months and years to come, the firm may open new branches and buy out established outlets, Mr. Lloyd but there are no final plans yet.

STEPHENS-ADAMSON

Theo Rhenius, comptroller of Stephens-Adamson is due back from Mexico Monday. He went down last week for a look at the plant and a close look at the accounting procedure of Stephens-Adamson de Mexico S.A. recently purchased by the Belleville firm. Other S-A executives will be going there next month.

Monthly meetings between union and management representatives of the SACO Foundry and Stephens-Adamson plant came off Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The regular meetings give both sides a chance to air any complaints. Represented by management at the SACO meeting were Mrs. D. Gladwell, personnel manager L. R. Tymman and plant supervisor G. S. Stanton. For the United Mineworkers of America, 26 men, the union's field representative in Belleville and John Hill, Harold Turcotte and Harry Reid. At the meeting for the shop local of the same union Mrs. Gladwell and Mr. Tymman met Albert Stoughton, Oscar Stapley, Jack Bunnett, Jack Miller, Wilburt Lethangue and steward Gordon Roth.

ONTARIO HYDRO

FRANK BARRETT

Frank J. Barrett, Eastern Region Line Supervisor for Ontario Hydro is transferred, as of next Monday, to Toronto. He will work as an Operating Supervisor for the Central Region, under L. A. Coles who was transferred from Belleville last September Mr. Barrett came from New Brunswick via McGill University's engineering course to Toronto nearly 16 years ago, to start with the Hydro. He was moved out to Belleville eight years ago. In town, he has been a member of the curling club and of St. Joseph's Church. His wife, son and daughter will stay in the family home in East Hill for the time being, perhaps until the end of the school year.

National Ballet of Canada To Perform Here Jan. 29

Rarely in Canadian theatrical history has such a wealth of outstanding talent in a variety of fields been brought together as for the National Ballet of Canada's forthcoming season.

Artistic director Celia Franca says she is proud of the fact that, while a few have been brought in from outside, most of these talents are now established in Canada or are Canadians who have returned to make this country their home after successful experience abroad.

"They are part of the new theatre developing in this country. To paraphrase one of Canada's best-known celebrities 'there is no question Canada is now in the big league of theatre.' It is from this premise that we have developed our season."

For instance, native - born Grant Strate combines with two other outstanding Canadians, composer Harry Somers and painter Harold Town, in the exciting new ballet, "The House of Atreus", based on the ancient Greek legend. Another new work "Allegresse" has the talents of choreographer Zachary Solov of New York and Canadian designer Robert Doyle of Halifax. "Allegresse" will be presented in Belleville.

Among the artists familiar to Canadian audiences are Galina Samtsova, who will return after a truly amazing "triumph" in Paris. Miss Samtsova is also staging two new dances, previously performed only in Russia, "Le Corsair" and "Walpurgis Night." She will dance "Le Corsair" here on January 29, 1964. Now in her third season with the National Ballet, Miss Samtsova has gained a large following among theatre-lovers.

David Adams is busily rehearsing after six months with the London Festival Ballet in starring roles in London and on the continent. Prima ballerina Lois Smith, one of Canada's best-known artists, returns after an enforced absence last season because of an injury.

Lawrence Adams, principal soloist, also returns to the company after triumphs abroad. Earl Kraul, through his personal appearances and television appearances, has increased his ever-growing audience.

The wardrobe department, spread over three floors in the picturesque and century-old St. Lawrence Market building in Toronto, has been busy for months making the elaborate costumes, properties and scenery for the coming season.

Many of the staff are from various parts of Canada, such as Port Arthur, Kitchener, Chatham, Toronto and Port Rowan, Ont. They have worked with the Stratford, Ont., Festival and other important Canadian organizations but, in the main, were forced to go abroad for their training. This is becoming less necessary with the development of large theatrical companies here.

The National Ballet will perform here, on the evening of January 29th, (Wednesday), in the Memorial Auditorium Belleville. Mail orders should be sent to Box 355 Belleville and the box office at the Eld. Thomas Cigar Store, 182 Front Street, opens January 13th.

HALF PRICE SALE
Earle Darrah

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was active and prices were steady on slaughter steers, yearlings, cows and bulls at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Choice light heifers were barely steady to lower with heavy heifers selling sharply lower. Replacement cattle were actively higher on a light supply.

Veal calf prices were higher. Hog, sow and lamb prices were higher.

Cattle receipts were estimated at about 10,000 head, about 700 head more than last week and about 1,700 head more than the same week in 1963. Western cattle receipts were 647 head more than last week at 656 head. Western stock calves totalled 195 head as compared to 75 head last week. Forty - five calves were received from New Brunswick. Seventy-eight veal calves were shipped out of the west for slaughter in the United States and there were no shipments to Eastern Canadian slaughterers.

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers sold at $23-23.50 with heavy feedlot steers to 24-40; good 21.50-22.50; medium 19-21; common 15-18; choice heifers 21.50-22 with some choice feedlot heifers to 23.45; good 19.50-21; medium 17-19; common 13-16.50; choice fed yearlings 23-25; good 21-23; good cows 15.50-16.50 with odd sales to 17; medium 14-15; canners and cutters 10-13.50; good heavy bologna bulls 19-20 with sales to 20.75; common and medium 16-18.50.

Replacement cattle: Good stockers 22 - 25 with sales to 25.50; common and medium stockers and stock calves 17-21 with good light steer stock calves up to 26.50.

Calves: Choice vealers 34-36 with sales to 38.50; good 30-33; medium 26-29; common 21-24; boners 15-20.

Hogs: Grade A 26-27.25; heavy sows 16.25-20 with light sows gaining a $2 premium; stags 13.50 on a dressed weight basis.

Sheep and lambs: Lambs 20-23.50 per hundredweight with good lambs closing at 22.50; lambs discounted at $1 per hundredweight; sheep 3-10 according to quality.

Sukarno Wants Malaysia Issue Settled Quietly

Kennedy's press secretary, Edwin Guthman, said after the 90-minute talk that the attorney-general and the president agreed the Malaysian dispute "should be solved by consultation."

Sukarno also agreed last week in conferences with Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal to seek a peaceful solution of the crisis resulting from their opposition to the Federation of Malaysia.

A spokesman for Sukarno said the Kennedy-Sukarno meeting established a "favorable climate" for a future summit meeting of Sukarno and Macapagal with Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia.

Spokesmen for both Kennedy and Sukarno said their first conversation today was "very friendly" and paved the way for personal exchanges among the three Asian governments chiefly involved in the dispute.

Successful Living

Family Has Trouble With A Kleptomaniac In-Law

DEAR DORIS — My problem is my daughter-in-law who is a kleptomaniac. I have been missing things for ten years and we have had proof. My son of course didn't believe this at first. In fact I didn't tell him for a long time, as it upsets him.

My daughter was only home two weeks this fall when we missed two articles from the clothesline. She was very angry. They live in the same yard as us in their own house. What can I do about this please?— HUT.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR HUT — If you have first class proof, tell your son. Try to arrange a family conference at which your daughter-in-law will have an opportunity to tell her side of the story.

Real kleptomania is a compulsion; not a crime. What she takes, and why, can point to the deep needs she tries to compensate for. You, or her doctor, or a psychiatrist, may be able to help her control that impulse.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — When I was in tenth grade, an eye specialist took me out of secondary school, which I found very hard.

What could I do with a grade ten not completed? Does a girl who always looked forward to graduation and being a secretary ever enjoy doing the work of a clerk or waitress? Can a girl ever be happy when she wants to go to school and cannot go because of her eyesight?

Doris, every morning when my sister and brothers leave for school, I just feel like crying to see myself so unhappy and unable to follow them. — WANTS TO BE A SECRETARY.

* * *

DEAR WANTS — The let down is terrific, when a girl can't follow her start I'm sorry.

But it's not so much what happens to you as what you do about it, that counts. What about the "born athlete" whose heart trouble made him turn to refereeing? The wheelchair homemaker? You are only truly handicapped when you lose the spirit to live.

Your school record can indicate your possibilities — which I'd judge were many. If you are sociable, talk to a saleslady about how she enjoys her work — or to a waitress. Consider other careers.

Crying will only ruin things — including the eyesight you have left. Good counselling now and a cheery approach can change your whole outlook.

DEAR DORIS — I am 18 and have a boy friend 22. He has asked me to marry him. I told my mother about this in August and we had a fight about it. I love him very much. He used to drink and smoke when I met him. He does neither now. He works hard, and puts money in the bank so we can buy a home.

He is going to give me an engagement ring and I know there will be a fight. I would like to know how to handle it when and if it does happen. Can a girl at 18 accept a ring without the parents' O.K.? How old do you have to be to not have the consent of your parents to get married? — IN LOVE.

* * *

DEAR IN LOVE — The ring is a symbol of a promise made between you and your fiance; whether your parents can forbid it and make their dictum stick depends, not on law, but on your relationship with them. Try to find out what they object to; you want your marriage to be a good one, don't you?

Where you are you can't marry without parents' consent until you are 21. In some provinces of Canada it is 18.

Confidential is NOT POPULAR — A well-fitted brassiere can fix up the bust line. Tweezers or wax or razor can help with the moustache. A letter to me with a self-addressed envelope can get you some instructions about this. And I'll tuck into some envelope my "Party Games and Refreshments" to help you throw a party at home, where your mother can see that all is above board.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — As a teacher of speech arts and drama I have found that I am becoming most interested in speech therapy. For my next course I am taken a certain amount of training in this field in order to be able to diagnose the causes of various speech defects, whether they are caused from physical or emotional abnormalities or whether they are caused merely from bad speech habits.

I have senior matriculation. Could you please give me some idea of what other educational requirements are needed to qualify for a speech therapy course? — TEACHER OF SPEECH.

* * *

DEAR TEACHER — There are three courses in speech therapy given in Canada: University of Toronto offers a two-year diploma course, requiring arts degree or equivalent for entrance. Perhaps your studies and experience might rate as part of "or equivalent."

McGill University offers one leading to an M.A. in speech pathology, and the other one is a diploma course, given in French at the University of Montreal.

Graduates are snapped up all over Canada.

* * *

Confidential to ONE ARM — Listen to this: A young business man lost both his legs in an accident. After he was over the first terrible shock, he asked his doctor what would be the next thing to impossible for him to do. "Fly, I guess," was the doctor's idea. This intrepid young man proceeded to learn to fly an airplane, then took his mother for a ride. Need I say more?

(Do you wonder why folks do what they do? Write to Doris, a trained social worker, about your particular human problem, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Melrose UCW View Fine Travelogue

The January meeting of Melrose U.C.W. was held in the form of an open meeting in the church basement with a large attendance.

Mrs. Newton Deinstle, the newly-elected president, presided for a brief worship service, after which she turned the meeting over to the convenor, Mrs. Sherry Deinstle. Mrs. Charles Bates, Sr., gave a reading and said, in part, that "as the New Year begins we should turn our thoughts to our future aims and to decide what things we consider to be really important."

FINE TRAVELOGUE

The highlight of the evening was a travelogue presented by Mrs. Jack Parrott of her recent trip to Russia, Finland, Norway and Denmark. Mrs. Parrott had accompanied her husband and several other Home Builders and their wives as they inspected building methods and factories in these countries. In each country they were provided with a guide and entertained at several factories so they were able to get a wonderful insight into the techniques used in modern building.

Mrs. Parrott's pictures and interesting commentary gave the assembly a most comprehensive view of Moscow, the Red Square and the Kremlin. She showed the workers' houses as which are rapidly being replaced by high rise apartment buildings. In the other places they visited, building is proceeding at the same astonishing rate.

One picture of much interest, showed Mrs. Wahl Asmussen, her home and children. She was formerly Marion Inglis of Melrose.

Mrs. Clare Wease, on behalf of all present, thanked Mrs. Parrott and presented her with a small gift.

Mrs. Deinstle and her assistant served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

During the business session it was learned that branch dues would be $1, commencing February 1st. Thank-you cards were received from Mrs. J. Sandercock, Mrs. Eva Jones and Mrs. W. Yateman; also a thank-you note from Mr. Vanalstyne for the baskets of fruit he received at Christmas from the Women's Institute. A donation will be made to Harder's school for the purchase of skates, hoes to flood the school skating rink. The next card party will be in charge of Mrs. Don Sandercock and Mrs. F. Sandercock.

Mrs. Cecil Jeffery called upon the district president, Mrs. Gerald Herrington to take over the meeting, who first of all impressed on the members the importance of the Institutes in Canada is Mrs. James Haggerty of Napanee, who was the delegate to the World Food Congress in Washington, D.C.

W. I. PROJECT

Women's Institutes have a project to help the Indians and Eskimos in the Northwest Territories. They are sending assistance to train women in the villages to improve the health and homemaking practices in order to help them to help themselves. The money is to be raised in Canada and used in Canada. An estimated $40,000 will be raised for this three-year project to be completed by the Centennial year of 1967. James Haggerty, FWIC president, and Miss Florence Eadie, this year's field worker, left Toronto at the beginning of September to make a survey of the area to complete plans for future programs.

The importance of the Canadian Centennial was stressed. "This is the birth of a nation's largest anniversary in our time," said Mrs. Herrington. Plans are to be made in connection with the celebration of this important milestone. Mrs. Herrington acquainted members with the fact that the average age of the Fathers of Confederation was 46 and paid tribute upon the history of the Dominion.

Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for her fine talk.

RESOLUTIONS

Mrs. John Reid as convener of resolutions continued with the project and stressed the importance of making a good resolution, which starts at the branch level. She stated, "It is the voice of our people, so can be proud of that voice." Mrs. A. Richardson read a story telling of an alert W. I. member who sent a resolution in 1957 which was put off until 1963 when Brook University at Niagara Falls was born.

Mrs. Reid was in charge of a contest with Mrs. J. Palmer as winner.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank White.

U.C.W. Meeting

MOUNT PLEASANT-RAWDON

RAWDON — On January 8 approximately 20 members of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon United Church Women gathered at the church hall for their regular meeting. Two meetings for 1964 will be held on Wednesday's.

Mrs. Garth Joslin provided piano music for the president, Mrs. Donald Knight; gave an opening in keeping with the New Year and thanked the lunch hostesses, Mrs. Will Jones and Mrs. Stanley Williams. Mrs. Ross Jeffs reported 11 meetings in 1963 with an average attendance of 18. One member, Mrs. Garth Joslin, had a perfect attendance. There are six life members and 34 annual.

Mrs. Will McAdam gave a full financial report. The allocation of $400 has been paid also by the Presbyterial dues which were $2. There was an amount of $45 over the festival fees. The penny bags which amounted to $20, was donated to the M. and M. fund of the church.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell read the correspondence and included letters of thanks and a message re the bus trip to Toronto. Mrs. Robert Hoard and Mrs. Herbert Smith gave their reports of corresponding secretary and supply work.

NEW OFFICERS

The Rev. W. G. Fletcher installed the slate of officers as follows: president — Mrs. Donald Knight; vice-president — Mrs. Harry McAdam; 1st vice-president — Mrs. Burton Wright; secretary — Mrs. Asmussen, her home and children. She was formerly Marion Inglis of Melrose.

Mrs. Clare Wease, on behalf of all present, thanked Mrs. Parrott and presented her with a small gift.

Mrs. Deinstle and her assistant served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

Do you have a talent for making people feel comfortable and at ease when they visit your home? Test yourself:

1. Are there enough uncluttered table surfaces where you may put their plates and glasses?

2. Are surfaces protected in some way, so guests don't have to fret about making smudges or stains?

3. Do you provide enough large ash trays for guest convenience?

4. Are chairs arranged in comfortable groupings for ease of conversation?

5. Are snacks and cocktail foods planned carefully, so guests may help themselves?

6. Do you provide an overnight guest with ample closet and drawer space to take care of his storage needs?

7. Do you avoid following a split-second timetable for entertaining, so everyone has a chance to relax?

8. Do you refrain from fussing over guests once they've met everyone and have been served food and drink?

9. Do you try to replenish and clear away unobtrusively, so guests won't get the impression you're working yourself to a frazzle?

10. Do you maintain your calm even if something happens to put a temporary snaffield plans for entertaining your guests?

AVONDALE HOME AND SCHOOL

"Education is like a great cycle. There is never anything really new in it, but there is a new approach to it. It must repeat itself in each of the time, but it never quite catches up with them," said Col. J. M. Cousins, B.A., B.Ed., M.Ed., Inspector of Public Schools, during an address on "Modern Trends in Education," heard at the January meeting of the Avondale Home and School Association.

Col. Cousins noted there had been a greater change in approach in the last ten years, than in the previous fifty, and suggested that this change had been a result of the space age and its increased requirements.

Educators were now trying to provide the opportunity for each child to do the best he could and so there were many more children in school and also a much wider choice of courses in secondary schools than there had been ten or twenty years ago. Automation had caused the increase in the number of ways of making a living had resulted in a greater need for guidance. This need was being met, at the public school level, by means of programs of guidance in the junior grades, and distributive guidance in the senior grades, Mr. Cousins said.

MANY CHANGES

During the last few years there had been many kinds of change in teacher requirements, in content, and in the equipment used in schools. While in 1930, the hiring of teachers with Second Class certificates had been common, today, in Belleville and many other cities, all teachers were required to have at least a First Class certificate.

Col. Cousins pointed out, with pride, that Belleville had the highest per cent of principals taking post-graduate work of any city in the province. These teachers were no longer content to stress one definite method of doing things but to challenge pupils to think out alternative methods. Audio-visual aids and much of the science equipment used in today's classrooms was expensive, but necessary, noted the speaker. Money was saved by not repeating the error of one room. This "grouping" was practised especially in the senior grades, where subjects were encouraged to specialize.

Senior schools had other important problems, pointed out Col. Cousins, they helped to ease the transition from Public to Secondary School and they enabled pupils to develop the sense of maturity of independence, an attribute which was becoming more essential as leisure time increased.

In conclusion the speaker urged parents to seek the best for their children and to be free to discuss any problems with the teachers.

A brief business meeting preceded Col. Cousin's address. It was decided to present a resolution, asking for the extension of oral French in the school curriculum, to the School Board at its next meeting. The attendance plaque was won by Miss Moorcroft's room.

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I have learned so much, and so many little tips from your column that I do not know how I would ever be able to bake without your help. Some years ago you gave a recipe for Mincemeat, uncooked and not put through a meat chopper. This was an English recipe. It was the nicest mincemeat, but now I have misplaced the recipe. I believe it was back in 1958 or 1956. I would very much appreciate having this again, as the recipe I followed here has no comparison to it . . . Also since we have got this new pre-sifted flour, my light cake do not seem to be the same light and airy ones. In fact I have had more complete failures, and wonder if you can help me out here . . . Irene B.

ANSWER:

The recipe to which you refer I believe was given in November /57 and follows.

Dinner Menus

FRIDAY

Scallops Newburg (see Wednesday); Casserole of Crumbed Tomatoes; Fresh Frozen Green Lima Beans; Hot Tea Biscuits. Baked Spy Apples with Soft Custard; Coffee.

SUNDAY (Guests)

ENGLISH MINCEMEAT (without meat — uncooked):

Mix all ingredients and set away to ripen in a covered jar in a cool place. Yield: Approximately 10 lbs.

Regardless of all admonitions on packages of pre-sifted flour, I always sift flour before measuring. Try sifting your flour before making your cakes and I'm sure they will be light and satisfactory. But write to me again if you are not completely happy with your cakes, and I will send you carefully tested recipes.

LETTER:

I am enclosing a recipe for a delicious and I think unusual pudding.

STEAMED SAGO PUDDING (courtesy Mrs. L.S.):

2 tablespoons sago, soaked in 1 cup milk, overnight, 1 cup dry rolled bread crumbs, ¾ cup raisins, ¾ cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon melted butter, 1 teaspoon soda dissolved in ¼ cup additional milk.

Put into buttered pudding dish and steam 2 hours.

I sometimes add ½ teaspoon of mace and ½ teaspoon nutmeg. Also it could be made more festive with the addition of some cherries . . . Mrs. L. S.

Church Groups

ST. JOSEPH'S C.W.L.

The January C.W.L. meeting was held in the Parish Hall and the president, Mrs. Murphy welcomed everyone.

Mrs. Dumlnie, 1st vice-president, reminded the councillors that all membership fees should be in by February.

Mrs. Labelle reported thank you notes received for Christmas baskets. Mrs. Murphy expressed thanks to all the ladies who assisted with the parish birthday party in making it a huge success.

The ladies are asked to renew their efforts at selling labels for the Golden Book of Charity Project.

There will be a day of recollection Saturday, February 15, at St. Michael's Church to begin at 11.00 a.m. The guest speaker will be Reverend Father Bayly. Lunch will be served in St. Michael's auditorium at 12 noon. The day will end with Mass being served at 4 p.m.

A dinner will be served by the ladies of the St. Joseph's parish at the parish hall, February 19, for 150 men of the different church denominations of the eastern end of the city for "Brotherhood Week." Reverend Father Bader of the Paulist Fathers will be the guest speaker.

The film "Spilling the Beans" by a foods products company will be shown at the February meeting.

The meeting ended with refreshments served by the ladies.

UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

CENTENARY — The regular meeting of the UCW was held January 8th with 20 members present.

"Looking at Life" was read by the new president, Mrs. Albert Christopher. The devotional was in charge of Mrs. Elwin Hart. Mrs. Fred Means also gave a reading. Mrs. Harold Hancock read a chapter from the Study Book, "India." Mrs. Harold Hancock, Mrs. Jim Tomalty, Mrs. Gilly Sills and Mrs. Albert Christopher contributed to the Birthday Box.

Cards of thanks were read from Mrs. W. Calvert, Mrs. F. Ray, Mrs. O. Coles, Mrs. B. Roblin, Dr. and Mrs. Swann, and Mr and Mrs. R. McGrath. Mrs. R. Hart, Mrs. F. Alkens, Mrs. Elwin Hart and Mrs. Bernard May also thanked the ladies for gifts of fruit and flowers. Mrs. Reg Edmondson thanked the ladies on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. F. Christie. It was noted that 22 calls were made. Catering for a wedding in June and other matters of business were discussed.

Lunch was served.

Selling First Painting For Artist Big Thrill

"The greatest thrill there is in life is to sell a young artist's first painting," according to Janos Lukacs, Montreal art dealer. "It makes an artist so happy to know people are willing to pay for his work".

Mr. Lukacs continues, "and then it's the first painting this is especially important."

A travelling art dealer, Mr. Lukacs operates from a home base at his own gallery in Montreal, covering most of Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick with a constantly-changing collection of paintings. In Belleville now, he has 69 paintings for restricted showing in the Prince Edward suite of the Hotel Quinte tonight, and for public showing tomorrow. Oldest of the paintings dates back about 300 years, prices range from $25 for the work of an unknown in Luxembourg, to $7,500 for a Muncaesy. Seven countries are represented in the exhibit. Belleville is represented by one abstract canvas by Phillipa Faulkner.

Born in Hungary, son of a banker and noted art collector, Mr. Lukacs spent a few months in Italy after the war and now has been there to Venezuela. After fifteen years in South America he moved to Montreal two years ago. He came originally to visit his brother living in Montreal, he says, and just didn't go back. He has been down to Venezuela for a visit since then, though.

Travel, and knowledge of the countries he visits, is the passion of Mr. Lukacs' main aims in life outside art. He has travelled-seeking new artists and travelling just for the sake of travelling—in 45 countries so far, throughout North and South America, Europe, the Middle East and Asia. As he travels, he collects knives in each of the countries he visits.

"The knife is the basic tool of mankind," he says, "and the traditional knife of any culture usually reflects in its design, the whole of the culture." In some of the countries he has visited Mr. Lukacs has had no settle for letter openers made in the style of the traditional knives, he still considers the knives the best souvenirs possible of a country. They're cheap, he says, easy to pack and no trouble at border crossings.

With all his interest in and knowledge of art, Mr. Lukacs is not satisfied with his own ability as an artist. He carries a camera, instead of brush and canvas, with which to record his impressions of the countries and cities he visits. On most of his trips through Canada, though he is not likely to be mistaken for a photographer on the prowl. From fifty to one hundred paintings, stacked in the trunk and back seat of his car, make sure of that.

Parish Guild Officers Are Installed

The annual meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held on Tuesday afternoon with a splendid attendance and a number of visitors. Reports from the secretary, treasurer and convenors showed that the Guild had completed a most successful year.

Rev. R. G. Fleming installed the executive officers for 1964 in an appropriate ceremony. They are as follows: honorary president, Mrs. R. G. Fleming; past-president, Mrs. I. R. Glavin; president, Mrs. A. Jordan; vice-president, Mrs. W. J. Hinchey; secretary, Mrs. J. Cousins and treasurer, Mrs. Fred Lazier. The president introduced the various convenors as follows: vestry council representative, Mrs. J. Adams; rectory committee, Mrs. Charles Bishop and Mrs. J. R. Dawson; kitchen, Mrs. H. A. Thompson; cent-a-meal, Mrs. M. Boyd; social, Mrs. I. R. Vesterfelt and bulletin and press, Mrs. F. A. Beeby.

Members were reminded by the rector of the recepton to be held in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Everett Smith on Sunday evening and also of the annual vestry conregational meeting.

A rummage sale is planned for Saturday 21st and the date for the annual Blossom Tea was set for May 27th. It was also suggested that a bridge and euchre will be held early in the fall.

A number of ladies took articles of sewing home to be completed for the Blossom Tea. Tea hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. I. R. Vesterfelt and Mrs. M. Wallbridge.

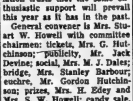
BAYVIEW HARRY J. CLARKE



An executive meeting of Bayview - Harry J. Clarke Home and School Association was held on Monday, January 13th, 1964 with Mrs. A. Jourard in the chair.

A regular meeting was planned for January 21st with the program in centre around showing a film on "Who Will Teach Your Child?" The film is highly recommended and should be most interesting.

Plans for the annual Valentine card party to be held on Saturday, February 15th, 1964 at Harry J. Clarke School were discussed. At this time the association endeavors to raise money to pay for encyclopaedias for Bayview School and student aid for Harry J. Clarke School. This is an important event and the association trusts that the same enthusiastic support will prevail this year as it has in the past. General convenor is Mrs. Stuart W. Howell with committee chairmen: tickets, Mrs. G. Hutchinson; publicity, Mr. Jack Devine; social, Mrs. M. J. Daley; bridge, Mrs. Stanley Barbour; euchre, Mr. Gordon Hutchison; prizes, Mrs. R. Edey and Mrs. W. Howell; candy table, Mrs. L. Jourard and Mrs. M. Stier; transportation; Mr. K. Horne.

The meeting adjourned and lunch was served.

You can season rolls sautéing or poaching them in a flat pan and serving the pan on top of one in which vegetables are cooking.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The Women of the Moose held their first meeting of the new year on Thursday night, Sr. Regent Gladys Rich presiding. Minutes were read and approved. Roll call of officers was taken.

Members extend deepest sympathy to the family of Ruby Morris who passed away on Monday the 13th. She was one of the co-workers and will be greatly missed.

A euchre is to be held in Moose Hall on January 29 and all co-workers and friends are invited.

Refreshments were served by Daisy Johnson and her committee.

Penny bingo was enjoyed.

Phony Marriage Counselor Puts End to Racky Marriage

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Have you ever wondered how your advice turned out? Well, here's one reader who wants you to know I followed one of your suggestions and now I have more trouble than I had before I wrote to you.

Last July my wife told me she wanted a divorce. I was shocked. I thought we were getting along all right. When I asked her what she was unhappy about she said I was too wrapped up in the business that I didn't pay attention to the kids, that I wasn't romantic anymore and finally, that I hadn't even noticed she had dyed her hair blonde.

ANN LANDERS

I wrote to you about this on August 10. You advised me to go with her to a marriage counsellor and talk out our differences. We had our joint interview on August 16th. The marriage counsellor then said he wanted to see my wife alone.

Well, he's been seeing her alone all right — for the past five months. It seems the marriage counsellor hadn't been getting along too well with his own wife so they consoled each other but good. Now my wife wants a divorce for sure — so she can marry the marriage counsellor. Thanks a lot. — MISERY IN MINNEAPOLIS.

• • •

DEAR MINNEAPOLIS — I'm sorry things turned out so badly for you. Unfortunately they are phonies in every field and I'm terribly sorry you had to run into one.

• • •

DEAR ANN — I'm planning to be married to a fine girl in February. It will be a rather fancy church wedding and my fiancee is paying for most of it herself because her parents aren't very well off. She says my father will have to wear a Tuxedo because all the other men in the wedding party will be wearing Tuxedos.

My father doesn't want to get so spiffed up. He earns only a modest salary. Dad says he has been to many weddings in his lifetime and seen very few Tuxedos.

He is really a swell father, Ann, and he'll do as you say but he's hoping you'll say he can skip the Tuxedo and wear his good suit. Please give us your advice. — MELROSE PARK.

• • •

DEAR MEL — It's true that many a groom has been married in his good suit, and the rest of the males in the wedding party wore their good suits, as well. But if your father were the only one wearing his good suit, and all the other men in the wedding party wore Tuxedos he would feel uncomfortable and out of place.

Tell Pop the cost of renting a Tuxedo for the evening will be worth the small investment.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I know you are against going steady but what can a girl in my spot do?

I'm 16, not beautiful and I've never had much confidence where boys are concerned. Fritz is 17, bull-headed and has dated me for about two years. I've gone with other fellows but Fritz has dated me much oftener than anyone else.

Last night after Fritz heard I had gone to a movie with Leo he told me either he and I go steady or he wouldn't take me out at all. I'm afraid if I lose Fritz I'll really get the middle-age spread from sitting home, so it looks like I have to accept his terms. What do you see why some girls have no choice? — AFRAID TO GAMBLE.

• • •

DEAR AFRAID — Applesauce! If you let Fritz bully you, you're sunk. Tell him "No dice" and I'll bet he'll date you on your terms. Furthermore, he'll put a higher value on those dates when he knows others are dating you, too.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

I have stumbled across a fascinating account of fashion and its flights of fancy, which I would love to quote verbatim were there the space to do so. This gem is contained in the Portable Medieval Reader assembled by James Bruce Ross and Mary Martin McLaughlin. It is taken, in turn, from the tales of Sacchetti translated by M. G. Steegman and published in London: Dent, 1908. It thoroughly lambasts fashions in Italy during the fourteenth century.

The writer complains that women used to wear the necklines of their gowns cut to below their armpits, then suddenly their collars were raised to their ears. Young maidens, who used to dress so modestly, go about "like common women" with their hoods twisted up like caps and strings around their necks with divers beads hung upon their breasts.

He thoroughly dislikes what we still call bishop's sleeves, recalling them "great sacks." He claims that women cannot "raise a glass or take a mouthful of food without soiling both their sleeves and the tablecloth by sucking one corner of the table." He may have a point there. Have you ever tried to do sure beauty salons? your dishes, wearing full, long sleeves?

SHOE SITUATION

I find I have a great deal in common with him when he berates the shoe situation. He says that the Lord meant our feet to be free, but that many fourteenth century Italians could hardly walk because of the long points on their shoes. Does that sound familiar?

He also scolds the women of his time for the many hours they spent bleaching, smoothing or curling their hair. Apparently, this hairdressing took place on the roofs of their homes and he records that many women died from the colds they caught in the process.

Fashions during this period must have been thoroughly uncomfortable as many women could hardly sit down because their bodies were so constricted by bindings and lacings. Their necks were squeezed into hoods and their heads bound by tight caps.

I wonder if this observant gentleman from the past would find any improvement in our twentieth century fashions? Undoubtedly, he would be impressed by our modern synthetic fabrics, and in no case, did comfort of some of our styles would please him. What would he think of our fur coats and our boots? Wouldn't it be fun to watch his reaction to our modern-day fashions?

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Peoples of Different Race, Religion Fail to Unite

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

These days, it seems, the sun never sets on troubled ex-members of the British Empire.

Kipling would be appalled.

In India and Pakistan, scores have died in riots that grew out of the theft of a sacred relic.

Across the Indian Ocean, the police force of Zanzibar is wracked by revolution a mere month after the Union Jack was lowered.

Elsewhere in Africa, Ghana and Uganda direct their steps toward one - party socialism. Kenya marks independence with clashes on the Somalia border and the murder of the remaining white population. South Africa descends into isolation, surrounded by almost universal censure for her race policies.

COMMON THEME

There is a common theme runs through many of these troubles: The failure of peoples of differing race or religion to unite in one state.

Moslem fights Hindu in India and Pakistan. Arab quarrels with Negro in Zanzibar, Turk clashes with Greek on Cyprus, Negro vs. white in Kenya and South Africa.

From the point of view of the newly independent, the blame for all this lies in the evil colonialist system itself.

The colonialists, they say, disrupted a normal development, herded differing groups inside an arbitrary boundary, taught them a system of racial and taught snobbism.

The British say in reply that they have created civilization out of barbarity, and add that their work has been upset by those who insisted on freedom before the colonies were fully prepared.

History's final judgment on the empire is not yet in, but the problem of "one world" poses more immediate questions about the future development of the Commonwealth.

How will Canada, for example, do business with an increasingly interventionist regime in Ghana?

Will there be repeat performances of the 1961 prime ministers' conference in which South Africa's decision to withdraw from the Commonwealth?

Already there has been a visible deterioration in Canada-Australia talks at the United Nations, where much of the weekto-week liaison on policy has taken place.

And there are reports that few members are anxious for an early prime ministers' conference.

Sees Europe And America Equal Partners

PARIS (Reuters) — Canadian Prime Minister Pearson said today Europe and North America should move ahead together in partnership.

The West should also maintain close contact with Soviet bloc leaders to seek and exploit openings for negotiations on major East - West issues, he said.

Pearson, who had talks with President de Gaulle during a three-day official visit ending today, was addressing a diplomatic press luncheon attended by Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

Pearson said Canada was convinced Europe and North America should move ahead together in partnership with neither side subordinate in any way to the other.

"We believe that the peace and security of the world are best served by frank recognition of the requirements of increasing interdependence," he said.

"We fear that continental isolation on one side of the Atlantic will breed continental isolation on the other.

"If this ever came to pass, the implications could be not only mutually disadvantageous, but could be mutually dangerous —for both sides of the Atlantic."

Nationalism and interdependence can and must be reconciled, he said. "France will never be submerged in Europe. It is and I hope will remain a leader of a new and emerging Europe.

"Europe will not be subordinate to North America. It can be an equal partner with that continent in the developing Atlantic community.

He said "the Atlantic community will next dominate the Western world." It could and should lead the way to co-operation and security with all."

CANADA IS AWARE

Canada, both a "North American and Europe" country, was ever conscious of the role she could play in an increasingly interdependent world."

Pearson said the West should maintain "as close contact as possible" with Soviet-bloc leaders with a view to seeking and exploiting openings for negotiations on major East-West issues.

Prospects for early agreement on these were certainly not bright, he said.

"But while keeping our defensive strength at a level which will discourage adventurism, we should be alert to signs of flexibility on the Soviet side and be ready to seize any opportunities that exist."

Pearson said the monolithic unity of the Communist world was giving way to new and more complex relationships based less on dictation, more on negotiation and accommodation.

This evolution of Soviet thinking, "which we may be able to assist," gave some hope for improving the chances of peace and of a Europe stretching, in the symbolic words of President de Gaulle, "from the Atlantic to the Urals," he added.

Campbell Tacks Extra $100 Fine On Reg. Fleming

MONTREAL (CP) — Forward Reg Fleming of Chicago Black Hawks has been fined an additional $100 for his conduct towards referee Vern Buffey in a game Jan. 4, president Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League announced today.

Fleming's fines for the incident now total $175. During the game, at Toronto, Buffey assessed Fleming misconduct and match misconduct penalties. The former carries an automatic $25 fine, the latter $50.

The incident, near the end of the second period, occurred when Fleming was denigrated by Chicago coach Billy Reay to serve a minor hockey penalty against the Hawks for delaying the game.

Campbell said in a statement announcing the additional fine:

"Instead of proceeding to the penalty bench, Fleming charged at referee Vern Buffey, berating him for his decision. The facts of the incident were not in dispute and were shown clearly on the film of the game."

Toronto Wire And Cable to Launch Appeal

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP)—Two giants of the business world—the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and its manufacturing subsidiary, Northern Electric Company — were held together Thursday by two pieces of wire.

Because of the wire, the Board of Transport Commissioners refused to rule that Bell Telephone's ownership of Northern Electric is illegal.

He said Bell and Northern will continue to combine their research, manufacturing and services skills, "providing an example of what Canadians can accomplish through the private ownership of their own enterprises."

Industrial Wire and Cable Company of Toronto took the case to the federal board last year, arguing that Bell could legally acquire shares only in other telephone companies.

The allegation was based on a clause in the 1880 act of parliament under which Bell was incorporated. Under this act, Bell is empowered to purchase shares in "companies possessing, as proprietor, any line of telegraphic or telephonic communication."

OWNS LINE

Bell said that Northern Electric possesses a line of telephonic communication in Montreal—two wires stretching 10,000 feet between the offices of the two companies.

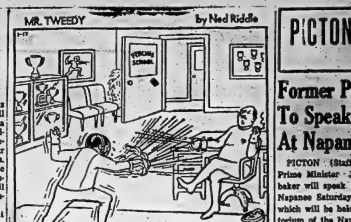
Because of this, argued Bell, the 1914 deal whereby Bell acquired controlling interest in Northern Electric was valid and legal.

The Board of Transport Commissioners, in a judgment made public Thursday, agreed with Bell.

It said the wire had to be considered in terms of the time when Bell was incorporated by Parliament. In those infant days of the telephone, most of Bell's customers owned their own wire and leased the instruments at both ends.

In the same way now, Northern Electric owned the wire — even though it was part of a Bell cable containing many other wires. Because the wires were hooked to telephones and use for messages, they were a line of telephonic communication.

So, said the board, the ownership of Northern Electric by Bell is legal under the law.



ASKED RULING

Industrial Wire, a fledgling rival of Northern Electric in the wire and cable business, a highly competitive industry, wanted the board to rule the deal illegal and to order Northern Electric wound up and sold to a division of Bell.

Because of the allegations tipping $275,000,000 last year—and its relationship with Bell, Northern Electric is in effect also an unfair competitor by industrial wire.

In Toronto, G. D. Zimmerman, president of Industrial Wire, said "we are surprised and naturally disappointed at the decision by the board."

"We disagree with the decision, and since this is a highly important and fundamental issue we certainly intend to launch an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada immediately," he said.

Premier Says Quebec Not Satisfied With Tax Received

By JOHN YORSTON

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Lesage and Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson discussed the November federal - provincial fiscal conference Thursday and agreed on one thing—Quebec didn't get enough money out of it.

But there they parted ways as they spoke during the throne speech debate.

Mr. Johnson charged that "co - operative federalism"—endorsed at the fiscal conference—would replace the Canadian constitution, which holds "a few guarantees" for French-Canadians.

"A shifting regime resulting from agreements made from day to day between the government's of the country" would develop to replace the constitution.

Mr. Lesage said the days of unilateral decisions by Ottawa affecting the provinces is gone. However, he added a note of caution.

"Until now, it is only the principle of consultation that has been recognized. We will have to see how it will apply in practice."

EXPLAINS ATTITUDE

The premier said his government's attitude on federalism is realistic because it accepts the situation and attempts to draw the best it can. It is positive" because we are not acting against anyone, but for Quebec, not by turning within ourselves but by affirming ourselves."

Mr. Lesage said, however, Quebec is not satisfied with the $43,000,000 it got at the conference. It would continue to seek more at the next conference in Quebec City in March.

Mr. Johnson said Quebec should have demanded all personal and corporation taxes from Ottawa, not just one-quarter, and all succession duties.

Mr. Lesage replied that the fact Quebec's share of succession duties had been increased to 75 percent from 50 during the conference, is equal to the concrete recognition, and not only verbal, by the federal government of a fundamental right of the provinces."

The Union Nationale leader repeated his call for a new Canadian constitution that would be the keystone to a truly bi-national Canada." The only alternative is separation of Quebec, sooner or later."

Former P. M. To Speak At Napanee

PICTON (Staff) — Former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker will speak at a rally in Napanee Saturday, January 25, which will be held in the auditorium of the Napanee District Secondary School.

The occasion is the annual meeting of the Prince Edward-Lennox Progressive Conservative Association and was originally scheduled for the County Memorial Building. However, news that the Leader of the Opposition would be there, led officials to seek a larger auditorium to accommodate the crowd expected to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Diefenbaker will be accompanied by Ian Campbell, Ontario organizer for the National P.C. Association and Mrs. Campbell.

Guards Want More Snow For Training

PICTON (Staff) — Believe it or not, there are some people in Picton that actually want snow—lots of it.

The First Battalion Canadian Guards, stationed at Camp Picton are starting into their winter warfare training course, and in order to do this part of their training properly, they need snow.

Of course it can be done without snow, but when you figure that they have to learn how to survive in the open, with only a tent to sleep in, and must cook their meals outdoors it makes it more realistic if there is lots of snow.

The first week, they don't need snow, as they will be taking classroom work. The last week of the course will be held at Camp Petrie, and a colder spot in the county would be hard to find. The wind whipping in off Lake Ontario often brings with it some devastating cold weather, and snow.

If we are favored with a good deal of snow, things should be quite interesting around Camp Petrie when the last week of the course rolls around. Your reporter will be on hand, camera in hand, to record some of the events for The Ontario Intelligencer readers.

Women Well Trained in First Aid

PICTON (Staff) — Unsung heroes — we hear a lot about them — but some that we don't hear about are the local arena every time there is a hockey game.

We refer to the women of the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Every night there is a hockey game, at least two, usually three of these women are in attendance and be it a hockey player who is hurt, or a spectator that takes a flying puck or a stick in the head, they quickly and efficiently go about the work they are so carefully trained to do.

They are not doctors in any sense of the word. They are well trained in first aid, and often render valuable assistance while the doctor is getting to the rink, or help in getting the injured person to the adjacent hospital.

Three Cases On Docket

PICTON (Staff) — There will only be three cases on the docket when the Supreme Court sittings begin next Monday at the county courthouse, with Mr. Justice K. G. Moorhouse, presiding.

Two divorce cases and a damage suit arising out of a motor vehicle accident will be heard.

Jesse Ivan Mason of Picton, and Marie Knuth of Napanee are the plaintiffs, represented by R. E. Nourse of Picton. The defendant in the action is the H. J. Heinz Company of Canada who will be represented by the Kingston law firm of Gibson, Sands and Flanigan.

NEW SENATOR IS HUMORIST — Azellus Denis, 56, who takes a seat in the Canadian Senate for the first time this month, has gained a reputation as a humorist in House of Commons debate as a member since 1935. As Liberal postmaster-general, and earlier as opposition critic on postal matters, his humorous remarks were aimed at such as stamp designs, burglaries of rural post offices and motor scooters used in mail delivery. Azellus Denis Will Bring Keen Sense of Humor to Senate on Taking Seat

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP)—When Azellus Denis takes his seat in the Senate for the first time at the next session he will find he has four peers there in length of service to Canada's Parliament.

In the 102-seat Senate there are only two Senators Ralph Turner and Walter Aseltine, both Saskatchewan men appointed in 1933—with more time on Parliament Hill.

But it won't be only parliamentary experience, dating back to 1935 when he was first elected to the Commons, that Mr. Denis will bring to the upper house. There will also be his keen sense of humor.

In fact, it was for his wit that he was best known—and liked—during his Commons days. It bubbled to prominence when he was the Liberal opposition's post office critic during the Diefenbaker administration.

And during his nine months as the first postmaster-general of the Pearson government he often showed he hadn't lost the knack of reducing the chamber to laughter, even when he was under heavy fire on charges of patronage.

Some of the brightest pages of Hansard, the official record of parliamentary debate, he has taken up with the repartee between Mr. Denis and the then postmaster - general, William Hamilton, between 1957 and 1962.

CRITICIZED STAMPS

The 56-year-old Mr. Denis aimed most of his humorous barbs at stamp designs, breakins at rural post offices and at the scooters introduced by the department to speed mail delivery.

Mr. Hamilton brought up the breaks-ins when he was in opposition and I was giving him a taste of his own medicine," Mr. Denis says.

At the end of the last session he was asked why there had been no confidence since he took over as postmaster - general. With his usual humor he replied:

"There have been some robberies since we took over, unfortunately. We have not had enough time to convince the thieves our robbers that they should change the bad habits they had formed under the pre- "vas administration."

Becoming serious for a moment, he confided to a reporter that "while the critic's job is to make things hot for the minister, in office he finds that problems are not so easily solved."

During his time as minister, changes in the department embodied the introduction of more and more interesting stamps as the department produces three- and perhaps four-colored issues.

BOWLING CHAMP

At five-foot-two, Mr. Denis was one of the smallest members of the Commons but also one of the most energetic. He served as president of the House of Commons Bowling League and when he became a cabinet minister was undisputed champion with an average close to 200 in five pins.

His love of bowling prompted him to make a plea for alleys to be installed during reconstruction of the West Block on Parliament Hill—he got a no.

In the 1963 debate on works department spending estimates, he recommended bowling in lieu MPs as "sound and healthful without being too much of a strain for people of our ages."

"One has only to look around to see the big bellies which are caused by lack of exercise," he said.

Mr. Denis was only a few years out of law school and on the lookout for more clients when he was persuaded to try for the Liberal nomination in the Montreal riding of St. Denis in the 1935 federal election.

SUCCEEDED BROTHER

"My family and friends said I had no chance to get the nomination but that was the question I would make could help me to become better known."

The constituency had been represented in the Commons by his brother, Arthur, from 1921 until his death in 1934. Mr. Denis, a native of St. Norbert, Que., moved into the riding shortly after his graduation from the University of Montreal.

The nomination meeting turned out to be a stormy one. After almost nine hours, the delegates chose Mr. Denis over seven other candidates.

"I was surprised because I was only trying to make some new friends and had confined my campaign to saying only nice things about the other men," he recalls modestly.

He won the 1935 election handily and was re-elected in the next eight general elections to share with External Affairs Minister Martin the honor of having the longest consecutive service among members of the present Commons.

Pearson

Pearson implied that de Gaulle would be happy to have Canada take a mediating position between Paris and Washington on certain issues. Pearson said he intended to report to President Lyndon B. Johnson on his Paris talks when he visits Washington next week. Pearson then added, without elaboration:

"And he were encouraged to do so."

Pearson, who was seconded in the press conference by Martin, made these other points:

FRANCE LOOKS TO CANADA

France is interested in making investments in Canada, and Ottawa warmly welcomes such a development with the hope that French interests would place funds throughout Canada, and not just in Quebec.

Canada is interested in selling uranium to France. In this connection Pearson said he saw no inconsistency between sales of uranium to France and Canada's policy of opposing the proliferation of nuclear armaments and the establishment of the French nuclear force.

(The New York Times reported on Jan. 11 that Pearson took the position that when and if nuclear disarmament, which Canada supports, is achieved, then all nations will have to accept economic setbacks.

(Pearson and his delegation hope that Eurotom, the organization representing six members of the Common Economic community, will purchase Canadian uranium ore, The Times said).

CANADIANS IMPRESSED

Pearson and other Canadian officials were simply impressed by the warmth and hospitality they met with in Paris.

"We were made to feel very, very welcome" Pearson commented. Pearson said the meeting in de Gaulle's office was as relaxed as a Canadian cabinet discussion. With a smile, Pearson continued:

"The talk was a little bit more in French than at most cabinet meetings."

The Canadian-French sessions were a complete demonstration of "bilingualism as it should be, and that is, you speak your own language and I speak mine and the other understands it." Pearson said he and General de Gaulle spoke English, while de Gaulle and the French side spoke French. Interpreters were required only a few times.

The prime minister also expressed hope that de Gaulle would soon pay Canada a second visit as French head of state and he promised de Gaulle a warm welcome.

During de Gaulle visit in Mexico in March, Pearson said:

France Plans To Recognize Red China

PARIS (Reuters) — France has informed the United States government of her intention to recognize Communist China, informed diplomatic sources here today.

The sources gave no details, but it was understood diplomatic recognition would not be announced immediately.

It would be preceded by moves toward "normalizing" Franco-Chinese relations on the cultural, technical and commercial level and by sending an official French "representative" to Peking before diplomatic relations are established.

Earlier speculation had been that full diplomatic recognition of Peking was not being contemplated by President de Gaulle at this stage, partly because no might embarrass President Johnson in the American election campaign later this year.

Sunday School Lesson

Paid a Strange Visit

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

"Well-known Senator pays night visit to Jesus." So the headlines might have read when Nicodemus visited Jesus if there had been a newspaper in those days. Why Nicodemus went to see Jesus, and by night, we do not know. He may have waited till dark after the business and heat of day were over. Perhaps he may have wanted to avoid unfavorable publicity, for he was a prominent leader, and a member of his senatorial colleagues, as Jesus was a controversial figure.

Nicodemus was an important person. He was a Pharisee, which practically meant he had a seminary degree in religion, and he was a member of the highest ruling body in the land which in our terms would make him a senator. Since there was no separation of church and state in Judea, we could call him a house of bishops, and as the Jewish supreme court. So Nicodemus was a college man, a senator, a bishop and a supreme court judge all rolled into one. Moreover, he was a wealthy wealthy since he could afford to supply a hundred pounds of myrrh and aloes with which to anoint the body of Jesus after His crucifixion.

WHY SO RICH

Nicodemus had every reason to be proud of his birth since he had been born into a great national and religious heritage. Jesus' first words to Nicodemus must have taken his breath away. In greeting Jesus, Nicodemus mentioned God (John 3: 2), and Jesus responded by saying, "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 19, "Nicodemus, Cautious Inquirer," John 3:1-21; 7:40-52; 19:38-42.

Born again when one is already alive and proud of his birth! What did Jesus mean? Nicodemus expressed his bewilderment by asking, "How can a man be born when he is old?" Jesus made it very clear He was speaking about spiritual birth, not physical.

We tend to judge a person by his first birth, that is, by the family, the class, the nation, or the race into which he happens to be born. Let a person be born into a different race, and how ever fine his character may be, some people have difficulty accepting him as a person deserving equal rights and opportunities as their own.

NOT WHO, BUT WHAT

But God judges a person on the basis of what he is, not who he is. Samuel's selection of a king shows this. Samuel chose Saul because he looked like a king, for he was tall and handsome (I Sam. 9:2). But Saul didn't make a good king, so Samuel looked further. He almost made the same mistake twice, for he nearly chose Eliab because he, too, was impressive looking. But God warned him, "Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature," for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart (I Sam 16:7).

Faith is not a matter of where we were born, but what has been born in us. We cannot inherit personal faith, any more than we can inherit character. We can be born in America, but faith must be born in us if it is to be real. To put it another way, we must be born into God's kingdom if we are to experience genuine faith.

Thomas Fuller illustrated this many years ago. Putting to "four remarkable changes in four immediate generations" in Jesus' ministry, he pointed out that Roboam, a father, was father to Abia, a bad son. But Abia was father to Asa, a man and a good son. Asa in turn, was the father of Josaphat, a good son, but Josaphat was father to Joram, who turned out to be a bad son. With wry humor Fuller wrote, "It is from hence that my father's piety cannot be entailed; that it hath never for me. But I see also that actual impiety is not always hereditary. that is good news for my son."

What we cannot inherit, we can accept. We cannot inherit God's love, but by faith we can accept it, and try to live by it, so that we become a new person in the process. It is like being born again. The natural we are born of the flesh; the second time, we are born of the Spirit.

CAUTION VERSUS COURAGE

Though he may have been cautious at first, the day came when Nicodemus was willing to show his colors. He risked criticism of his colleagues by speaking in defense of Jesus (John 7: 49-52). At Jesus' death, instead of running for the cover of night he openly took his stand with Joseph of Arimathea by supplying ointment with which to anoint Jesus' body (John 19:38-40) He showed that his heart was full of a faith that gave him courage to stand for what he believed to be right. America and the church could use more such persons today.

Ookpik

was learned that a sealskin boom had sent prices skyrocketing and the skins had vanished, too.

"We enlisted the Mounties, the RCAF, anybody who could find us a sealskin," says Hamilton.

Finally someone found a large seal pelt in Ottawa and an Eskimo woman, who happened to be in town, was enlisted to do the tanning needlework. But she gave Ookpik a duck's webbed feet and all the posters showed him with cute little black feet.

The day before the show opened Nov. 11, Ookpik arrived by plane at Philadelphia and was immediately turned over to the Royal Canadian Navy. Aboard a frigate, in port on a courtesy visit, an emergency operation was performed as a seaman made some correct black feet and sealher — said to be the surgeon—sewed them on.

HE HAS THEM

The next day the show opened and Ookpik was there, all six inches of him.

Immediately he was mobbed by admiring U.S. buyers. Could they purchase him, they asked.

Because of his popularity, the Canadian Eskimo Development relaxed one of its cardinal rules and permitted individuals, not just firms, to place orders. An official said the orders ran into "the high hundreds," but because of the sealskin shortage there would be delays in filling them.

Meanwhile, the trade department is so pleased with Ookpik that from now on they plan to display him at every international trade show in which Canada is represented.

WILL STAND TRIAL

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)—Karoli Marai, 32, was committed for trial Thursday on a charge of murdering a French student who disappeared in the summer of 1962 while tracing the footsteps of a grandfather who had taken part in the Klondike gold rush of 1898. Marai is charged with capital murder of Henri Mercinet, 20, a university student from Annecy, France, last seen alive in August, 1962.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"
By BERNARD C. MELTZER

People often lose sight of the fact that a primary responsibility of mortgage lending institutions is to safeguard the money of their investors and-or depositors. In carrying out this objective their motives are often mistaken for miserliness or unprogressive attitudes.

Some people think that the mortgage lender should be primarily concerned with serving the borrower; some think the objective should be to maintain high employment in the construction industry; some even think they should use their money to sponsor art and avaunt garde ideas — at least E. V. G. thinks so. . .

Dear Mr. Meltzer: This is a letter of protest and a cry of alarm. My wife and I are artists and have designed a beautiful, imaginative house, ideally suited to the landscape (in harmony with Nature); and some rooms with skylights (for the painter's northern light) instead of windows — but this is what we want!

The best offer we got was for a $25,000 mortgage, and as they would go to 80 percent if we made a few concessions in the design! All they want is to change our house into a cracker box with windows like every other house in every suburban development.

If there is no chance for individual preference in the real estate there is no hope for man. The kind of drab sameness inflicted on by banks will stifle the human soul. — E. V. G.

Answer: You seem to be experiencing a frustration in the division of social responsibility. It is the responsibility of art patrons to encourage the artist's age and sponsor the artist. It is the equally solemn responsibility of financial institutions to protect their investors by investing money at as low a risk as possible.

The house you have designed, however admirably suited to your personal needs, may not be marketable should you be forced out your mortgage, and the lending institution might not be able to recover its investment. Imagine the repercussions if banks were unable to meet their obligation to depositors because the officers and directors investedin the wrong school of art.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am very upset because the contractor I might lose a summer cottage that cost over $4,000 to build. He missed the deadline for releasing land on a small lake. The property recently changed hands and the new owners not only won't renew the lease, but they won't permit me to remove my house.

Their attorney explained to me that under the terms of the lease I must remove the property within 30 days and cannot remove my cottage from the land. This seems fantastic.

I built the house with my own money and it is my property. Would you explain how they can take my house this way? — Mrs. L. V. M.

Answer: The typical lease provides that all improvements made to the real estate become the property of the owner upon expiration of the lease.

If it had been your intention to remove the cottage, you should have specifically provided for this right in the lease.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: As a fellow real estate man I need your help. I sell real estate and my brother sells automobiles. The other night we got into a friendly argument as to which of us worked in the biggest industry. We bet a hat.

My brother claims he wins because he can prove that more people own cars than own real estate. I need an answer to top this. Can you give me one? — P. M. E.

Answer: There are many instances of bigness of proportions, but if measured in terms of wealth, real estate wins hands down.

In 1958 (the most recent year for which statistics are available), the total value of real estate in the United States was more than one trillion dollars— $1,134,900,000 or 86.8 percent of all the nation's wealth. For your further edification, three acres of all land was roughly 291 billion dollars, and the structures and improvements on land roughly 634 billion dollars.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have been living in our new house for three years and we find that this time we have been getting hairline cracks in the plaster. Is it very unusual? I am not eager to have my husband refinish it. He says it takes time for a new house to settle and that we should wait until it is completely settled before making the repairs.

This is getting on my nerves. How long does it take a new house to finish settling? Mrs. E. P. F.

Answer: A constantly recurring title in "Free Talks" in construction is that new houses must settle. This is not true. Houses are designed and constructed house does not settle.

From your description, I suspect that your house is not settling. The hairline plaster cracks are probably the result of the heating caused by the drying out of the structural lumber.

After you have gone through the drying season, the drying process should be complete to a point where the hairline cracks should no longer occur.

Since you are now in your second heating season, I recommend that you wait until the spring and I am sure that these hairline cracks will no longer be a problem.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

International tournament experience spoke with a loud and compelling voice in the shadow of the Kremlin Wednesday night.

A perfectly-conditioned well-coached Russian national hockey club defeated our Olympics 8- 1 in decisive fashion while 14,000 puck-mad tovariches stamped their approval.

FATHER BAUER

The defeat was no disgrace to Father David Bauer's "Whiz Kids" as a German journalist dubbed them. In fact they gained what they lack most, experience in world tournament hockey jousting.

And a twenty-one gun salute is due to Father Bauer for his reaction to the defeat. The quiet-spoken priest does not possess the shrillness of an Imlach. He is no alibi-seeking coach.

Despite the fact his young charges deplaned from a long flight, he did not, as some former international team coaches have done, place blame of defeat on weariness caused by air travel. Even if the squad did show effects.

His comment? "When you are beaten 8-1 there's nothing much you can say. The Russians were better. We were weak in all departments except goal."

"I'm not going to make any excuses for the setback," Father Bauer went on, "and I'm not going to say anything to take any of the glory off the Soviet win. Our men are young men and this is good experience for Innsbruck."

It might and probably will be a losing cause but any red-blooded Canadian, or pink or blue for that matter, who doesn't get behind a man and a club like this should be deported to Upper Slobbovia.

At the same time we should not be too disappointed if the genial Father's pink-cheeked pachists do not come home with the Olympics gold medal.

As a matter of fact it is expecting too much for the new venture in Canadian international hockey. In fact no hockey expert this side of the pond has come out flatfooted with a victory statement. To the contrary while they have expressed "confidence," they expect the Canadians to finish perhaps in the place or show spot.

While the White Kids will pick up valuable experience in the pre-tournament ice-game exhibition schedule, it will scarcely be sufficient, under the circumstances which will exist at Innsbruck to turn back the powerful Russians, Sweden and Czechs. Or will it?

If our side finishes third I would say they will have acquitted themselves well. One thing is sure, they will give all they have for their coach and their country.

While Father Bauer's system has met with general approval nation-wise, it has its critics. Two of these are Bobby Kromm and Ike Hildebrand, both of whom piloted Canadian teams to world titles. Both claim the team must add several senior players as the juniors won't stand up under pressure.

Nor does Red Berenson, Bobby Rousseau and Connie Broden, all of whom played on Canada's international squads, think the Bauer "Kids" can bring home the Olympics bacon. But all agree that Canada is on the right track by combining education with hockey via univgrsity teams.

"Father Bauer has disciplined this team very well," says Red. "I don't think they'll win but they'll give us good representation. It's a sound idea that could materialize into the real answer if we can create a strong university league."

"Another factor this year," comments Broden. "This is a team of gentlemen. The other countries will remember personalities and we can leave a better impression than in some past instances.

Rousseau feels the team should have faced stronger competition before heading overseas.

"They have shown they can beat the best amateur teams in Canada," he says, "but they should have played against National or American League teams. That would be great experience—the pressure would really be on them."

More power to Bauer. As one writer puts it, "if they can upset the apple cart the Olympics team could leave several red faces across the country. In the past the teams have frequently returned with red faces."

ROYAL WILL STAY

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Darrell Royal, college football's Coach of the Year, said Thursday he is happy at the University of Texas and definitely will remain here. His volunteered comment removed him from considered as a replacement for Bud Wilkinson at the University of Oklahoma.

GOES TO STUD

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Fourteen-year-old Twenty, who never quite lived up to his early promise but still earned $447,580, is being retired from racing. His owners, Alberto Ranches and Desi Arnaz, announced Thursday that the six-year old horse will stand in stud at Arnaz' breeding farm in Corona, Calif.

Habs Give Hawks 'Push Over' Signal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bernie Geoffrion is singing in the locker room again now, and the Canadiens are jostling Chicago Black Hawks for the No. 1 spot in the National Hockey League standings.

Geoffrion's first-period goal stood up for a 1-0 win over the Hawks Thursday night before 15,369 fans, the largest crowd of the season in Montreal.

In the league's other game, 20 - year - old Gary Dornhoefer scored his first two NHL goals on lip-ins and the enlgnatic Bruins upended Detroit Red Wings 3-1 before a small crowd of 7,273 in Boston.

Only a single point separates the Hawks and Canadiens now and the Habs' surge would appear to be a direct result of Geoffrion's payoff touch against Chicago.

RODE TO 2-1 win

They tangled last Sunday night in Chicago and the Canadiens rode Geoffrion's marker to a 2-1 win.

Thursday night he beat Chicago's Glenn Hall at 6:48 of the opening period with a golf-type shot that went low knee-high. Jean Beliveau and rookie winger John Ferguson drew assists.

It was Geoffrion's 12th goal of the campaign, his sixth game-winner and the second shutout for goalie Charlie Hodge who turned in an 18-stop performance.

The Canadiens hurled 33 shots at Hall, who looked extra good. The Hawks pulled him with 46 seconds left to play but to no avail. In fact, Beliveau almost scored on the empty net.

SHADOWED HULL WELL

Claude Provost, assigned to shadow Chicago's Bobby Hull, did a fine job, restricting his man to two shots on net.

It was a relatively tame game and only five penalties were called.

The first goal by Dornhoefer —playing his fourth NHL game —ended a scoreless string of 154 minutes, 22 seconds goalie Roger Crozier recorded against Boston. He shut them out in two previous games.

The weekend schedule sends all six teams into action twice. Saturday night, Detroit is at Montreal, Boston at Toronto and New York at Chicago. Sunday night it's Montreal at Boston, Toronto at Chicago and New York at Detroit.

Told To Keep A's In Kansas City

Defiant Finlay To Fight Order

NEW YORK (AP)—Charles O. Finley has been ordered by the American League to remain in Kansas City but the embattled owner of the Athletics baseball club vowed today to continue his fight to move the club despite a threat of expulsion.

The American League, by a 9-1 vote Thursday, rejected Finley's request to move the club to Louisville, Ky., and, by the same vote, ordered him to sign a lease in Kansas City by Feb. 1 or forfeit the franchise.

"We don can and no one will take my ball club away from me," the fiery Finley roared defiantly. "I am not accepting the league's decision without a fight.

"I don't think they have the right to force me to stay in a city where I have been continuously losing money. I will go to court to find out if the American League legally has the power to restrain me from moving my ball club to Louisville or any other place."

In an informal press conference conducted minutes after he had stalked out of the nine-hour-long league meeting, Finley said he intends to get an injunction, if possible, enabling him to go to Louisville. The embattled baseball executive had signed a contract, subject to league approval, to play in Louisville in 1964 and 1965.

"If it is legally possible to get an injunction whereby I can go to Louisville, you can rest assured I will do that," he said. "If I can't, I will go back to Kansas City and sign a lease for only as long as I have to—no more than one year."

Later in the conference, he amended this defiant attitude.

"The more I think of it, the more I believe I may sign a longer term lease with Kansas City," he said. "What difference if the lease is for one year or five or even 10 if it's subject to the court's decision? If the court rules in my favor, I can get out. If it rules against me, I'll stay stuck in Kansas City and like it."

The announcement of the American League's drastic and unprecedented action was made by president Joe Cronin. After telling of the league's action ordering Finley to sign a lease in Kansas City by Feb. 1, Cronin read the resolution, which said in part:

". . . Failing to that, a special meeting of the members of the league shall be called by the president as soon as convenient thereafter to consider and act upon the termination of the membership and—or expulsion from membership of Charles O. Finley and Co., Inc."

Players Refuse To Operate Team

Fox Guarantees 'Dogs'

WINDSOR (CP) — International Hockey League directors gave general manager Sam Fox of Windsor Bulldogs permission to renegotiate contracts with his players after an emergency meeting here Thursday.

The Bulldogs threatened to fold last Tuesday after former owner Orville Wismer, a radio executive from Port Huron, Mich., withdrew financial support.

Fox was given until Sunday to negotiate contracts with the players after the players themselves refused to operate the team on a share-the-wealth basis and the bid of a rival fireman group was withdrawn.

Fox, who was suspended recently by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for what was termed "detrimental conduct" after an 11-game tour of Europe by the Bulldogs last November and December, said he would guarantee the club's financial setup.

This includes a $10,000 performance bond that will go into the IHL treasury if the Windsor team folds before the end of the schedule.

His financial guarantees gave him an edge in bidding for the franchise over a group of five Windsor area businessmen headed by Bill Baksi, general manager of the Bulldogs when they won the Allan Cup last year.

Earlier, the players had rejected an offer from Fox to pay salaries of $75 a week to each player to offset the financial problem. Each player negotiated his own contract at the beginning of the season.

The league guaranteed the Windsor players their salaries for games in Chatham tonight, Toledo Saturday and back home against Toledo again Sunday.

A spokesman for the IHL said it had not been informed officially by the United States Amateur Hockey Association of Fox's suspension by the CAHA. He said it would be recognized.

However, he added this would not prevent Fox from owning the club. It would prevent him only from having an official voice in the team's operation once the suspension is enforced.

OMHA Adopts New Policy Re Tournaments

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association announced today a new policy relative to OMHA teams playing in tournaments outside the Province of Ontario.

Teams must first secure permission from the OMHA and submit a list of players to the OMHA secretary before they can be issued a Sanction Permit. Further, teams can only use players who would be eligible for the same team in OMHA games.

The purpose is to stop the packing of such teams with all-star players from other centres, e.g. Belleville could not use players from Trenton or Picton or any other centre as the players in question would not be eligible to play for Belleville normally under OMHA residence rules. Therefore only players eligible to play for the team under OMHA residence rules will be approved by the OMHA secretary.

Al Balding Tops International Set

Leads Crosby Golf

By DICK BARNES

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) An international cast headed by Canada's Al Balding is threatening to shoot a dent into the United States golf prestige in Bing Crosby's $50,000 national pro-amateur championship.

Foreigners held three of the first four places as the 72-hole tournament entered its second round today. Other invaders were in contention and an Irishman was running second in the pro-am phase of the competition.

Lanky Balding, from Toronto, held the top spot with his 32-34 —66. British Ryder Cupper Geoffrey Hunt squeezed in at 67 with Bobby Nichols of the United States. British Open champion Bob Charles of New Zealand was another stroke behind at 68.

The 10-man traffic jam at 69 included Australian Bruce Devlin. The Irishman running second in pro-am play was Christy O'Connor, who teamed with Harry Goldwater, the senator's brother, for a three strokes behind leaders Mike Fetchick and Charlie Seaver.

Al Johnston of Montreal had 37-34—71, one up on Toronto's George Knudson who shot 36-36 —72. Stan Leonard of Vancouver faded to 79.

And where were the biggest names in United States golf?

Jack Nicklaus, the PGA champion, Masters titlist and only man beside Palmer to ever win $100,000 in one year, was buried in the 78 bracket, potentially below Saturday night's cut.

Belch, Saco Win Quinte Loop Games

Belch Construction clipped Horlock Electric 4-1 and SACO came from behind to grab a 5-1 decision over Ter-Haar Daubrey in a pair of Quinte Hockey League games last night.

SACO moved ahead 2-1 in the middle beat and wrapped it up with three more third-period markers. A. Delina paced the winners, scoring two goals, including the winner, while Jack Calnan got one goal and two assists. H. Reid and B. Porteous got a goal each, G. Burris and D. Ray an assist each.

Belch's scored twice in the first and twice in the third, sandwiched around Horlock's lone goal in the second period, in their 4-1 win.

Don Wood broke up the tight 2-1 contest with both third-period goals for the winners. L. Westfall and D. Reid had the other markers. Westfall also drawing two assists, Helm, B. Belch and B. Yome one apiece.

R. Hill triggered the only Horlock goal with R. Burrows assisting.

Both games were cleanly played with very few penalties assessed.

Turk Back Brighton Squads

Quinte Cagers Win Trio

By ROBERT SNEJDELLA

Quinte Seniors, Juniors and Bantams all won easy victories over Brighton's entrants yesterday in Brighton. In the senior game the score was 95-31 for Quinte. Jim Mansfield was the big gun, as he scored 32 points, more than the entire Brighton team's output. The Quinte Saints dominated the backboards throughout, and their shooting was excellent from both inside and outside. Their shifting zone defence limited the Brighton team to only 5 field goals in the first half and 7 in the second.

High man for the losers was R. Mcfarland, as he netted 18 points.

In the junior game Tony Meddings led Quinte to a 71-34 victory with a 30-point performance as well as getting the majority of his team's rebounds.

The Quinte bantams won by a 52-30 score. Richard Kills and Phil Buddle had 16 and 14 points, respectively.

Figure Skating

Edmonton Miss Tops Juniors

NORTH BAY (CP) — A 14-6 year - old Edmonton girl, who capitalized on experience gained last year, today is half way toward her goal of winning the Canadian junior women's figure skating title.

Shirley Robson performed brilliantly Thursday in the compulsory figures competition of the Canadian championships being held here and took the lead in the event with 481.9 points cell the unanimous choice of all five judges.

She has a decisive lead over second-place Marjorie Hare of Oakville going into today's free skating competition. Miss Hare won 443.6 points in Thursday's compulsory figures.

The lead after compulsory figures in the junior men's singles championship went to Toller Cranston of Toronto, also with 431.7 points. He was third in last year's meet. Paul Crowther of Toronto is a close second with 412.8.

The day's tightest race came in the junior dance event when Gail Seiger and Wayne Palmer of Toronto earned first-place votes from three judges for a total of 62.0 points. Although the second-place pair of Lyn Matthews and Byron Topping, also of Toronto, scored 64.7 points, they were given only two first places by the judges.

OTHERS SHOW WELL

Other finishers in the men's competition included John Baley of St. Catharines with 394.2 points and Robin Black of Toronto with 382.6.

In the junior dance event, only four of the eight pairs that began are allowed to continue. Third and fourth place winners were Vancouver's Mary Ellen McQuarries and Jim Hibbak, 59.0 points, and Sharon Davis and Ross Garner of Woodstock, with 58.1

In addition to presentation of titles in all junior events tonight, today's program will feature one of the biggest names in the championships. Wendy Griner and Petra Burka, both of Toronto, will make their appearance as the senior women's compulsory figures get under way.

Miss Griner is seeking her fifth consecutive women's singles title.

The meet will end Saturday night when all senior events will be wrapped up and trophies will be distributed.

Gananoque Meets Juniors Here Tonight

Gananoque Islanders, playing their third game in as many days, will provide the opposition here tonight when the Belleville "B"s make their first start under new coach Bob Taylor.

Both clubs have had a rough week, although the circumstances differ slightly. The Islanders were victims of Trenton's "youth movement" on Wednesday night and the "B"s will likely be missing several key men tonight, through injuries and misconduct suspensions.

Taylor and the Belleville players are confident that they can take the Islanders to camp by coming up with a wide open, clean style of hockey — and the player will also be trying to prove a point as well.

At any rate both teams want a victory badly tonight, so it shapes up like a tidy battle. Game time is nine o'clock, at Memorial Arena.

The "B"s play on the road for the first time since December 21 when they travel to Napanee to meet Walt Grow's Red Wings there on Monday.

Stu Mulford, the team leader, is out of the hospital after his leg operation but will be idle there for some time yet. He is walking with crutches and reports that the leg has little feeling. It will likely be another month before he gets back into the lineup.

Peterborough Petes edged visiting junior Montreal Canadiens 5-4, firing the winner with six seconds to go, to come within five points of the second-place Montreal club in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action Thursday night.

In the other scheduled game, Hamilton Red Wings posted a come - from - behind 8-4 victory over Kitchener Rangers to gain their seventh win of the season.

Tonight, the Junior Canadiens travel to Niagara Falls for a game against fourth-place Flyers and St. Catharines Black Hawks, currently in fifth spot, travel to Kitchener for a game against the cellar dwelling Rangers.

Andre Lacroix potted a pair for Montreal and Rene Drolet and Bill Durocher got the others.

Pete Mahovlich, Nick Libett, Bryan Campbell, Sandy Snow, Jimmy Peters, John DeDiana, Gary Marsh, Real Lemieux and Bart Crashley tallied for Hamilton as Ken Wings increased their seventh-place margin to four points.

Earlier in the day the Rangers learned that forward Earl Ingarfield would have to sit out several more games.

Ingarfield suffered a brain concussion several weeks ago and missed eight games. He returned to competition Wednesday night wearing a plastic helmet but complained of dizziness.

Plante Has Infected Right Foot

Plante apparently stepped on a nail in the dressing room after the Rangers' 5-4 National Hockey League victory over the Maple Leafs in Toronto Wednesday night, a club spokesman said.

The goalie's foot began swelling shortly after the team arrived here for a game Saturday with Chicago Black Hawks. The Chicago team physician, Dr. Myron Tremaine, administered tetanus and antibiotic shots and sent the goalie over to hospital for further treatment.

Tremaine said Plante should show improvement in the next 24 or 48 hours and should be all right to play against the Black Hawks Saturday or Detroit Sunday.

The Rangers, as insurance, picked up Gilles Villemure from the Baltimore club of the American Hockey League.

Earlier in the day the Rangers learned that forward Earl Ingarfield would have to sit out several more games.

Trenton Juves. "Pinch-Hitted" For Juniors?

Trenton won its first game in 13 starts by whipping Gananoque Islanders 12-4 in OHA Eastern Junior action at Trenton Wednesday night - - but there was never a Trenton Junior player on the ice!

As strange as it sounds, that is exactly what happened.

A phone call to Trenton yesterday confirmed that Trenton Legion Juvenile club was brought up, lock, stock and barrel, to replace the Juniors in the game against Gananoque.

Trenton Juniors had won their first league start back on November 13 but since then dropped 12 consecutive games. Crowds were down well below the 100 mark.

A Trenton spokesman said that paid attendance Wednesday was 239 and the 12-4 score in favor of Trenton tells the rest of the story. The same source said that the move had been O.K.ed by OHA executive member Jack Devine, of Belleville.

The Legion Juveniles will replace the Juniors again for a return game at Gananoque next Thursday. Apparently plans call for the Juveniles to play only these two junior games - but any points they win will count for the Trenton Juniors.

No reason was given for the move but a home-town guess is that the entire Juvenile squad will make an effort to go junior next season - likely in "B" category.

Thumps Trenton 10-5, 27 Penalties

Picton Wins Rough Game

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — The Picton Juniors rode rough shod over the Trenton Juniors here last night dropping them by a 10-5 score in one of the roughest of the junior games here this season.

The officials kept the game well in hand, but handed out 27 penalties, including three for fighting, two five-minute tests for spearing and one misconduct.

In another tilt, Gananoque topped Napanee 7-6 in overtime.

At the 19.07 mark Bill Hopkins fired his first of two with Haddock and Hasenel each getting assists. There were only three minor penalties called in the first period, two to Trenton.

Sainsbury fired a Wayne McConnell pass into the net at the 16 second mark of the second period, to give Picton a 4-1 lead. Jack Dunnan, who scored the hat trick for the visitors put them back in the game at the 8.59 mark, and just about here in the proceedings "the roof fell in."

Seeing that they couldn't beat Picton at scoring goals, the Trenton team decided to see if they could "soften them up a bit" and started throwing everything at the goals at the Picton team. Picton, nothing if not willing to mix it up, accepted the challenge and the fat was in the fire.

Tim O'Grady, as his name would indicate, a peace loving Irishman, took a minor, for cross checking and a minor for elbowing at the same time, and John O'Donnell, the receiver of one of the checks decided to have a go at O'Grady. Sticks and gloves were dropped and they went at it, and were both banished for five.

They were not back on the ice long before O'Donnell belted Sainsbury sheep two went at it, resulting in an automatic ten minutes for O'Donnell for taking the fighting majors in one game. They were each given an additional two for roughing.

The penalties were for spearing, cross checking, hooking, roughing, boarding, slashing.

Gary Hasenel fired a pair in quick succession at the 11.54 and th 12.40 mark to put the game out of reach of the visitors. Brown and Haddock each nipped assists.

Trenton picked up one when Dunman fired his second of the night at the 17.13 mark, but Picton right back with another pair, this time Bill Hopkins, his second and one by Wayne McConnell. There were 13 penalties in the second period.

In the third period, McConnell fired his second of the game at the 2.46 mark with Larry Lemcke picking up an assist. George Bulgajewski fired the last Picton marker at the 9.24 mark, with Hopkins getting the assist.

Trenton fired two more in the last period, one by Dunman, and one by Mike Sharrard but could not come close.

Picton spare goal tender, Rick McPherson, tried out on the forward line for the first two periods, the first time in his junior hockey career - he has played up front and took over from Larry Holmes in the last frame.

Picton outshot the visitors by a 45-32 margin.

The win gives Picton undisputed possession of first place in the standings. They play an exhibition game with the Whitby Junior B team here Saturday night. Game time 8.00 p.m.

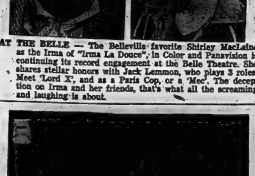
Five-Goal Surge Gives Hornets Win

GALT (CP) — A five - goal flurry in the second period gave Galt Hornets a 7-4 Ontario Hockey Association Junior win over Woodstock Athletics here on Thursday night.



Right Winger Ron Hergott led the assault, which overcame a 3-1 Athletic lead, by scoring two goals and assisting on another. Pete Kowalchuk scored twice and Joe Hogan counted the other for Galt, which moved into solo possession of second place, six points back of the leading Athletics.

Art Sullivan's two goals paced Woodstock. Jerry Stringle and Rio Caron were the other marksmen.

Hornets, capitalizing on almost all their chances, scored four power-play goals, added another while playing a man short and let Woodstock's goalie Ron Salter with only 11 successful saves. Dave Dryden made 28 for Galt.

AT THE BELLE — The Belleville favorite Shirley MacLaine as the Irma of "Irma La Douce"; in Color and Panavision is continuing its record engagement at the Belle Theatre. She shares stellar honors with Jack Lemmon, who plays 3 roles, Meet "Lord X", and as a Paris Cop, or a "Mec". The deception on Irma and her friends, that's what all the screaming and laughing is about.

AT THE PARK — Romance between races — William Campbell gets awakened by Marie Versini in romantic scene from American International's "The Young Racers." Network Television Must Interest Mass Says Critic

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Network television is a mass medium and only justifies its existence when it interests the mass of people. It should not be expected to substitute for the roles of parent, teacher, psychiatrist, social worker, or even philanthropist."

That is the opinion of art critic Aline Saarinen, a member of NBC's Today Show, who comments — often sharply — on art, contemporary design, architecture and the arts in subjects.

"There was a period when I, along with many critics of the medium, thought that if a program attracted only 1,000,000 or 2,000,000 people — and was worthwhile, it was justified," she said. "I feel rather strongly now that if most people are looking at someone else's program and not at yours, it is the fault of the broadcaster."

She was addressing herself to the frequent suggestion that broadcasters should consult with community leader to find the best way to serve public needs and desires.

"That would be fine if anybody really knew community tastes," Miss Saarinen said. "The fact is that all people like what they know. And it is also certain that most community leaders only know what the public ought to like."

North Shore Hockey

Two close, hard-fought games were played in the Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League at Wellington last night.

Wellington's victory put the club all alone in the loop's top spot. Stinson's led 2-1 after one period and 4-3 early in the third before the Wellington boys potted three in a row to get the win. It was 3-3 after two periods.

Eldon Carson scored three goals and helped on another while Joe Scott had a goal and four assists for the loop-leaders. Al Rawlin and Al Pettingill were the other marksmen.

In the earlier game, Consecon scored the game's only goal at 1.20 of the first period and made it stand up the rest of the way. The goal was scored by Ron Keller, with Dave LaRue assisting, on a deflected shot that rolled over the goalie's shoulder into the Melville net.

Both contests were bitterly-contested but clean affairs.

Number Called Sugar Shack Sold 1,200,000 Records

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Next month will mark a handsome check for more than $100,000 — all go to 23-year-old James Gilmer, an Amarillo, Tex., singer who managed to boom in the boom-or-bust record business.

Gilmer, backed by a combo called the Fireballs, rocked out a number called Sugar Shack that slugged the teen-age market for 1,200,000 discs.

The record had been submitted to Dot Records by a music entrepreneur, Norman Petty. And that's how the business bounces nowadays.

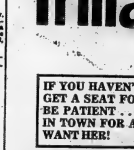
The Dot headman, Randy Wood, explained the new era in the lists today are demonstration records that have been submitted to companies after they have been made. We receive anywhere from 25 to 50 of them a week at Dot, and I make it a point to listen to all of them. Once in a while a Sugar Shack comes along.

These records are made by combos all over the country and might have been recorded in kitchens or bathrooms, often on home recorders. The quality doesn't matter; we never record it that way ourselves. It's that original quality we're looking for."

Randy Dot hits that came from demonstration records: Jim Loew's Green Door, which sold 1,300,099; Robin Luke's Suzie Darling, 750,000; Dodie Stevens Pink Shoelaces, and Lonnie Donnegan's epic "Does Your Chewing Gum Lose Its Flavor on the Bedpost Overnight? a half-million seller.

'Charlotte' Challenge Is Accepted

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) Mayor Arnold Gough has asked Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa to "set a time, date and place" for a curling match between civic rinks from the two communities.



Earlier this week Miss Whitton issued a challenge to towns in the Ottawa area to form curling rinks to oppose an Ottawa entry. The matches would be played during the Ottawa Winter Carnival.

"Anything the mayor of Ottawa can do, I can do better," asserted Mayor Gough.

Meanwhile Constable Steven Whitton of the Smiths Falls police force, a nephew of Miss Whitton, is taking side bets on the outcome of the proposed match.

He's backing Aunt Charlotte, naturally.

British Tennis Body Wants Separate Tourneys

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Only one man among the top seven point-collectors in the National Hockey League improved his mark in Thursday night's play.

That was assist-leader Jean Beliveau of Montreal. He helped set up Montreal's lone goal for his 36th assist of the season, giving him 76 points.

The leaders:

SWANSEA WINS

SWANSEA, Wales (Reuters) — Swansea beat Scunthorpe 4-1 in an English League second-division soccer match here Thursday night.

LONDON (AP)—The British Lawn Tennis Association announced Thursday that it hopes to stage an open championship at Wimbledon for amateurs and professionals in 1965 and 1966.

The governing body of British tennis said it had decided to request permission from the International Lawn Tennis Federation to stage the two Wimbledon opens. The request will be made at the annual meeting of the international organization in Vienna in July.

J. Eaton Griffith, a member of the British body and this year's president of the International federation, said he was "far from confident" that permission will be given.

"I just do not know at this stage how other countries would vote," Griffith said. "I believe France's attitude is that they would still be in favor of open tennis. Australia, however, is in a difficult position and I understand the question was not discussed at their general meeting two days ago. My guess is they will still vote against it."

He indicated that the proposal had had a rough time in the British federation although it was approved "overwhelmingly but not unanimously."

Canada Names Two-Man Bobsled Teams

CORTINA D'AMPEZZO, Italy (CP-AP) — Canada has chosen its two-man bobsled teams to represent the country at the winter Olympic Games, beginning at Innsbruck, Austria, Jan. 29.

The two teams are Victor Emery of Montreal and Peter Kirby of St. Lambert, and Lamont Gordon of Harriston, Ont., and Gordon Harris of Toronto. John Emery of Toronto and Douglas Anakin of Montreal make up a reserve team.

They were chosen Thursday on the basis of their performances in the Cortina Trophy Race and the Oriani International Cup Race.

PLAN RACING PLANT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Plans are being made to construct a new grandstand, club house and turf club at an estimated outlay of $5,000,000 at Vancouver's Exhibition Park, it was disclosed Thursday. Plans call for a start on the demolition of present horse racing facilities by Sept. 10, the last day of 1964 racing at Exhibition Park. An immediate start would then be made on building new facilities.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 18

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Permit romantic side to come forth. Realize that every detail can be bathed in an aura of excitement. Making others happy can assure your own well-being.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Self-acclaimed accomplishes much. Don't press too hard. Display sense of humor. Those in authority will be impressed. Fine for writing, travelling, pursuing creative efforts.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Get practical affairs in order. Check budget. Money matters due to require attention. Resolutions. But don't attempt to find substitute for quality.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Subtle influences surround you. There is something afoot. Don't jump to conclusions — take passive attitude. Wait, observe. You may receive surprising offer!

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Permit intellect to rule emotions. Avoid public disputes. Check tendency to become easily irritated. You can gain through unselfish attitude. Highlight maturity.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Take initiative. Display greater independence. Your natural charm can win the day — and evening. Don't be afraid to express original ideas. You will benefit as result.

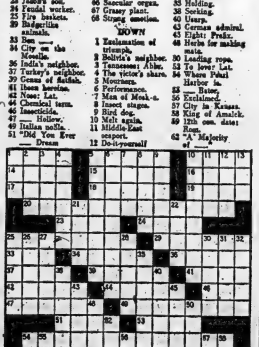
Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Fine lunar aspect points to love, creative expression. Check necessary details early. Excellent for entertaining, attending social function. Day of good cheer.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Settle family differences in amiable manner. Share interests, hobbies. Find new basis for constructive relationship. Key is expansion, expression of ideas.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Resist tendency to scatter forces. Finish one task before embarking upon another. Fine for visiting relatives. Get minor matters taken care of — big ones take care of themselves.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Be aware of numerous possibilities. Survey situation. Fortunate for speculation if you are perceptive. Family member's suggestion should be heeded. It can prove profitable!

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Idea offered by friend may contain much of value. Your cycle high, but you require cooperation. This may not be easy to obtain. Emphasize: charm and determination.



If today is your birthday . . . you are able to sense need of sympathy, understanding. You would make fine teacher, physician.

General Tendencies: Sudden changes made as result of bold challenge.

Madoc Junction

MADOC JUNCTION—A number of relatives from this community attended the funeral service of Mrs. David Smith, held in the chapel of the Rowe Funeral Home in Frankford, last Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGrath and children of Oshawa were Sunday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bridges. Mrs. Bolbas who had been visiting her sister, Mrs. Bridges for the past two weeks, returned with them to her home in Oshawa.

Several relatives and friends made a surprise visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fords Stapley on Wednesday evening on the occasion of Mrs. Stapley's birthday.

Miss Helen Weeks and Mr. Lyle Couch from Peterborough Teachers' College are practice teaching this week at Eggleton School under the supervision of Mrs. Gordon.

Sympathy is extended to relatives of Mr. Warren Harper of Stirling who died recently. Mr. Harper's home now had resided on their farm near here for several years, before moving to Stirling.

Poverty and Wealth Exist Side by Side in Jamaica

By RUSSELL ELMAN

KINGSTON, Jamaica (CP)— In a dank hovel, patched together with old lumber, cardboard and sheets of zinc, a sullen Jamaican wife whose husband is jobless feeds her five youngsters a supper of bread, sugar and water.

Scenes such as this are not uncommon in Back-O-Wall, a slum area in this overcrowded city of 400,000.

A couple of miles away on the cool mountain side is a spacious bungalow in the Parish of St. Andrew, another Jamaican wife, whose husband is a successful businessman, sits with her three children sipping rum punch and ginger or bitter lemon drink served by a domestic.

The invitable fence that divides St. Andrew and Back-O-Wall is perhaps the biggest obstacle in the path of newly independent Jamaica's efforts to make a reality of the island's national motto: Out of Many, One People.

"Our job is to break down the wall between the masses and the privileged few," says Edward Seaga, minister responsible for framing Jamaica's five-year independence development program.

WANT MORE FOR ALL

Simply expressed by an indignant resident of Back-O-Wall —part of Seaga's own constituency—the problem is "not to drag down the big fellow, but to raise up us little people."

The needs have been studied. More employment, more schools, more housing, better land distribution and more increased production, more industry, more investment, improved sewage and water supply, more tourists.

"Our basic objective is to produce a better standard of living for more people," says Donald Sangster, finance minister and deputy to Prime Minister Sir Alexander Bustamante. "We must first provide more work and find the avenues to markets for our increased production."

Whether Jamaica can succeed in carrying out these intentions is seen as the major test of living up to the responsibilities acquired with independence in August, 1962.

The first year of independence for the mountainous island's 1,650,000 people has been one of transition, during which economic growth slackened to a slow trot from a gallop.

INVESTORS UNSURE

The pause is attributed to various factors: Investor caution following the change in political status; the breakup of the West Indies federation and the Cuban missiles crisis; simultaneous completion of a number of major construction projects with nothing to replace them immediately; and a big wage increase in the construction industry.

However, there are indications the economy now is poised for an upturn. Guideposts include announcement by the government of large-scale housing and drainage projects, stepped-up purchases by companies and sugar estates of machinery and equipment, and the large amount of cash being paid out fo. television sets.

Meanwhile, Jamaica's red soil, which contains the world's largest reserves of bauxite for making aluminum, continues to be the main source of the island's export revenues. On the agricultural scene, sugar is enjoying good times, Jamaican Blue Mountain coffee has an international reputation for excellence, but the banana plantations were badly hit by hurricane Flora last fall.

There's a vigorous campaign to woo new manufacturing industries by offering generous tax holidays. The tourist trade is being reorganized on a year-round basis in an attempt to recapture lost business. And the government is hoping that a large share of the funds for its $279,000,000 development plan will come from outside the island.

Impressive rows of factories have sprung up in western Kingston; relatively high wages are being paid to such workers as dockers, thus making them an elite in the working class; efforts are being made to boost agricultural production and improve marketing methods.

Yet, the Jamaican scene remains one in which a large number of people have no work or very little, and require better housing, nourishment and schooling.

Thousands of men and women continue to swarm from the countryside in search of work in Kingston only to become disillusioned, destitute slum-dwellers while some rural areas face a shortage of labor.

LEADERS CONFIDENT

There is still a fantastically high incidence of illegitimacy, perhaps almost an economic than a moral disease in an island where poor people often consider marriage a luxury for those who can afford it.

More schools are being built and scholarships offered, but most primary schools are hopelessly overcrowded. Attendance is irregular and not compulsory.

"We have the government stability and structure," says Welfare Minister Seaga. "We don't have the misunderstanding of our problems, nor do we lack the capability to cope with them. What we lack is understanding."

The island's prospects are enhanced by its reputation for stable government based on a two-party system, although both parties are closely identified with trade union groups. There is no tradition of violent revolution and a strong, little support for communist or extremist movements based on race.

APPEALS TO UNDERDOG

To an outsider there also doesn't seem much difference between the ruling Jamaica Labor Party headed by 80-year-old Sir Alexander Bustamante and the opposition People's National Party led by his slightly younger cousin, Norman Manley. The JLP nominally backs a free enterprise system and the PNM leans more toward socialism.

Sharper contrasts are found in the personalities of the leaders. Busta, a shrewd, rough - hewn politician, appeals on a personal and emotional basis to the underdog among the masses; Manley, a lawyer and Rhodes scholar, has an intellectual appeal that seems to win favor among the middle class.

Fears are being expressed in some quarters that Bustamante, although aided by a team that includes some able ministers, is becoming increasingly autocratic.

Such criticism notwithstanding, Bustamante recently pulled a plum for the leader of a developing country by apparently winning a degree of confidence from Washington. He has obtained loans from the United States, and has suggested making Jamaica available as a military base.

Teen-Age Canada Students Soon to Wear Calculating Computers

By JACK HUTTON

Can you imagine the Canadian teen-ager of the future wearing a computer on his wrist just as many teen-agers now carry transistor radios?

Don't laugh.

According to top mathematicians, it's entirely possible that we'll someday wear computers for quick calculation.

And if we do, those in the driver's seat will be teenagers (or former teenagers) who took the time to catch a glimpse of the real mathematics behind their day to day homework.

I chatted the other day with several mathematics teachers from across Canada who talked about what happened when they and their students threw away the 10-digit system of numbers.

TEENS QUICKER

This can be tried, of course, by either adults or teen-agers. But there is one difference: the teen-ager always catches on more quickly.

First, wash your mind clean of the 10-digit system. Is there any reason why we should use it, apart from the fact that we have 10 fingers and 10 toes? Advanced mathematicians often forget the 10-digit system, so we can too.

Let's imagine we're working with a 7-digit system—for the moment all we have is 0, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7. How would you add 65 and 34?

You say you say 99? Aha, you're still thinking in terms of a 10-digit system. You immediately thought of 5 plus 4 and 6 plus 3. Or, if one of these pairs had exceeded 10, you would have carried 1 and the number exceeding 10 and "carried one."

AN EXAMPLE

Let's look at 65 plus 34 again, this time in a 7-digit system. The numbers 5 plus 4 equal 9, which is 2 more than 7. Therefore, you write 2 at the bottom of the column and "carry" 1.

The "carry-over" changes 6 to 7, and 7 equals 10. Now 10 is 3 more than 7, so you will mark down 3 with a "carry-over" 1 beside it. The answer, therefore, is 132.

Sounds fantastic? Just try adding 74 plus 34 and notice how you use the idea of 10. Try a few more examples in which the numbers add up to more than 10 and ask yourself exactly what you're doing.

Let's try another with a 7-digit system. Remember that everything is divided into 7's, and that this is the only system we know. This time add 62 and 36 (don't glance ahead until you've finished).

What did we do this time? Well, 6 plus 6 equals 12, which is 1 more than 7. Therefore, we mark down 1 and "carry" the 1 which leaves us with 7 plus 2. This is 9, or 2 with a 1 beside it. The answer: 121.

RIGHT ANSWER

Crazy? Not really, because all this simply means that the concept of number can take many forms, depending upon the structure we give it. The answer 132 in the 7-digit system is just as correct as 99 in the 10 - digit system.

And this leads us to wrist computers. The reason computers work on 2-digit numbers so quickly is that they use only two digits—1 and 0. Ask your maths teacher to explain how this works.

Some teachers go so far as to predict that all children will someday be taught how to use the two-digit system early in school. If they ever do, we'll be prepared.

RESOLUTIONS

A Winnipeg reader was inspired to write his own "sick" New Year's resolutions", after our end-of-the-year column. Here are a few of them and his description of the results.

"I will not sit and stare out of the window when I get bored in class. Result: I wanted to climb out of the window, but since I was on the third floor of the school, I changed my mind.

"I will not sneak off the school campus for an hour because I don't want to take the biology test. I will hide in the washroom for an hour. Result: This didn't work. The teachers don't tell us when they're going to have a test.

"I will not make smart remarks about the 'food' they serve in the school cafeteria. I will call the Board of Health. Result: What am I worrying about? Our school doesn't have a cafeteria.

"I will not complain bitterly when the referee doesn't see it my way during a school athletic event. I will throw ripe fruit. Result: Make it overly ripe fruit and you've got something."

Future of 70,000 Canadian Commercial Fishermen Will Be Discussed at Parley

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—A conference that is expected to reshape the future for 70,000 Canadian commercial fishermen opens here Monday.

Federal and provincial fisheries ministers will gather to put together a rough blueprint for the application of Canada's $250,000,000-a-year fishing industry, now far in the backwash of the country's post-war prosperity.

The week - long conference, first of its kind, has been slipped months in the planning. It will seek ideas for a national fisheries development plan to end many of the economic uncertainties and physical hazards plaguing the ancient industry.

Unofficially, the eventual goal is to provide fishermen with the same kind of government encouragement and income protection developed for the Canadian farmer.

MAY OPEN COLLEGE

Some of the things that may emerge in the next few years:

1. Improved credit facilities to enable fishermen to obtain larger, more efficient fishing vessels and modern gear.

2. Enlarged price-support programs.

3. National marketing boards.

4. Some type of "crop insurance" to help fishermen through seasons of low catches.

5. An expanded federal field force, similar to federal agriculture representatives, to instruct fishermen and processors in new methods and equipment resulting from scientific research.

6. Tax incentives to stimulate capital investment.

7. A national fisheries college, patterned on the major agricultural colleges, to turn out more young people trained in modern fisheries techniques.

8. Improved harbor facilities.

9. Advertising and promotion programs to encourage greater consumer demand for products of the salt and freshwater fisheries.

10. Revised regulations on size limits, catch quotas and net sizes.

FALLING BEHIND

A report prepared for the Resources for Tomorrow conference at Montreal three years ago estimated that in 1945 the Canadian fishing industry was 30 years behind agriculture. And despite intensive fisheries research in the 1945-61 period, it had fallen even farther back because of more rapid advances in agriculture.

Gross income of fishermen is the lowest of any primary industry in Canada. The 1960-62 annual average was $850 per fisherman in New foundland, $878 in Quebec, $1,345 in Prince Edward Island, $1,400 in New Brunswick, $2,360 in Nova Scotia and $2,525 in British Columbia.

Because of this, most fishermen are forced to seek other means of income during the off-season or rely on unemployment insurance to help them survive.

This situation will be the keynote in next week's sessions.

Equally serious, from the federal view, is the manner in which the Canadian fisheries have been outstripped in growth by those of other countries — notably Russia and Japan. Canada's share of the Atlantic and Pacific catches has been declining steadily for 20 years. Huge fleets of modern Russian and Japanese trawlers now roam the waters off the east and west coasts.

CO-OPS REPRESENTED

Sparkplug behind the conference idea is federal Fisheries Minister Hedard J. Robichaud, 46-year-old former fisheries director for New Brunswick. Two weeks after taking office last April in the first Pearson cabinet, he sent a letter to the 10 provinces suggesting a full-fledged national conference to stimulate the fishing industry.

The response has been amazing," he said in an interview. "Even the inland provinces have turned out to be full of ideas on the subject."

Each province has turned in a brief outlining detailed proposals for the national program. These form the basis for the agenda that was drawn up by Mr. Robichaud and his senior officials.

Delegates were also invited from unions, co-operatives and organizations representing the processing companies. They have sent along advance reports on their suggestions.

Monday's session will be taken up entirely by the presentation of briefs and will be open to the public. But most of the week's program will be tackled behind closed doors.

Although the emphasis will be on the plight of the salt-water fisherman, inland commercial and sports fisheries also will be considered.

Mr. Robichaud cautioned that no quick results should be expected.

BROAD OUTLINE

"The conference will be mainly an exchange of ideas on all the problems affecting fisheries. I expect it will lay down a broad outline of the kind of program the provinces would like, but no final decisions will be made."

Immediately following the conference, Mr. Robichaud, who started in fisheries work 25 years ago as a federal inspector, will begin hammering together a draft program for cabinet approval. It will incorporate the main proposals from the provinces with his own views on the needs of the industry.

He suggested in the interview that the final plan may be an interdepartmental project, involving possibly public works, labor, transport and trade.

The basic thing we have to recognize is that most of the research needed to improve fisheries now is going on, and some of it has been completed.

"But I'm afraid little of it has been properly applied or even accepted by the industry. That's why other countries are ahead of us."

Mr. Robichaud said the program will require federal spending but declined to estimate how much might be needed.

Canada is the third-largest fish exporting country in the world, behind Norway and Japan. During 1962 Canadian fish products earned more than $114,000,000 in the United States market alone.

But it also is the only major fishing country without a national development program to keep its fishing industry in pace with the times.

Stocks, Bonds Worth $80,000 Are Missing

Disappeared From City Legal Office

City police last night revealed they are investigating disappearance of stocks and bonds valued at $80,000 from the office of a leading Belleville barrister.

He is Ronald Cass, Q.C., brother of Hon. Fred Cass, Ontario Attorney General.

With the confirmation, police lifted the wraps from investigations being secretly pressed across Ontario for the past five weeks.

Secrecy was imperative because of circumstances surrounding the disappearance, police say.

The securities—the bulk of them in Canada Savings bonds—were last seen in the safe of Mr. Cass' second-storey office suite at 224 Front Street, on December 10. They were first noticed missing December 14.

Between those dates, no theme of feasible entry into the lawyer's offices were noticed or reported.

Following the discovery, city detectives questioned other occupants in the building and alerted banks and trust companies.

A circular, carrying descriptions and serial numbers of the stocks and bonds, was circulated to other police forces and financial institutions in the province.

The provincial police Criminal Investigation Branch was asked to aid local police by making on-the-spot investigations in Toronto.

The activity was carefully shrouded from publicity "because we hoped for a break," said a senior detective on the case.

However, the $80,000 disappearance apparently is as baffling as ever. The CIB, other forces or banks throughout the province have reported no developments.

No attempt has been made to cash any of the bonds to police knowledge — all save one of the stocks turned up.

The latest move was among the investigators.

This morning a CIB inspector was in Belleville to correlate the investigation with local officers.

Third War Over Says Official

OTTAWA (CP)—"The Third World War is over, without a shot having been fired."

The speaker was a senior official in the defence department.

Another authority said: "What we're in now is a sort of co-operative unilateral disarmament. The United States announces a defence cut. Then Russia does. And we do our little bit."

Is the present East - West detente really this heady?

P is obvious, officials said, that neither the U.S. nor Russia nor any other power has dismantled anything military which it considers vital to its security.

But military reductions are nonetheless being made. Witness President Johnson's statement in his State of the Union message that production of enriched uranium will be cut 25 per cent "even in the absence of agreement" with Russia.

Defence Minister Hellyer has seized on the detente to make major reductions in Canada's military establishment.

"It is true that in the world scale of armaments our reductions don't amount to much, if anything," an official said.

"But it is also true that without the present detente and a general feeling in West and East that military cuts are in order, we'd have found it more difficult or impossible to make reductions of our own."

The official who maintains that the "third World War" is over explained that in his view this doesn't presage world disarmament. All it means was that the U.S. and Russia both realized a nuclear exchange would be suicide.

"We now should be considering how to fight the Fourth World War," he said. He is present, he said, a conflict with Communist China.

Builders Assail Big Tax

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Construction Association complained Friday that the industry is considered "fair game" so far as taxes are concerned and, in the interests of an expanded economy, there should be some relief.

A 75-page brief from the association to the Carter royal commission on taxation said the construction industry is subjected "to a multitude of taxes and assorted imposts levied by the three levels of government in Canada."

This brought on additional problems: "... The keeping of records, making of payments, claiming of refunds, obtaining interpretations, rulings, preferential advice, and resolving of disputes."

George Moller, vice - president of Robertson-Irwin Limited of Hamilton, one of the recently-imposed sales tax on building materials has actually doubled the clerical work in the construction industry.

The association, representing more than 1,000 construction firms, made a sweeping series of recommendations to tighten up, and ease the financial wallop of the income Tax Act. Many of the complaints involved sections of the act that are concerned only with the complexities of the building business — complicated problems that have challenged accountants for years.

SOME ARE GENERAL

But some of the proposals were general: The sales tax should be removed from building materials and machinery. Income taxes should be brought down, fiscal policies should be used more as an economic lever, and there should be adjustments in favor of exchanges.

Association President T. A. Somerville of Toronto said the construction industry has been lagging behind the growth of overall industry in recent years and "has had a substantial surplus capacity.

"Once the deferments have been caught up it should be remembered by those responsible for fiscal, monetary and public investment policies that most construction projects require a good deal of advance planning. Consequently this factor will be most helpful in achieving a more stable rate of growth and operations in the construction industry and the related economics. . . ."

The association said that if it isn't possible to remove the tax from construction materials and equipment, a new collection system should be established whereby a single tax is levied on the completed construction project. It was a book-keeping nightmare under the present system with taxes being applied at every stage of construction.

Think Leukemia May Be Contagious

NEW YORK (AP)—New York City health department physicians are investigating the possibility that clusters of leukemia cases have broken out among patients in Flushing section of Queens, the New York Daily News reports.

Clusters of leukemia cases have been reported in Chicago, San Francisco and two areas of Britain. Daily News science writer Richard Lyons writes, adding:

"The findings have led to speculation that leukemia is contagious and is perhaps spread by a virus. Ironically, the clusters reported elsewhere have occurred among people of with higher incomes and social status—those living in areas such as Flushing—rather than slums. The reason is unknown."

Start Bid in London To End Cyprus Situation

LONDON (Reuters) — Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys today started an all-out weekend bid to find a settlement of the problems of the troubled Mediterranean island of Cyprus.

He was scheduled to meet delegates of the two rival communities in Cyprus — the Turkish - Cypriots and Greek-Cypriots—in an effort to get them to agree to a political settlement to their dispute that led to bloody pre-Christmas fighting.

Meanwhile, a special United Nations envoy was scheduled to leave here for Cyprus after arriving by plane Friday for a whirlwind series of meetings with British, Greek, Turkish and Cypriot sides.

Jose Rolz-Bennett of Guatemala, representing UN Secretary-General U Thant, opened his talks here with a call on Sandys. Sandys is chairman of the current Cyprus consultational conference here which is seeking a political solution to the bitter feud between the Greek and Turkish communities on the Mediterranean island.

In quick succession Rolz-Bennett called on the Greek-Cypriot, Greek, Turkish-Cypriot and Turkish delegates to the conference. He also had a 30-minute meeting with British Foreign Minister R. A. Butler.

Authoritative sources said the main aim of the Rolz-Bennett mission is to discuss the work of Indian Lt.-Gen. Prem Singh Gyani who arrived in Cyprus Friday to act as a UN observer to the British peace-keeping operation on the Commonwealth island.

Sandys flew to Cyprus at Christmas and arranged a truce after fighting broke out between the Greek-Cypriot and Turkish-Cypriot communities. He currently is holding long private talks with the two sides in separate meetings in an effort to find a way to remove the causes of tension between them.

Pearson's Views On China

By KEN KELLY

PARIS (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson indicated Friday that if Communist China no longer insists on recognition of its sovereignty over Formosa as a condition of diplomatic recgnition then Canada would have to take another look at her policy of non-recognition.

He said, however, it would be difficult for Canada to accord China diplomatic recognition as long as she insists on recognition of her sovereignty over the national-held island.

The Canadian leader, completing a visit here during which he held talks with President de Gaulle and other French officials, made the comment following an address to the Diplomatic Press Association.

The subject arose during a subsequent question - and - answer period when journalists referred to reports here that the Communist Chinese, in talks with the French, no longer insisted on this condition.

Later, France formally was reported to have advised the United States that she will accord diplomatic recognition to Red China.

Pearson attended the press luncheon shortly before flying to Marville, France, for a visit with Canada's NATO air division there. He returns to Ottawa by air today.

CANADA DOES BUSINESS

Pearson told the journalists that the Canadian government recognized Communist China in the sense that it did a great deal of business with the ruling government—that is a form of recognition.

"Regarding official diplomatic recognition of China, we do not believe we should take any step that would require any recognition of the rule of Peking over the people of Formosa."

Turning to other questions, Pearson said he believes the meetings of Arab nations in Cairo will prevent an armed conflict with Israel over Israel's planned diversion of waters of the River Jordan for irrigation.

SHOULD STEP IN

However, he said, if a conflict threatened then the United Nations should intervene with peace-keeping forces.

He said he was unrepentant in this view "even after two days of talks in Paris," an apparent reference to reluctance

Should Use All Talents For Party

OTTAWA (CP) — Centennial Commissioner John Fisher said Friday Canadians should use their own talents, or at least hire Canadian advisers, to plan 1967 celebrations.

"If we're going to have a birthday party, let's bake our own cake," he said. "The best fun in having a birthday party is preparing for it—and not calling in the caterers".

Mr. Fisher was interviewed on the matter by some community officials, notably Fort Erie, Ont., to hire United States show-business consultants to plan their centenary celebrations.

There is a wealth of talent available among Canadians to do the job, he said. If a town doesn't want to entrust it to a local person, it can get help from the larger centres.

Most of the big Canadian advertising agencies have knowledge of how to organize a parade, put on an exhibition or dig into the past history of small centres for centenary ideas.

URGE SELF-HELP

"We've been trying to impress anyone with the idea of using self-help in this, and to make it a grassroots celebration. Everyone shouldn't depend on the government doing everything for them—nor should they, in my opinion, hire outside Americans to run their shows."

Centennial of Confederation Commissioner Mr. Fisher heads jointly with Montreal poet Robert Choquette, is responsible for managing the big federal projects which will be undertaken to mark Canada's birthday anniversary.

It is also trying to encourage every community, national

Panama Takes Final Steps To Sever Relations

Nikita Throws Support Behind Panamanians

PANAMA CITY (AP) — U.S. embassy personnel were bused safely to the Canal Zone today after Panama took the final step in severing diplomatic relations with the United States.

Most U.S. embassy staff members and their dependents were evacuated to the Canal Zone Friday night shortly before an anti-American students' demonstration and several hours after Panama said it was recalling the remainder of its diplomatic staff from Washington.

Panama asked the United States to recall its embassy staff from here as final, U.S. State department officials said the request did not apply to consular officials, Peace Corps volunteers or members of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Because of the exceptions, the United States does not recognize the break as final, U.S. officials also indicated that President Johnson's troubleshooter, Edwin M. Martin, planned to remain in Panama. Peace efforts are expected to continue in hopes of a deadlock between the two countries over the 1903 treaty which gave the United States perpetual control over the canal.

ORDERED BREAK

President Robert Chiari ordered a break in diplomatic relations with the United States Jan. 10—4 day after violence erupted on the Canal Zone—but retained some of his diplomatic staff in Washington.

The Panamanian government asked Costa Rica to handle Panamanian interests in the United States. Costa Rica also handles diplomatic matters for the United States in Panama.

Pontiac Doctors Transfer Blood From Corpses to Living Persons

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—Russian accomplishments with blood transfusions spurred a Michigan research team to discover how corpses could provide the blood to keep injured persons alive in the battlefield or in disaster areas.

Dr. Jack Kevorkian and researchers Neal Nicol and Edwin Rea of Pontiac General Hospital announced Friday they have transferred 400 known direct transfusions of blood from human corpses to living persons.

The process, Kevorkian said, is a simple one "with what appear to be tremendous military possibilities."

Kevorkian had read Russian medical reports in which described the taking of blood from persons who had just died, storing it and then transfusing it into living patients.

He asked our department head, Dr. Alan A. Marks, if we could try to repeat the Russian experiments," Kevorkian said. "He didn't think we could do it work, but he gave us a go-ahead."

Kevorkian and his assistants gave blood from corpses to living volunteers after storing it 12 to 15 days—without adding the chemicals which are always put in stored blood to prevent coagulation," he said.

Then we made the transfusions. The Russians said this would work and it proved it to ourselves.

The next logical step — the direct transfer of blood from a dead person to a living patient. This was something the Russians hadn't done.

"Except for one, no one became a volunteer, and we knew how corpses could provide the blood to keep injured persons alive in the battlefield or in disaster areas.

This turned out to be Nicol. Although a dead person's body may be tapped up to six hours after death, the team worked quickly and transferred 400 cubic centimetres within half hour.

"Nicol never flinched and he calmed any uneasiness that others who might have felt about the experiment," Kevorkian said. "And after we finished the second experiment, just about anybody in the hospital would have been willing to do it."

Another important discovery came because the second and third subjects were persons injured in automobile accidents. Both had suffered broken necks and the doctors noticed that the blood from the jugular vein in the neck, as in the first transfusion.

"We had to drain the blood from the heart—which yielded about three cubic centimetres (about half a pint)," he said. "This has its advantages, since it doesn't necessitate filling the body to get the blood into the neck and depend on the travitational flow."

In each case, researchers had talked with friends and family of the deceased to determine whether there had been any history of jaundice or liver disease.

De Gaulle Reported Ready To Recognize Red China

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

French President Charles de Gaulle is reported ready to recognize Red China and President Johnson is ready to let go with a mighty blast at Paris when de Gaulle makes his official announcement.

This new diplomatic development, with its unsettled undercurrents, is likely to deepen discord between Paris and Washington.

While British and a few other Western allies recognize Communist China, none of the major Western allies has taken the step as has Ottawa.

Therefore, in Washington's eyes, de Gaulle's decision will be the first major gesture in the nature of a rapport with the Chinese, opening new fissions in the Western camp and bringing up the question of just how long the U.S. can effectively continue to battle against the admittance of Red China to the United Nations.

While some American authorities cannot discuss the prospective French move except in terms of boiling rage, there are at least two views developing U.S. diplomatic quarters, one of which gives hope that the discord can be modified and contained.

The old argument is that de Gaulle is indeed pursuing a mischievous role in relations with the anglo-saxons, his way of detaching the British and the Americans.

He had slammed the door on Britain's entry into the European Common Market in a most embarrassing public way a year ago and now he is about to embarrass the new U.S. president with public recognition of the Chinese, just at a time when Johnson's foreign policy is showing signs of weakness in the Panama crisis.

The other view, and this appears to be a growing one, is that de Gaulle is not seeking revenge against the U.S. for attempting to wean away West Germany and Italy, but is thinking in terms of a "grand design" for the realistic world which may have to face in the decades ahead.

De Gaulle maintains it is a mistake to deal with the Soviet Union and the Chinese Reds at arm's length, that it is better to bring them into the western living room, to expose them to daily Western consultations and exchanges and so reduce the Communist frustrations that could lead to trouble.

J. C. Houston Is Chosen Chamber of Commerce Head

Elected to the Executive were Mr. Norman Keith, manager of the Bank of Montreal, 1st vice-president; Mr. George Hume, president of the Belleville Credit Bureau, 2nd vice-president and Mr. Fred Deacon, president of Deacon Bros., treasurer.

In his acceptance speech Mr. Houston said that the coming year would find the Chamber faced with a number of problems which should prove challenging. Uppermost would be the separation of the Industrial Commission from the Chamber of Commerce with its resulting decrease of budget.

He said he welcomed the challenge and with the calibre of men on the 1964 Board of Directors foresaw a successful year in surmounting these problems.

Mr. Houston indicated an increase in activities would be undertaken immediately. Observing an active membership drive to increase membership, he forecast the holding of from four to six general membership meetings this coming year, calling these meetings Chamber plans nights of banquets and issues debated. Outstanding guest speakers would also be featured, to familiarize members with action taken by other communities and Chambers of commerce.

More of the plans for 1964 would be submitted to the membership at a dinner meeting to be held January 29th in the Hotel Quinte at 6.15 p.m., he said.

Chamber Says Corporation Tax Is Too High

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce said today Canada should have a broadened tax base with more emphasis on sales taxes and reductions in both corporation and personal income taxes.

A bulky brief to the Carter royal commission on taxation from the Chamber said that personal income taxes should be reduced by 10 per cent—with a top rate of 60 per cent instead of 80—and the top rate of corporate taxes should be trimmed to 40 per cent from 50.

"We are convinced that the corporation tax rate is too high and is a contributing factor to the economic slowdown in recent years. We believe that the basic solution is a reduction in the rates rather than simply the tax incentive approach practised in recent years."

The brief said that tax incentives should be kept to a minimum. While they lightened the load on qualifying taxpayers, other taxpayers had to carry an increased burden.

The affect of high rates of personal income tax on incentive wasn't clear. "It does appear, however, that in many instances the tax clearly discourages people from using their full potential of capital and talent in the strengthening of Canada's economy. To this extent, high personal income taxes are hostile to the national interest."

The brief said the Chamber holds strong objections to any tax policies that tend to discourage foreign investment. Another recommendation was that no capital gains tax be implemented.

YMCA Sunday

Plans and all details for the "Y.M.C.A. Week", January 19th-26th, have been completed and "Y-Week" in Belleville gets underway tomorrow with "Y Sunday" that will be observed by most local churches.

A special Church service is being held at 11.00 a.m. at the Wesleyan Methodist Church to which members of the Y.M.C.A. Board of Directors, the Y's Men's Club and members of other service clubs have been invited to attend. This church service is sponsored by the Y's Men's Club.

YOUR FUTURE HEALTH DEPENDS ON YOU

With new methods for more accurate diagnosis and "miracle" drugs which can be depended upon to produce a desired result, almost every disease can be cured or lived with if you consult a physician before it is too late.

In this modern age, self-treating is often a waste of time and money for a prescription can save you much sickness-time. And, should you have a serious condition, you endanger your future good health.

UNEMPLOYMENT · Per Cent of Labor Force

WINTER UNEMPLOYMENT PICTURE BETTER—An estimated 5.1 per cent of Canada's labor force — 346,000 persons—were unemployed at mid-December, 1963, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and federal labor department report. The figures reflected an increase in unemployment from mid-November, when 4.5 per cent of the labor force was out of work, but the jump was described as unusually small for mid-winter. The percentage for December, 1962, was 6.3 and for December, 1961, 6.4. (CP Newsmap)

City Public School Board Studies Sites Carefully

The selection of sites for future elementary school construction is not a hit or miss policy determined merely by the availability of vacant land.

On the other hand a great deal of planning must go into site selection if the future classroom need of a community is to be filled.

To facilitate the selection of school sites must take into consideration vacant or partially developed land available in the area to be served, the topographic features of the terrain, location of main highways and the rate and order of development of the residential areas.

All of these considerations were taken into account by members of the Belleville Public School Board when last autumn two new school sites were purchased in north Belleville.

One of the new sites is between Parkdale and No. 14 highway, and the other on the east side of No. 14 in the North Park Subdivision.

Choice of the two sites was mainly the result of a survey undertaken by the board's administrator L. A. Kells, and city planning engineer P. J. Beamish.

The result of the survey, taking into account above considerations, was that there will be heavy residential development in northwest Belleville.

NORTHWEST AREA

The northwest Belleville area, bounded by the double-track Canadian National Railways, Moira River, Highway 401 and the western city limits presently has a population of about 2,000 persons. When fully developed, it is expected that this area will need sufficient accommodation for an additional 6,000 persons.

This means that the elementary public school system would then have to provide for about 1,500 pupils or 60 classrooms. The three existing schools provide 29 classrooms.

Other sites for proposed future schools have already been acquired while selection of a third site is suggested as result of the survey.

This site in all probability would be located in the West Park Village housing sub-division now being developed west of Sidney Street.

SEPARATE SCHOOLS

The Belleville Separate School board is also looking to the future and is planning another school. In this case the location will be chosen following a city-wide survey to determine the greatest concentration of separate school supporters with school age children.

The Bay of Quinte District High School Board is also planning another school with the location for this building expected to be in West Belleville.

The High School has more than the city school population to consider.

It must also provide accommodation for students in the high school area, taking in Sidney, Thurlow, Tyendinaga, and Ameliasburgh townships, along with the village of Frankford.

In this case present elementary school enrolments in all these municipalities is taken into consideration in order that future high school accommodation requirements might be determined.

Fire Marshal To Probe Blaze At Palmerston

PALMERSTON (CP)—An investigation into an early-morning fire which damaged five stores and destroyed four apartments in a block in the centre north of Stratford, is being made by the Ontario fire marshal's office.

The fire caused an unspecified amount of damage and forced 10 persons into the street in their night clothes in a temperature of about 10 degrees above zero.

Four of the five apartments were destroyed and nothing was salvaged from them.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon McLachlan and their son Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McDonald, their son Roger, 13, and daughter Gail, 11, Mrs. Margaret Mason and her 13-year-old daughter Cyrstal and 10-year-old son Guy and Glen Collop, who lived above his fruit store, were left homeless by the blaze.

The fruit market, a meat market, a barber shop, a shoe store and a grocery were damaged.

Firemen from nearby Harriston and Listowel fought the fire for almost five hours.

Rotarians Will Hear Address on YMCA

Annual Meeting Of St. John Ambulance Held

The annual meeting of the Belleville Juniors of St. John Ambulance was held in the St. John rooms on Front St.

This branch comprises four divisions — Ambulance, Ambulance Cadet, Nursing and Nursing Cadets. Mr. Fred Stock was in the chair. Reports indicated an active year in all divisions in service to the community, in supplying cash first aid and first aid training to its citizens. The organization made itself available at all public and community gatherings, prepared to meet any emergency and in many cases proved a valuable aid. Planning for activities in all divisions reported, with the objective in all being to win St. Saint John's service in 1964.

The financial report by the treasurer, Mr. D. McDonald, showed a deficit. This was due to not receiving the financial aid anticipated from the 1963 budget was made up. This will result in some curtailment in expenditures for supplies and equipment in 1964. The Corps Superintendent, Mrs. H. Hodgson spoke of the desirability of a Corps Staff Officer to look after the Corps duties of records and routine work.

The training program of the Saint John branch in 1963 resulted in the awarding of 231 junior first aid certificates, issued to Girl Guides, Scouts, Saint John Cadets and High School Cadets. Senior certificates were awarded to 195 in first aid and home nursing.

Superintendent Hodgson reported forty four meetings with a total of 2,578 hours of instruction given in the Belleville community.

Some idea of the extent of communities served can be considered from the community projects at which Saint John First Aiders were on duty — Canoe racing, United Appeal, Santa Claus Parade and many others. The membership strength in the Division is twenty two, and it is aimed to add new members to this number by a recruiting campaign.

Superintendent Jack Sproule reported a good year for its first, with the distinction of winning the Lieut.-Governor Ritchie Trophy in competition with other Ontario Groups. All Cadets have qualified for proficiency and as well as taking their own training have met with the senior group for the Surgeon's lectures.

The nursing division has come under the ambulance division for training and supervision, due to its superintendent resigning on account of moving from Belleville. Fortunately in the new year Mrs. A. W. Hume, R.N., has been appointed to this group as superintendent, and training and service as a division will be resumed. Additional recruits will be welcomed, including registered nurses. Dr. James Richards has received his warrant as Surgeon of the Nursing Division.

The nursing cadet division superintendent, Mrs. H. W. Reid, reports that the group played second in the A. R. Bach Trophy in competition work with other nursing cadets of the province. Dr. James Scott has received his warrant as Surgeon of the Nursing Cadets. As with other divisions the cadets performed considerable public service.

The humanitarian work of the members of St. John Ambulance is done by its members voluntary and without charge, and is made financially possible through the public's contribution to the United Appeal of which it is a member.

PUC Wants Early Parley On Meeting Water Needs

TRENTON — Public Utilities Commission chairman, Charles Hilton has asked for an early meeting with at least three members of town council to discuss Trenton's future need for water and ways and means of increasing the present daily water supply.

At a meeting of the PUC on Thursday, Commissioner C. A. Baker said that new industries might be discouraged from coming to Trenton by a potential lack of water for their needs. Water supply from wells and a river intake are sufficient now to serve the town and the RCAF station to the east, but when the well water supply is Paw in summer due to drought conditions, and the canning factory is in full operation the utilities system itself just prepared to satisfy all the needs.

In November, a representative of the Ontario Development Corporation Limited came before the commission with suggestions and recommendations to how the town's present water supply might be supplemented. The suggestions which were shown to the commissioners and their guests, which told in full of the plan for Trenton would go about providing an extra supply. Thursday, Mr. Hilton reported that he had been borrowed from the company and shown to the councillors at the commission meeting. Deputy Reeve MacDonald will select three councillors at next Monday's council meeting to set a date for the meeting.

The commission has voted Thursday to turn on and supply water to six hydrants in the Western Parts of Trenton, and the Bridge Street hydrants, and they must not be operated without permission from the utilities office, the utilities will also be responsible for repairs to the hydrants.

The commission also voted to sell a 1-1500 KVA transformer, 6,600 volts primary to 2300/2400 volts secondary, to Reliance Power Equipment Ltd. of Montreal, Que. The commission has no use for the transformer and the $1,400 was offered by the Quebec firm.

"6,600 is a double voltage" said utilities manager James Pay. "If we could get rid of it now, we never will."

The motion was passed with alacrity.

All commissioners were in complete agreement about turning over the Santa Claus Parade to the Trenton Boy Scout Association.

Harold Keefer Is President Of Concert Body

TRENTON — Harold Keefer was elected to head the Trenton Community Concert Association for 1964, at a meeting held this week. Mr. Keefer has been associated with the local group for a number of years.

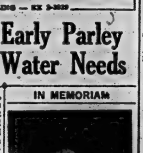
Also elected to the executive were: Dr. J. E. Richmond, Mike Fahy, Mrs. Fahy, Mrs. Donald, Robert Smithrim, Mrs. Keefer, Mrs. Smithrim and Mrs. T. Hinks. Mrs. Donald and Roy Cornish will handle publicity.

Airmen Are Leading In Dart League Race

TRENTON — With four more games in the season's play, Airmen are leading in the Trenton district dart league with 116. No. 6 Repair Depot Sgts' Mess is second with 102 and No. 6 Repair Depot third place with 88. Last games for the season will be played on February 25.

Standings: Thirty-eight scoring: Bar Flys 3; One Half Hundreds 2, Sgts. Mess 2, Tentatives 4, Airmen 7; Eric 4, Glen Miller Wickens 7, Hasty Peas 4, Bar Cats 4, Hasty Pea Toppers 5.

High scorers Thursday were Bill Smith of the Bar Flys and Alex Wood of One Half Hundreds, both with a 140.



Cancer Group, VON To Hold Joint Meet

TRENTON — W. J. S. Malvis, associate professor of surgery in the Department of Orthopaedics at Queen's University, will be the guest speaker at this year's combined annual meetings of the Trenton branch of the Cancer Society and the Victorian Order of Nurses.

The annual banquet will be held at Canadian Legion on Wednesday, January 29.

Officers for the year will be elected by both groups.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. DAVID WARDLE
January 19th, 1957.

FRASER — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Mary, father Fred Fraser who passed away January 19, 1945.
Death's scythe is gone forever,
His hand we shall not touch,
Still we have so many memories,
Of a dad whom we loved so much.
Sadly missed, lovingly remembered by daughter Lorna and husband Ronald and grandchildren.

DOLLASON — In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Mary, who passed away January 19, 1943.
Life's sweetest gift is remembrance.
Sister.

ARGENT — In loving memory of a dear dad who passed away 20 years ago January 19, 1944.
Like falling leaves the years slip by,
But loving memories never die.
But in our hearts he's always near.
Always remembered by his daughter Catharine and son-in-law Ronald and grandchildren.

CARTER — In loving memory of Wilfred (Bill) Carter, who was killed January 19, 1962.
He had no one his last farewell,
He said goodbye to none.
The heavenly gates were opened,
He heard a voice call,
"Come sit and think of you,
The things you loved so much,
I wonder why you had to die,
I have a chance to say goodbye.
Though out of sight you're ever near,
Still missed, and always dear.
You will live with me in memory,
Until the end of time.
—Always remembered by Gladys and family.

CLARK — In loving memory of my father and grandfather, George R. Clark, who passed away January 19th, 1952.
Dad's chair is empty,
His pipe is put away,
Memories are treasures,
More precious than silver and gold.
The picture of a silver father,
Whose memory will never grow old.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Leona and grandson Earl.

CLARK — In loving memory of a dear grandfather, George R. Clark, who passed away January 19th, 1952.
Sadly missed is a picture,
His charming ways and smiling face.
Are a picture we recall,
He had a kindly word for each,
And died with love for all.
—Ever remembered by his grandson Oscar.

DAPOE — In loving memory of Albert Dafoe who passed away January 19th, 1962.
Those we love we never lose,
For those they with us,
Loved, remembered, treasured,
Always in memory.
—Ever remembered by his family.

FRASER — In loving memory of my husband, Mary Fraser who passed away January 19, 1962.
He holds a place apart,
Sunshine falls on windows fall,
No distance can divide,
Those who live in gardens,
We still walk side by side.
—Ever remembered by his wife Ida.

FRASER — In loving memory of our dear father, Mary Fraser who passed away January 19, 1962.
What we would give to clasp your hand again,
Hear your voice, see your smile,
To walk with you and chat awhile,
As you who have a father,
Cherish him while you may,
For you'll never know the heart-ache,
Unless you lose one.
—Lovingly missed and sadly remembered by Lorna and John.

FRASER — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Fred Fraser, who died January 19, 1962.
We had a father with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth untold,
Without farewell, he fell asleep,
With only memories for us to keep.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by son Malcolm and daughter-in-law Dorothy and grandchildren David and Kevin.

NURSE — In loving memory of my dear sister Eloise Nurse who passed away January 19, 1960.
You are not forgotten sister,
Nor ever will you be,
In life and memory last,
We will remember thee.
—Lovingly remembered by sister Thelma and brother-in-law Al.

Kennedy Says Disputants Will Settle Issue

TOKYO (AP)—Attorney-General Kennedy predicted today the disputants in the Malaysian crisis will gather around the conference table to settle their differences.

At a press conference, Kennedy disclosed he will confer again with Sukarno in Jakarta next Wednesday after an exchange of views with President Diosdado Macapagal of The Philippines in Manila and Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia in Kuala Lumpur.

Kennedy, appearing with Indonesia's Foreign Minister Subandrio, said an Asian summit meeting of Malaysia, Indonesia and The Philippines is "very possible."

The Philippines, which claims the Malaysian state of Sabah (formerly British North Borneo), also opposes the new federation, but less vehemently than Indonesia. Macapagal has tried to moderate Sukarno's "crush Malaysia" campaign. Sukarno regards Malaysia as a form of British neo-colonialism.

FEELS 'ENCOURAGED'

The 38-year-old brother of the late President John F. Kennedy said he was "encouraged" by his conversations with Sukarno during the last two days. Kennedy, accompanied by his wife, Ethel, is on his first major diplomatic assignment for President Johnson.

Britain was the chief force behind the creation of Malaysia last September. It is composed of the former British territories of Singapore, Sabah, Sarawak and North Borneo.

Indonesia is insisting on the withdrawal of British troops from the tense Sabah and Sarawak frontiers before it agrees to a cease-fire in the guerrilla skirmishes there or peace talks with Malaysia. Sabah and Sarawak share the island of Borneo with Indonesian Kalimantan.

New Issue Canadian Bonds Well Received

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A new issue of $350,000,000 Government of Canada bonds highlighted the week's market, with all maturities well received, although the new issue led to a fractional easing of long-term Canada prices.

The issue consists of $60,000,000, 3¼ per cent due Feb. 1, 1956, at 99.18 to yield 4.38 per cent; $100,000,000, 3¼ per cent due Feb. 1, 1968, at 96.10 to yield 4.50 per cent; $130,000,000, 4¼ per cent due Jan. 15, 1985, at 96.25 to yield 4.71 per cent and $50,000,000, five per cent due June 1, 1988, at 98.25 to yield 5.27 per cent.

The short-term government market rose slightly, with 3¼ per cent Oct. 1, 1964, closing at 99.40, up .10 cents; 3¼ per cent Feb. 1, 1965, closing at 99.20, up .10 cents; and 3¾ Sept. 1, 1965, at 99.15, up .05 cents.

The provincial and municipal markets were quiet.

The 91-day treasury bills declined slightly, selling at 3.71 per cent compared with 3.80 per cent a week ago.

The day-today rate declined to 3¾ per cent from 3½ per cent a week ago.

Unborn Baby Will Be Given Blood Injection

QUEBEC (CP) — Sometime in the next few weeks, a team at the Winnipeg General Hospital will give an unborn baby a fresh injection of blood to save its life.

This is the one baby in 120 whose mother's blood is an Rh-negative type and whose system produces antibodies to destroy the foetus it bears.

Since 1947, the treatment in such cases has been to deliver the infant as early as possible and give it a complete change of blood.

But 30 per cent of such babies have died in the womb.

The Winnipeg hospital will introduce a method to save these that have evolved recently in New Zealand.

Dr. Bruce Chown, professor in the department of medicine at the University of Manitoba, described it this week at the Canadian Public Health Society of Clinical Investigation.

The new method involves taking a sample of fluid from the placenta, in which the foetus rests, and analyzing it to determine the state of the unborn child.

If it is critical, and indicates the baby will die if not born soon, an injection of fresh blood is made with the help of an x-ray into the abdomen of the foetus.

This has resulted in the survival of three of four infants in New Zealand.

The method has been tried once already in Winnipeg, but without success.

Toronto Used Car Dealer Gets 6 Months

TORONTO (CP) — Judge Garth Barton Friday sentenced Neil Brooks, a Toronto used car dealer, to six months' imprisonment and warned other dealers that public indignation has trained a spotlight on their "white collar frauds."

Brooks was convicted on a charge of false pretences after the judge earlier testified he had lost a car and $800 in a car deal with Brooks. The car dealer also was ordered to pay Silverster $1,000.

"The public is aroused and concerned. I hope this sentence will be a deterrent to others who practise this sort of thing, Judge Moore said.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's decision to use tax money drawn from all parts of Canada to subsidize a performing arts centre in Ottawa is being regarded here as probably a first step towards national capital municipality.

The $9,000,000 theatre and concert hall is to be built as a federal government project marking the 1967 centenary of confederation. Choice of a site is currently a local controversy, with the city of Ottawa pressing for choice of land it owns.

Since the hey-day of vaudeville and touring artists, Ottawa has been without proper facilities for even the few road companies or orchestras which touch this city on their way to Montreal and Toronto. A large movie house has to convert its showings for a day or two, or a high school auditorium used, to accommodate live performances.

Now that the federal government has committed itself to the new theatre complex, longcherished ideas for other improvements in Ottawa's attractions as the capital of a mature country are being dusted off.

The air force and the civil aviation branch of the transport department have, for instance, would like to modernize the government's fleet of planes used for VIP travel. When Prime Minister Pearson went to Paris this week he had to travel in a RCAF Yukon transport, refitted out for passenger use—steady but slow and exhausting. HAS ONE JET

The transport department, in addition to a number of lumbering old Dakotas, has three Viscounts and a new Lockheed Jetstar. The Viscounts are the new work horses of the short-haul air lines. The jetstar is fast, but small—carrying only eight passengers plus cabin steward to serve refreshments to them.

With the need for faster, larger and more comfortable travel facilities for prime ministers, leaders and important visitors the country needs to impress to keep up with the Diefenbaker Joneses, thought is again being given to Ottawa's accommodation for state guests.

Members of the Royal family and a few really top-flight foreign dignitaries have previously Government House, residence of the Governor-General, but while it is a rooomy edifice the facilities are taxed hard during anything longer than an overnight visit.

Most other countries have state guest houses in their national capitals, like Blair House in Washington. The external affairs department has in fact had a covetous eye on Earnscliffe, once the home of Sir John A. Macdonald, as Canada's first prime minister.

25 BRITISH PROPERTY

The 25-year stone Victorian mansion overlooking the Ottawa River now is British property, the United Kingdom high commissioner's official residence.

The former Diefenbaker government bought it as a memorial to the father of the Conservative party in Canada, and had it restored as an historic site. The property might yet be deeded to the Canadian government and a portion of it stay guest house and government reception centre.

And one other development towards official recognition of a long-felt need, or evil, is reported to be out of the planment stage and into the "under active consideration" file: The establishment of a proprietary cocktail lounge for MPs and senators and the services of wines in the parliamentary restaurant.

OTTAWA (CP) — The proposed National Centre for the Performing Arts in Ottawa will contain a concert hall, playhouse, studio and salon for events ranging from large symphony concerts and operas to small recitals and receptions.

Acting Works Minister Gaglardi, announcing this Thursday, said a Montreal firm of architects that designed major theatres in Charlottetown, Montreal and Vancouver has been appointed to design and supervise construction of the new centre here.

It is to be built as a federal project to mark Canada's centennial in 1967.

Mr. Gaglardi said that a site for the centre in Ottawa will be chosen soon.

It will contain a concert hall with 2,300 seats for symphony concerts, opera, ballet and musical productions seating 1,100 for drama, chamber music and soloists; a studio for 250 for experimental theatre, amateur groups and rehearsals; and a 100-seat salon for small recitals, receptions and meetings.

Breast Cancer Treatment Is Subject of Talk

A study of 265 cases showed that those who lived more than five years—compared to one in 10 without the radiation.

Dr. Norman C. Delarue, of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons meeting here that the radiation treatment destroys the microscopic extensions from the heart of the tumor.

Surgery alone removed the main tumor, but could release cancer cells from the extensions into the rest of the body.

About 20 papers on cancer have been read at the annual reunion of the college, which ends tonight with President Jean Lesage of Quebec addressing a banquet.

Others have pointed up the variety of approached towards the disease and the advances being made by researchers.

While pre-operative radium is advocated for breast cancers, a surgeon earlier this week said extensive surgery alone is preferable where cancer of the uterus was concerned.

SCATTERS CELLS

All papers stressed the need for early treatment — though cases of survival of cancer that had passed through the early stage were known.

Dr. Delarue told reporters Friday surgeons can cure 80 per cent of lung cancer cases if they catch the initial stage, when the cancer could only be detected through analysis of tissue.

Cancer cells had been accidentally spotted during analysis of tissue taken for other purposes. And prompt action had prevented a serious onset of the disease.

Dr. Delarue said a program sets in September of mucous samples in Toronto during the last year had turned up two cases, but now both the cancer was at such an early stage it could be detected by other means.

Ontario May Tax Cigarettes Says Paper

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Ontario government is considering a tax on cigarettes as a new source of revenue.

The newspaper says a tax of 10 per cent could yield the province between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000 a year.

"With the release of the U.S. surgeon-general's report on the dangers of smoking, government officials at Queen's Park are reported to be taking an even closer look at a cigarette tax," the newspaper says.

"The theory is that the concer references in the report have scared some smokers, but many will keep on smoking just the same; that, human nature being what it is, persons expect to be punished for doing something wrong and that there is no better penalty than taxation."

Four provinces — Quebec, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island — now have cigarette taxes.

The Globe and Mail says government officials are also listening to tobacco growers and tobacco firms which insist that cigarettes are already underheavy federal taxation and subject to a three-per-cent retail sales tax in Ontario, and argue that further taxes would reduce consumption and bring a drop in revenue.

17 Victims Of Prostitution Ring Killed

LEON, Mexico (AP) — Police said Friday they found 17 teen-age girls and two infants had been uncovered in a search for victims of a prostitution ring that killed to keep secrets.

Angel Mota Ayala, a state police agent directing the investigation, said the number killed is believed to be 19 or more.

"It could go higher," he said. All but the bodies of two girls uncovered in a house here were found at an isolated ranch near Leon, 200 miles west of Mexico City, where the ring's alleged operations were centered.

The remaining two bodies were found at a house of prostitution in San Francisco del Rincon, Mota Ayala said.

Police Chief Enrique Feres Salazar of Guanajuato State, where the ring was smashed earlier this week, said the investigation indicated the disciplinary killings had been going on for almost 10 years. He said the ring secretly buried its victims.

Feres Salazar said the search for bodies has been spread into six cities. He said Maria del Jesus Gonzalez is the leader of the ring, and her sister Delfina, 42, are accused as the leaders of the ring.

Hubert Scott, Roadmaster, Retires, 48 Years' Service

Although officially retired, from the Canadian National Railways after 48 years' service as section hand, track foreman, and finally roadmaster in the Rideau area, Hubert Scott, 31 Crestview Ave., says his retirement is in name only.

"I am going to keep busy" the 64-year-old railroader said and his basement woodworking shop and backyard garden are proof that—both winter and summer.

Mr. Scott retired at the end of the December and last night at Club Canara, former railway associates tendered him a retirement party.

At last night's party, approximately 180 railway officials and fellow workers from St. Thomas and London to Montreal were in attendance.

The group enjoyed a dinner following which Mr. Scott was presented with a projector and screen and an electric jointer to further augment his basement workshop.

Mrs. Scott was presented with a china centre piece floral arrangement.

As roadmaster with the Rideau area, Mr. Scott was in charge of trackage between Marysville and Prescott with headquarters at Kingston. A few years ago another hand in that area gave him their own retirement party at Ivy Lea.

NATIVE OF YOUNG MILLS

A native of the Young Mills area in the Brockville district, Mr. Scott commenced his railway career as section hand on the Grand Trunk Railway under his father, who was section foreman in that area.

Two years later he became a section foreman and in 1945 became yard foreman at Belleville. The next year he became assistant roadmaster at Hamilton and London and in 1948 was named roadmaster in the Capreol division.

In September 1958 he came back to Belleville as roadmaster and with the reorganization of the GNR was transferred to Kingston in 1961.

Speaking of track maintenance, Mr. Scott says that the advent of the diesel engine saw track upkeep made easier for the section hands.

"I don't know the reason for it but the diesels made it easier for us," he said.

CARPENTRY A HOBBY

During the five years in which he has lived on Crestview Ave. he has finished a handsome basement recreation room and built new kitchen cupboards for his wife.

He fully intends to keep up his carpentry and cabinet making—but purely as a hobby.

In between his basement carpentry sessions he will not lack for fellowship. He is a long time member of the Masonic Order and also is a Knights of Templar. Sheridan is a member of the O.E.S. and White Shrine of Jerusalem.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott attend St. Andrew's Church here.

There are two sons, Gerald of Belleville and Bruce of St. Thomas. Gerald followed in his father's steps as a railroader for a few years and building foreman here. Bruce is a master plumber at St. Thomas.

Nonsense!

J. B. Humphrey says that people who have driven for several years without an accident are the main cause of traffic mishaps.

Mr. Humphrey made the remark at a Department of Highways road safety workshop in Sudbury, according to two independent sources, The Canadian Press and a public relations firm retained by the All Canada Insurance Federation of which Mr. Humphrey is president. So there seems to be little chance that this is a case of misquotation.

Is Mr. Humphrey right? Of course he is. He has statistics to prove it. Seventy per cent of all insurance claims are made by drivers who have driven for three or more years without an accident.

Similarly, the main cause of murders is persons who have learned to read and write, the main cause of patricide is children and the main cause of death in Canada is hospitals —more people die in hospitals than out of them.

There is something wrong with these statements and it is not the result of a woeful ignorance of the English language. It can only be an even more deplorable misunderstanding of the accurate interpretation of statistics.

Neither flaw is one which does much credit to a man who is president of the All Canada Insurance Federation. Of course, it is true, Mr. Humphrey intimates, that a driver who has had the good fortune to drive an automobile for a number of years is in danger of acquiring a false feeling of confidence. Most drivers, though, have enough narrow escapes to cure this. Maybe Mr. Humphrey has fallen victim of the disease which he fears in others—he has been handling statistics for so long, so successfully, that he has been led down the garden path to a totally unwarranted conclusion without ever being aware that he has strayed off the straight and narrow path of logic.

The Poor and the Rich

Sunday evening the CBC, on its program "Horizons," re-ran a program on poverty in Canada, films portraying the plight of five families, living in widely varying circumstances in widely separated parts of Canada—but all plagued by wavering struggle to keep expenditures within limited incomes.

Monday we came across an item which the New York Times published before Christmas, describing some gifts for people who have everything else. The list included a $200 gold cigarette to store the tranquilizer pills needed by the creative executive; a $18,500 submarine for two, a $12,000 double-sized shoehorn, a pair of gold-and-coral dice at $650 and, for the dowager who just loves to get into the kitchen, a pair of mink overalls for $2,200.

Some will say there is nothing new in this contrast between poverty and riches, others will recall what happened to Marie Antoinette who thought that those who lacked bread should eat cake.

Both groups miss the point. The luxury items represent an expenditure of materials and manpower, of course, but in this part of the world it is no longer true, as it was in times past, that this material and this manpower could have been diverted to help the poor. Indeed, it can be argued that the manufacture and sale of luxury items helped save others from poverty. At least the money spent on these playthings was not invested in machinery to produce useful goods more cheaply—and thus throw more people out of work.

There was a time when the eradication of poverty appeared to depend on the ability to produce enough goods for all. Today we know that this is no automatic answer. Far from making a problem easier to solve, this merely enhances its complexity.

Reversing the Usual Procedure

Several of the leaders of the Zanzibar revolt are rumored to have been trained in Peking.

It is reported that a correspondent of Communists China's "New China News Agency" arrived in Zanzibar two days before the revolution.

Unless somebody in Peking has an extraordinarily long nose for news, it would seem as if China News had received an inside tip.

Things will have come to a pretty pass if the day arrives when governments have to keep tabs on newspaper reporters in order to learn what kind of developments are brewing.

Politician's Alphabetical Guide Is Key to What's What

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — With Prime Minister Pearson due back from the palms of diplomacy in Guy Farce, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker hosts from the fishing grounds off the Gulf Islands, and Parliament scheduled to open in precisely a month to this very day now's the time for the up-dated 1964 Revised Edition of The Working Politician's Alphabetical Guide to the Big House High on This Windy Hill.

This is a short A-to-Z run-through of the political code-words, required by anyone who aspires to membership in the "in-group."

First published in 1957, re-revised in '61 and now brought up to date, it provides a quick catalogue of the real meaning of some of the basic terms in the political double-talk inventory of the cobbledegook, Bureaucharter of Officialese.

Now, let us get on with the business:

. . . A is for Amendment . . . an obvious improvement to any bill which no responsible Government can possibly accept if the Opposition comes up with it first.

. . . B is for budget . . . that piece of financial sleight of hand with which Finance Minister can make big tax increases look little and little tax decreases look big.

. . . C is for consideration . . . what any bep Government routinely promises for propositions it hopes everybody will forget.

. . . D is for dialogue . . . a continuous exchange between two opposite sides of any issue, both completely out of communication with each other — without ever changing anybody's mind.

. . . E is for examination . . . what any Cabinet Minister always promises for any proposal by any delegation, in any circulation . . . that which always happens to taxes no matter what the Government, although when they're promising their way back into power.

. . . F is for federal policy . . . something only the President of the Bank of Canada, the finance minister and, more recently, Three Wise Men from Bay Street have the nerve to claim to understand, although not necessarily at the same time or in the same way.

. . . G is for government . . . the "in-group" dedicated to the proposition that theirs is the best of all possible administrations, capable of improvement only through more of the same . . . or, occasionally and doomsters . . . what the "in-group" always calls the "outmen" when discussing in opposition the infallible rightness of anything even including a bungled budget.

. . . H is for handout . . . what the Government always brands any bill by the NDP, no matter how really deserving or worthwhile the cause, when proposed by the Opposition . . . or managed news, processed and packaged to the Administration's advantage.

. . . I is for in due course . . . which is "code" for when the government is ready — and ready - and - not - a - second - before - so - you - might - as - well - forget - about - it shirt-on - Buster.

. . . J is for jellyfish . . . which is the polite political synonym for jerk or what the Opposition calls the Government backbenchers when they vote for something nobody really wants or bills they don't understand.

. . . K is for kite . . . sometimes flown by key cabinet ministers to test political wind and conveniently shot down if the weather isn't right.

. . . L is for liberals . . . what a lot of disgruntled Opposition backbenchers still miss you had to be in order to be certain of appointment to almost any Federal job by the former Conservative Government

. . . or for leak (see kite) or "Now for Pete's sake don't quote me on this, but . . . and what one even indirectly, but why don't you put it in the paper that . . . "

. . . M is for MP . . . one who hopes and probably prays that he'll draw a Cabinet post in that richest - of - all - political sweepstakes — the next-with-life-pension in the Senate.

. . . N is for National Unity . . . that nebulous state of the nation that the current dialogue is supposed to be all about.

. . . O is for opposition . . . the party set as solid as concrete in the constant there's nothing actually wrong with the Government that a quick change of — well, sure.

. . . P is for public interest . . . A fogey service behind which the Government claims sanctuary when asked political- or policy-making questions by the Opposition.

. . . Q is for question . . . interest for the Government to answer.

. . . is for royal commission . . . an old instrument for new dialogue . . . or a slow and easy cooling device for political hot potatoes.

. . . S is for security . . . something the Defence Minister invokes when the Opposition comes up with an awkwardly embarrassing enquiry.

. . . T is for taxation . . . that which is forever coming down before elections and inevitably going up even higher after.

. . . U is for unconditionally . . . what the Opposition always says any deal the Government measure is if it can't dream up something more specific.

. . . V is for velocity . . . new code-word for the quality the finance minister attributes to the economy when the direction is up.

. . . W is for whip . . . the Joe who stays on the job in the Commons when the rest of the gang knocks off and "pairs" for the long-week-ending Tuesday-to-Thursday Club.

. . . X is for X . . . just X . . . the ultimate political status symbol on the ballot.

. . . Y is for you . . . what the MPs say when they're for something, but not enough to stand up and be counted.

. . . Z is for zealous . . . that which all hands are for the public interest.

East Neglected

Cape Breton Post

It is evident that the demand for a minister of agriculture applicable to Eastern Canada never would have arisen were it not that — in response to Western initiatives — it had become an established practice of more than a half century for the portfolio always to go somebody from west of the Great Lakes — usually an Albertan or a Saskatchewan man.

Mrs. William Irwin (nee Harriet Margaret) of Ontario Street has received word that her husband Pilot Officer William Irwin has arrived safely overseas.

30 YEARS AGO

January 18th, 1934

The year 1933 hit the bottom for building permits here. A steady decrease in the number of building permits issued in the city during the past five years is indicated by the latest report of the city engineer, for that period. The year 1933 hit the bottom with a total of only 35 permits at an estimated cost of construction of $29,700. Of the five years 1929 was the boom year with a total of 90 permits at an estimated cost of construction of $536,505. By years the following are the figures for the other three years: 1932, fifty-seven permits at estimated cost of construction of $173,500; 1931, eighty permits at estimated cost of construction of $221,900; 1930, one hundred and thirteen permits at an estimated cost of construction of $437,360.

Mr. E. J. Wilson went to Toronto today on business.

Miss Alice Doyle is spending the weekend in Toronto.

Miss Hilda Read and Mrs. Dan Hanna left today for Brockville where they will enter the Nurses' Training School Assignment which will be held there today and tomorrow.

Miss Eileen Harrison is spending the weekend in Toronto.

Miss Rose McKibbon is spending the weekend with friends in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Wilson of North Bay are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Cook, Ann Street.

Mr. George T. Woodley was unanimously elected chairman of the Board of Education at the inaugural meeting which was held last evening. The following members were present: H. W. Ackerman, J. H. Chesher, John Elliott, William Harvey, Phil Hubbs, Thomas Ed. D. O'Flynn, Fred B. Smith, Geo. T. Woodley, Arthur McGie, Mrs. Florence Deacon, Mrs. Alice Fee, A. B. Collins, Lt. Col. W. N. Ponton, Don C. Bleecker and John W. Cook.

In a hockey match here the Belleville Gunners sent the Kingston Collegiate Institute boys with a 4 to 2 defeat, and at the same time took the lead in the city league by which they have no losses. Kingston is trailing close with two to the good and Trenton is in third place. Hinchey and Armstrong played their usual keen, back-handed, checked and stick handled beautifully. Canning played his third clever game and was ably assisted by Goyer who is splendid defensively and rushes as occasion offers. He can always be relied upon. The following composed the Belleville team: Scott, Goyer, Canning, Symons, Whalen and Armstrong; subs Williams and Hay. The referee was Gilmour of Point Anne.

50 YEARS AGO

To Your Good Health

Braces Placed Over Teeth Do Not Loosen Good Ones

By JOSEPH C. HOLMER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What about braces for children's teeth? Some people tell me they're not worth the trouble and expense, and sometimes the teeth loosen and must be pulled!

My dentist tells me my 8-year-old daughter and 12-year-old son both need braces, since their "bite" isn't right. My daughter still occasionally sucks her thumb in her sleep.

I'm afraid I'll be sorry I don't take them both to an orthodontist. What do you think? — Mrs. C. D. C.

Well, first, I think "some people were completely off base and not correctly informed when they made that remark about "good teeth loosen and must be pulled." That just isn't so. Not in the way they put it.

Straightening and aligning teeth is not an overnight process. It takes time and intricate special appliances which may be "braces" or may in some cases be orthodontic fittings which exert a steady pull.

In consequence, the process costs money. Usually the cost is spread over some period of time. Is it worth the cost? That depends.

Some people don't have to think twice about the cost. They can spend the money and do it routinely because they want their children to have even teeth just for sake of appearance. And I'm all for it, if you can afford it. Appearance is of some significance.

For others, however, the purpose is much more than good looks. If the teeth don't meet properly, we talk it malocclusion — the "bite" isn't correct. This can cause a variety of problems later on—difficulty in chewing, faulty wearing-down of the teeth, crevices in which breath and cavities. Or throwing the jaw out of line.

Gradually moving the teeth into proper position does not loosen them. Indeed, if you have a tooth pulled, the adjacent ones sometimes tend to wander and will "drift" toward the open area, but do not become loose because of that.

However, in the process of straightening teeth (or even without that) it sometimes is necessary to remove a healthy tooth. This is because we sometimes have already a tooth in each parent but teeth from the other. I'm sure you've seen this plenty of times. There isn't enough space for all the teeth, in such instances, it may be necessary to take a healthy tooth in order to leave adequate room for the rest. That is vastly better than having the teeth jammed into too small a space, so they overlap and can't be cannot be effectively cleaned.

If your dentist sees the need for braces, he usually makes suggestions and take the youngsters to an orthodontist — a specialist who deals in such problems. The thumb-sucking may have had some bearing on the condition, but it's more habit than cause in most cases, and worth correcting.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there a specific test to detect the beginning of arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries? — E. S. T.

No. It's as subtle as trying to design a specific test "to detect the beginnings of getting old." Some of us age fast, some slow. This is also true of our arteries.

* *

Yes, also a very good reason. They are a potent drug, and evidently a good one, but in some cases they can have troublesome side-effects. They should be taken under medical supervision.

Letters to the Editor

Gives Facts, Figures About Health Unit

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

I have compiled the following facts, from articles in the papers and other reliable sources for the consideration of the residents of Hastings County.

Do you know what:

1. The total money expended for health services in Hastings County, less the city of Belleville and town of Trenton was $31,326 in 1962.

2. Hastings County is served at present by 29 local boards of health under the control of 12 MOH all of whom have full-time private practices and none of whom has special training in public health.

3. The financial statement of the Northumberland-Durham Health Unit for 1963 showed the counties' per capita expenditure, based on a population of 80,523 to be $2.5 cents. This included salaries for 27 full-time and 12 part-time employees.

4. In Carl Thompson's letter to the editor printed Dec. 31, 1963, he states that we cannot afford a Health Unit and that the salaries for the 16 employees to staff a Hastings County Health Unit would total $73,500 yet Northumberland-Durham have a unit staffed by 39 (full and part-time) for a total salary pay-out of $198,298.27. If all Hastings County employees are so much better remunerated, it is no wonder he says we cannot afford a Health Unit.

5. Public health service in Hastings County is given only by a part-time dentist to less than one-half of the population.

6. In one township the sanitary inspector is also the building inspector and welfare officer.

7. Government grants to hospitals for some phases of student education, e.g. progressive patient, which could not be fully utilized unless the hospital was situated in a County participating in a County Health Unit. Note on your tax bill that the Province of Ontario is not subsidizing county contributing to all other Health Units? Likewise, the government grants shown on your tax bill for education, welfare etc. are paid by us in our provincial taxes, but still are shown as grants on your tax bill.

8. If a Health Unit is forthcoming it would probably be policy to have a nurse stationed in each township throughout the County, not travelling from Belleville to Bancroft daily.

10. The public health of the Unit is not to administer social welfare, but to be organized and administered for the purpose of prevention of conditions which would lead for the requirements of same under the family physician by referring cases to the family physicians when necessary.

11. An editorial in the Ontario Intelligencer on May 3, 1963 pointed out that only 12 of the 55 Counties and Districts in Ontario have a higher infant mortality rate than Hastings.

12. It has been stated that most of us would prefer to take our children to the family physician when they are not feeling well, and this is probably true. But what of the children who die never having been noticeably ill?

13. The present cost of health services in milk is $21,226 is .868 mills. The proposed cost based on a population of 42,740 at $1 per capita, is $42,740 is 1.738 mills. The additional cost to municipalities in Hastings County for a Health Unit would be .870 mills.

May I close by saying that we cannot help but admire Dr. Donaldson for presenting the facts to the various groups as he has done. But at the same time not for personal gain I am sure, but because she does in her position of respect and responsibility at Belleville General Hospital, clearly recognize the need of a Health Unit.

Yours very truly,
R. C. Chisholm, Pres.
W. J. Shorey, Vice-Pres
C. A. Hall,

Wallbridge W. I. Backs Health Unit

Editor
Ontario Intelligencer

We, the members of Wallbridge Women's Institute, District of Hastings West and interested citizens of School Section 97, met. It is our wish to make it abundantly clear that we are fully aware of our residential and communal assessment as it affects our mill rate and our taxes. We also wish to make it fully understood that we are aware of how local municipalities use our tax money for the purpose of welfare, roads, and ecuation — and also how our tax money is used for health. We also are aware that we are being wise and pound foolish concerning public health. This past year the Township of Sidney spent $2,823.64 on public health and received only a few subsidies.

We understand that a Health Unit would cost Sidney Township $7,000. (Remember this is our share because of equalized assessment). For $7,000 we could benefit from the following.

(1) Full time public health administration by a fully qualified staff under the directives of a Board of Health set up by the County.

(2) An adequate, full time school health program for elementary and secondary schools which would include (a) a regular health inspections for defects concerning eyes, teeth, tonsils, hearing and orthopaedic conditions; (b) follow up reports made to parents when necessary by the public health nurse.

(3) An adequate maternal and child health program which includes: (a) pre-natal education; (b) post-natal welfare visits to the mother and baby and (c) well-baby clinics.

(4) The services of a fully qualified sanitary inspector.

(5) Educational visits made on a home basis to all age groups (infants to senior citizens) concerning nutritional needs, mental health, supervision of home nursing, and communicable disease protection.

(6) An adequate communicable disease program for prevention and control of all communicable diseases including tuberculosis and venereal disease.

The following specialized services could be given if it were policy of the County Health Unit to provide over and above the basic services: (a) a nursing service which would give bedside nursing care in the home (as given in Lennox and Addington County); (b) services of a dietician; (c) services of a full time occupational therapist and physiotherapist.

(d) Dental services.

All this points to a contributory of public health services in which everyone could enjoy.

We endorse the stand best because in our Women's Institute Handbook on page 49 it states — Home Economics and Health (heading) Health — to study and take action to aid in the establishment of public health facilities, preventive measures, medical and dental service, community sanitation, care of mothers and children, health units: — to study existing laws and promote better legislation respecting health.

For these reasons we feel that this is our community responsibility.

Yours very truly,
Wallbridge W. I.

FLOWERS THAT BRIGHTEN

"And since 'Ophelia,' tells us that Pansies are for thought
This flowes will assure you, I think of you — a lot!"
—Martha Martin.

Do you feel the need of a gay uplift these January days?

Yes? Then come with us to a little shop on Victoria Avenue, just up from Front Street and chat with a charming lady, who in her own words believes, "... since self pity is a bore, I refused to sit back and mope because our children were grown and away. . ."

So she opened up this delightful shop brim full of beautiful flowers — all artificial!

A wife, mother and registered nurse, Mrs. May Blackburn, wife of Mr. J. A. Blackburn, proprietor of Stroud's fine china shop, says she once read that there's always something at hand one can do, if one will but look around and see. . . and I spent quite some time thinking just what I could do in Belleville, that would be of use to Belleville. I came up with about five ideas — one of which was this shop, and when I went in and rented it, it was with the full realization that now 'I must stand or fall!'"

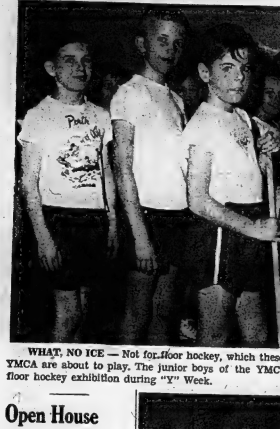
We're happy to say, a year and some months later, the shop is very much standing. In fact, it's most successful.

"The people in Belleville have been wonderful. They'll tell you that women don't support women. But don't believe it. For it is the Belleville ladies who have kept me in business and helped me in so many ways. Women who have time to spare seem to love to drop in: browse about. It's small, but they tell me, it's very smallness gives it a sense of intimate atmosphere." And it's true; one has a sense of adventure probing and delving into this flowery treasure-trove. Even young, exuberant mothers are drawn to this "clod of color" where as one young mother-to-be said: "I can needn't fear stares, or to stare."

Truly, to look and wander about is quite an adventure; to see such exact copies of roses, geraniums, corn-flowers, indeed any flower you might name, while the fruit is exceptionally realistic. The grapes, cherries, strawberries, pineapples (all of plastic) are so luscious, they make your mouth water. In great demand are tall sedge, grasses and foliage of all kinds. Orders have been sent as far away as South Africa and Holland.

One lady comes especially under one roof. Shops she by down from Toronto who "likes being able to shop for one that feels, should specialize instead of trying to be general stores. "This is an art specialization" she says, it saves time and confusion."

Men also like to come in and look around, as well as buy some floral gift. One Ottawa man orders his ahead of time and finds them ready to pick up upon arrival, gift-wrapped, as I so wrap all orders, which saves him time and energy."



These gift flowers by the way, are made in Spain, Italy and British Hong Kong and the method of their manufacture is a story in itself.

Mrs. Blackburn hopes to add real flowers each week, until in time in the future. "No," she says, "artificial flowers will never take the place of real flowers, which are one of God's sweetest creations. The world needs real flowers, it can never have enough of them, for their fragrance, beauty and sentiment they are so wonderfully express. After all, a world without expression of loving thoughts and sentiment would be very grim indeed, and flowers have so expressed man down through the ages. But there are times when artificial greenery and flowers can help and They help make surroundings attractive, and require little attention."

Has Mrs. Blackburn regretted her venture? "It's a wonderful challenge," she declares, "and great fun — especially for any woman over forty!"

New Laundry Product Car Owners' Boon

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

A new aerosol product — actually a laundry product designed to protect clothing against common stains — should be a great boon for car owners, too . . .especially those with small children or pets. Called a fabric guard, this spray will provide car upholstery or seat covers with an invisible umbrella or shield that repels most common stains and ends the problem of spots that just won't come out. Thus you can be sure of a clean fresh-looking interior, which is important to your car's trade-in or resale value.

The motorist who tinkers under the hood will profit, too, (as will his wife) since this new product can prevent grease-stained shirts, jackets, slacks, etc.

Unlike any similar type product, this one is colorless, odorless, non-toxic, non - flammable . . . safe for all fabrics and colors, according to the manufacturer. A 16-ounce spray can of this plastic guard retails for less than $1 — so it's quite economical, too. At the moment, it is limited supermarket distribution, but it should be available before long in home and auto supply stores.

From T. N.: What are oil filters made of?"

Depends on the type. The filter element may be made of cellulose, paper, cotton, wool, wire mesh, cordage fibre, or wood chips.

H. B. writes: The transmission on my '60 sedan is leaking and my garageman says it's due to a defective seal. How much would it cost to correct this?"

The charge should be somewhere in the neighborhood of $50 to $65.

R. E. asks: 'You are following the same old line as other automotive people who claim that oil changes help gas mileage. Can you show me one good reason for this contention?"

Clean oil minimizes engine friction and resistance — helps keep plugs, rings, pistons, valves, clean and more efficient.

From V. P.: "My car is losing brake fluid but the master cylinder isn't to blame. Besides checking the brake line, what else should a garage do to find the trouble?"

Pull off all wheels and inspect each brake cylinder carefully.

THEY WON'T FIGHT

TORONTO (CP) — A United States expert on Soviet civil law said Friday that Russia will not start a war. Professor John Hazard of Columbia University said revolutionary ardor is cooling off because the Soviets have enough of the good things of life to fear destruction themselves. However, he said, he was worried about Communist China.

PEER'S LETTER renewing regimental comradeship ties is now a proud possession of Horace Lowery and his wife. Horace is confined to bed with muscular dystrophy.

Women Workers Will Return to Jobs Monday

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP) Women employees dismissed from a paper plant here Tuesday because of their negotiations with a union will be allowed to return to work next week, the company said Friday.

Harold B. McGee, president of Specialty Paper Products in this town eight miles east of Oshawa, said a dismissal he had imposed on 38 women would be changed to a suspension and they could return to work Monday.

He also said in an interview he had conceded their demands to form a union, and would cooperate with them.

The women sal 15 of their number were dismissed without explanation after attending a meeting Monday to discuss membership in the International Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union (CLC).

WILL HAVE HEARING

Union Representative Ron Toni said the union "will have a certification hearing within two weeks."

He said 37 of the plant's 41 employees had signed union cards. Four male employees who had not been involved in the dismissal also attended a union meeting Friday.

Mr. McGee said he had received no indication of his employees' desire to join a union until Tuesday afternoon.

He added it was not until Thursday after that he received official word from the Ontario Labor Relations Board informing him his employees requested certification.

Ailing Hasty Pees Veteran Receives Letter From Peer

An acquaintance between a British peer and a Belleville veteran — made during crucial wartime emergency — has been renewed.

The acquaintanceship — perhaps better described as comradeship — was revived with a letter sent Horace recently by the peer.

That comradeship started during the Italian campaign when Lord Tweedsmuir had just been given command of the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment. Horace was a stretcher bearer with the unit.

Lord Tweedsmuir had been in charge only about a week when the Hasty Pees advanced to Nissore. It was here that their commander was wounded and instantly tended by Horace.

"I am not likely to forget what you did for me at Nissoro", recalls Lord Tweedsmuir in the letter, "and in fact if you hadn't done it I should not be writing this letter now".

The peer said he learned of Horace's condition from Angus Duffy, the regiment's famed wartime sergeant-major and recently retired as its commanding officer.

"It's just like him. He was a down-to-earth man", recalled Horace.

His old regiment and the strikingly individual spirit of comradeship for which it was noted, holds a significant part of Lord Tweedsmuir's memories. This was evidenced in the fact he wore the regiment's uniform last December when moving the reply on the Queen's speech in Britain's Upper House.

"The cap badge I wore", notes the letter, "was given me by sergeant Charlie Read just before he was killed and I greatly treasure it".

Horace recalled he was near Read when the sergeant was felled.

"Those were great days and there are not too many of us now who remember them", says the letter. "But those whose memories go back to that war will never forget the comradeship of the old battalion and in my memories will always have a very big place".

Horace has proudly framed the letter and hung it over his bed.

Ann Landers

Tries to Prove Maturity Using Profane Language

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our son graduated from high school last spring at 18. He was an honor student, somewhat shy, and slow to make friends. We were hopeful that college would bring him out a little.

A few days ago Richard came home for the first time since he left for Oberlin in September. My husband and I were dumbfounded. Now every other sentence has a hell or a damn in it. Richard never used language like that and we were pretty upset.

My husband and I decided to ignore his cussing although it was not easy. No one talks that way around our home. The question is: If Richard is still cussing when he comes for Easter what should we do? — R. W. T.

* * *

DEAR R. W. T. — Poor Richard is trying awfully hard to show you he has grown up. He thinks sprinkling his conversation generously with cuss words will do it.

If he's still balling and damning by Easter have a frank talk with him. Tell him profanity is a crutch for conversational cripples.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am the mother of four lively boys. The eldest is eight, the youngest is two. Anyone who has boys knows it is normal for at least one out of four to be bandaged at all times.

My husband's sister makes her home with us. Nellie is a little old-maidish and she has a tendency to stir up trouble now and then.

Whenever one of the boys bangs or bumps himself Nellie brings up the injury at the supper table then says to my husband, "Where was their mother when it happened?"

My husband then begins to question me, as if I had not done my duty. This is very irritating. I'd like your advice on what to say the next time it happens,—which will probably be tomorrow. —NOT UBIQUITOUS.

* * *

DEAR NOT — You need not defend yourself whenever one of the boys scabs his knee, so please don't try.

The next time Nellie asks your husband where you were when "it happened" tell her you were playing poker in the back of the poolhall — as usual. That should clear her sinuses.

* * *

DEAR ANN — If I'm square, sstuty or old-fashioned please tell me.

I came here from a small town eight months ago. I was lucky and got a job as a stenographer. Three of the girls I work with have an apartment. When I was invited there for dinner last week I was surprised to find they have dishes, silverware, table linens, hand towels, bath mats, ash trays, and even a waste basket from some well-known hotels.

All these articles are clearly labelled so I asked the girls how they managed to get the items out. "One piece at a time" was the answer.

When I said I didn't think this was honest they really let me have it. I was told that hotel prices are pegged to absorb that sort of shrinkage because "everyone does it." What about this? — DUMMY.

* * *

DEAR DUMMY — That sort of "shrinkage" is called stealing. And everybody doesn't do it.

These girls may think they are sophisticated or cute, but when guests see hotel property in their apartment it simply advertises the fact that they are thieves.

Question: I'm taking my first trip on a plane soon, flying from New York to Bermuda for a winter holiday. Would you please advise me who should be tipped at the end of the trip and how much each should receive? — Mrs. M. H., Kew Gardens, N. Y.

Answer: The plane crew is not tipped at the end of a trip. Porters who handle your bags are about the only personnel who are tipped when one travels by plane. Like railroad red caps they receive at least 35 cents; and more if you have several suitcases, and they are especially helpful about obtaining a cab or assisting in any other way.

Question: A close friend of mine lost her husband a month ago and now I'm not sure whether I should send her an invitation to my daughter's wedding or not. The wedding is next month. Friends I've asked think it would be inconsiderate to invite her so soon after her bereavement. However, I wouldn't want her to think she had been overlooked in our preparations since we've been close for years and she's always taken an interest in our daughter. What would you suggest? — Mrs. R. C., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: An invitation may be sent as a gesture of courtesy. The widow then must decide whether she wants to attend and whether she thinks it would be fitting for her to do so under the circumstances.

Question: I would very much like to have the recipe for "A Chocolate Mint Cookie". I believe it won a prize in the Pillsbury Bakeoff some years ago. I had the recipe for a long time but could never get the chocolate mints in Canada. Now they are available, I would like this recipe before all the candies are eaten up. (The family are starting on them today). . . . Ivy R. J.

Answer: I wrote to the Pillsbury people for the recipe you requested and they graciously sent it to me in full. Hope you can get more mint wafers!

STARLIGHT MINT SURPRISE COOKIES

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup butter or margarine (half shortening may be used), 1 cup sugar, ½ cup firmly packed brown sugar, 2 unbeaten eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 package (9 oz.) solid chocolate mint candy wafers, walnut halves.

Sift flour with soda and salt. Cream butter. Gradually add sugar and brown sugar, creaming well. Add eggs and vanilla; beat well. Blend in dry ingredients gradually; mix thoroughly. Cover; chill at least 2 hours (see note).

To shape cookies, enclose one candy wafer in about a rounded teaspoonful chilled dough. Place on ungreased baking sheets about 2" apart. Top each with a walnut half. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 9 to 12 minutes. Makes 4½ dozen.

NOTE: If desired, refrigerator cookies may also be made. Shape dough into rolls, 1¼" in diameter; wrap in wax paper. Chill at least 4 hours or overnight. Cut in slices ¼" thick; place on ungreased baking sheets. Top each with a chocolate wafer. Cover each with additional slice of cookie dough; seal edges with fingertips. Top with walnut halves. Bake as above.

Question: Please send me your receipe for making apple crisp that has lots of crisp topping and not too much butter . . . Margie D.

Answer: My secretary Elsanor's boys like the following for the same reason as you state.

APPLE CRISP

5-6 apples, peeled, cored and sliced, ½ teaspoon salt, juice of 1 lemon, 1 cup flour, 1 cup light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon or ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ¼ cup margarine or shortening.

Put the apples in a shallow 2-quart baking dish. Add the lemon juice and sprinkle lightly with ¼ teaspoon of the salt. and cinnamon in a bowl. Cut the margarine or shortening into the dry ingredients with pastry blender until crumbly. Sprinkle and pat firmly over the apples. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 1 hour, or until apples are tender.

Lady Listowel Will Address Canadian Club

The first meeting of the new year of the Canadian Club of Belleville and District will be held in Queen Elizabeth School this coming Monday evening at 8.15 p.m. when members will be privileged to hear noted Journalist Judith Countess of Listowel speak on the topic "Africans in Communist Lands".

Countess Listowel was born in pre-war Hungary, the daughter of a diplomat and grew up in a sheltered home but could not settle within the narrow confines of social existence and broke into journalism at a time when no Hungarian society girl had written for the newspapers. She eventually became the first woman political writer in Hungary, reporting all major events and meeting most outstanding personalities including Hitler and Mussolini.

In England, after her marriage to the Earl of Listowel she continued her journalistic career, also writing for British and American magazines. During the war she was civilian lecturer to Sir Malcolm's forces, giving an average of 30 lectures a month.

Lady Listowel is a prominent British Catholic and is a member of the Council of the Sword of the Spirit, an organization founded by the late Cardinal Hinsley to fight Facism, and which has, since 1945, been in the front line of the fight against Communism.

By GLADYS WARD

Anyone who has been annoyed with the service they have received in restaurants, and that includes quite a few people, will be glad to learn that at Quinte Secondary School something is being done to improve conditions and at the same time equip girls with the knowledge and the skills to become good and efficient waitresses. In addition to the restaurant services course, the girls are also learning merchandising for those who will choose to be clerks in supermarkets or stores.

At the same time their academic training is continuing with half their time spent in learning English, mathematics, history, geography and physical education, and the other half in practical work.

Mr. J. M. Brydson, a graduate of Ryerson Institute of Technology, and of the Hotel and Resort Administration course is in charge of the program. The purpose of the course is to provide the girls with practical and saleable skills in a short time. These are girls who would not be continuing with an academic course, and if they dropped out would not be prepared to earn a living. It is a two-year course for Grades 9 and 10. The difficulty now is that there are more applications than can be accommodated.

SHORT ORDER SECTION

The restaurant part of the room where the course is given is equipped to resemble actual conditions under which the girls will work There is a coffee urn, a deep fryer, a grill and hot plate in the short order section, a salad area with a freezing unit below to keep the pole slaw cold, and a fountain area.

There is a complete set of eight dozen dishes and silverware, and the girls are taught the correct way to set the table for a dinner setting, a lunch or a breakfast setting in the Russian (which resembles the Canadian style), English and French methods.

The importance of cleanliness, neatness, and the proper way to address people is stressed. The girls are learning how to take a customer's order, how to carry a tray, how to serve, and how to plan a menu.

When the program gets into operation and the equipment is all in place the girls are going to invite special groups of people for actual practice, perhaps some students from a particular grade.

An automatic dishwasher with special detergents to remove lipstick and hard stains will sterilize glasses, china and silver.

A SUPERMARKET

At the other end of the room a supermarket is set up with a check-out desk, a cash register that marks up the cash, the department and the tax, where the girls are taught with the help of merchandises the complete procedure of the sales girl. They are taught how to arrange merchandise, how to arrange a cabinet for impulse buying, how to wrap parcels, and the whole procedure of merchandising. Later a gift wrap service will be added.

Hair dressing classes are to be initiated later on. The shampoo basins are in place, and the dryers will be installed at some future time.

Power sewing is taught also, and with this experience the girls have no difficulty on grading in finding places in the industrial world. Typing is another subject provided in Grade 10 there will be 16 periods of actual practical work, and four periods of power sewing.

When the girls have completed this course they will be able to offer a prospective employer an experienced graduate, competent and confident of her ability to undertake employment.

TORONTO (CP) — The Metropolitan Toronto licensing commission has no intention of meeting cab owners' demands for a reduction in annual taxi licence fees to $50 from $100, Metropolitan Chair an William Allen said Friday. Mr. Allen said, however, the commission of which he is a member, next Wednesday will discuss whether a limit on the number of taxi licences should be extended or removed. The commission approved the issuance of another 152 licences above the 3,704 limit.

500 of Ottawa Elite Attend Charity Ball

The Chateau ballroom was transformed into the interior of a Persian palace for the ball, which had as its theme One Thousand and One Nights.

Head-table guests were escorted to dinner by an honor guard costumed as Persian slaves — complete with flashing swords and dressed in gold pantaloons, multi-colored jackets and gold slippers.

The ambassador of Iran, Nouredin Kia, and Mrs. Kia, were guests of honor at the event, which was sponsored by La Ligne de la Jeunesse Feminine, a women's charity organization.

Mrs. Pearson Visits Dior Fashion House

PARIS (Reuters) — Mrs. Lester Pearson, wife of the Canadian prime minister, took time out from her official schedule to visit the Christian Dior fashion house Friday.

Mrs. Pearson spent an hour at the Dior boutique and fur department. A selection of fur coats, made of Canadian pelts, including wild mink, beaver, otter and seal, was modelled for her.

Mrs. Pearson particularly admired the practicability of a wild pastel mink lining which can be buttoned in and out of a number of cloth coats. It was shown to her buttoned into a tweed ensemble, with a straight coat and matching sheat dress made of beige wool jersey.

Mrs. Elaine Kennedy Gemhault, social director of the Maison Dior who is a native of Winnipeg, also accompanied Mrs. Pearson on her tour of the salon and presented her with a bottle of perfume.

Christ Church Contact Club Elects Officers

Christ Church Contact Club was on its way to an enthusiastic start under the capable guidance of the newly elected president, Shirley Harris.

Secretary June Woodley read the minutes of the last three meetings to complete the year 1963.

The business for the new year got under way with an auction sale planned for next Monday for members and their friends. A rummage sale is scheduled for early February with Ruth Owen's group convening.

The evening was brought to a close with refreshments served by Ruth Owen and June Fisher.

Going Places

Puerto Rico Offers Tourists Much More Than Fancy Hotels

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — The flavor of this island is a subject that may come up for polite discussion only in reference to the taste of the last rum punch.

An introductory "What do you think of Puerto Rico?" will likely elicit from a chain-lounged neighbor a laconic, "beautiful climate" or "wonderful hotels," and then back to the morning line on the caballos at El Comandante, the Hispanic Hialeah.

Few resorts have been so unfortunately slighted by their patrons over the years, though it was inevitable. The cheapest per-mile air fare from the United States (it costs more to go to Nassau or Miami, each several hundred miles nearer the major northern population centers), a dependable tropical climate, that produces enough rainy days a year to count on the fingers of one hand, and luxury hostelries that — despite competitive ballyhoo — are among the most garden above most of those in the Caribbean, all have combined to give Puerto Rico a booming reputation as just about the most reliable spot off these shores for a winter vacation.

Yet if Puerto Rico were in the Mediterranean instead of the Caribbean, busloads of tourists would ply its highways and cobbled streets with the same application they presently devote to the Grecian lounges and casinos of the hotels.

AUTHENTIC CULTURE

San Juan is, in many ways, more Spanish than Madrid. And it isn't self-consciously, touristy Spanish-y. Puerto Rico has the most authoritatively foreign cultures under the American flag.

Almost without exception, Puerto Ricans are proud of their American citizenship. But they haven't lost their Latin pride or tried to bury the civilization that Columbus founded. Ponce de Leon spread, and 400 years of ancestors perpetuated.

On any given night, there is probably more flamenco dancing, guitar playing, and fiesta-ing going on in the night clubs, many on patios and terraces, polo being eaten, and more Garcias and Lopezes enjoying it all on Calle St. in Old San Juan than in the cuevas around Madrid's Plaza Mayor.

There are in Spain few more genuine cobbled old quarters with flowered patios, secret courtyards and verandahs, iron balconies than there are among the squares, parks and ancient cathedrals of Old San Juan. Most of it has been lovingly preserved, and the rest is being devotedly restored.

Ponce de Leon is buried in San Juan Cathedral, Casa Blanca, his ancestral home, still stands. Cristo Street is paved with stones brought from Spain as ballast in galleons.

WALLS NEVER BREACHED

Most of the turret-lined ancient stone wall that once surrounded the city and made it a fortress still stands also. The mighty Castel San Cristobal and El Morro fortress was for nearly four centuries the key to the defence of the Spanish empire in the western hemisphere. The fortifications cover over 200 acres, mounted 400 cannon and engaged everyone from Sir Francis Drake to Admiral William Sampson. Only the Americans succeeded in occupying Puerto Rico, but the thick thick walls were never breached.

El Morro, plus the complexes of San Cristobal and El Comodoro, are today a National Historic site, their storerooms, powder magazines, dungeons and courtyards open to the public. They are as well preserved as far more elaborate ones than — many in Europe.

Puerto Rico's charms do not lie exclusively among the fortresses and ancient houses of the old quarter (many of them are now smart shops and interiors, and restaurants) any more than they do among the sleek hotels of Isla Verde and the Condado strip. Even here, however, Puerto Ricans are mindful of their heritage. One of the finest hotels, the Condado Beach, dates back nearly half a century. Its atmosphere compounded of Moorish arches, tile, parquet, and tapestry has been thoughtfully preserved, even in the new wing which is as luxurious as any of the recent hotels.

Beyond San Juan lies a Connecticut-sized island of almost incredible verdant beauty. Its interior mountains slope in every direction to coastal plains, and deep, wide beaches lined by towering palms. In colonial towns and fishing villages a life goes on that is all but oblivious to the sophisticated resort image of San Juan.

At Aguadilla can be seen where Columbus probably landed in 1493, and east of 400-year-old Arecibo, caves conceal pre-Columbian Indian carvings. The rain forest of El Yunque mountain blossoms with giant ferns, tiny orchids, and tropical foliage.

No minor source of pride for Americans should be what Puerto Rico has done for itself. A dozen years ago, neglected for generations, it was a depressed area with the lowest standard of living in Latin America. Today it has the highest, without benefit of foreign aid or anything but a well-absorbed lesson in the American tradition of pulling one's self up by one's bootstraps. One image of Latin America not filled by Puerto Ricans is that of the greedy and crooked rich oppressing the ignorant and lazy poor.

Puerto Rico may be the ideal spot to take the ice out of your bones, but, as the rent-a-car ad says in a local magazine, "don't just sit there, see something!"

Women's Institutes

ELDORADO—The Eldorado and Bannockburn Womens Institute held their January meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Holgate with a fair attendance.

The president, Mrs. Clayton Blackburn opened the meeting in the usual manner and gave a reading.

Several items of business were discussed. Mrs. Cecil Blackburn gave a splendid report on the recent area convention.

Mrs. Blackburn was convener for the program which was based on citizenship. She outlined many ways on how one can become a better citizen.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Holgate and the assistants for the lovely refreshments and the use of her home.

A social half hour was enjoyed.

PRINTED PATTERN
M280 SIZES 8-18

An Ardanti Original

SLEEVES ARE BACK IN THE FASHION PICTURE — back with dramatic impact in Printed Pattern M280 by Ardanti. The shape is a gently gliding A-line building up to the climax of boldly arched sleeves. Wear this superb dress with or without the collar — it buttons on and off at your whim of the moment. The fit is fabulous through the midriff thanks to seams that travel at angles in front and back. The original is in basket-weave wool, but any fabric with a firm hand is suitable — worsted and silk, ribbed rayons, linen. Be sure to line your version — it helps to maintain the shape.

Printed Pattern M280 is available in Misses' Sizes 8, 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 45-inch fabric.

Send ONE DOLLAR for Printed Pattern M280 to THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER, 60 FRONT STREET, WEST, TORONTO 1, Pattern Department. Please print plainly your NAME, ADDRESS with STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

De Gaulle

suing a policy of maintaining as many open and direct lines to Moscow as possible. But the U.S. also believes there is a deep split between the Russians and the Chinese Reds and that it would be better to support the Soviet view of coexistence than the Chinese threat to solve international disputes by force.

Yet there also is recognition in Washington that de Gaulle is toying with the idea of playing a larger role in Southeast Asia, to reopen French influence in Laos, Cambodia and South Viet Nam.

The United States is in deep trouble in this area and has been hoping her Western allies would lend a hand. De Gaulle's argument is that you cannot hope to save losses unless you are able to talk openly and directly to the Chinese Communist regime.

This is the kind of realism that thoughtful Americans find hard to digest, and Congress is strongly opposed to a closer U.S. relationship with the mainland when American sympathy is strongly entwined with the aspirations of the Nationalist government on Formosa.

De Gaulle's recognition of the Chinese is not going to go over well with the U.N. legislative body and the state department and White House likely will rally around Congress during this presidential election year.

800 CABBIES FLUNK

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Chinese Nationalist Police headquarters said Friday 800 out of the 2,500 registered taxi drivers in Taipei failed to pass a recent driving test.

Perennials have been called the backbone of the garden. Several new ones are offered for this spring, some from seed, others you can buy in plant form.

on the part of France to share the cost of UN peace-keeping tasks.

The prime minister also was asked about the future of Canada's air squadrons stationed in France as part of the NATO contribution in the light of French objections to foreign nuclear weapons on French soil.

The Canadian squadrons were to have played a nuclear role with NATO forces. Pearson said Canada and France are working out "a perfectly reasonable solution" to this problem so that Canadian squadrons will be able to function effectively. Canada also was reconsidering the role of its NATO air division to make it more effective and as a result the problems of nuclear weapons on French soil "may not arise."

He apparently was referring to his statement on television recently in which he indicated that Canada's NATO role in the future is likely to include a smaller nuclear involvement.

MENTIONS CHURCHILL

Pearson said Canada would be happy to sell uranium to France but there would probably might be some strings attached, such as guarantees that it would not be used for peaceful purposes and not for the production of nuclear weapons.

Mentioning Winston Churchill's name also, Pearson noted that Canada had made sales to India, for example, for which the power developed. He added that if France required it for that purpose, and on the same conditions Canada would be happy to sell it.

Earlier Friday, Pearson said the chances of reaching a "more stable relationship" with Communist states within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council:

"The test for NATO is how to take advantage of the improved chances.

"It will mean an imaginative and continual probing of areas where limited agreement may be possible together with more intimate consultations among the allies.

RIDICULES CHARGES

Khrushchev called a textile factory in Kailain, 100 miles northwest of Moscow, with Castro Prades, a young, cynical, ridiculed charges that last week's riots in the Canal Zone were staged by pro-Castro communists.

"It was not comrade Castro who organized the riots in Panama," Khrushchev said. "These events are a result of the predatory policy of United States imperialists in Panama."

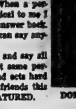
"We do not know what part the Communists have had in these events, but we firmly know that the people of Panama, the Latin American people, are fighting for the freedom of their country."

"They want to get rid of the oppression of the United States imperialists. This is a legitimate desire and we side with the people of Panama. . . .

"We are convinced that sooner or later the people of all countries will gain genuine freedom and independence and compel the imperialists from their territories. This is why we say: Display some restraint, people men. Get out before it is too late before you are chucked out."

CHECK OUTBREAK

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba health department disclosed Friday it has investigated reports of an outbreak of venereal disease at Selkirk Collegiate Institute in Selkirk, 23 miles north of Winnipeg. Dr. Emmanuel Hirsch, provincial director of venereal disease control, said Friday regulations call for secrecy about such matters, but public anxiety about the matter forced a change in this instance.



Successful Living

Generally Good Natured But - - Then the Dam Bursts

DEAR DORIS — Doris, I have decided I am a case for the nut house. Tell me what you think.

I am usually easy going. When a person says something rude or critical to me if I take it in good part and never answer back. Often a friend gets to feel she can say anything to me.

Then one day I boil up and say off manner of angry things to that same person. The person is surprised and acts hard done by. I have lost several friends this way. Is this fair? — GOOD NATURED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR GOOD — It's not fair — on your part. When the dam bursts — as it inevitably does — the flood carries all in its wake: good deeds, past consideration, future hopes. Isn't this an argument for less martyr-like silence and more clearheaded communication?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am writing to you because I think you understand everyone. I am 32 years old. I am divorced and living with a guy of 25 years. We have had two children.

He says we'll get married as soon as he can afford it. We have quite a few bills due to his just wasting money. We fight and argue a lot.

When I was eight months pregnant he had a girl out in my father's truck and they had an accident. I forgave him.

I don't really know if he loves me or not. He can change to hate in such a hurry and call me vicious names.

Do you think: (1) I should stay with him? (2) That he loves me? Or (3) am I just a bed partner? — P. McN.

* * *

DEAR P. McN. — 1. Only if there are signs he'll grow up and that he'll tie the knot properly. 2. He doesn't love; he leans. 3. You've guessed it.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — You suggested I give a party. But they cost money. Last week my rich nephew gave a party to 20 people and it cost $20. What would you do in the poor house for a month.

What could I serve that wouldn't cost a lot? — MERRY MAKER.

* * *

DEAR MERRY — Throw your party for six or 12, not 20. Don't serve caviar, but beans (made into chili con carne). Let the drinks be apple cider or coffee. And get recipes for some inexpensive, delicious party dishes from the leaflet "Party on a Shoestring," which I am sending you. (Available to other readers for the asking and a five-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS —I love a game of bridge. But we have one couple who spoils it for us every time we play with them.

When they lose a hand, they spend ten minutes blaming each other for wrong moves. When they win, they discuss how stupid we were and how brilliant they were, right there in front of us.

Away from the bridge table, they are the soul of courtesy. Is there any way we can break them of these horrible habits? — HOUSE OF CARDS.

* * *

DEAR HOUSE — Bridge etiquette says "No post mortems." Make a bargain with them that the first person (of the four of you) recapping dead issues pays a fine — maybe a nickel. Kidding and ridicule are powerful weapons.

* * *

(Your secret is safe with Doris — who will give you insight into the real trouble. Write to her, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Mother Given Three Months For Possession

TORONTO (CP)—A 34-year-old mother of three was sentenced Friday to three months in jail for possessing $13,349 of $55,000 taken in a bank robbery July 14.

Judge Garth Moore added two years' probation to the sentence he imposed on Mrs. Elaine Marie Scarborough, 34, after two hooded men hurled a car axle through the window of a suburban Scarborough branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, scooped up deposit wallets and escaped in a car.

Police said the money was found in Mrs. Barber's home. They recovered another $9,000 in a bank deposit vault opened by a key found in Mrs. Barber's purse.

Mrs. Barber said Robert Barber, with whom she lived, gave her the money, telling her a friend had given it to him. She said she did not know the $13,349 was in her house.

MADOC

Delegates Will Attend P. C. Convention

MADOC—Names of the delegates to attend the Progressive Conservative convention to be held in Toronto on February 3, 4, 5, have been sent in to the National Headquarters in Ottawa. Those who will represent the riding of Hastings Frontenac are: Mr. Jack Kincaid, president, Madoc; Mr. Gordon Bailey, vice-president, Harold; Mr. Ted Baskin, Norwood, and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer of Springbrook.

This is going to be one of the most important conventions in the history of the party and a record number of delegates have already registered.

Two New Bridges Under Construction

MADOC — There are two new bridges under construction in Madoc Village—the first one to be started is situated on No. 62 Highway, about 200 yards above No. 7 Highway, where it passes over Deer Creek. Work on this bridge began in early November and footings are being put in place. This bridge is closed to traffic which is being detoured through the village.

A Bailey bridge is now being constructed on the bridge on No. 7 Highway where it crosses Deer Creek. Traffic lights are now being installed by the Department of Highway to handle the traffic over this bridge, while the new one is under construction.

McWhinnie Construction Co. of Ottawa have the contract for the construction of both bridges, and completion of both is anticipated before the spring traffic begins.

A Lift For Living

Keep Mind's Windows Clean And See World More Clearly

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

A close relationship exists between good character and a sound understanding of the world around us. And the connection is especially close between what we inwardly are and how accurately we evaluate the characters and capacities of other people.

General Willie Henry Chase Whiting was a renowned Confederate soldier, famed for his brilliance. He had graduated first in the class of 1845 at the United States Military Academy. After he entered the service of the Southern Confederacy in 1861 he rose rapidly in rank. Perhaps his advancements made him vain, for he was certain that he was more capable than his military superiors, and he became a merciless critic of southern military leaders. Whiting was particularly severe in his reproofs of General Robert E. Lee, and Lee was informed of Whiting's censures of Lee's conduct of the war. Then one day President Jefferson Davis called General Lee to his office for a conference concerning certain proposed promotions among the South's military commanders. Other general officers were also present. The President of the Confederacy asked Lee what he thought of General Whiting, and Lee praised Whiting in the highest terms, commending him as one of the most competent, clear-headed leaders in the Confederate Army. One of the officers present was astonished at Lee's attitude and asked if the great general did not know the harsh things Whiting had said about him. Robert E. Lee responded, "I understand that the President desired to know my opinion of General Whiting, not Whiting's opinion of me."

Such objectiveness is possible only to the great-hearted. The unforgiving and revengeful are incapable of such a truthful and magnanimous response. Their vision of others is distorted by past hurts and lingering resentments. In evaluating the character and capabilities of an enemy and unforgiving person may intend to be truthful and may attempt to be objective. But, just as we see the world not as it is but through what our short-sighted, or far-sighted or astigmatic or color-blind vision tells us the world is like, or through spectacles that are imperfectly fitted, or through windows that are soiled, so we do not see people as they are, but through what our misunderstandings, hurt feelings, indignations, bitternesses, exasperations and hatreds tell us our fellow men are like.

Our own soul is the window through which we view the world. A tinted window tinges the impressions of our environment and colors the understanding of the meaning of our existence. If the window is dirty the world appears more sordid than it actually is. If the window is warped and full of distortions our view of the world is untrue and perverted.

Most of us are dissatisfied with the world and believe it should be improved, and some of us are discontented with those around us and believe our fellows should be changed. But where should we begin to affect needed changes? With ourselves and our inner condition! For until we are inwardly cleansed by God, we cannot see the world as it is or others as they are, or really know what is right and what is wrong, or visualize what our world should be.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Word has gone out to the moose mob for far northern Hearst to southerly Madoc and intervening points to beware of a gun-totin' great-grandmother from Ottawa.

Hunters residing in the shadow of the Peace Tower have dubbed her "One-Shot Susie," because of her deadly accuracy with any of her pet shootin' irons.

The moosian giants of the northwoods have the "wind-up." Once in Susie's sights they know they've got a quick trip to the twilight zone. She doesn't waste time nor ammunition.

Up around Hearst way a year ago she felled an 1,800-pound antlered Brobdingagian with one squeeze of the trigger.

The next day her husband tried his luck with a 1,500-pound 'brother of the forest lodge. He "winged" it—and it got away.

"Susie" picked up the blood trail and followed the giant for a mile or so along a riverbank. She sighted it limping up a shoreline knoll.

She is Mrs. Lloyd (Louise) Hicks formerly of this city who spent her girlhood down Picton way. Both Lloyd and "Louise" are well-known here.

For a number of years Lloyd was associated here with the Supertest Petroleum Company, a member of Rotary and one of the kingpins of hydroplane racing in this district.

But she never forgot her girlhood love, guns and hunting. She fired her first gun when twelve. It was an ancient Zulu weapon from the Boer War. The recoil knocked me flat," she says.

But she liked it. So today she owns three rifles and a shotgun, all with specially made stocks because her arms are short.

She goes after moose or bear with a 30-06 Winchester, stalks deer with a .257 Roberts and keeps a .22 Remington handy for groundhogs or crows.

Modestly she admits she is as good a shot today as hubby Lloyd. He says she is better than he is. "Lloyd taught me all I know about guns," she says.

She has developed a great love for the outdoors in her twenty-five year quest for game, be it big or small. Every year sees her with Lloyd roaming the woods and solo and hunting grounds.

They enjoy hunting moose and deer at their camp just north of Madoc, often shooting in company of their two sons.

Hunting, she says, is good for her health—but being a woman she has a complaint. She has to wear many hunting habiliments.

It seems clothing manufacturers don't cater to women hunters—yet. She wears normally in men's clothes and wear boys' boots, because she can't find a man's boot small enough.

And believe it or not this diminutive Diana nemesis of the antlered herds has four children, nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

But raising her family did not deter her shooting ambitions. When her children were small she "kept her eye in" by doing lots of target shooting, later switching to hunting duck and partridge.

A lot of hunters would lift their noses at a woman joining their deer and moose safaris. Not so Lloyd. He finds nothing strange in the companionship they find in hunting together.

Besides with "Susie" along—and unless the moose and deer herds decide to migrate to Lower Mongolia because of her "shootin' eye"—he is sure of eating post-season dinners of succulent steaks and chops.

SEND BIGGEST TEAM
MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians announced Friday they will send 76 competitors — 56 men and 16 women — to the winter Olympics in Innsbruck, the biggest Soviet winter team yet. At Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, in 1956, there were 63 Russian competitors, and at Squaw Valley, Calif., in 1960 there were 68.

Could Finish In Third Place ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Weekend 'One That Was' For Hawks?

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When the Chicago Black Hawks collapsed at the end of the National Hockey League season last year and bowed out in the Stanley Cup semi-finals, coach Rudy Pilous was fired.

Shortly afterward, at the NHL meetings, he ran into his successor, Billy Reay.

"Got any advice for me?" Reay asked Pilous.

"Finish first," Pilous told him, implying that although he'd led the Hawks out of the wilderness to a Stanley Cup in 1960-61 he'd been dumped for not winning the pennant in the two following years.

Reay seemed to take Pilous' advice to heart and during the first 35 games of the campaign appeared to be running scared —so fast that his Hawks threatened to leave the rest of the league out of sight.

A TURN OF EVENTS

But the turn of the year has brought about a turn of events in Chicago and if it continues the Hawks will remain the only NHL team that has never finished in the standings.

"Sure, we've run into a bit of a slump," Reay admitted this week. "I think that big 12-point lead we had at one time pushed something to do with it. Everybody was writing about the champion-how great they were-and I think maybe the players began to believe their press clippings.

"They thought they could ease up a little and still win," he added, "but you can't do that in this league."

The Hawks are now in their worst slump of the season, losing two straight games to Montreal Canadiens and winning only two of their last seven contests.

COULD TAKE TUMBLE

If the slump continues, they could tumble into third place by Sunday night.

Both the Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs could overtake the Hawks this weekend. All six teams go into action twice and two more clashes loom, coupled with a Montreal win and two Toronto victories, would topple the Hawks.

It probably won't happen, but it's the first thing this season that Chicago has been seriously challenged and proves to the Hawks that they need a second half to every schedule.

The Canadiens, on point behind Chicago with three games in hand, host the Detroit Red Wings Saturday night and move into Boston Sunday. The Leafs have a second straight weekend of back - to - back home games, taking on New York Saturday and Toronto Sunday.

BRUINS VISIT TORONTO

The Bruins visit Toronto again for the second consecutive Saturday and a New York-Detroit battle rounds out the Sunday schedule.

The word from Chicago Friday night was that Ranger goalie Jacques Plante will be in the nets for the clash with the Hawks. Plante stepped on a nail in the dressing room at Toronto Wednesday night and suffered a foot infection.

The Leafs, stunned by a 5-4 loss to the Rangers at home, have exchanged two defencemen with their Rochester League Rochester farm club to bolster the fort. Kent Douglas was dispatched to the Americans to get into shape and Arnie Brown was called up.

Liston 'Considers' Winner

Chuvalo Outclassed By Folley

CLEVELAND (AP) — Zora Folley, 12-year veteran of the boxing wars, had a new lease on his professional life today and a telegram from heavyweight champion Sonny Liston in his pocket would consider Folley for a title fight in the near future.

Folley, 31-year-old father of seven, outclassed former Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo of Toronto for a unanimous decision in a televised 10 round fight Friday night.

"I got a telegram from Sonny Liston, saying he would consider me for a title fight in the near future if I beat Chuvalo," said Folley, hearing few marks of his battle.

"I hurt Liston in the second round when I fought him," said Folley, ranked No. 6 in the world. Liston recuperated in Miami Beach after he won the champ, and knocked Folley out in the third round.

Folley said if the match with Liston materializes, it probably would be held in June or July providing, of course, that Liston defeats Cassius Clay in their championship fight Feb. 25. Reports have circulated a Folley-Liston match would be held in Philadelphia.

DRILL

Folley, from Chandler, Ariz., displayed great boxing skill in beating Chuvalo. Folley, whose left hand was in Chuvalo's face much of the time, piled up a big early lead.

Chavalo, who had a 12-pound advantage at 212, pressed the fight but couldn't land the combinations. The wild - swinging Canadian—ninth ranked heavyweight—was cut over both eyes but had a hard time getting there as Folley scored repeatedly with left jabs.

Judge Charlie Bill scored it 49-42, Judge Bill Thompson 47-44 and referee Tony Labranch at the 46 second mark and Ted Rowland at 5.33, but missed several other close-in opportunities. Wilson flipped in a backhander to get one back before the period ended.

Gananoque goalie Brian Jamieson was hit near the right eye by a Rowland blueline shot at 17.54 and had to go the the hospital for repairs. Belleville's sub goalie, Doug Boomhower, finished the period and played until Jamieson returned at 10.02 of the second, doing a fine chore. The only goal he allowed was on a pretty passing play between Gerry Jones and Bill Lang, the latter tucking it in the short corner for a 3-2 lead at 8.11 of the middle frame. Wilson had scored on a close-in backhand to tie it 2-2 at 4.50.

Jim Rutherford broke away from centre ice and netted a high drive for the "B"'s 4-2 margin after just 30 seconds of play in the third heat.

At 8.00, Belleville's Jim Woodcock roughed Rountree along the boards and the pair scuffled, Woodcock being on for his life while Rountree threw the puches but the latter got a major and Woodcock drew two plus five for the so-called fight.

That ignited a rash of penalties that saw four "B"'s and three Islanders in the box at one time, and Gananoque made the most of the situation. Rocky Hall and Rutherford also tangled for minors and majors at 12.12 and they never did get back, due to the overlapping sentences.

There were 20 penalties dished out by-officials Hurst and McCurdy, the losers collecting 11.

GANANOQUE: Jamieson, Rountree, R. Hall, Higgins, Wilson, D. Hall, Carter, Pritchard, Dickson, Edgely, Swan, D. Boomhower.
BELLEVILLE: Moore, Rowland, Ethier, Rutherford, Boyle, Grant Hagerman, Marsh, Glen Hagerman, Jones, Lang, Woodcock, Hurst, C. Boomhower, Rathwell, Redmond — Don McCurdy and Hurst.

Defeats Wendy Griner In 'Compulsory'

Sheila Burkda Skates Upset In 'Seniors'

After competing for three years against Canadian senior women's figure skating champion Wendy Griner, 19, of Toronto, the dark - haired Miss Burka took control on the ice.

Miss Burkda defeated Miss Griner by five points in the compulsory figures in the ladies' singles competition here Friday in the Canadian Figure Skating championships.

It was the first time in their three years of competition that Wendy has been behind at the completion of the compulsory figures.

And, Petra's forte is the free skating that he run off tonight.

IS IN GOOD SPOT

In the judge's results, Miss Burka had 751.6 points of a possible 900 and Miss Griner 746.6. Miss Sheila Kennerty of Vancouver with 657.7 points.

Miss Burka was the unanimous choice of the judges in all events but Miss Kenworthy gained the highest score from a single judge.

Judge Joseph Moyer awarded the Vancouver girl a 5.7 mark out of a possible six for her sixth figure. Chief referee Nigel Stephens questioned the mark, but went on to say he didn't change her marks but we can question the judge when the score is out of line.

Other placings in the event were Valerie Lang, Toronto, Norma Sedler, Ottawa, Jennifer Wilkin, Nipigon, Ont., Gloria Ann Tattoo, Toronto, and Jean-Ann Sanders, Toronto.

There was a minor surprise Friday when the defending pairs champions Debbie Wise and Guy Revill of Unionville, Ont., were placed second by one judge in the senior pairs compulsory figures.

SLIM LEAD

They finished first in the over-all count, but hold only a two-point lead—51.6 to 49.2— over Linda Shirra Kennedy and Ken Carpenter of Galt who were placed first by judge Isabell Henderson of Galt. Third was the team of Faye Strutt and Jim Watters of Vancouver and fourth were Susan and Paul Hunsperger of Toronto.

All the junior competitions were completed Friday night.

Canadians Lose 2-1

CP from AP-Reuters

MOSCOW — Canada's Olympians were defeated 3-1 Friday night by Russia's second-string team in an exhibition hockey game which saw the Canadians' rough-and-tumble play booed by the Muscovite crowd and criticized by a Soviet sports-writer.

The Canadians had been scheduled to play the Soviet Olympic team which beat Canada 8-1 Wednesday, but instead the Russians decided to face the young Canadians with their reserves.

Rev. David Bauer, the Canadian coach, said of Friday's loss: "The boys played better tonight than the first time out. On the first night they were pretty tired after a long journey here. Tonight they had time to limber up.

"That was one reason for the close match. The other was that the Russians were playing their second team."

George Swarbrick of Moose Jaw, Sask., scored in the third period on a pass from Terry O'Malley of Toronto for Canada's lone goal. Russia scored in the first and second periods.

FANS HOSTILE

In both Moscow matches the hard checking of the Canadians drew whistles and catcalls from Russian fans. And they always cheered wildly when a Canadian got the worst of a tussle—which was most of the time.

"The physical strength and recklessness of the young Canadians is not enough to defeat opponents who are not afraid of tough playing. The Canadians need more skill in defence and variety in attack."

He accused Father Bauer, who teaches at the University of British Columbia, of failing to teach his team "meekness and how to behave correctly on the field.

"Also he did not teach them how to play as expected from representatives of the home of ice hockey. . . ."

Starodub said that except for goalie Seth Martin of Trail, B.C., "the lack of players of high individual skill . . . is glaringly obvious in the Canada team, whereas almost all members of the Soviet first (national) team are masters."

Martin was the only Canadian to receive cheers from the fans in Canada's 8-1 loss on Wednesday.

Baseball Meet In Cobourg Monday Night

The second meeting to discuss the organization of a proposed Eastern Counties Baseball Association will be held in Cobourg Monday night starting at eight o'clock.

OBA past - president Jack Carson who will chair the meeting says it will be held in the Citizens' Centre in the Lakeshore town.

Baseball men who have endorsed the plan are expected from many points of the district which ranges from Oshawa to Ottawa and northward to Pembroke.

The ECBA is designed along the same plans as Baseball Association which has operated successfully for a number of years.

It is expected that if the plans and design of the new set-up meets with general approval, organization will get under way.

The meeting was laid over from original date January 13th.

All baseball men of the district who are interested in the formation of such an association are requested to attend.

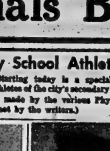
Secondary School Athletes

(ED. NOTE—Starting today is a special sports feature embracing athletes of the city's secondary schools. The selections were made by the various Phys-Ed directors or coaches, not by the writers.)

ALLAN MOTT



By Robert Williams

Allan Mott is possibly the greatest all-round athlete BCI has ever had. He has played football, basketball, badminton and all interform sports, showing an exceptional degree of co-ordination.

Allan has had 5 C.O.S.S.A. championships, 1 Bay of Quinte championship and has been on 3 interform championship teams. One C.O.S.S.A. came in football, one in basketball and three in badminton. This year he was quarterback for the senior football team and is a co-captain of the junior basketball squad.

Allan has belonged to the Boy's Athletic Society, being the treasurer for 3 years. In Grade 10 he joined the Key Club and is the present secretary.

Allan, who was voted last years' all-round male athlete is 5 ft. 11 inches tall, weighs 165 lbs., is 17 years old and is in Grade 12. His father, Mr. Harold Mott is a well-known teacher at BCI.

RICHARD EVES

By Robert Sutfield

Richard Eves may well be the greatest all round athlete that Quinte has ever had.

He has played on the bantam, junior and senior football teams, the latter which he quarterbacked this year. He has been on all school basketball teams and was one of the top scorers.

In grade 11 he won the school badminton championships. Last year, too, he won the C.O.S.S.A. polo vaulting championship, placed second in discus, and first in the C.O.S.S.A. polo vaulting championships.

Richard is the best gymnast that the school has ever had and wins top honors in this field. He was a member of the senior soccer team last year and this team won the the championship of the Bay of Quinte. He has been teaching at the Y.M.C.A. for five years and last year went to the Ontario athletic leadership camp.

Richard is 17 years old, and a grade 12 student. He stands 6 ft. and weighs 155 lbs.

Hey, Kids! Meet 'Sparky' At the "Y"

"Sparky" Anderson new field manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs Baseball Club will hold "open house" here Tuesday afternoon.

"Sparky" will be the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Belleville Sales and Ad Club in the evening.

He is arriving early Tuesday afternoon and will be at the YMCA between 4.30 and 5.30.

He would especially like to meet the baseball-minded youngsters of the city personally. He will sign autographs pose for pictures and regale the boys with stories of his diamond experiences.

In fact any and all youngsters are welcome — and that goes for oldsters too.

So if you young fellows would like to meet the Leafs new manager — be on hand at the YMCA Tuesday afternoon between 4.30 and 5.30.

Braves Clip Wings 10-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The parent Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League called up high-scoring Phil Esposito from St. Louis Braves Wednesday, but it hasn't hampered the Central Professional League club's scoring ability.

Braves ran up their highest score of the year Friday night, a 10-3 win over the last-place Cincinnati Wings, in the first game since Esposito was called up.

Jack Stanfield scored three of the goals and Al Caron two. Caron now has 43 goals in 43 games.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

If you don't have the hands in the right position on the stick, you can fan on a shot. That's where the matter of fitting the butt end of the stick becomes important.

Many players will actually build up a nob on the end of the stick. They'll wrap tape, often ten, 20 or even 30 laps of the tape around the end of the stick.

This can give them as much as a two inch bulge at the end of the stick. The bulge runs right into the heel of the hand, or just beyond the heel, beyond the little finger.

With the bulge on the end, when they're throwing the stick around or poke checking, there's no chance of the stick sliding out of their hands, failing to the ice and rendering the player useless.

A lot of us however, have another way of taping the end of the stick. We tape the end of it in the shape of a little ball. That ball rides right in the middle of my palm on my left hand.

I do this because I change hands. Also because it gives me a free feeling either way of throwing it in either hand — and it feels good in my hand to have that little tapered ball in my hand and nothing actually at the end of the hand.

This again, is why positions of the hands on the stick differ among different players.

In gripping the stick with the lower hand, don't hold it as you would a golf club, more in the fingers.

Letting you cup it pretty well in your hand. You throw everything you have, all the strength you have in that hand on the stick.

Because at the speed the puck is travelling sometimes when its thrown hard, if you haven't a real, firm grip on the stick, it'll turn in your hand.

Again, sometimes the shafts of the stick are a little small. When the puck comes to you, you'll find the stick will rotate in your hand and you're in trouble again as the puck slides off.

Minor Hockey

Bruins clipped the Red Wings 4-3. S. Moore had two goals and one assist while Fred Sickels bagged one of each to pace the Bruins. L. Burley potted the other goal and M. Venutti had an assist. S. Bland R. Bleakman tallied for the Wings, Bleakman also drawing an assist.

Rangers nipped the Leafs 3-2 on goals by G. Rodgers, D. Hunt and R. McClean. Hunt and McClean also had an assist each. D. Demers and J. Kilpatrick were the Leafs' marksmen, both unassisted.

Hawks topped the Canadiens 4-3, led by D. Anderson's two goals. Phil Wall and J. Mason also scored with B. Lovelace drawing helpers and Wall one. B. Kirkham and R. Doyle were the Canadiens' scorers. M. Semark had an assist.

BROWN FOR DOUGLAS

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs' veteran defenceman Kent Douglas, last year's National Hockey League Rookie of the Year, to Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League. Arnie Brown of the Americans was called up as a replacement in what the Leafs called a move to strengthen their defensive platoon.

Remedy for NHL 'Incidents'

'Squarely Up To Management' - Campbell

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Clarence Campbell is "deeply concerned" about what he terms the increase of incidents in National Hockey League games this season. And he puts it squarely up to team management to do something about it.

"The man who signs the cheques can get anything he wants," the NHL president said this week. And, former referees Red Storey and Eddie Powers who quit because, as they claimed, they did not get backing from Campbell, will be interested to know that he has kind words for game officials.

Campbell referred specifically to two Toronto games involving the Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks.

The first was Saturday, Dec. 7, when players of both clubs cleared the benches to participate in free fights. The second popped up this month when Hawk defenceman Howie Young was suspended five games for using obscene language and spitting at a spectator in the royal box behind the penalty bench at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Coaches Punch Imlach of the Leafs and Billy Reay of the Hawks each were fined $1,000 for allowing players to jump the boards. In all, he levied fines totalling nearly $5,000 on Toronto and Chicago players.

CAN BE PREVENTED

Referring to the Dec. 7 game, Campbell said in part:

". . . I think that was a singularly fortunate game inasmuch as everyone agreed it had been officiated as nearly perfectly as anyone could do. And yet the actions of the officials were not adequate to meet the situation.

"This is turn has to force my thinking person to ask why did it happen and how can it happen and is there any way to prevent it?' The answer has to be yes. It can be prevented if the persons engaged in our business who are responsible for the employment and control of the players will react with a corresponding sense of responsibility and above all an acknowledgement of it. . . .

If we are to restore the sense of control of the game which is necessary to preserve public confidence, and in the long run to preserve our own business, I think they will have to accept this responsibility whether they like it or not. . . .

There's no use anybody saying that a coach can't prevent players from coming off the bench and take part in an ice-cream soda . . . but apart altogether from that I'm more concerned with the attitude of mind of the people who are engaged in our business, to find out if they genuinely want to keep it under control.

"If they do there isn't any doubt it can be done. . . .

"I believe that if this tendency towards intimidation, as a product of actual physical violence or the threat of it or the planning of retaliation on an organized and on an official's basis —and when I say official I mean on an approved or condoned basis — this engagement —continues, the show will inevitably deteriorate. It can't help it."

Habs Shade Flyers 5-4

Hawks Beat Rangers 7-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Junior Canadiens will have to hustle to catch the league - leading Toronto Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series standings—but it doesn't appear as if anyone can catch their goal scoring ace, Yvan Cournoyer.

Richard is 17 years old, and a grade 12 student. He stands 6 ft. and weighs 155 lbs.

Cournoyer, who has scored 46 goals in 30 games, added two more Wednesday night as the Canadiens edged the Marlies 5-4 in Montreal.

The victory gave Montreal 46 points—10 points behind idle Toronto. Peterborough Petes, also idle Friday, hold down third place with 42 points.

In the only other scheduled game, St. Catharines Black Hawks jumped into a tie for fourth place with the Flyers, whomping the hapless Kitchener Rangers 7-1 in Kitchener.

Leg-weary from their seventh road game in two weeks, the Canadiens came from behind a 3-1 deficit early in the second in Niagara Falls to edge out the Flyers.

Brian Cornell, Dave Woodley, Ted Snell and Bill Bannerman scored for Niagara Falls.

Defenceman Doug Jarrett paced the Hawks, firing two goals and assisting on two others. Brian McDonald, Ken Hodge, Dennis Hull, Ken Laidlaw and Dave Green were the other St. Catharines scorers.

Hawks's schedule has all eight teams in action with Peterborough at Montreal, Hamilton in St. Catharines, Kitchener playing host to Niagara Falls and Oshawa visiting Toronto.

Komets Furl Flags 6-1, Blades Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took Fort Wayne Komets of the International Hockey League until New Year's to reach their peak, but ever since then they've never looked back.

The Komets, who spent the first part of the schedule riding on the coat-tails of Toledo Blades, are all alone in first place with a commanding lead.

Friday night Fort Wayne dumped Port Huron Flags 6-1 to stretch their margin over the second - place Blades to 12 points. Toledo helped matters some by dropping a 3-2 decision to Muskegon Zephyrs.

Fort Wayne, Toledo and Port Huron hold down the first three positions with 52, 41 and 39 points respectively.

The only other scheduled game saw Chatham Maroons turn back the slumping Windsor Bulldogs 4-1 to take over sole possession of fifth place, a point back of Windsor.

Donald Jackson, Former World's Skating Champion, Forecasts Winners at Olympic Games

By JIM PEACOCK

NEW YOR K(CP) — Donald Jackson zipped his tea, glanced across the Madison Square Garden practice ice where he once polished his own skating ability, and pondered the question.

"In the men's," he said, 'it's wide open.

The Russians and Germans have the top pairs, but the Germans will be favored.

'In the women's, well, Sjoukje Dykstra of The Netherlands has been world champion for the last two years. . .

Jackson, 23-year-old native of Oshawa, Ont., who became the first Canadian to win the men's world championship had been asked for his assessment of the figure skating competitions in the Winter Olympic Games opening in Innsbruck, Austria, Jan. 29.

CANADIANS CONTENDERS

He said Canada has some strong contenders for the Olympic medals, but the Canadians do not carry the favorite's role in any of the three competitions.

Canada won two medals in the 1960 winter Olympics figure skating, Barbara Wagner and Bob Paul of Toronto taking the championship gold in pairs and Jackson the bronze for third place in men's singles.

Jackson, now starring as a professional skater with the Ice Follies, went on to a second place finish in the 1960 world championships; missed an opportunity to become champion in 1961 when the competition was cancelled because of a plane crash that killed the U.S. team; then added the world title to his list of honors in 1962.

Jackson set the highest marks ever awarded for free-style skating in world competitions, seven of the judges at Prague, Czechoslovakia, giving him perfect marks for a fantastic performance that included the only triple lutz—a jump in which he did three complete revolutions while airborne—ever executed in the championships.

FIELD IS OPEN

The Oshawa skater turned professional later in 1962 and was succeeded as world champion in 1963 by Don McPherson of Stratford, Ont. McPherson also has turned professional, leaving the men's field open.

Canada's domination of the pairs competition ended last year with the Wagner-Paul duo and their successors as world champions, Maria and Otto Jelinek of Bronte, Ont., in professional ranks.

Marika Kilius and Hans-Juergen Baumler of West Germany won the world title last year and Jackson said they must be Olympic favorites. Russian pairs finished second and third and must be considered strong contenders, he said.

But Canada's Guy Revelle and Debbie Wilkes of Toronto, unable to compete last year when Miss Wilkes was injured in a fall just before the championships began, are strong skaters who Jackson said could upset others.

In the men's competition, Jackson rates Alain Calmat of France, Manfred Schnelldorfer of West Germany and Karol Divin of Czechoslovakia . . . the man he beat in 1962 for the title—as the top contenders, with Canada's Don Knight and Dr. Charles Snelling, both of Toronto, standing some chance.

TWO POSSIBILITIES

Behind Miss Dykstra in women's competition, Jackson picks Wendy Griner and Petra Burka, Canada, Regina Heitzer of Austria and Nicole Hassler of France as medal contenders, but not necessarily in the order listed.

Jackson spoke in an interview here as he was a performance with the ice show at the garden. He recalled that he had pondered for some time in 1962 whether to remain an amateur until the 1964 Olympics.

But the financial strain on his parents had been great through eight years of working toward the world title and he finally succumbed to the professional offers.

"I've been able to pay off the debts I ran up in amateur days" he said. "I'm helping my brother through university now and my mother and father are able to take things much easier."

ENTERTAINING IS FUN

He said he's enjoying being an entertainer, not only because the financial returns are high, but because:

"When you can make people forget their troubles for that short time you are out there on the ice, that's payment in itself."

He maintains communication with the amateur skating world, however, and during a December visit to Czechoslovakia to skate exhibitions he was gathering information for Canadian skaters on rule changes in compulsory figures.

"I'd love to be at the Olympics this year," Jackson said, "and I guess I will be in spirit. But the show will be in Toronto and then Montreal during that time, and I'll have to be there."

Don Messer's Islanders

ISLANDERS FROM NEW BRUNSWICK — Don Messer '(middle) and two veteran members of his Islanders country music group — Marg Osborne and Charlie Chamberlain — are New Brunswick natives. The group, a folksy, homespun aggregation, has won wide popularity since becoming a fixture on national network television. (CP Photo)

Homespun Musicians Still Flabbergasted by Success

By FRANK SULLIVAN

HALIFAX (CP)—Success and acclaim, it seems, will never spoil Don Messer and his Islanders. The oldtime country music group is as homespun now as when it began 35 years ago.

In fact, the Islanders are still flabbergasted by the enthusiastic reception they got during their trip through Western Canada last summer, though it wasn't much of a surprise to those who have watched the outfit win a wide following since it hit network television in 1956.

Don Messer, on camera a quiet fellow who lets his fiddle do his talking, and singer Charlie Chamberlain, a rollicking, step-dancing 250-pound ex-lumberjack, still talk about the summer trip.

"We were entertained royally, met by police escorts and interviewed at a lot of press conferences," Messer says.

The seven men and one woman who make up the Islanders became honorary citizens of Winnipeg, toured a big cattle ranch at Merritt, B.C., were serenaded by a Hungarian Gypsy band in Red Deer, Alta., and received such gifts as cowboy lariats and ten-gallon hats.

When they got home they received another gift in the mail, a model of a prairie schooner from a prisoner in a penitentiary where they had performed.

WRESTLED MAYOR

The six-week 18,000-mile tour included dance dates and benefit shows at old folks' homes, hospitals and penitentiaries.

Chamberlain still laughs about the time he was literally "floored" in Medicine Hat, Alta.

"We checked into our hotel and not long after a telephone call saying the mayor, Harry Veiner, wanted to meet me downstairs. I went down. We chatted for a while and then he said, 'You and I are going to wrestle.'

"Well, we went into a private dining room where they moved aside the tables and chairs. I still didn't know what it was all about. Then the mayor said 'lie down.'

"It was Indian wrestling. We had to lie on our backs and lock legs. The one who put the other's leg to the floor was the winner. We must have been on the floor for half an hour.

"They called it a tie."

Chamberlain discovered it was a publicity stunt whipped up by a Medicine Hat service club. Club members, reporters and photographers were there to watch.

The Islanders, who can play just about any request, whether regular country and western music, fortrots, waltzes and Latin numbers, found that in the West, as elsewhere, the most popular were the folk songs and selections in a sentimental vein—solos or duets by Chamberlain and Marg Osborne, the singer from Moncton, N.B., who has been with the group since its infancy.

SAME QUESTIONS

And they encountered many of the same questions asked by other parts of the country.

For example, Messer was asked why he does so little talking during his own show.

"I'm from the old school," he says. "I believe each of us is capable of certain things. If the good Lord wanted me to be an announcer or master of ceremonies he would have given me a voice. As it is, I figure I've got this little old fiddle and a little talent to play it."

Another question was whether Marg and Charlie are husband and wife to which Chamberlain replies: "We're both married but not to each other."

The Islanders, who have come a long way from the days when they played "the kerosene circuit," unheated little barns where the only light came from lanterns, remain a Maritime group despite their national appeal.

Four are from New Brunswick—Messer from Tweedside, Chamberlain from Bathurst, Marg Osborne from Moncton and bass player Julius (Duke) Neilson from Woodstock. Pianist Waldo Munro of Westville and clarinetist Rae Simmonds of Amherst are both Nova Scotians, and drummer Warren MacIver and guitarist Cecil MacEachern are from Charlottetown.

They started on network television as a summer replacement and might have succeeded on TV long previously except that someone else had some doubts about how they would do.

"A commercial agent was too goldarned ashamed of our shows to bring them out at sales meetings," Messer says.

CTV Network Makes Contract With Affiliates

TORONTO (CP) — CTV President Spencer -W. Caldwell said Friday he expects ratification of a new contract between the commercial television network and its 10 affiliates.

Mr. Caldwell said in an interview he was optimistic the agreement, reached after an all - day meeting Thursday, would prove satisfactory to the network and the affiliates when they consider it next week.

"We came pretty close to ending the network," said Ernest Bushnell, President of Ottawa station CJOH and chairman of the five-man committee which represented the affiliates.

He said that if agreement had not been reached Sunday on some major points, the stations would have withdrawn en masse when the affiliation agreement expires Aug. 31. But he added:

"We have now drawn more closely together. There are still some differences which we will discuss with the affiliates."

Mr. Caldwell said: "We've had many difficult problems to iron out, but during these meetings we have gradually worked them through, one at a time, until now we have a pretty good agreement of where we're going in the future."

CITES MAJOR POINTS

Mr. Bushnell said the major points of contention were the amount of commercial time —7 p.m. to 11 p.m. — allocated to the network by the private stations and the increased cost of maintaining the microwave system linking the stations from east to coast.

The Star said the new contract gives the affiliates more time to sell locally and their own "spot" advertising, more profitable than network shows which are sponsored by one sponsor, the revenue of which has to be shared with CTV.

At the Park

"IN THE FRENCH STYLE"
Opens Monday

"In The French Style," the Irwin Shaw - Robert Parrish production starring Jean Seberg and Stanley Baker opens Monday at the Park Theatre for a 3 day engagement only in the picture, Miss Seberg is a girl who comes to Paris as an art student. She plans to spend a year painting, but ends falling in love—with Paris, and with love — and stays for four years.

Miss Seberg is moving and powerful romantic drama, "In The French Style" concentrates on the love affair with Miss Seberg, as the girl who discovers romance a la Francaise, moves through the years in Paris with joy and passion. Her performance is said to be one of the exciting and true "Brigitte less," the French New Wave film which catapulted Miss Seberg to stardom.

The Marshalltown, Iowa, girl co-stars "In The French Style" with Stanley Baker, who plays the most important "love in her life," until she comes to realize there is a time when she must stop playing. Baker, remembered for his performance in "The Guns of Navaro one," here again demonstrates his rugged versatility, according to Hollywood report.

Also important to the film's romantic scenes are such players as Philippe Forquet, a handsome young French actor who appears as the first of Miss Seberg's romantic involvements. He, too, is seen as a youth reaching for maturity, and achieving it with her help. Other players include Addison Powell, Jack Hedley and James Herlihy, who helps write an ending to the girl's four years in Paris.

Two complete shows each evening at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m.

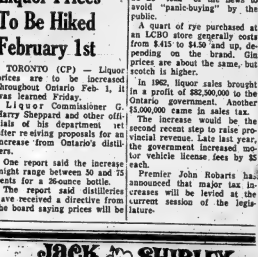
Liquor Prices To Be Hiked February 1st

TORONTO (CP) — Liquor prices are to be increased throughout Ontario Feb. 1, it was learned Friday.

Liquor Commissioner G. Harry Sheppard and other officials of his department met after receiving proposals for an increase from Ontario's distillers.

One report said the increase might range between 30 and 75 cents for a 26-ounce bottle.



The report said distilleries have received a directive from the board saying prices will be raised Feb. 1, but there should be no "leak" of the news to avoid "panic-buying" by the public.

A quart of rye purchased at an LCBO store generally costs from $4.15 to $4.50 and up, depending on the brand. Gin prices are about the same, but scotch is higher.

In 1962, liquor sales brought in a profit of $82,500,000 to the Ontario government. Another $5,000,000 came in sales tax.

The increase would be the second recent step to raise provincial revenue. Late last year, the government increased motor vehicle license fees by $5 each.

Premier John Robarts has announced that major tax increases will be levied at the current session of the legislature.

Bisons, Aces Rochester Win In AL

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hospitals were the big winners in the American Hockey League Friday night, claiming a patient from each of the three games played.

At Providence, where the Buffalo Bisons defeated Providence Reds 4-2, Bob Beckett was taken to hospital with a fractured jaw suffered when he crashed into the boards behind the Buffalo net on the first rush of the game. He had just rejoined Providence after a brief stint with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

Veteran goalie Gump Worsley of Quebec Aces was taken to Maryland General Hospital at Baltimore at the end of the first period where he was being held overnight for observation.

He caught a puck under the right eye on a shot by Ken Schinkel.

Stand-in Gil Bannville played the rest of the game for Quebec as Aces scored on a power play in overtime for a 3-2 win over Baltimore Clippers.

ANOTHER IS HURT

The third patient was another goalie, Gerry Cheevers of Rochester Americans who was replaced by Ed Babiuk in Americans' 6-2 win over the visiting Pittsburgh Hornets.

Cheevers stopped a shot with his chin early in the game, but stayed in. He was sent to hospital late in the first period after a Hornet player crashed into his left hand during a scramble.

Hornets also used a spare goalie, Greasing rookie Joe Daley of Johnstown of the East-

A. L. All-Stars Clash Sunday

West Favored Over East

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The attack - minded West remains favored to defeat the defensively rugged East in the American Football League's annual all-star game Sunday.

The East may be hampered by an ailing quarterback, Jack Kemp of Buffalo Bills, who has been troubled by a severe cold the last few days. He is expected to play, however.

The game will be nationally televised by ABC, starting at 4:30 p.m. EST.

The East defence will have its Boston full trying to stop an offence built around quarterback Tobin Rote, who led San Diego Chargers to the league's championship.

The veteran passer, a nine-time member of Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, has a superb receiver in Art Powell of Oakland Raiders. And he can expect tremendous running from his Sam-

ARE HOPEFUL

But the East remains optimistic.

"It's going to be a hard day's work but I feel we can beat them," said Tom Sestak, Buffalo's all-league tackle. "They are so well-balanced, running and passing, you can't concentrate on any one guy because another can kill you."

Coach Mike Holovak of Boston Patriots, who is directing the East, also has some top offensive stars — Keene and his alternate, Babe Parilli, along with fullback Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo, Larry Garron of Boston and Billy Mathis of New York Jets.

While the West has greater speed in offence, the East has better power, notably with the 251-pound Gilchrist, former CFL star.

Open Tennis Favored By Americans

NEW-YORK (AP) — The United States is ready to back Britain in its bid to hold an experimental open tennis tournament.

"How can we say something is bad unless we try it?" Edward Turville Jr., president of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association said Friday.

"It doesn't mean that our association is ready to give an okay to open tennis, although there is some strong support for it. If somebody like England wants to take the bull by the horns and hold an experimental tournament, I'd say good luck to them."

The British Lawn Tennis Association disclosed Thursday it hopes to stage an open tournament for upper amateurs and professionals at Wimbledon in 1965 and 1966.

A request for this privilege will be made at the meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Federation in Vienna in July. Vic Denny of Seattle, former president of the USLTA, is the United States' delegate to the meeting.

Soviets Back Top Ice Lifetime

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Vladimir Prakhov, 24, many - time champion Russian jockey, has been banned from riding for life following a brawl in which he knifed a colleague.

The newspaper Moskovskaya Pravda said all three jockeys involved in the brawl were expelled from the Communist party and stripped of the title Master of Sport.

Argument flared about which horse which jockey should ride. Lev Bakhykhin was stabbed and taken away by ambulance but "the knife wounds were not too serious," the newspaper said.

MONTREAL (CP) — Robbie Head, 14, a Cree Indian from Fort George, Que., a village on the eastern shore of James Bay, is going to get his wish.

Saturday night he will see his heroes, Montreal Canadiens face . off against Detroit Wings. And that's not all, he'll get in free as the guest of Frank Selke Sr., the Canadiens managing director.

Robbie arrived in Montreal Friday evening as a special guest from the Boy Scouts of Canada for his bravery in rescuing four children from a burning house in Fort George two years ago.

Robbie ran to the front door but flames forced him back. So he broke a window and crawled inside. He was able to push four children out but could reach the youngest perished in the flames.

COULDN'T MAKE IT

The Boy Scouts usually present their awards in Ottawa in October but Fort George is inaccessible during that month so it was decided after Robbie had been unable to make two award nights— to present him with their meritorious award today at the association's annual Quebec provincial meeting.

Since leaving home, Robbie has seen many things for the first time.

He was impressed by neon signs and big buildings but took television and the jingle of the telephone with a quiet amused look and a slight smile.

Robbie plays centre on the hockey team at St. Philip's Indian and Eskimo residential school in Fort George where he is in Grade 6.

Most young men in the village earn their living as trappers, but Robbie wants to become a teacher.

WILL ANNOUNCE SHAKEUP

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson will hold a press conference Monday, his office said Friday. Changes in the makeup of the federal cabinet are expected to be announced.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif (AP) — Al Balding fired a sub-par 67 Friday to stay in front of the pack in the $Sing Crosby $60,000 golf tournament. It was the Toronto golfer's second par-shattering round in two days and gave him a 36-hole total of 133.

Three strokes back in second place was Australia's Bruce Devlin, 26-year-old French Open champion, who shot a 69 second round to go with his Thursday 69.

At 138, five strokes off the pace of Balding, Canadian Pro champion, were Tony Lema of San Leandro, Calif., Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., and Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga., the lowest shooters among the huge U.S. contingent.

Balding fired a 62 at Cypress Point and followed with his 67 at Monterey Peninsula Country Club, both par-72 layouts.

WILL BE TOUGH

The 33-year-old Canadian's toughest test will be today. Pebble Beach Sunday afternoon television in attendance and Monterey weather forecast. All the leaders will be at the long oceanside course.

Defending champion Billy Casper, who won the tournament for the $6,500 first-prize money with a sharp 68 and 139 total. New Brunswick's Dave Hutchison who won last year's British Open, also was at 139 with a 71 and second round 68.

Balding, obviously pleased, nevertheless felt his score could have been better.

"I hit 12 and a lot of good chances," he said. "I left some putts sitting on the lip of the cup. But I had several long putts that went in, too. I was driving the ball as good as I can."

Bob Nichols, the only United States golfer among the top five after round finishers, sagged to a 73 second round and 140 total.

SPORTS ON

Ken Venturi, who won the Crosby in 1960, posted an 80 Friday for a 156 total. He failed to turn in a scorecard at first, then changed his mind. In the group-among the 80's were Rose Puett of Austin, Tex. have a best-ball 128, high up on the list.

Balding opened his five-under-par effort with a birdie by sinking a 25-foot putt on the first hole. He dropped putts of 12 and 15 feet on the third and fifth but then sank a 40-footer on the seventh when he hit into a sand trap.

He sank a 22-foot birdie putt at the eighth to make the nine-under-par 35. He followed with a 32. He birdied the seventh, 14th, the latter with a 30-foot putt, and the ninth for his 67.

On the par-5 18th, he hit the green in two shots and took two putts.

The three other Canadian professionals playing here would have liked to.

Al Johnston of Montreal had a round of 77-77—74 Friday, for a 228 total and 14th. Al Balding was George Knudson of Toronto, who went around in 36-76—76 Saturday and Stan Leonard was at 232, after shooting 36-76-80.

After today's round, the field will be cut to the low 60 professionals and low 40 pro-am teams.

BCI Defeats Trenton HS

By ROBERT WILLIAMS

Trenton seniors, juniors and bantams lost 72-37, 52-30 and 56-15 in that order.

BCI seniors registered an 8-point margin in an exciting first quarter, repeating this in the second quarter to lead 36-22 at half time.

Both teams played a tighter third quarter with each team getting better control of their own backboards. The result was an 14-8 edge in play for the Collegians. The winners took firm control of the lead in the stretch with a final deluge of 20 points to Trenton's 7.

Murray Swan and Bob Williams led the seniors with 18 points each, trailed by Bill Burley with 14. MacGregor and Teriault had 10 and nine points for the Tigers.

Ron Walsh 18, David Hurst 14, Alan Mott 13 and Tom Lepple 11 led BCI juniors, while Chambers had 6 and Williams and Cole had five each for Trenton.

Jim McCreary and Rick Loynes played well for the Bantams, collecting 24 and 13 points, respectively, while Dave Creighton had five points for Trenton.

B.C.I.—Chick, Anderson 6, Sabiela 2, Deacon 2, Burley 14, Purcell 2, Williams 18, Adams 6, Swan 18, Mitchell 4, Casselman 7.

T.H.S.—Callaghan 1, Chambers 6, Ferguson, Perks 6, MacGregor 10, Teriault 9, Hookey 3, Whitney, MacDonald 12.

Seniors Drop 60-50 Verdict

Moira Loses To Napanee

By DOUG BELLWOOD

Moira Trojans lost all three games to Napanee High School during a league tilt. The junior game was a real squeak-er with Moira winning by a slim one point margin. A three minute overtime was needed in the bantam game to break the 38-38 deadlock. Napanee won by a 46-40 score. The senior game ended with Napanee 60 and Moira 50.

The Moira seniors gained a small lead in the first quarter, getting 19 points to Napanee's 10. The second quarter involved good checking and fast playing. Good foul shooting by Moira helped them to keep a 29 to 23 lead. Napanee was exceptional rebounding by Bob Dunsmore and his replacement, Bob Bailey.

Both teams experienced rough play and poor shooting in the first quarter by Moira and 16 of Napanee proved. Napanee improved on their foul shots and this was the decid-

Blasts Use Of Novocaine In Sports

BRUNSWICK, Maine (AP)— The use of novocaine to deaden an athlete can continue to play has no place in sports at all, says the medical director of the 1964 United States Olympic team.

Dr. Daniel F. Hanley of Bowdoin College made the statement Thursday.

He was referring to the novocaine treatment at half time for New York Giant quarterback Y. A. Tittle when he limped from his play in the National Football League.

Dr. Hanley is worried most high school and college athletes may want to follow the example of the professional stars.

"You should never do this to a young athlete," Dr. Hanley said, "His bones are still in the growing stage and the injury that could result might leave him permanently crippled.

"In the case of Tittle, who at 37 is in the twilight of his career and who presumably made the decision himself to have novocaine injected into his ligaments, there may have been some excuse."

ing factor in the 60-50 triumph for Napanee. Coathup and Martin were high scorers with 16 and 15 points, respectively. George Pugh and Dunsmore were high scorers for Moira with 13 and 11 points, respectively.

Bob Watson was the high scorer in the junior game with 17 points. Dave Beresford followed with 10. Forbes of Napanee led Moira leaders with 9. Vanalstine had 8.

M. Grange had a good night for Moira in the bantams, sinking 28 points. Smith followed with 10. John Hagerman of Moira had 11. Hurd, Bishop and Wishart followed with 8.

Moira—Pugh 13, Glen 11, Dunsmore 9, Graham 7, Bailey 5, Jones 2, and Napanee shot a field goal into their own basket.

their fifteenth straight since competition started last year. In the spirited bouts held, three unofficial falls also played as the members of both teams found into shape for the Quinte competition to be held on February 12th.

Several of the Trojan team are developing fine individual bout records with two of them John Beechin and Larry Price having undefeated records to date.

Today seven of the Moira team are in Toronto wrestling in the A.A.U. novice championships. Many university and coaches as well as a large group of high school grapplers will be competing.

The next team meet for the Trojans will be on January 25 when they travel to West Hill Collegiate in Scarboro to compete in an invitational meet at which six of the top high school teams in Ontario will be entered.

DEAR HENRY — I have a boy friend who has just received his driver's licence. When we have a date he drives much too fast. He takes chances on yellow lights and he's careless when passing other cars.

When I tell him about this he ignores me and says not to worry because he has experience. What should I do? I don't want to be a back-seat driver.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED — He thinks that you are complimenting him on his nerve when you tell him about the reckless driving. This matter is serious — then give it to him right on the line.

Tell him that your relationship is on yellow light turning red. If he cares for you at all he'll slow down the car and let the relationship go full speed ahead!

HENRY

• • •

DEAR HENRY — I owe my brother $3.00. He won it betting with me. Do you think I should have to pay it because we are in the same family? I don't have much money.

IN DEBT

DEAR IN DEBT — No dice! After fighting, swearing, slandering, black-mailing, and kicking your brother all year, you seem to think that you don't have to pay because of your "intimate" relationship ! ! When you gamble you have to pay up!

THE BURP

Credit should be given the burp
For surprising the "hick and the slurp" . . .

It can be said without remorse
The burp's the world's greatest unifying force!
The burp has won where all have failed
It unites the free and the jailed
It unites the jovial with those who frown
And joins the humble with the crown.
The burp wins on a field of defeat
Banding the vegetarian . . . and the eater of meat
Is there an end to this binding pace?
Yes! There's an end: The Human Race.

Mr. J. and Mr. K. would proclaim a sale
Of green peppers, radishes and ginger ale!
The black would come and so would the white
And we'd all burp together in harmonious delight.

Then we'd all drink our fondest toast
To the burp and the principle it brashly boasts;
"All it discriminates
To none it discriminates."

The Golden Years

Here's Rundown on Annuities--Should You Have One or Not?

By THOMAS COLLINS

Here is a rundown on the major types of annuities that are available — and for how much — to the couple retiring in 1964.

Annuities, in the main, come from life insurance companies, and when they are from reliable and well established companies are about as safe as money can be. Annuities pay a specified sum of money monthly, quarterly, or about any way the person wants it, and the payments are about as reliable as payments can be.

The conventional annuity, while nice to have in a depression, has no safeguards against inflation. If it pays you $100 a month in 1964 it will still be paying $100 in 1980 when the price of rent and groceries may have doubled. Or may not. So it is a gamble — both on the value of money coming back from an annuity, and on how long the person lives.

Types of annuities, and rates, vary from one life insurance company to another. But in general the better companies have about the same package to offer. The plans given below are from one of the country's most reliable companies and gives a good idea of what is available.

LIFE ANNUITY

This provides a regular income for life, paid monthly or however the person wants it. Payments stop at death, and there are no death benefits and no surrender values. This type of annuity provides the biggest income payments.

Annuity payments depend on the amount of money put into the annuity, the age of the person at the time payments start, and the life expectancy of the sex. Records show that men with annuities of age 65 have an average life expectancy of 13 years. Women have 18. So women would get smaller payments than a man. A woman age 65 could put $20,000 into a Life Annuity and get $127.60 a month for life. With no refund at death.

REFUND ANNUITY

Under this plan a person would also get a monthly income for life. But if he died before he had gotten back from the annuity all the money he had put into it, the difference would be paid to his beneficiaries. For example, a man at age 65 could put $18,244 into a refund annuity and get $100 a month for life. If he died in two years, after collecting only $2,400, the $100 a month would be continued to his beneficiary until all the $18,244 had been refunded. But if the man lived to age 87, or 22 years, he would collect $26,400, or about $10,000 more than he put into the annuity. Thus, no refund.

JOINT AND SURVIVOR ANNUITY

This is designed to give both husband and wife a guaranteed income for life. A husband at age 65, with his wife at age 60, could put $19,972 into this type of annuity and get $100 a month as long as he lives. And upon his death his widow would continue to get $100 a month until her death.

• • •

There are many different options and variations to the three mentioned here, on which one cash payment is made to the insurance company for the annuity, are the most pertinent for retired people.

Should you buy an annuity when you retire? One person should, and the next one should not. It depends on the individual's circumstances. A man could put the $18,244, which would get him $100 a month refund annuity, into conservative common stocks and get about $54 a month in dividends, plus a possible growth in the $18,244 of about 3 percent a year. Thus he could quite his job and have it too. And he also could lose his shirt. It's a big gamble.

On the other hand, a retired man with a house worth $18,244, and a retirement income of only $150 a month could sell his house, buy the $100 a month annuity, and be assured of a secure $250 a month for life. And he wouldn't have to fret over the Stock Market. Just inflation.

No retired man should get anybody sell him an idea on an annuity, either for or against. He should figure out his own financial picture, give a couple of thoughts to his heirs, and make up his own mind.

W. I. Members Given Talks For Retardation

CAMPBELLFORD — Mrs. F. M. Rutherford, Executive member of Canadian Council and District Association for Retarded children, and Mrs. Wm. Hoey, were guests at the Wednesday afternoon meeting of White School Women's Institute.

Mrs. Rutherford spoke of the incidence of mental retardation, of some of the known causes, also of the various levels of retardation. She also quoted statistics in regard to the numbers of children born who will not meet life in a normal way, a retarded child is born on an average of one every thirty five minutes, 41 children a day, 15,000 per year. Estimates range from 10 to 30% of this number will need special training or perhaps life time care in Canada's Hospital Schools. With population increase this problem increases. To meet this problem, more diagnostic clinics are needed, more vocational training centres and supervised workshops, and more special education and training suitable to the different levels of ability.

Mrs. Rutherford also outlined the organization and administration of Merryvale School in Campbellford.

Mrs. Wm. Hoey outlined the teaching program in class work, as well as individual pupil training. The pupils in association with those of their own intellectual level show interest and progress in simple skills, crafts, household chores, and the easy level of elementary education.

A film was also shown "Beyond the Shadows" portraying a wide variety of problems of the retarded and their families and the steps taken to solve these problems.

The guest speakers were introduced by Mrs. E. Jolliffe and thanked by Mrs. Clarence Glover.

CWL Holds First Meeting In New Term

CAMPBELLFORD — Mrs. Frank Freeman, president of the Catholic Women's League presided at the first meeting of the League in 1964, held in the C.W.L. rooms here Monday night.

Secretary Mrs. J. H. Smith read several thank-you notes from persons who had received Christmas baskets from the League, and Mrs. Dickum Treasurer, gave the financial report as well as a report on the Valentine dance which the C.W.L. has scheduled for February 7. She said music would be supplied by DelCrary and his orchestra and that a number of prises and a lunch had been arranged.

Secretary Mrs. J. H. Smith, Lay Retreat Movement chairman, reported the schedule for Retreats, the Closed Retreat and the General Retreat to be held from May 15 to May 17, at the Cenacle and urged attendance at the Retreats.

A series of card parties in aid of the C.W.L. will start January 15. Mrs. E. Kelleher and Mrs. E. Kelly will be in charge of the series. Tickets will be sold on a draw to be made at the conclusion of the series.

The League set November 14 as the date of the annual Christmas Bazaar, and May 23 for the annual Citizenship Tea.

Father Joseph Walsh, Spiritual Director, addressed the group and stressed the importance of the church Unity Octave starting January 18, and told how the Octave was conceived.

Following the business portion of the meeting, Father Walsh showed slides of the story of St. Bernadette of Lourdes, depicting her life story and the story of Lourdes since that time. The slides included many of the processions of pilgrimage tours held each year at the shrine, with recorded commentary. The speaker pointed out several places he had visited while on his tour to Lourdes about three years ago.

Pre-School Youngsters Taught to Express Art

MONTREAL (CP) — Serge Valcourt is a mild-mannered 23-year-old bachelor who spends each morning of his working week coping with 16 exuberant youngsters. What's more, he loves it.

"I find them exhilarating," he says. "They have such imagination."

Mr. Valcourt is instructor for an experiment in art for pre-school youngsters being conducted in Chomedy, a north-end Montreal suburb.

The children, 4½ to 5½, are gathered each day by bus and delivered to the school where for 2½ hours they learn expression through art.

Eight are French - speaking, the others English - speaking. They get instruction in' languages as well as the arts.

"The main difference between this group and any other nursery school group is that our children are not taught 'to copy,'" says Irene Senecal, who started the school.

Miss Senecal is a member of the faculty of Ecole des Beaux Arts and director of the Chomedy Art Centre, which sponsors the art experiment. The centre is a non-profit community organization started by citizens more than a year ago with a $1 000 municipal grant.

WORK IS ORIGINAL

Miss Senecal says children in most nursery schools are encouraged to copy adult models, using coloring books, crayons and pre-designed cutouts.

The Chomedy youngsters, while studying form, color and composition, use only pastels and blank sheets of colored paper. They are encouraged to paint or mould what they see and feel, not what adults think they should see and feel.

"Any of the disciplines we teach are at the level of the child," says Miss Senecal.

"Learning to project themselves through the senses promotes mental growth . . . thus developing the whole child."

Mr. Valcourt, an artist as well as a fully trained teacher, says:

"When we started, they couldn't concentrate no more than two minutes on any one project. Now they lose themselves for as long as 15 minutes without even looking up."

Parents are enthusiastic too. Said one parent:

"The children arrive home eager to continue the work they were doing in school. They also seem to be becoming more aware of other children as persons, and are more considerate of them."

MORE SINGLE?

Pearson To Talk To Johnson On France's Position

Arrives Home Sunday, Leaves Tuesday for U.S.

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson returned late Sunday from a state visit to France in a position to play an important role in French-American relations.

He leaves Tuesday for Washington where two main points will emerge from his talks with President de Gaulle are expected to play a big part in his conferences with President Johnson.

One of these is France's intention to accord diplomatic recognition to Communist China, a course consistently opposed by the United States.

De Gaulle discussed France's intentions in this regard with Mr. Pearson during their two meetings in Paris, apparently in the expectation that Mr. Pearson's long diplomatic experience would help interpret his action to Johnson.

Perhaps to make certain French views were placed before Johnson by an independent observer, news of the French plan was made public just as Mr. Pearson was on the point of leaving Paris Friday.

MAY PLAY PART

The Johnson - Pearson talks Wednesday may play a part in the second joint airing of the de Gaulle-Pearson meetings. That is the matter of a meeting between Johnson and de Gaulle, their first since John F. Kennedy's assassination made Johnson responible for U.S. foreign policy as president.

It is understood Mr. Pearson may invite President Johnson and de Gaulle to meet in Canada, probably in Ottawa, after the French president's forthcoming visit to Mexico.

Efforts were made before Mr. Pearson went to Paris to have Johnson meet de Gaulle after the Mexican visit. But Johnson refused to leave the U.S. at that time.

However, Mr. Pearson may give Johnson reason to reconsider. He will be reporting first-hand on de Gaulle's requests on matters discussed at the France-Canada meetings in Paris.

Mr. Pearson indicated to a press conference in Paris that he came away from his two discussions Thursday and Thursday with de Gaulle with quite a different view of the French president than he had been led to expect.

HAVE THAW

While the U.S. and Russia have been experiencing a thaw in their relations, observers in Paris have said de Gaulle favors keeping the pressure on Russia without cold-shouldering Russian efforts to improve East-West relations.

Recognition of Communist China by France is regarded as part of this policy since it may lead to bridging the division between Russia and the big Asian Communist neighbor.

One aspect of the French plan for recognition may cause the Canadian government to have another look at this country's policy on recognition.

Peking hitherto has held out firmly for the claims to sovereignty over nationalist - held Formosa. This has been a barrier to some western nations which have diplomatic missions in Formosa giving diplomatic recognition to the Peking regime.

AGREEMENT WON

France apparently has won Peking's agreement to recognition which would not involve Communist claims of sovereignty over Formosa.

Mr. Pearson indicated that the Peking claim to Formosa has been the chief barrier to Canada's extending diplomatic recognition to Communist China.

If French recognition means that a "two-China" policy now is acceptable to Peking, Canada may have to weigh the advantages and disadvantages of taking a similar step.

This also opens up the question of a United Nations seat for Communist China and whether Communist or Nationalist

Change In Pension Plan Will Build Huge Reserve, Slightly Reduce Benefits

Will Have Two and Half Billions In Fund After First Decade

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government has revised its proposed Canada Pension Plan in a way that slightly reduces pension benefits and at the same time builds up a huge reserve of $2,500,000,000—plus interest—after 10 years of contributions.

The initial contribution rate—two per cent of an annual earnings ceiling, shared equally by employees and employers—would not be changed, but the government has set a new income ceiling for contribution purposes starting at $4,500 a year, up from $4,000 in the original proposal.

Pension benefits payable to everyone at age 70 would be scaled down to 20 per cent of the income ceiling, from 25 per cent in the original proposal. The effect is to trim $25 a month off the original proposal that would have paid a $175-a-month pension—after the plan had reached maturity in 10 years—to those over the income ceiling.

MEMO RELEASED

The proposed revisions were revealed today when Prime Minister Pearson released copies of the memorandum he sent on a confidential basis to the provincial premiers Jan. 11. In it, he invites the premiers' comments.

But at the same time, he said the government will go ahead with legislation to implement the plan. The legislation would be presented to Parliament at the session opening Feb. 18.

Mr. Pearson reiterated the government's intention to refer the legislation to a parliamentary committee "for detailed study."

This indicated that another federal - provincial conference on the subject will not be called. The first was held last July and the issue was raised again at a ministerial conference here in November.

Pearson Calls Press Parley For Afternoon

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's office said today he will hold a press conference at 4 p.m. in the Commons railway committee room.

The prime minister is expected to announce shifts in the cabinet and changes in the administrative responsibilities of some government departments.

Choice of the big committee room indicated major announcements were expected.

Mr. Pearson originally hoped to have the conference at 10 a.m. today, but revised the schedule because of his delay returning from Paris Sunday.

Slice In Taxes Asked

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Contending that the Canadian tax system has been worked out of balance in recent years, the Canadian Chamber of Commerce Saturday told the royal commission on taxation how the structure should be rebuilt in the interest of the economy.

"All we're trying to do is to bring the balance back where it used to be," said George Keeping, past chairman of the chamber's executive council.

The heart of the 150-page submission was that corporation and personal income taxes should be sliced down and more emphasis put on sales taxes.

Then, said Campbell Leach, chairman of the chamber's taxation committee, the government should avoid any sudden, illogical or crisis-inspired tax changes so that the Canadian system would be regarded as consistent and reliable.

Another view of the chamber was that Canadians should be told exactly how much they pay in taxes. Dr. J. R. Petrie, the chamber's economic consultant, said "I would like to see the taxpayer agitated because he might take more interest in the polls to keep down government expenditures."

LAW IS COMPLEX

With growing weight on direct taxation, the Canadian structure has become inequitable, the CCC brief said, and piecemeal amendments had resulted in "unintelligible to all save the highly sophisticated tax specialists."

Back in 1929, only 15.7 per cent of Canada's total revenue was raised through direct taxation. Last year the figure rose to 50 per cent.

To reverse the trend, the chamber, which represents 850 local chambers and boards of trade, suggested that the top rate of corporated tax be reduced to 40 per cent from 50 per cent. The other rate—50 per cent on incomes under $35,000 a year—also in effect unless a method could be established to ease the burden on small business.

Eventually, it might be possible to establish one single rate.

With this, all the tax incentives announced in last year's budget would be retained, along with some of the older incentives that tended to pass the burden from one taxpayer to another.

On personal income tax, the Winter Shipping Thriving

QUEBEC (CP)—Winter navigation now is a thriving fact in this ice-cloaked harbor.

Ice or not, enough freighters are coming in and out to keep scores of longshoremen busy and to perk up the whole Quebec City economy.

Right now, the Norwegian freighter Mariteam is loading 5,000 tons of pulpwood and the coastal freighters Fort Ramsay and Fort Prevel are taking on general cargo for north shore of the St. Lawrence River ports.

The Great Lakes barge Frankcliffe Hall has had half its 1,000,000 - bushel cargo of grain removed and the Eagle-cliffe Hall besids it now is empty. Both will remain here until spring.

During the last week, the Canadian freighter Beaverpine which won Quebec's gold cane by arriving Jan. 6—and the Danish freighter Helga Danwhich took the award as the first ship in '64 into Montreal—sailed for Europe. Both will return here next month.

Altogether, longshoremen are expected to handle more than 150,000 tons of cargo here this winter compared to a mere 3,300 tons in December, 1958.

Until five years ago, only a couple of coastal vessels ever made it to Quebec City in winter. But the Lauritzen Lines of Denmark broke the ice by sending in its cargo - building ship the Helga Dan, on Feb. 13, 1959.

Canada Steamship Lines and ships from other ocean-going fleets gradually followed suit. And the coastal trade itself has developed as centres like Baie-Comeau and Sept-Iles grew.

Annual wages of longshoremen reflect the change.

They have jumped to $575,000 in 1962-63 from $149,000 in 1957-58.

Late in December, some 300 longshoremen were working on 15 ships here.

The grain elevators are being enlarged. Besides grain, coal, oil, timber, asbestos, newsprint, automobiles and machinery move to and fro.

Three Canadian Coast Guard ice-breakers have been operating lately in the Quebec Bridge area, where ice jams sometimes pile up.

There is another stationed at Baie-Comeau.

But they haven't had to help a freighter this winter.

Wet snow can also be expected in those areas behind the storm. However, clearing skies from the west will darker and a little cooler air will appear not too long after the storm passes.

Tanganyika Interlude
Soldiers Mutiny, Seize Capital, Then Return Quietly to Camp

CP from AP-Reuters

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika — President Julius Nyerere said in a radio announcement that army mutineers who early today held this city to ransom had returned quietly to their barracks.

Nyerere said that a "misunderstanding" in the army had been settled at his intervention.

For 12 hours a few hundred African Negro soldiers held their British officers, demanding better pay and conditions.

Before the mutinous soldiers returned to camp, there were reports of beatings and looting by local residents who took advantage of the situation.

Several photographers at the city's New Africa Hotel were threatened.

Photographer Bob Rider-Rider of The Associated Press was beaten by police who used with soldiers when he was taking pictures.

Reports reaching Nairobi, Kenya, said a mob in the Asian quarter of Dar es Salaam was looting and smashing windows with shouts of "Colonialists go home."

The rioters were reported to be looting cars, smashing windshields and then dancing on their rooftops.

The mutiny apparently started after soldiers realized they could take advantage of Dar es Salaam's Tanganyika policemen had been sent temporarily for duty on revolt-torn Zanzibar Island, a nation off this East African country.

For a few hours it was feared the Zanzibar revolution that swept the sultan from his throne in Zanzibar had spread to Tanganyika, one of the most stable of the former British colonies in Africa.

It was believed the soldiers first demanded that Nyerere should agree to better pay. He refused and told Foreign Affairs Minister Oscar Kambona to negotiate with the mutineers.

In a lightning coup, the soldiers trapped their British officers and Negro non - commissioned officers at Colito Barracks, five miles north of the city, and sped to the capital in trucks.

They crashed the gates of President Nyerere's state house overlooking the Indian Ocean and for a time held his prisoner. Informed sources said, they also were reported to have apprehended Vice - President Rashidi Kawawa and they to have started a smooth operation to bring other ministers into the net.

Dar es Salaam woke to the sound of shots as the soldiers took over essential services and sealed off the city from the outside world.

They also were reported to have arrested Paul Bomani, minister of finance.

Indonesia Takes Over Titular Control of Shell Oil Company

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters) — The government today stepped in and took over the titular control of the Shell Oil Company and the Unilever Corporation after Communist-led unionists moved into offices of both enterprises and claimed control.

A co-ordinator was appointed by the government to mediate between labor unions and the Unilever Corporation manager. A meeting was scheduled Tuesday.

Workers at the vast British-owned P. and T. Company rubber and tea estates in West Java were reported to have taken over 16 estates in the Subang area Saturday night.

The estates, which employ about 30,000, were already nominally in the hands of the West Java regional government and the West Java National Front Political Confederation.

The P. and T. (Pamanoekan en Tjiasemlanden) Company formerly was under Dutch control.

Johnson Wants Big Tax Cut

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—Stressing a need to battle poverty, President Johnson predicted today that U.S. prosperity may push gross national product up to a record of more than $623,000,000,000 this year, provided Congress immediately enacts a long-awaited $11,000,000,000 tax cut.

At the same time, he reported "disquieting" omens of price rises, warning business and labor he is establishing an "early warning system" among government agencies to keep a close watch on price and wage developments.

Official hope of a 4.4-per-cent rise in U.S. corporate profits in less than three years and the prospect of $11 billion in rises through anticipated tax cuts, Johnson told Congress in his first annual economic report that he sees "no warrant" for inflationary price rises.

He said he will "not hesitate to draw public attention to any action by either business or labor that flout the public interest in non-inflationary price and wage standards."

Aside from all urgent job of reducing the pockets of poverty affecting one-fifth of U.S. population, Johnson anticipated that if Congress moves ahead with anti-poverty measures and individual tax cuts, the gross national product—value of all goods and services produced—would rise by some 6.5 per cent this year, an increase of some $36,500,000,000 from last year's record $585,000,000,000.

Officials anticipate that such an increase, which would, in

Board of Trade Wants Medicare Scope Extended

TORONTO (CP)—The Board of Trade of Metropolitan Toronto says Ontario's projected hospital insurance program should provide for more service beyond those of physicians.

A brief submission by the board of the government - appointed committee studying medical insurance legislation suggests an amendment to extend coverage to medical services provided by qualified persons in addition to doctors.

The board does not suggest which services should be added to standard plans that would be provided by private insurers under the legislation. The draft act would confine the coverage of the standard plans to "professional services of a physician."

2,000 'Political Suspects' Reported Slain in Zanzibar

ZANZIBAR (Reuters) — Tanganyikan police were helping to keep order here today while at their own government struggled to deal with an uprising by part of its army.

The government announced Saturday it was disarming all the "freedom fighters" who overthrew the sultanate last week.

Reporters and private citizens coming out of Zanzibar mean-while told of severe casualties in the coup. Many of the victims' bodies were reported thrown in communal graves and covered quickly, indicating the true toll will never be known.

The New York Times, in a dispatch from Kenya written by a correspondent who left Zanzibar late last week, said about 2,000 "political suspects" had been killed and the full toll is expected to reach 4,000.

The correspondent, Robert Conley, was among 12 newspapermen who arrived in Mombasa, Kenya, Saturday in a group of 145 refugees. Bob Miller of the Toronto Globe and Mail's London office was also in the group.

Ten-Month Ordeal
Rain of Ashes Shrouds Costa Rican City

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Swirling clouds of cinders, a rain of ashes and showers of gritty sand underfoot have turned the once verdant central valley of Costa Rica into a vale of grey-black doom.

In ordinary times, San Jose, situated in a 3,800 - foot high valley, is a clean, sunny and colorful place to live.

But for 10 months the almost 300,000 inhabitants of metropolitan San Jose have been living in the "valley of the shadow of death."

Since last March volcano Irazu (pronounced ee-rah-soo), an 11,260-foot monster, has been dumping thousands of tons of pulverized greyish-black, gritty volcanic cinders and ashes over this Central American capital.

Parts of the central valley are dead, and other sections are dying.

A shroud of black dust covers everything.

If the intense eruptions of Irazu persist, the continuing downpour of ashes may physically destroy San Jose.

The volcano's ashes also may destroy a goodly portion of the top-quality coffee crop, Costa Rica's major export. This could economically ruin the entire nation.

For 10 months, Irazu has been in constant eruption. Located 37 miles northeast of San Jose, the volcano belches forth a mushroom-shaped cloud of ashes and smoke which rises up to 40,000 feet.

And the prevailing winds from the Atlantic push the cloud of ashes westward—directly over San Jose and its environs.

To protect themselves from the rain of dust, citizens cover their noses and mouths with handkerchiefs, carry umbrellas, wear sunglasses, women and children wear veils, motorcyclists use goggles and nose masks and knotted bandanas are caps for their hair.

The less fortunate use a brown paper bag with two holes punched out for the eyes. And above all, the people sweep.

San Jose has become la Ciudad de Escobas—the City of Brooms.

In the words of Guillermo Castro, mayor of the city and governor of San Jose province, "the cenisa situation in San Jose is no longer an emergency. It is a calamity."

For six miles down the western slope of the volcano, in an area involving 463,000 acres, the ash has destroyed all life. Costa Ricans call this zone "la zona de muerte"—the zone of death.

Panama Sending New Envoy To Try and Break Deadlock

PANAMA (AP)—Panama is sending a new envoy to Washington to seek a fresh start in Panamanian deadlock over the Canal Zone dispute.

Miguel A. Moreno, who took a hard line toward the United States when he was foreign minister in 1959, was briefed Sunday by President Roberto F. Chiari. He probably will leave Wednesday.

Informed sources said Moreno, appointed last week to replace Ambassador Carlos Arango as Panama's representative to the Organization of American States, will try to salvage peace efforts that virtually collapsed here between Chiari and President Johnson's special envoy, Edwin M. Martin.

Chiari, who severed diplomatic relations with the United States Jan. 10, has demanded that U.S. pledge to renegotiate the 1903 Canal Zone treaty as his price for resuming relations. President Johnson has said he is discussion—but not negotiate—the treaty, which gives the United States perpetual control of the Canal.

Sources said that if Moreno fails, Panama might call an emergency meeting of the Western Hemisphere's foreign ministers.

The Inter - American Peace Commission, an agency of the OAS, has called a meeting in Washington today with representatives of the United States and the peace commission hopes to meet with President Johnson later today or Tuesday.

Panama's ambassador to the United Nations, Aquilino Boyd, said meanwhile the perpetual U.S. right to operate the canal must be ended and a time fixed that Panama will take over the waterway. He did not set a date.

A.N.A.F. Weekly News

At the last executive meeting the following chairmen were appointed: — Beverage, P. R. Kelly; Membership, Pat Boyle, House, T. Nicle, Entertainment, T. McCormick, Sports, Al. Brenton 226, Elmer Scott, R. G. Ford, Sick, R. Ridley, 223, Art Franklin 249 & 47, Publicity, W. J. Ford. The President also appointed the following: head Bar-tender, Christopher, Sgt-at-Arms, W. Fairborn, Sgt-Major, A. S. Hobbs.

It was reported that the Belleville Darts Association are going to have another of their popular mixed darts tournaments to be held in the clubrooms on Saturday, January 25, from noon until completed. The same rules as before will be in effect, that is, ladies play off in the Auditorium, men in the downstairs clubroom and the mixed doubles in the Auditorium. Plenty of prizes and, depending how soon the tournament is finished, the evening will finish with a spot of dancing. Reserve this date as there is always a very good time had at these affairs.

The entertainment chairman is planning to have a stag night in the near future, before the next gazenl meeting if it can be arranged.

The house chairman reports that the heat from the radiator under the stage is one where the lovely Bible, presented to the club by Mrs. Wilson in memory of her late husband, valued comrade, Clayt Wilson, is having an adverse effect on the Bible. The chairman, Dale, has also removed it until a proper case can be made for it and placed on it, and this case is now ready, any comrade wishing to read a few verses, can contact Comrade Dale.

If any comrade would like to serve on any of the committees, he can see any of the officers or with the chairman you have chosen.

GREAT YEAR PROMISED

The President congratulated the various chairmen on their appointments and expressed himself satisfied that they would all do their jobs and work as a team. He is looking for a great year and hopes that the general body will give all the executive their loyalty and assistance whenever it is needed. He also hopes that they will contact any members who are ailing at present but members of the club and invite them down so they can see the facilities of the club and the comradeship. Then suggest to them to fill out an application and continue to enjoy the privileges of the Association, not forgetting the big summer picnic and Christmas party for the children and looking after the interests of the Veteran and their dependents.

The Sick Chairman, Roy Ridley, reports that the following comrades are still recuperating at home and coming along all right while those comrades are in the Belleville Gen. Hospital, Ab. Brenton 226, Elmer Scott, R. G. Ford, Sick, R. Ridley, 223, Art Franklin 249 & 47, Murray, Home. They are being visited and looked after and are progressing favorably.

Dominion President J. C. Lundberg on the last general meeting, emphasized the need for a drive to increase the membership. He is donating a prize for the member who brings in the most active members to join the club, from now until March 31st, 1964.

Memories are rapidly dimming of the sacrifices and suffering endured by those gallant men, who have fought for their country over the past years, by those who, for some reason or other, were not in the wars. It is up to all veterans to keep those memories alive in the minds of the government and general public. The only way to do this is to get the younger generation of veterans for the larger the membership is, the more power they will be employed by those gallant men and needs of ex-servicemen and their dependents.

VETERAN NEEDED

Powerful groups, including several papers, are doing all they can not only to discourage any increase and betterment of the veterans way of life, but want to have it decreased and in some instances, to abolish some of the benefits that a grateful country awarded them.

That is why we need a Vet. badly needed, to fight back at these people who would like to destroy widows and fatherless children of those who gave their all, and the disabled veterans and their children, and the barest necessities of life. Don't let this happen—Join up with the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans and throw your weight with this fight against those who have forgotten those years of a war or wars except when they have a raise in their taxes and see that maybe the pensions were raised and then they forget the need and pay for it.

All veterans are welcome to visit the clubrooms on Front St. where we will be pleased to answer questions they want to ask as to the aims and objects of the A.N.A.F. and the many services the club carries on, will be gladly answered. Remember, in unity there is strength and where was the strength more needed, so unite with your brothers-in-arms in the A.N.A.F. and save existence. Join Unit 201 today.

Five Had Brush With Death As Car, Boat Broke Ice

Provincial police issued the warning after five men had a brush with death near Redneresville yesterday.

In two separate incidents an automobile and a propeller driven sikiboat went through ice patches during the weekend.

About 11 a.m., Paul Macbold, R.R. 1, Belleville, drove his automobile out on the Bay at Niggar Narrows, about a mile south of Redneresville.

With him were Ronald Gardiner, 83 Holmes Road, and Maurice Douglas, 215 MacDonald Avenue.

About 100 feet from shore the car broke through the ice and sank in about five feet of water. Police say a strong current had helped undermine the ice.

All three men scrambled from the automobile unhurt.

About two hours later while the three men were on the scene with a skindiver saving the car, they spotted a ski boat — powered by a propeller — approaching the area.

All three tried to wave the craft away, but their signals apparently went unrecognized by boat owner George Jones of 14 Pleasant Blvd. Leighton, both of R.R. 2 Trenton.

About 1,000 feet away, say police, the ice had already caved in and the boat dropped through into the bay.

Jones and Leighton were rescued by Gardiner and his friends and the skindiver.

Suffering from cold, they were taken to the nearby residence of Jack Frost to thaw out.

"The weather is too mild to venture out on a boy right now", a provincial police officer noted. "The ice surface has started to honeycomb. It should be left alone."

Kingston Wins Tankard Playoff At Quinte Club

Rinks skipped by Jake Edwards and Al Cromarty of Kingston won the Tankard playdowns for Division Two at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday. They defeated the Quinte Club 24-15 in the afternoon draw after the local club had defeated the Trenton rink in the morning 27-14. The winners will go to Oshawa this January 31st for the finals in the zone playoffs, where three other division winners will participate in a four-rink contest with composite score to count.

The Quinte Curling Club had Dave Brown skipping a rink of Bill Gilmour, Bill Wallace and Murray Johnson with Johnson skipping the rink but throwing third rocks while Stan Reston skipped the second rink and he had as teammates Don Green, Wes Andrews and Ron Cass.

In the morning round they defeated the RCAF rink and were always on top. The local rink carried exceedingly well and made difficult shots at the critical times. The Service rinks had a hard time reading the ice and were defeated in a very narrow misses.

In the afternoon game the local rinks made a grand stand and until the last end had a commanding lead, but Cy Slack's stone scored eight points on the 12th to put the game away. Trenton scored the last two ends, while Edwards scored a big eight on the last end against Stan Reston. In the Reston-Edwards game two ends were blanked.

The local rinks played exceedingly well, especially against the Slack rink of the Kingston rinks. The down east club had been through the fire of Tankard playdowns and they do not will underestimate the skill of every member of the team that represents the trade. They were defeated by a close margin and have the experience.

This was the first effort in the Tankard by any of the local rinks and the experience will stand them in good stead in future playdowns. There were many in attendance and at times, behind the glass, applauded the good shots that were made in difficult situations.

Claude Tice acted as umpire in place of the convener, Bill Gault, who was out of the city, curling in Utica.

RCAF: Skip, Jack Curtis; Vic Gregg Fraser, Art Sharpe, Skip v. Quinte: Skip, Bill Gilmour; Don Johnson, Murray Johnson, Dave Brown, Skip Jake Edwards.

P. C. Delegates Named to Attend Meet

A well attended and enthusiastic meeting of the South Hastings Progressive Conservative Association executive was convened at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Grills on Saturday evening.

Lloyd Ireland, president of the riding association called Mr. "Ted" Parker, Jr., president of the Trenton P-C Association were named alternate delegates to the Ottawa annual meeting on May 2nd. Alternate delegates named are Mr. Alvin Long, Reeve of Tyendinaga Twp. and Mrs. Douglas Atkins both vice-presidents of the riding association.

Mr. Lee Grills, P.C. spokesman for the party in South Hastings will attend as a delegate at large. Indications are that Mr. Grills will be appointed to Ottawa by one of the largest group of party stalwarts ever to attend a national party convention from this riding.

The Women's P.C. Association of Canada convenes on February 3rd in the Chateau Laurier and Mrs. Mae Haggarty has been named to represent the Belleville Ladies' P.C. Association. The general annual meeting of the P.C Association of Canada for all delegates and supporters convenes February 4th and 5th.

Many outstanding speakers will address the meeting, foremost of whom will be the national party leader, the Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker.

P. Charlsworth New Head of Retarded Assoc.

TRENTON — Flight Lieutenant Peter Charlsworth was elected to head up the Trenton-Brighton and District association for Retarded Children at last Thursday's annual meeting. Vice-president will be Mrs. R. J. "Bobbie" Reid, who will also head up a new department, the Home Care department. Mrs. Reid will visit homes, where there are preschool retarded children and assist the parents to prepare them for entrance to the area school for the retarded, west of Trenton.

Mr. and Mrs. Cy Sloat and Mr. and Mrs. Keith Rabbon will take over another new department, that of concerning themselves with the welfare of the retarded children who pass the age of 16 and are no longer eligible to attend the school. The local group hopes to integrate these children in to "sheltered" employment, eventually.

Other executive officers elected Thursday were: Mrs. Marie Rose, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Ann Hamilton, secretary; Norman McKay, treasurer; James Dwyer, program chairman; Mrs. Jean Bowerman, public chairman; Fred Bartzal, publicity. Immediate past president is Mrs. Ann Hamilton.

Thursday night's meeting was held at the school with 30 children in attendance. The Keno square dancing group from the RCAF performed for the members and their guests and the children, who had much enjoyment in watching the dancers put on a square dance session of their own following the meeting.

Elmer Bonter Chairman for March of Dimes

TRENTON — Named this week to head up the 1964 March of Dimes campaign for funds locally was Elmer Bonter, of R. I, Carrying Place. Mr. Bonter has served many years on the local Cancer society's fund-raising campaign with success and has also been organizing captains for the various dealerships and areas in Trenton. The captains, Mrs. Bonter explained, Marching Mothers for a blitz campaign for funds in February. Mrs. John P. Robarts, wife of Ontario's Prime Minister, will be the Chief Marching Mother for the province.

Money raised from the March of Dimes campaign will go towards the rehabilitation of crippled children and adults With the assistance of volunteers and organizations, the March of Dimes operates "protected workshops" throughout the province where crippled adults are taught a trade. Trenton is one of 17 communities which has such a workshop. Located at R. H. 4, Trenton, on No. 2 Two Highway, between Trenton and Smithfield, the workshop is called "Operation Recovery" and is run by Lawrence Pattison and Margery Alexander. Costume jewellery is manufactured from native Canadian semi-precious stones, much of it from soap stone, mined at Bancroft.

$250 Damage In Accident

TRENTON — A Trenton area man, Jack Paul Harry of R.R. 5, Trenton, escaped injury early Sunday morning when he lost control of his car on Division Street and struck a parked post, veering off the post to strike the car on the lawn of 120 Division St. Damage to the car was estimated at $250. The road was damp and slippery at the time.

District Key Club Members Hold Convention in City

The event unlocked the city to more than 100 Key Club members — the high school offspring of Kiwanis.

With Quinte Secondary School Key Clubbers playing official hosts rally drew teenage students from across Central and Eastern Ontario — the area zoned as Division 4 of the Key Club network.

The guest register at QSS showed delegates from Barrie, Orillia, Lindsay, Trenton, Cobourg, Peterborough plus the three Belleville high schools.

It may not have been the most senior — or biggest — convention of its kind here, but what it lacked in years and numbers was offset by sheer weight of activity. With only 12 hours at their disposal — the event opened at noon and closed at midnight — the Key Clubbers rolled out a full program of events.

Immediately after registration all delegations paired off in a basketball tournament — won, incidentally, by their QSS hosts. A two-hour business session followed, then a banquet at the Kiwanis Centre. The parcel of events was finally tied up with a dance back at the QSS auditorium.

However, the young 'uns were not without attention from the adults.

SPRUNG SURPRISE

The Kiwanis club sprung a surprise early in the convention by challenging the winners of the basketball tourney.

A team of hand-picked Kiwanians trotted out on the gym floor to engage the younger QSS victors. There was something engaging, if not downright surprising about the result.

The veterans, although reputedly forced to spell each other on the bench, held the game to a 12-12 tie.

One of the district's senior businessmen also turned out the most popular figure of the convention. Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton, as guest speaker at the banquet, dipped into some personal memorbilia as he recalled his start, and eventual success in business.

It all started, said Mayor McFarland when his father told him he could not make a success of himself and advised him to stick with the family farm.

However, said the mayor, he was determined to prove otherwise.

The moral: "No matter what you make up your mind to do, you can do it!"

Picton Mayor Once Challenged Jack Dempsey

Harvey McFarland, who has held on international sports titles for Canada as eagerly as highway contracts, started early in the championship game.

Saturday night, speaking to a gulp of high school Key Clubbers, the Picton contractor and mayor of Picton revealed he once decided to challenge Jack Dempsey. He never got to land a punch but he struck up a lasting friendship with the great ring champ as a result.

The man who later became associated with such international sports headliners as Marilyn Bell, the Harmsworth Trophy, Belleville MacFarland's world hockey winners and skating champ Don Foster, told this story:

As a young lumberjack, Mayor McFarland blossomed as boxing champion among his mates. Broke, he decided to challenge Dempsey to see if I could bring the championship to the Dominion of Canada."

He received a reply from Dempsey's manager requesting details on his backing and management.

Mayor McFarland replied: "I have no money, I have no backing, I have no manager — but I guess I can't fight Jack Dempsey."

Years later he and Dempsey — then ex-champ but all-time ring great — met by accident in a barbershop and struck up an acquaintanceship when the mayor retold, the story.

Belleville Car Finishes First In Sports Rally

Novices were less confused than the experts in yesterday's "January Rally," staged by the Quinte Auto Sport Club. The rally was planned for novices but open to experts, and the experts were often confused by too-simple instructions according to rally organizer Fred Blake. Twenty-two cars drove the route through Redesville, Bloomfield and Mountain View to the finish line of Rossmore.

Provisional results show the winning car was driven by Bob Boyce and navigated by Milt Johnson, both of Belleville. Because the team is classified as expert by the club though, the pair get only starting and finishing points toward the club championship. First place points are provisionally assigned to the second place car and the novice team of Bruce Wallbridge and Mike McCarvy.

Of the six Q.A.S.C. cars entered in the Snowball Rally in Kingston Saturday, three tied for fourth place in the more-than 35-car field. The three-way tie was between the teams of Dr. Bob Allore-Derek Payne, Bruce Wallbridge-George Grimson Jr. and Fred Blake-Bill Grimson. The other Q.A.S.C. cars in the rally finished with lower standings.

National Ballet Program Will Include Old and New

One of the brightest and gayest of ballets "Les-Rendesvous" has become an international favorite. Created for Britain's Royal Ballet, formerly Sadler's Wells by the famed Sir Frederick Ashton, it has featured some of the greatest stars in ballet, such as Alicia Markova and Dame Margot Fontyn.

There is no story to the ballet, only a series of charming divertissements and delightfully flirtatious interludes which take place in the park on a lovely summer day. Now a popular fixture in the repertoire of the National Ballet of Canada, it will be presented on Wednesday, January 29th at Belleville Collegiate auditorium at 8.30 p.m.

This, the first number on the local program stars in pas de Jocelyn Terelle, well-known and well loved by Belleville audiences. Jenny Blanton, Yves Cousineau, and a score or so other men and girls perform the eight featured of this Ballet divertissement. The fine Ballet orchestra is as usual conducted by its own Mr. George Crumb.

A new ballet Allegresse, by one of the best known choreographers Zachary Solov, is an exciting addition to the repertoire of the National Ballet of Canada. Originally created by Mr. Solov for a small company, he has expanded it for the larger Canadian Company.

Described as a ballet of virtuoso dancing in the classical style, the production builds to a rousing finale.

In this number, prima ballerina Lois Smith and premier danseur David Adams perform.

Miss Smith's career began in her native Vancouver when she started dancing lessons at ten and at seventeen landed a role in the road company producting of "Song Of Norway". She performed with the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera Company and toured the United States and Canada in "Oklahoma" before returning to Vancouver to dance in "Theatre Under the Stars". It was at this time she met David Adams recently returned from England. They were married and both joined the newly founded National Ballet of Canada.

David Adams returns this season after a lengthy period with London's celebrated Festival touring Britain and the Continent. A charter member of the Canadian Company, Mr. Adams a vigorously handsome six footer is noted for his superlative leaps and commanding stage presence.

Following the performance, a reception will be held at the Hotel Quinte: tickets $1.25. The general public will be welcome.

LOWER COST FINANCING. If you are a homeowner, lower-cost financing is available to you. You can obtain immediate cash to pay all your bills; pay off an existing mortgage; pay for your children's university education; make home improvements; travel, or for any worthwhile purpose.

LOANS AVAILABLE TO $10,000. Depending upon the property involved and the amount of your equity in it, (the difference between the value of your property and the amount owing on it) you can borrow up to $10,000.

MONTHLY INTEREST RATES FROM 1% TO 1¼%. Depending on the location of your home, its value, and the amount of your equity, interest rates are from 1% to 1¼% per month (12% to 15% per annum) on the unpaid balance.

NO HIDDEN CHARGES! NO BONUS! NO BROKERAGE FEES! There are never any hidden charges in a SUPERIOR loan. You will know, before you sign, exactly how much you receive, how much you repay, and the true interest rate.

Your low monthly payments cover all principal and interest. There is never any balance owing at the end of the term.

PAYMENTS TO SUIT YOUR BUDGET. You can take up to ten years to repay your loan in low monthly payments. However, you can prepay all or part of the loan at any time, without notice or penalty. Since interest is charged only on the unpaid balance, prepayments reserve that early payment mode reduces the amount of interest being charged.

The Southward Flow

A Vancouver businessman, Alexander K. G. Reid, has suggested a new tax formula, which would divide taxpayers into three main groups.

This is just one of several formulae presented to the royal commission on taxation. These formulae vary in conformity with their aim, generally the protection of the interests of some particular group. Mr. Reid's formula differs in that it is designed to solve a special problem, the steady loss of Canadian citizens to the U.S.

We doubt whether any tax scheme can achieve the results which Mr. Reid desires.

There might, however, be some other measures which we could take in order to reduce the loss of these citizens, many of them amongst our most highly skilled.

The first thing to determine is what proportion of these emigrants leave because they can get richer in the U.S. than in Canada. As long as the U.S. is a wealthier country than Canada—and it is likely to remain so for many decades at least—there will always be some Canadians who will put wealth ahead of all other considerations and will move south. We ought not to be overly concerned with the loss of these individuals who emigrate for this motivation—though we might be well advised to consider whether we could instill higher aims into more of our citizens. What ought to concern us, though, is any case where the emigrant left because of an urge to fulfill himself, to learn rather than to earn. In some cases this will present a problem which cannot be solved. The lure of Broadway and of Hollywood would be strong for those in the entertainment world, even if the salaries were not higher. It is difficult to see what could have been done to prevent the loss of highly skilled aeronautical engineers and scientists after the demise of the Avro Arrow. In some other fields, though, Canada offers facilities for achievement the equal of any in the world. If young people in these professions leave for the south, we ought to make sure that there is not some other appeal besides the almighty dollar. We ought to remedy promptly any defects in our social fabric which push such people out of the country.

There is, of course, one natural asset which the U.S. possesses and which Canada will never be able to match—a warmer climate. Nobody should blame individuals who migrate for that reason. Nor ought we to sneer at those who answer the lure of strange places. Canada would be a much different land had this lure been powerless to move energetic, hardworking people from their native hearths.

But where the emigrant is after money alone, the best thing we can do is to let him go quietly, and to hope that, in our neighbor's best interests, the U.S. is getting a better bargain than would seem likely.

Always, of course, providing that what we are offering in Canada is something better than poverty. The man who pulls up stakes to avoid hardship for his family deserves not criticism but applause.

Would It Be Simple?

The economic problems which would result from disarmament would be simple to solve compared with those of the 1945-47 post-war reconstruction period.

That is the opinion of the Canadian Government, as presented in a report to the United Nations, which is studying the economic consequences of complete world disarmament.

We hope this confidence is not misplaced. Certainly concern about economic dislocation resulting from disarmament should not be permitted to delay disarmament for even a day, if it ever becomes otherwise feasible.

We have some reservations, though, about minimizing the likely effect of disarmament on our economy, on the basis of the results achieved following the end of the Second Great War.

In 1945, following over five years of war, there was a backlog of pressing needs, both public and private. We were short of houses, schools, cars, refrigerators, washing machines, stoves—a hundred and one things, big and small. Moreover, many Canadians had considerable savings, in war savings certificates, in bonds, in demobilization benefits.

There was no having difficulty selling all the homes, refrigerators, television sets, tape-recording machines that we are producing. There is a growing backlog of consumer debt.

This would make a difference—perhaps more than enough to offset the much lower portion of our facilities devoted today to defence production, compared with the proportion in 1945.

Mr. Hays Should Dry Up

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Dairy farmers in the Stratford area, at the regular meeting of the Western Ontario Cheese Exchange, spent some time in good-natured discussion of a report that the Minister of Agriculture for Canada has a new policy, of encouraging Canadian farmers to go out of business every winter. The gentlement arose in three forms. They were not certain that any such thing had been said by the Dominion Minister; if it was, they were not certain exactly what had been said; if the Minister had announced a policy for the dry-ing - off of cows every winter, they were not certain how much attention to pay to it.

The Minister, the Hon. Harry Hays, of Calgary, said it, right enough, although the statement did not get much attention at the time. The opinion was tossed off in a speech made at Chicago by Mr. Hays, to the Chicago Farmers' Club. The purpose of this trip to Chicago by the Canadian Minister of agriculture is supposed to be partly to persuade an influential group of wealthy American livestock farmers that they should not oppose the import of Canadian livestock to the United States. The Minister's approach to this problem was to play the clown, and make a folksy - folksy speech.

* * *

His address was not widely reported at the time, and the nature of the remarks made by the Minister would be lost to the United States as the voice of Canadian agriculture, did not become known in Canada until the text of his speech was put on the Hansard record by an opposition member.

A typical extract: "One year we might have a big crop like we had this year. We sold my last 3,000 bushels of wheat on 300 acres, and he hasn't had it marketed since. Next year the old lady can away with the hired man so he's in a real mess, this fellow."

The Minister went on in this vein for 40 minutes, and no doubt his Chicago audience got the idea that national agricultural policy in Canada is directed by a very amusing fellow, who can be folksy with the farmers.

* * *

In the course of the 40 minutes Mr. Hays tossed off the notion that dairy farmers who do not produce for the fluid market should hibernate in the winter, and produce milk only in the summer. "We are giving great consideration to educating our people to live with geography," he added. "In terms of dairy farming in Western Canada, this off-and notion would apply to the majority of farmers who keep cows, and the hibernators would include farmers who sell to concentrated - milk plants, farmers who sell to cheese factories, and farmers who sell cream to creameries."

The notion is nonsense, of course. Back in pioneer days in Ontario, the cows used to fatten themselves off in the fall, and the best the farmer hoped for during the winter was that the cows would survive on scanty rations in its draughty little log shelter. The idea that this is still the hard work, from the skin-and-bones-in-February style of dairy farming, and its simply inconceivable that it would ever be national policy for the modern dairy farmer to stop the 12-month investment with six months production, or that every creamery, cheese factory and milk processing plant should shut down and stand idle for half of every year. We don't do things that way in Ontario farming, and the big dairy industry would collapse in chaos if we tried to go back to the methods of 100 years ago.

* * *

However, there is really nothing to worry about in Mr. Hays' speech, because the only thing it proves is that Prime Minister Pearson did not have much to choose from, when he was choosing a minister for the agriculture portfolio in the Dominion cabinet.

It has been traditional that the Dominion minister of agriculture should be from the West. In the whole stretch of territory from the Ontario boundary to the Rockies, there are only three Liberals, and two of them are city people. That leaves Mr. Hays, and that's who we have. He does not have enough experience to realize that when a minister of agriculture talks about agriculture, people may take him seriously. After all, he's supposed to know.

There is no danger at all that Mr. Hays, as minister, will introduce a national policy for the drying-off of Ontario cows every November. The responsible senior officials in his Department will keep things on the rails, while they nurse along a fledgling minister. Experienced cabinet colleagues will prevent any really horrible blunders in national agricultural policy.

Mr. Hays could help a little bit, just by refraining that clowning is a good occupation for clowns, but that it is not a suitable occupation for responsible heads of departments when they are publicly discussing their departmental business.

U.S. Bases Are Looted

Detroit Free Press

The United States Air Force has finished turning over to Morocco the three bases it had in that country.

But about all Morocco has gotten out of it are the runways and stripped shells of buildings. Not that we took everything else with us, but our rearguard and the Moroccan army together were helpless against the swarms of native looters.

They overran the bases as fiercely by day as by dark. Everything was up for grabs, electrical equipment, you name it. One looter was so avid that he forgot to break an electrical connection, but apart from his ambition seems to have come to have gotten seriously hurt.

An Air Force report, written when the pillaging had run its course, said that "these actions are rendering the facilities now closed useless to anyone."

Maybe, however, we shouldn't feel too aggrieved at the Moroccans' behavior. The base couldn't have been of any worthwhile use to Morocco, and millions of dollars worth of commodities have entered the Moroccan economic stream at its consumer level.

If we were going to write off the bases anyway, it's probably better to let the natives get everything rather than King Hassan and his royal bureaucrats. The King, at least it would be hard to begin with.

Of course it may be held that a veritable carnival of theft should not be rationalized or condoned. However, as any veteran of the World War II North African campaign can tell you wholesale looting is a historic way of life in that part of the world. In fact, many natives might not like to see the sustain life except for the expertise at larceny—petit or grand.

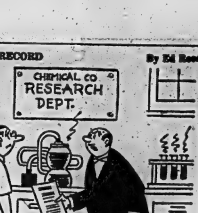
Isle of Man No Las Vegas

New York Herald-Tribune

The men of the Isle of Man and their holiday visitors from the big isles of Britain had led a sweet, pastoral life — until three operators came along from Las Vegas and made the island the dubious delights of that American gambling resort.

They presented a prospectus for a casino, complete with tables for roulette, chemin de fer, twenty-one and dice. To the hum of the casino wheels would put the cows to flight and clear the isle for action. The happy gamblers from England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, and elsewhere.

Our Pilgrim fathers, notably those of Methodist and Labor party persuasion, abandoned at the vision of ruined vacationers burying their losses in drink and hesitating between suicide and the long road home to face the horror of bankruptcy and hungry children.



The government authorities, tired of the pastoral life and tempted by a percentage of the casino's profits, were willing to gamble on the sturdy character of the British.

The results are now in after the first major gambling experiment of this kind in Britain. They expected boatloads and planeloads of professional gamblers, their bags bulging with money from their latest raid on a mail train or truck, to have rolled in to up. The crowds were modest. The bets were moderate, averaging less than $3.

The promotors wailed: "We feel we ae unsupporting an amusement arcade rather than a casino."

They bet that time and tide had swept away the spirit of our Pilgrim fathers — and they lost.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

January 20th, 1914.

"It's something new to be going from fires in January, but we've had four or five this week," stated Fire Chief William Lynch as he commented on the series of grass blazes which have kept the department more or less busy during the past few days.

The most recent fire of this description occurred in an open five acre field behind the girls' residence of Albert College. With the long grass and weeds made bone dry by the constant frosts and sunny days, the blaze got away from a considerable expanse before being extinguished. The firemen were also called to Sterling Lore some yesterday to bring a grass fire under control, but as the blaze was outside the city limits the department did not answer the call.

Once again bearing out that oft-repeated contention that the nations of Britain's Belleville General Hospital during 1913 number 1,006 setting an all-time record for the number of births at the institution in any previous year, births registered at the hospital during the year than there were females. The actual count was 524 boys as against 482 girls.

Out of Step With Times

St. Thomas Times-Journal

There is a boys recreation club attached to the Roman Catholic Church of St. David's in Plains, Pembroke, Scotland. They mingle with Protestant boys in their outside-the-church games without thought of religious distinctions, and 18 months ago they opened the door of their club and invited their friends to share their activities.

That has been stopped now. The parish priest inveighed: "This mingling with Protestant boys must stop," he said. "This club for Catholic boys only."

Many people will feel that the priest is out of step with the times. He may realize that it is read some of the Holy Father's remarks during his tour of the Holy Land in which he advised—sincerely —for Christian unity.

We feel sure that if Pope Paul visited Plains and learned about this priest's action, it would cause him much distress.

Traffic Increase

Ottawa Citizen

The volume of traffic on the Seaway is rising year by year, which of course is desirable. But the fact that the mouth of the St. Lawrence (unlike, for example, the Hudson Bay route) has a congested channel for vessels, is evident that more safety precautions must be taken, and the responsibility lies with the transport departments and harbor authorities as well as with ship captains and their pilots.

To Your Good Health

Griseofulvin an Antibiotic Which Works on Fungi

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Thank you for your article on fungus and growths beneath the fingernails and toenails.

I took 500 units of griseofulvin pills, four units a day, and used an ointment.

I had this infection for about 30 years and had been to hospitals and clinics with no luck and spent a couple of years of writing it cured until I read your article about griseofulvin.

It really did the trick and I can be proud of my nails again. Pass the good news on to others who have this condition. — J. K.

This drug (which is available under a variety of trade names) has cleared up cases which have defied every other known treatment.

I don't suppose anybody ever died of fungus of the nails but it can be an annoying, unsightly, embarrassing condition. To my way of thinking (shared, no doubt by most doctors) it's the physician's task not only to save lives but to make lives happier and more comfortable. So I'm glad that it did the trick for you, and I've had notes from others telling the same story.

It's important to let people know about the newer treatments that have come along since a few years ago when, as Dr. J. K. they quit trying because nothing then worked.

You can't get griseofulvin at the drug store without a prescription. The antibiotic has to be rather carefully calculated by your physician.

Griseofulvin is an antibiotic which works on fungi rather than bacteria. It isn't a sensational break-through because it got had the publicity that the "wonder drugs" merited. In its way, it is just as important in the scientific achievement, though.

A word of caution: It doesn't control all fungi — but then, neither can the antibiotics control all germs.

It does do a remarkable job in the right cases, and has in a few weeks or months cured cases that have been a misery or formerly known treatment for years, and sometimes for decades.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 18 and have started getting migraine headaches. Is there any relation between them and a nervous stomach? I enclose 20c in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy of your booklet; "How To Tame Headaches" — J. W.

Yes, migraines very frequently are accompanied by stomach upsets which subside when the headache does. To receive a copy of this leaflet, write to Dr. Molner, in care of the Chicago Tribune Syndicate, P. O. Box 158, Dundee, Ill.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: What could be the cause of loose bowels or diarrhea in a man aged 60? He has been bothering him for six months. Has anyone else had this trouble? — Mrs. R. S.

It has happened many times before. The answer? Colitis, "nervous colon," inflammation or infection or infestation of the intestine, cancer (the danger signal of "some change in bowel habits") a partial obstruction, yet non-cancerous. Shall I continue the list, or is this enough to persuade you (or him) that there is a condition develops, there is only one thing to do. Have your doctor begin checking to see which of many possibilities is the cause. And the sooner the better.

Note to G. S.: Yes, I see what it says in the ad you enclose — that a "lifetime guarantee" is given for this "non - surgical treatment" of ruptures. That means pretty much as the "money-back guarantee" that we see so often. I have yet to know anybody who got his money back, and I don't think anybody would be the poorer if this phrase were to be abolished totally. There are several ways to limp along with a rupture (hernia) but the only dependable cure I know is surgery.

Explosion Right Word

Vancouver Province

Those who think that the term "population explosion" is an exaggeration coined by alarmists should reflect on the figures.

Earlier this year, Time Economist, of London, published a survey which predicted that India alone anticipates acquiring some 116 million extra mouths to feed by 1971.

This means that in seven years Nehru's nation by itself will add to the world's population more than half another United Kingdom.

A much faster rate of population growth is being experienced in India because of the applications of medical science. Malaria, which used to claim a million lives every year, has been eradicated.

Measures are under way to eliminate by the end of the year great killers — cholera and smallpox — and for most Indians the prospects of survival are infinitely greater than a few years ago.

The basic problem in India is providing enough food for the millions of additional hungry mouths that arrive each year. Unemployment in the country could also wash about nine million with another 10 to 18 million chronically underemployed, according to the Economist.

Can it be considered a divide in human progress if our improved medical science saves millions of lives from disease and then threatens them with hunger and starvation?

Men and his inventiveness have eliminated many of Malthus's cruel biological factors, which kept human population within bounds.

If our race does not wish to overrun the earth to a point at which there will not be enough space to live, let alone raise food, it will have to find substitutes for the population curbs of a more barbarous age.

To skimp on social welfare services today is merely to incur further costs tomorrow for prisons, hospitals, courts and other agencies of last resort—far more costly in each case for society's mistakes and misfortunes.

Cheese Exchange

Raw milk colored cheese sold at 35½c for both regular and square types, on the Belleville cheese exchange last week.

There were 4,122 specials, 5,573 large regulars and 2,588 first grade colored squares offered on the board.

First-new milk white cheese sold at 35¾ cents per pound. LOW WATER AL

The city's fire department responded to three fire alarms over the weekend.

The first call was received at 10.04 p.m. Saturday from the Belleville General Hospital. Fire Chief Gerald Vance said low water pressure caused the automatic alarm system to be trigered. The alarm was false.

A TV set was badly damaged at the home of Mrs. J. I. Burgess at 221 Herchimer Avenue shortly after noon on Sunday and at 1.50 p.m. firemen were called to the home of Mr. Jack Fraser, 45 North Front Street where an investigation for leaking gas was carried out.

He Asked for It

ATLANTA (AP) — State Senator James Wesberry is wondering what he will do with a mule presented to him by a group of rural senators.

"Gee, it works," exclaimed Wesberry at the presentation Sunday.

"Haw, not much," said the boys from the farms.

The toothless mule, called Ole Wes, spent the night in a specially built stall in a hotel lobby.

Wesberry, from Atlanta, got the mule as a gift when he remarked that there are about 100 farmers in the legislature who should be back behind plows.

Planning Board Against Application for Medical Clinic on Dundas St. East

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board has decided against the application of Dr. J. N. Hartt requesting an amendment to present zoning regulations to allow consuction of a medical clinic at 260 Dundas Street, East.

The board's recommendation that the application be not approved will be submitted to city council today although it is not expected the matter will be dealt with until a later meeting.

In recommending that Dr. Hartt's application be not approved, the board at the same time recommended that the definition of a "clinic" be clearly defined in the city's by-laws and also that council consider changing the category of lease use of the Dundas Street area in question from an "A" district to a "B" district.

This change would allow multiple family dwellings and rooming houses, etc., as well as the one and two family residence now permitted.

PUBLIC HEARING

Dr. Hartt's request was originally placed before city council, which in turn referred it to the planning board. The board held a public hearing on January 9th at which time several persons entered objections to the requested zoning change.

Many of the objections were founded on the grounds that landowners had purchased property in the area in the belief that their investment and property would be safeguarded by the existing zoning provisions.

In its report the board noted that while changing conditions may necessitate a zoning revision in the area, presently implied safeguards must be recognized and the zoning by-law changed only where it is in the public interest to do so.

The board asked that it be given an opportunity to view detailed plans should the owners of 260 Dundas Street make application to proceed with the erection of a clinic building.

Here's why the Canadian Volkswagen has two heaters.

For ten years we've been fighting them with one heater.

In some areas it wasn't such a hot idea.

So we've added a second heater. It's a completely separate unit that doesn't get its warmth from the engine.

It means that on cold mornings you can heat the car faster. From twenty below to seventy above in minutes. Even while the engine is idling.

So, if you hear a rumour that Old Faithful is full of hot air, it's true.

The cars we build for Canada also get a heavy duty battery. (Don't buy a garage. Buy a Volkswagen.)

There are other reasons why the VW is a winter wonder.

Take traction.

The Volkswagen doesn't slip as easily as other cars because the engine is in the rear. It puts 200 pounds of weight where it does the most good: over the drive wheels.

To protect it against salt and sand and slush, the Volkswagen wears four coats of paint. Everywhere. Even under the dashboard where it doesn't need it.

And you'll never buy anti-freeze because the engine is cooled with air instead of water.

Now you know why we sell so many of our cars in Canada. Canadian winters.

Wedding Ring Not Usually Orange Cake Ingredient

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Two years ago my son married a girl who was beneath him socially, morally and intellectually. I don't know what Woodrow saw in Claudia. She certainly was nothing to look at.

I am not an interfering type, but when people ask for advice I offer it. Naturally when Woodrow began having trouble with Claudia he discussed it with me but I had nothing to do with his decision.

The divorce was granted Tuesday. On Wednesday I received by special delivery messenger a beautifully wrapped orange cake —my favorite. It was from my former daughter-in-law. I thought this was an extraordinary gesture, since Claudia and I were never friendly.

Innocently I served the cake to my bridge club that evening. I was horrified when one of the guests almost choked on the wedding ring which the little snip had dropped into the batter.

What do you make of it? — DUMB-FOUNDED.

* * *

DEAR FOUNDED — I think she was trying to tell you something.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The names which appear at the foot of this letter are authentic. We are eight registered nurses— all devoted readers of your column, and all in sharp disagreement with some advice you recently handed out.

You told a complaining male (the one who carried a thermometer in his pocket and took his temperature several times a day) that "he and some nice nurse would make a lovely couple."

We are all single, Ann, but we'd rather die single than marry a man who is looking for around-the-clock nursing care. We see plenty of illness during working hours. When we get home we don't want to put the cap back on and go back to work.

Please stop advising the germ-prone to "marry a nice nurse." We don't want 'em. —EIGHT AT ST. MARY'S.

* * *

DEAR EIGHT — Thanks for your letter. Please read the next one. It will be more effective than any comment I could make.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Where did you get the idea that a man who marries a nurse will get nursing care for the rest of his life? I was married to a nurse for seven years and all she ever did was prepare an ice-pack for a New Year's Eve hangover. Her standard phrase was, "Take two aspirins."

The expression, "The shoemaker's sons go barefoot" is true. My father was a photographer and my mother hollered at him every evening for 10 years before he finally took a picture of the family.

My brother-in-law is a carpenter. After six years of nagging, the roof of their house fell in and my sister had to hire a carpenter to come in and do the repair work.

So please, Ann, don't tell your male readers to marry a nurse —or anyone else—with the idea of getting free services. It won't happen. — BIN DERE.

* * *

DEAR BIN — And here's another letter from someone who learned the same sad lesson:

* * *

DEAR ANN — I married Bernie 10 years ago because I loved him — not because he was a furrier — although I do like fur and thought how nice it would be to have a beautiful fur coat.

Well, I have had eight fur coats in eight years and Bernie has sold every one of them right off my back. The minute some woman gives me a compliment Bernie gives her a special price.

It's below zero tonight. We are invited to a lovely party and I'm going in a cloth coat. — COLD IN THE SUBURBS.

* * *

DEAR COLD — Think mink . . . but wear your ski underwear.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: Our first child is to be christened in a few weeks and I'm planning a simple buffet luncheon for relatives and close friends after the ceremony. I'm planning for about thirty people. Is it necessary to send out a special printed or engraved invitation? What is the correct procedure in this case? I'd much prefer issuing invitations over the phone, if this is correct, since I'd then know immediately who will attend and be able to make my plans accordingly. — Mrs. C. L., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: Invitations to a christening are informal. A note may be sent, or invitations may be verbal, delivered in person or, as you prefer, over the telephone.

Question: Friends have asked us to be their guests at a dinner and dance. The husband is on the committee and will wear black tie. His wife will wear a long gown. Other guests at their table will be formally attired although from what I understand, dress is optional as far as the dance itself is concerned. My husband does not want to dress, but I think we should if our host and hostess do. What would you consider proper dress in such an instance? — Mrs. V. P., Providence, R. I.

Answer: The host and hostess set the pace. If they're dressing — and, as a member of the committee, the host should — then guests of honor should be guided accordingly and dress as formally as they do.

Houses Divide On Fashions For Spring

ROME (AP)—Five days of spring and summer fashion showings ended in Rome Saturday with houses divided between the pleated, panelled look and the slim, trim look.

Gregoriana was the last to show before Florence takes the spotlight. Her collection leaned definitely to neat and narrow lines.

Titanil, a new Rome house offering its first official collection, had gone the same way on Friday night to pull Italian fashion back from the series of pleats and billows displayed by Cardinani, Garnett, Tita Rossi and Faraoni.

Those four displayed a thoroughly appealing feminine approach. But it lacked the verve and dash that everyone was looking for and finally found at Titanil and Gregoriana.

Showing in Florence's Pitti Palace for the next five days will be some by Italy's most imaginative designers.

Their vague early predictions pointed to special importance for small bodices and pastel colors.

FLORENCE, Italy (Reuters) Full-length skirts appeared to be replacing trousers in boutique collections presented on the first Florentine day of the Italian spring-summer fashion show at the Pitti Palace Sunday.

After three or four seasons when trousers were an obsession, long skirts now are a favorite garment with most designers. A wide selection shown include long skirts in the knitted cotton, orlon, wool, lurex or combinations among them, to be worn casually while others are for formal occasions.

Do They Serve Afternoon Tea In Congress?

by Mary Moore

In the late Fall, Jane A. sent me a highly recommended little known recipe called Congress Squares. I was snowed under with Christmas baking and put it aside with a note "Try in January '64".

This I did last Saturday morning and they deserve a place in this column. It reached me by a circuitous route. Jane A. is Betty M's sister (a dear friend of mine in Peterborough) and Jane says the recipe came from Bob's (their brother) wife's aunt in Windsor, I think.

Anyway I've tried it and it is good and easy and I think will be especially welcome to members of large broods. Jane says it is "here today, gone tomorrow" type of thing No wonder there is such a contest for seats in Congress.

CONGRESS SQUARES

Line a 13 x 9" pan with rich plain pastry rolled ⅛" thick, lining sides to height of 1".

Filling: 2 eggs, beaten, 2 cups raisins (see notes), 2 cups brown sugar, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup chopped pecans (or walnuts), 1½ cups shredded coconaut.

In a medium bowl mix ingredients in order given (but see notes below). Turn into pastry-lined pan and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 18 to 20 minutes, having pan at exact centre of oven. Cut into 1½" or 2" squares when cold.

NOTES:

1) This filling is reminiscent of a thick butter tart filling which accounts for its popularity, especially since the whole business is done in one fell swoop.

2) Currants or dates may be substituted for the raisins or a combination of raisins, currants and chopped dates may be used.

3) My secretary, Eleanor, says she thinks she would like the addition of 1 tablespoon lemon juice or a little grated lemon rind, however, as I watched these being gobbled up I decided not to make any changes.

4) If desired, these could be cut into 3" squares while warm and served as dessert with a little whipped crem or ice cream or white cream cheese.

Old pioneer-style noodles make unusual tacks for picture frames.

Refreshments were served and a social half hour was enjoyed by everyone present.

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH

MINTO — The vestry meeting of St. Thomas' Church was held last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Tanner with a splendid attendance.

Supper was served at six following which the Rev. R. Stewart welcomed everyone and gave a resume of the work in the parish. He expressed appreciation to everyone for their kindnesses during the past year.

Minutes of the last vestry meeting were read by the church clerk, Mrs. Ed Colden, after which correspondence was read and some business was discussed.

Reports were given by Mr. Harry Geen, rector's warden, and by Mr. John Courtney, people's warden, who also gave the cemetery report. Miss Edna Tanner reported for the W.A.; also stated that the basement fund had been paid in full. Each of the reports showed gratifying balances and Mr. Stewart congratulated the congregation on a most successful year. He also extended personal appreciation to Mr. Geen, warden for the past year and appointed Mr. Lindsay Tanner as the new warden for 1964. Mrs. Colden was re-elected vestry clerk.

Mr. Courtney on behalf of the congregation moved a vote of thanks to Miss Edna Tanner as organist and caretaker for her faithful services, and Mrs. H. Geen presented with a gift for which she suitably replied.

The meeting closed with prayer by Mr. Stewart.

AGE IS MYSTERY

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Gertrude Holden of Farnham in Quebec's Eastern Townships may be 100 years old—or 101. The mystery, resulted when church records were found listing her birth date as Dec. 12, 1863. "But all her life she has believed she was born in 1862," said one of her nine grandchildren.

Ladies' Club Hears Talk on Western Tour

The regular meeting of the Prince Edward-Belleville Ladies' Club was held at the Recreation Centre with 16 members and one visitor present.

President Mrs. Clifford Dean opened the meeting and extended a welcome to all and "Grace".

After the various reports were given "thank-you" notes were read from Mrs. Brickman and Mrs. Trumpour. Flowers are to be sent Mrs. Westover, ill in hospital.

Mrs. Baird, president for the 1963-64 year, in the chair from retiring president, Mrs. Garbutt.

Mrs. Bedell, group convener, presented the program and readings were given by Mrs. Sharpe and Mrs. Bedell.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. Bedell introduced Mr. Charles Hyde who described a trip he and Mrs. Hyde had across Canada by train to the west coast, up the sea coast by boat to Alaska. They visited the main cities in Alaska and the Yukon, going by train and bus. They returned to Vancouver by boat. The last night on the boat was "Captain's Night," and a masquerade party was held. On the return trip they visited Jasper, Alberta.

Mrs. Bedell thanked all those who assisted with the program.

The president closed the meeting and a delicious lunch was served.

Women's Institute

PARK DALE W.I.

Mrs. A. Robinson opened her home for the January meeting of the Park Dale Women's Institute. Fourteen members and one guest answered the roll call.

Plans were made for the dinner on the town for paid up members in February. Bowling will follow the dinner. Mrs. Brown asked for a volunteer to represent the W.I. on the community centre board.

Mrs. Cone, convener for agriculture and Canadian industries read the motto "What we give we keep and what we sow we reap".

The program included a film "The Mighty B.C. Fir" giving in detail the beginning of pip-wood — following through the factory and including pictures of the many and varied uses of the products of this remarkable tree.

Refreshments brought the meeting to a close.

FASHION'S REJECTS

Why do some fashions end up on the "reduced rack"? If I knew the answer to that question, I would be one of the highest paid merchandise executives on the continent! Sometimes, but not often, the answer is obvious. Either bad styling, heavy unwieldy fabric or unappealing color can cause a fashion to be rejected. But, in most cases, the mystery deepens. Why did no one want to buy this light-weight, finely-woven, blue tweed dress? The color is pretty, the style attractive, the cut and fit shows care in manufacturing, and the leather belt is of good quality. It was a top over-prices, yet no one wanted to buy it.

Every wholesale fashion buyer, supplying a fashion store, constantly faces this problem of rejected styles. Many theories have been built up over the years. Many buyers say that a most of their rejected fashions are too advanced in styling and color. There is a saying in the market that goes something like this, "This year's markdown, sometimes can be next year's runner" (A runner is a top selling style.)

The ultimate in success is a happy record of every style in every color and size selling readily. But as this has never been known to happen, the buyer's main concern is to keep the number of rejected styles to a minimum. Many of them do this by avoiding what is known as "fringe sizes and colors" — that is, sizes and colors which are not in constant demand.

STATISTICS AVAILABLE

The buying public will often complain about the scarcity of one color, or of having difficulty obtaining fashions that fit, if their figure happen to deviate from the national average of 5' 4" inches tall and 130 to 135 pounds in weight. These are the latest Canadian statistics available.) Therefore, the best-selling size range should be a size 14 or 15. But there are many hidden factors in this great mystery of fashion, such as adaptability of fabric, styling and specialized fittings, that a great confusion often exists. Many women, whose measurements exactly fit the national average, find that their size range can vary from-nine 12 to size 18.

When all the needs of the average customer are considered such as color, style, and type of fashion, it is really surprising that so few clothes are found on the rejects. In many cases, it's a question of the right customer finding the-right dress at the right moment.

The ideal customer for that mysterious blue tweed was probably looking for a blue cocktail dress when it first arrived in the store. Let's hope they meet each other at the markdown rack.

If you have a question on fashion, just write Pegg Rogers care of this paper.

Eastminster U.C.W. List 1964 Officers

The Rev. A. McDowell installed the Eastminster U.C.W. executive in the church sanctuary at their recent meeting, and followed the installation with a talk on stewardship.

A short business meeting followed.

All retired to the basement for refreshments, during which a fashion show was presented. Mrs. R. Olesen, as commentator, read a poem which she composed herself, with a verse suitable to each model.

The new executive is as follows:

President, Mrs. J. Ham; vice-president, Mrs. A. Glover; recording secretary, Mrs. R. Graham; treasurer, Mrs. S. Armstrong; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. Kneeshaw.

Unit leaders are: Mrs. H. Ridey, Mrs. L. May, Mrs. M. Irwin, Mrs. E. Nicholson.

Church Groups

The regular monthly meeting of the ladies of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints met as guests at the home of Mrs. Larry Smith of Bayside on Wednesday evening. The worship period was conducted by Bro. Jack McCurdy.

Mrs. S. C. Else taught the study class on being guided by the spirit of wisdom.

The business meeting was conducted with Mrs. W. L. Cannifi in the chair. Mrs. Cannifi read the newsletter from Mrs. J. T. Westwood Jr., from church headquarters at Independence, Missouri, and reminded the ladies to donate games to be sent to the Korean children.

Following the meeting a quiz game was enjoyed and lunch was served by the hostess.

Women Operate 200 Acre Farm Without Any Help

ST. FELIX DE KINGSEY, Que. (CP)—Doing a man's work in a man's world is routine for the Wright sisters.

Mary, 51, and Helen, 47, operate a 200-acre farm all alone and make it produce most of their own needs—from meat and vegetables to strawberries and cream, from maple syrup to home-grown wool.

They mow hay with a tractor, deep-freeze their own produce and churn butter in an electric kitchen mixer.

Helen and May have been the main hands on the family farm for 16 years, and have been on their own since their father died 18 months ago.

Theirs is one of the most mixed farms in a mixed farming district, the centre of the Eastern Townships 70 miles east of Montreal.

They have one beef steer—a black Angus—and a herd of Jerseys, which they call on for meat as well as milk, butter and cream.

A two-acre plot is set aside for garden vegetables, an orchard yields apples and a small maple grove is tapped for syrup every spring.

GROW OWN FEED

The sisters keep a full henhouse, a flock of 22 sheep and lambs, and they occasionally raise pigs. The livestock eats home-grown oats during the winter.

May and Helen don't need horses any more — they persuaded their father to try a tractor 10 years ago—but they still have a pony as a pet.

"Princess was my birthday present," May says. "She came from Ontario by express. We took the back seat out of the car and brought her home in it."

Relatives still drop in on the Wrights on weekends for a home-grown and home - cooked meal.

They have three married sisters living in nearby communities, and hint they wouldn't really approve of women running a farm if there had been a brother in the family.

To fill any leisure time remaining, Helen sews fancy aprons while May watches television.

Plowing and wood-cutting are two things the women don't do.

A neighbor, Nelson Mastine, cuts firewood from their woodlot for them and a nephew, John Leroux of nearby Richmond, looks after the plowing in exchange for the use of a few acres to plant grain.

SUPER TANKER

Norway's biggest super-tanker, the 93,000-ton Norge Bergsen, cost about $9,000,000 to build.

I told my BOAC Travel Agent, "I've got a problem." He replied, "I've got four of my own . . ." I asked him about Baby's passport. "I'll look after that," he said. "What else can I do for you?"

Feeding bottles? "The Stewardess will sterilise and warm them." Baby foods? "Just ask for soups, fruits, eggs, orange juice." He told me all there was to know about flying with a baby. Then he reserved a Skycot for our flight. And gave me a booklet* packed full of useful hints.

As my husband said, we got Baby off to a flying start—thanks to our BOAC Travel Agent!

Why Are Our Churches Turning Young People Away?

DORIS CLARE

Why is it that our so-called Christian churches are not employing the Ten Commandments the Lord has given us, but have invented their own?

I Thou shalt not go to movies.
II Thou shalt not dance.
III Thou shalt not cut your hair.
IV Thou shalt not smoke.
V Thou shalt not drink any intoxicating liquids.
VI Thou shalt not go to a friend's church if your friend dances, for therefore his church is heathen.
VII Thou shalt steal if you can get away with it.
VIII Thou must be saved in such and such a church, otherwise you will not go to Heaven.
IX Thou shalt not kill unless it's under government orders.
X Thou shalt not play cards.

Everyone of the man-made commandments listed has been taught in one church or another. I know one instance in which a young teen-ager went to a dance and was removed from the choir because of it! Why?

Was it not the Lord who called the sinners to His church? Why, then, are our churches turning their young people away?—FELLOW SINNER.

DEAR FELLOW SINNER — Well, they aren't all, thank Heaven. We have many church-sponsored dances, teen-age social groups; and sessions conducted by the young people themselves to study Christ's teachings. The pre-Christian church had hundreds of regulations governing every last thing a man did; Christ changed all that, teaching that it was the spirit of the law that counted. He also said: "Love is the fulfilling of the law."

DEAR DORIS — I am 15 and look my age or maybe a little younger. I have been told by friends of my mother that I should be a model. I was picked for a school fashion show and I also modelled at a P.T.A. meeting.

What I want to know is this: Department stores often put out catalogues and there are nearly always some girls my age and younger modelling clothes. Is it possible for someone like me to do this modelling? Of course I could only do it in the summer and when I am out of school. — PIXIE.

DEAR PIXIE — If you have the figure and carry yourself well, no reason why you shouldn't get into the running. Whether your appointments could be made to jibe with out-of-school time is something else again. Any harm in asking?

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Is it proper for a girl 15 to accept an invitation to a boy's home for supper if not engaged to this boy?—WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING — Certainly — as long as her family o.k.'s the date an knows when she'll be home.

• • •

Confidential to A FEMALE WIFE IN WORRY — Physical beauty is not the only thing, as any grown man knows. Still, it is wise for every wife and mother to keep herself looking nice. Why not do a little flirting with your husband yourself?

CBC Service To Be Cut

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is considering drastic cuts in the CBC international service, informants said today.

The degree of the reduction in the multi-language shortwave radio broadcasts overseas could not be learned immediately.

However, there is speculation in official circles here that the government may be even considering wiping out the shortwave broadcasts altogether.

"Where there's smoke there's fire," said one source close to the cabinet, in commenting on these rumors.

LEON, Mexico (AP) — Thirteen persons, including six women, were indicted by a civil court Sunday on charges relating to a prostitution ring which apparently has been killing and secretly-burying young girls in the last 10 years.

securities was requested by the late president Kennedy more than six months ago. Although Canada has been promised a tax exemption on new security issues, introduction of this measure in Congress discouraged U.S. investment in Canadian and other foreign securities.

The economic report estimated that U.S. purchases of Canadian securities dropped to an annual rate of $264,000,000 in the July-September period from the annual rate of $1,838,000,000 in the January - March period last year.

The report said also that in receiving the U.S. pledge of a tax-free exemption on new issues, "Canadian authorities have agreed that it is not the intention of Canada to increase foreign exchange reserves through the proceeds of borrowing in the U.S., with the implication that borrowing would be restored to the more normal levels of earlier years."

Johnson pledged support of the Kennedy round of world tariff bargaining this year but he anticipated that in the field of foreign aid, the U.S. will encourage other countries to share more of the burden in helping the less-developed countries.

His council of economic advisers estimated that on the basis of 1962 figure — before Canada and Britain announced higher foreign aid contributions—Canadian bilateral economic aid amounted to 0.16 per cent of Canada's gross national product, compared with 0.84 per cent in the U.S.

Canada's defence expenditures were estimated in 1962 as 4.5 per cent of the Canadian gross national product, compared with 8.4 per cent in the U.S. Britain's 1962 bilateral economic aid was estimated at 0.70 per cent and her defence outlays at 6.4 per cent of gross national product.

corporate an actual production volume boost of some five per cent, would spill over into higher U.S. imports from Canada and other countries.

As an indication of how Canada has been able to compete in foreign trade, Johnson's economic advisers estimated in his report that while U.S. wholesale prices in foreign trade remained steady during 1959-63, Canadian and French prices, expressed in U.S. dollars, decline. These lower Canadian-French prices resulted from exchange rate depreciations in the two countries, the report said.

U.S. price stability was vital in the U.S. drive to reduce its international payments deficit, but there also must be "further economies" in the flow of U.S. government payments abroad and early enactment of the U.S. tax on foreign securities to help reduce the payments gap, Johnson said.

C of C Members Hear Talk On Planning at Banquet

PICTON (Staff) — "What the cities need most are brains, trained brains," said Professor S. G. Pleva, Head of the Department of Geography at the University of Western Ontario, as he was the guest speaker at the annual dinner of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce held at the Royal Hotel here Saturday night.

"Dean James Gillies of U.C.L.A. down in California said in a recent speech that the major problem of America today is the wise control of urbanism," Dr. Pleva added. "I was particularly impressed with this statement, not only for its simple truth but also for the fact that Dean Gillies is a personal friend. He comes from Teeswater, Ontario," he continued.

Mr. Pleva spoke on planning and mentioned the five packages of planning in Ontario. He referred to them as 1. The Planning Act. 2. the Definitions of Planning. 3. The Dimensions of our thinking as it relates to Planning. 4. The pattern of concentration in planning, and 5. The evolution of a civilized landscape and the conservation of variety.

According to the speaker, there are over 300 established planning areas in Ontario, including Toronto and 26 other municipalities. He also recommended that the county council make a study of water sheds, mentioning that there are over 30 water sheds now organized in Ontario.

Speaking on the Water Resources Act, the speaker told the 85 members and guests who attended the dinner that there are several hundred projects underway in Ontario under the DPWC.

He pointed out that in planning there must be a carefully devised policy statement to guide community development. This is usually prepared by a local planning board from a thorough study of the area. This becomes official when adopted by the appropriate municipality and approved by the Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs.

MADE PREDICTIONS

"Using the basis of 2.6 per cent increase in population, it follows there were 19 million people in Canada in 1963, there will be 24 million in 1990," he added. "Take a line drawn from Montreal to Windsor via Toronto, Hamilton and London and then take a 25-mile slice on each side of this line and you have 9/8ths of Canada's population—84 percent of its industry—41 percent of the agriculture dollars—yet it represents only 1 percent of Canada's entire area. How do you change a trend?" he asked.

Speaking on assumptions that are basic to planning, he told the gathering that based on the next five to ten years—the single family detached home will continue to be the preferred type of housing. That personal mechanical vehicles will continue to be the preferred form of transportation. "It might be a plane, a helicopter, or a car, but people prefer their own transportation to any public transportation," he added.

He predicted that the urban shadow will fall beyond the areas under urban control. He claims that even now a man lives in one municipality, part of his land could lie in another, he shops in another, and works in still another.

The population will continue to exhibit the characteristics of a youthful population. "And why not" he said. "At present 40 percent of all Canadians are under 19 years of age, is it any wonder we have educational problems."

"The demand for housing is for the 1964 model. The "kids" who are being married today, and mortgage their future for 30-35 years buying a house, are simply not interested in the 1920 model. And when you consider that when a young couple tie themselves up for that long a period, they simply have to behave, they cannot afford to do anything else," he added.

In conclusion, Dr. Pleva said "Each of us has his special obligation, but some are charged with more responsibilities than others, because of their professions. As a geographer, I am obligated to think in a special way toward the man-resources relationship. You have a professional likewise. You have a special obligation, and you, and only you can recognize that obligations," he concluded.

Dr. Pleva was introduced by Earl Holt and proved to be the most informative talk by Carl yet.

Before hearing the speaker, Chamber president Len Allen gave a short resume of the Chamber's work during the past year, including which they had to support a 15-quar pleshecite in Picton.

Douglas Alkenbrock, M.P., promised that he would continue to press to have the Picton Harbor dredged, something that was promised to have been done last year.

County Warden Ken Hicks brought greetings from county council and welcomed Dr. Pleva on behalf of the county.

Lt.-Col. William Mulherin, Commanding Officer First Canadian Guards Camp Borden, expressed his delight in hearing that he and his battalion were staying in Camp Picton. "It has been a wonderful year for us "up on the hill"," he added.

Excellent Year For Fair Board Say Reports

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward Agricultural Society enjoyed an excellent year, it was revealed in the financial statement presented at the annual meeting on Saturday.

Receipts during the years totalled $21,584.90 with expenditures of $21,241.90 leaving a balance of $3,327.50 with around $3,350 in grants still receivable according to secretary-treasurer, Phil Dodds. A total of $6,045 was paid in prize money.

As for the County Fall Fair itself, president Leland Dorsee commented that the display in every department was outstanding and the problem now is how to keep on improving the event. He spoke of the hard work and co-operation of all directors, and assistance given by many to make the annual exhibition a success.

It was revealed in the financial report that $3,231, had been spent in the past months in buildings, including renovation of the Junior Farmers building, repairs to the crystal palace, rebuilding the front of the grandstand, and grading the grounds. $900 had been spent in the new curling club so that a floor could be installed over the pipes in the future.

MIDWAY OBTAINED

A contract with King Shows Midway was accepted and dates for the 1964 fall fair Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept 24, 25, and 26. A motion to hold it for three nights and two days was defeated.

A floor in the new curling club would permit banquets to be held there during the September convention of the Ontario Farm and Home's for the Aged. William McWilliam, superintendent of the Home here and president of the association solicited the society's co-operation in financing the installation. A committee of L. Doxsee, P. Dodds, Creighton Lockyer, Herb Atherton, curling president Frank Wait, and County council fair ground committee Warden Ken Hicks, Reeve Harold Bonter, Gordon Lloyd and Don Kotchapaw, was named to investigate costs and methods of financing.

Phil Dodds was named to the Homes Association committee to plan for the convention here. The society is making its centre building available for meetings and displays.

To give County Council a better understanding of the work of the Agricultural Society, Warden Ken Hicks was named to the board while the council's committee, Reeve Lloyd, Kotchapaw and Bonter were made directors.

Officers re-elected were president, L. Doxsee, vice-presidents, Chris Lockyer and Hirold Bartment, and secretaresurer Phil Dodds. Directors and associate directors re-elected were: Chris Lockyer, Walker Demille, C. P. Dodds, Art Vanmeer, Leverne Way, Arthur Corfield, Robert Williams, Robert May, Willis Sills, Alex Miller, C. Willis, Elmer Collier, Alex Collier, Harold Bartment, D. O. Reynolds, Alex Rorke, Harry Gorsline, Herb Otherton, E. W. Henderson, Orval Alford, Creighton Lockyer, Charles Fletcher, Albert Copp, Gerald Steenburgh, Brian Dodds, Gordon Shelly, Harold Spencer, Ivan Bell.

The society agreed to co-operate with the Kiwanis Club in sponsoring a spring horse show. As many delegates as possible are to attend the district fair's convention in Belleville Feb. 3, while several will attend the Ontario Convention in Toronto, Feb. 19 and 20 at which time local secretary Phil Dodds will be moderator of the panel discussion.

50 Students Start Curling At New Rink

PICTON (Staff) — Over 50 high school students started curling last Saturday at the Prince Edward Curling Club.

In order to be eligible to curl, a boy or girl must be currently attending high school and must pay 25c per game which includes instruction and use of a broom.

Mayor Harvey J. McFarland donated a sum of money to the club to help pay for those who cannot afford brooms, etc. This was much appreciated as the club would like to have as many students as possible participate in what is known as "School boy curling."

On Saturday morning, Gerry Rabbett, Reg Bignell and Al E. Mason instructed the students. A very few of the students had ever thrown a rock on a curling rink, but if the enthusiasm shown Saturday is any indication, there will be a contender for Ontario honors before long.

One thing these students will not have that the older ones are complaining about, is the sore muscles after a game. At least they shouldn't have.

"Jest a Second"

"There, but for some quick thinking on a moonlight night last September, go I."

Whitby Juniors Shade Picton In Exhibition

PICTON (Staff) — The largest crowd of the current season saw the Picton Juniors come from behind a four goal deficit, only to lose out in the last seven seconds of the game, as they were edged by a close 5-7 score in an exhibition game with the Whitby Dunlops, a Junior B club, supplying the opposition here Saturday night.

The larger and more experienced team from Whitby, outskated, outshot and outscored the Picton club by a wide margin in the first period. Shots on goal were 22-9 against Picton and they were outscored 4-1.

In the second period, Picton came alive and started playing hockey, and then "the roof fell in." The Dunlops started laying on the checks, and this suited Picton right down the line.

The officials called a total of 13 penalties in the middle stanza with Dunlops taking the lion's share 8-5 including a misconduct rest to Ted Donaldson.

Three unanswered goals by Picton and they were trailing by one going into the last period.

Picton fired two more in a row to take a 6-5 lead and the fans went wild. Their joy was short-lived however, as Whitby tied it up at the 17:18 mark, with Wellington's Tom Lavender getting the goal-getter. The time was 19:53.

For the Whitby Dunlops, Ricky Gay fired four, with Tom Lavender adding a pair, Kevin O'Shae and Jim Peters each contributed a marker. For Picton, Larry Pero and Bob Boyle each fired a pair, with singles going to Bob Hirven, Gary Haennel and Harold Haddock.

Shots on Picton 55; on Whitby 38.

300 on Hand For Opening Of Curling Rink

PICTON (Staff) — Over three hundred people took advantage of the invitation of the Prince Edward Curling Club to inspect their new clubhouse and four-lane curling rink on Sunday afternoon.

Club president Frank Wait was agreeably surprised at the turnout and reported a very substantial interest was shown by people, who plan on joining the club in time for curling, when it starts again in the fall.

The women's division of the club served coffee and cake during the afternoon.

Some of the members played a few ends to show those, who are not familiar with this ancient game, how it is played, and some of the more venturesome of the visitors, took the suggestion of a few members and "tossed a rock or two."

To their surprise it was more difficult than they at first thought, and it was not until they had thrown a couple that they began to get the "feel" of the rock.

Two Vehicles Collide Near Camp Hill

PICTON — The first reportable accident to have occurred in the Picton area in the past three weeks caused about $500 damage to two vehicles on Saturday afternoon.

Police say a car being driven by Bernard Brooks of R.R. 1 Cherry Valley was in collision with an automobile driven by Howard Leavitt of R.R. 2 Picton.

The accident occurred at the foot of the army camp hill on the Cherry Valley Road. No injuries were reported. Picton Ontario Provincial Police are investigating.

Break-in Nets Thieves $35

PICTON — Ontario Provincial Police are investigating a break-in at Kenny's Service Station at Consecon, which netted thieves $35 in-cash and a quantity of cigarettes.

Police report the break-in occurred some time over the weekend.

Earlier today labor unions assumed management of Unilever after warning the British and German executive staff to remain at home or there would be "disorders."

They took over the main office switchboard and bolted the Unilever office doors, freezing all business throughout the morning.

At the Shell offices they ordered the British executive staff to leave and plastered signs on the walls saying "Indonesian property" and set up a red flag beside the Indonesian flag on the building.

The Shell executives refused to vacate their office and entered into prolonged debate with the union leaders.

A British spokesman said the embassy received a telegram from the Airport Employees Association (Serbaud) saying British planes would be boycotted if they refuel in land in Indonesia. The association said the boycott would take effect from 9 a.m. local time Wednesday, the day U.S. Attorney-General Robert Kennedy is to arrive here.

Serbaud said it decided on the boycott because of Britain's alleged detention of two Indonesian pilgrim ships in Hong Kong as the blocking of American-supplied spare parts for Indonesia's Air-Force planes at Hong Kong.

(In Singapore diplomatic sources said Indonesian labor unions were in the process of taking over the British, American & Tobacco company's factory at Tjirebon, east of Jakarta.)

At the Anglo-Dutch Unilever Corporation, union leaders who took over the headquarters telephoned the British director, B. W. Schwartz, and warned it would be considered a "provocation if he or any overseas executive staff came into the offices.

PROTECT EMBASSIES

Police this morning put strong guards on the U.S. and British embassies, scenes of demonstrations Saturday, and on Unilever headquarters building and two factories in Jakarta. Police guarding Unilever said their job was to prevent violence.

Schwarz, who last week defied an effort by workers to evict him from his office, said from his home this morning:

"We have decided to remain at home and not do anything that may cause disorder.

He said the management staff, comprising two Britons and four Germans, would wait until they received instructions or definite recommendations from the Indonesian government.

PLAYS 'COURT' ROLE

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actor Eddie Albert played a supporting role in federal court Friday. Chief attraction was his adopted daughter, Maria Carmen Albert, 18. She was among 272 persons who became United States citizens in the court of Judge Thurmond Clarke. Maria born in Madrid, Spain, was adopted by Albert and his wife Margarita three years ago. Mrs. Albert was born in Mexico City.

ality that Canada has opposed moves to seat Communist China at the UN. When the United General Assembly session is held, probably next fall after the U.S. presidential elections, a further attempt to give the Peking regime a UN seat is certain to be made.

UTILE BE FACTOR

This is bound to be a factor in this country's consideration of Canadian policy on recognition. It would be difficult to accord recognition without also casting a vote in favor of seating China at the UN.

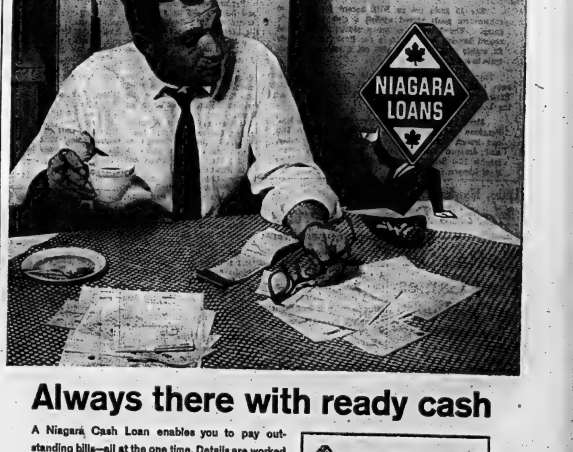
However, the U.S. is strongly opposed both to recognition and to a UN seat for China. This is a potential major dilemma for Canada.

The Canadian government will be faced with the question of whether recognizing China and backing China's UN ambitions will create a serious breach with this country's closest neighbor, the U.S.

On the other hand, there is the question of whether holding out against recognition may compromise the new "mother-country" relationship with France which Mr. Pearson emphasized in his visit to Paris.

He did this both publicly, by drawing attention repeatedly to the historic and cultural ties between Canada and France—in addition to those with Britain—and during his talks with de Gaulle.

STRUCK CHORD



It struck a responsive chord in de Gaulle who referred to French-Canadians as "part of our own people installed in Canada."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Boston Bruins who have been rooting and hibernating in the National Hockey League cellar since the season began came up with a secret weapon Saturday night.

At least it hadn't seen action for some twenty years and the Bruins used it unsuccessfully while the local quests of some 14,000 plus Maple Leaf fans looked on flabbergasted.

And some thousands of other Toronto faithful wondered if a mechanical television epidemic had struck the city. Some, I'm told, phoned their favorite video repair Joes.

The Bruins secret weapon was a two-handed wide-arm brush that while not exactly new came up with an expert job. It plastered the Stanley Cup champions with a liberal 11-0 coat of the shellac—and Canada's hockey world reeked with the impact.

The Chicago Black Hawks, perhaps. The Montreal Canadiens, maybe. The Detroit Red Wings, a possibility. The New York Rangers a long shot. But the lowly, generally impotent Bruins—well—it savored of a nephew suddenly transformed into a hurricane.

What happened in the Leafs-Hawks game Saturday night was not known at the writing but whatever occurred is more or less anti-climactic.

For the Leafs came stumbling down in a Humpty-Dumpty crash that marked the second worst defeat ever handed a club in the history of the National Hockey League. At that it fell short of a couple of records.

It is the second time in the NHL archives that a club failed to score while a rambunctious foeman club rolled up a double-figure tally in the scorebook.

It was back on January 23, 1944, that the Detroit Red Wings skated the New York Rangers out of Olympia and sent the Blues back to Broadway with a 15-0 horsecollar around their collective neck.

The Rangers had a season-long lease of the cellar quarters in the hockey hacienda that season. In a fifty-game schedule they won but six games, tied five and lost 39. The Wings finished second with 26 wins and six ties. But they were beaten by the Hawks in the playoffs semi-finals four games to one.

Bill Mosienko, Syd Howe, Carl Liscombe, Ken Kilrea, Joe Carveth, Mud Bruneteau, Don Grosso, Adam Brown, Flash Hollett and Bill Quackenbush had a field day that night against the Rangers.

They poured fifteen pucks past Ken McAuley, the harassed Ranger goalie who had 310 scored against him during the 50-game season.

The 15 goals set an NHL record for the most consecutive goals scored without a club in a single game. The Wings also set a most-goals-in-a-period record banging home eight in the final frame. They 22 assists plus the goals also set a most-points-by-a-team-in-one-game record, 37.

There was something definitely wrong with the Toronto club Saturday night. Could it be that Johnny Bower's pat on the rump did something more than send the Leafs in a slump?

Since Bower's friendly gesture to the Canadiens' Ferguson and the resulting high flying between him and Punch Imlach the Leafs have won a squeaker, and dropped three decisions, including the catastrophe 12-0 Saturday night debacle, but not counting what happened last night.

Marlies Dump Generals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series and their parent Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League had one thing in common over the weekend—they both started off on the wrong foot.

But while the Leafs, losing 6-0 to Boston Bruins after the first period, went on to take an 11-0 whitewashing, the Marlboros overcame a 5-2 deficit to trounce the Bruins' farm club, Oshawa Generals, 9-6 in Toronto.

The Marlboros' comeback victory enabled them to retain their 10-point lead over the second place Montreal Junior Canadiens, pushing their total to 61 points. The Canadiens trounced Peterborough Petes 11-1 at home Sunday.

Peterborough, with 42 points, had their lead over Niagara Falls and St. Catharines cut to four points as the Flyers defeated Kitchener Rangers 7-3 in Kitchener and the Black Hawks took a 7-3 home ice win over Hamilton Red Wings.

Niagara Falls and the Black Hawks show 38 points, followed by Oshawa with 28, Hamilton, 19, and Kitchener, 15.

To Run Off First Games In Quebec

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — If an application for a $700,000 government grant gets expected cabinet approval this week, the first Canadian winter games will be run off at Quebec City and nearby Beauprre in either January or February of 1965.

Selection of the Quebec sites was made Saturday by delegates to the one-day annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Sports Federation.

The federation, made up of governing bodies of about 50 amateur sports, provides an exchange of views among Canada's amateur athletes and also acts as their spokesman to government agencies.

The games are expected to attract more than 1,000 athletes from all provinces. The 10-day sports festival will include skating, hockey, curling, skiing, basketball, volleyball, adminton, table tennis, gymnastics and other sports.

Leafs 11-Yolker Tops Weekend 'Eggs'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A grounded jet aircraft probably saved Don Simmons from unemployment in the National Hockey League.

Shellacked, embarrassed and perilously close to losing his job as second man in Toronto Maple Leafs goal-tending platoon, Simmons was given a reprieve Sunday and responded with a 3-0 shutout over the league - leading Chicago Black Hawks.

Saturday night, the last-place Boston Bruins routed Simmons and the Leafs 11-0, the worst whitewash job in 20 years in the NHL.

A United Airlines flight carrying the Western Hockey League's leading goalie, Al Millar of Denver Invaders, circled Chicago for an hour awaiting weather clearance in Toronto and eventually was forced to return to Des Moines, Iowa, where it was grounded with a jammed fuel pump.

Millar didn't make it for the game. Invaders dressed and stopped 27 drives for the shutout, including three big saves off Bobby Hull within a minute in the second period.

BOWER SIDELINED

Saturday night had been Simmons fourth game since regular goalie Johnny Bower was sidelined with an injured hand. In the four games, he allowed 23 goals.

Millar, a 14-year veteran of the minor league wars, may accompany Maple Leafs back to Toronto, but Simmons' play practically ripped any chance Millar will add to his NHL service. He has played six NHL games, all as a starter in for Simmons with the 1957-58 Bruins.

Montreal Canadiens, after handing the powerful Hawks two defeats earlier in the week, bowed 5-0 to Detroit Red Wings Saturday night and settled for a 1-1 tie in Boston Sunday night.

The other Saturday night game saw Hawks snap out of a slump with a 6-1 victory over New York but Rangers came back Sunday night to defeat Detroit 3-1.

Leafs were inept with a capital I as Bruins overwhelmed Toronto, scoring six times in the first period, once in the second and four times in the final round.

THREE EACH

Dean Prentice and Andy Hebenton each scored three goals, Murray Oliver got two and singles went to Johnny Bucyk, Gary Dornhoefer and Guy Gendron.

Bruins were cheered lustily and Leafs booed by a Toronto crowd of 14,011 that watched his former mates run each other, fail to clear the puck, leave attackers unscreened and even passed the puck to Bruins.

Simmons managed to stop 27 shots but the rest of them were mainly close, low blasts fired into the corners while the goalie was at the other side or on his back.

It was a different Simmons and a different team of Leafs Sunday night in Chicago as they rebounded on second - period goals by Billy Harris and Ron Stewart.

The Chicago loss, coupled with Montreal's tie, left Hawks two points ahead of Canadiens, who have played two games less. Toronto is in third, three points behind Chicago, with two games in hand also.

Canadiens ran into a hot Terry Sawchuk Saturday night and the 34 - year - old Detroit goalie made 36 saves to record the 90th shutout of his career—a record that eclipsed the old mark of 84 held by the late George Hainsworth, who played with Montreal and Toronto 30 years ago.

SHEER THIEVERY

Sawchuk's work was exceptional, but some of his saves were sheer thievery and a dash of good luck. He stopped drives he didn't see and watched shots bounce off the goalposts.

But, on the other hand, he earned his fourth whitewash of the season with his classic leg-kicking stops and major saves on at least three breakaways.

All the Wings needed were goals by Floyd Smith and Eddie Joyal.

Sunday night, Canadiens collided with another dedicated netminer in Boston. Fresh from his 11-0 blanking of Leafs, Ed Johnston was well-prepared for the Montreal onslaught.

The teams traded early goals, Boston's by Johnny Bucyk in the first period and Montreal's from Gilles Tremblay in the second, before Johnston turned on the heroics.

He made six key saves in the dying minutes, including a stop on Henri Richard as he fell into the net. The Bruins goalie knocked down the hard drive and the puck rolled through the crease, but did not cross the goal line.

Rangers returned from their 6-1 loss in Chicago to dump Detroit 3-1 Sunday night.

HULL HOT

Hull broke a close game wide open with his 29th and 30th goals of the season in a 41-second span midway through the third period. Both markers came on power plays.

Bill Hay opened the scoring for the Hawks but Red Gilbert tied it up in the second. Before the period ended, however, Stan Mikita and Elmer Vasko gave Hawks a 3-1 lead.

Rangers were still battling when Andy Bathgate was sent off and Hull scored at 9:09. Don Marshall left Rangers shorthanded Hull answered again at 9:32. Al MacNeil added another Chicago goal in the 19th minute.

Rangers scored once in each period to defeat Wings. Detroit started the shooting, with Doug Barkley's eighth of the season, Red Gilbert, Marshall and Val Fonteyne tallied for Rangers.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Stan Mikita scored one goal and earned two assists during the weekend to increase his lead in the National Hockey League individual scoring race and teammate Bobby Hull added a goal to keep Bellveau inside second place.

Mikita's output gave him 24 goals and 35 assists for 59 points, four more than Hull.

Bellveau was blanked as Canadiens produced only one goal during the weekend and that was scored while the big centre was off the ice. He still leads the league with 36 assists.

Burka, Snelling Skating Champs

Miss Burka, 17-year-old high school student, finally defeated long-time rival Wendy Griner, 19, of Toronto, who had won the crown four years in a row.

Petra took a lead in the compulsory figures Friday — an event in which Miss Griner had previously been superior — and then went on to give a dazzling display Saturday in her favorite free-skating exhibition.

Snelling, who returned to competitive skating this season after a five - year absence, staged a minor upset, defeating favored Donald Knight of Dundas, Ont., for the men's title.

He was runner-up to Knight in the Canadian Olympic team trials in Toronto last November, as was Miss Burka to Miss Griner.

HAS 1,313.6 POINTS

Miss Burka completed the competition with 1,313.6 points. Miss Griner was awarded 1,294.8 points, Shirra Kennedy of Vancouver placed third with 1,231.1 points and was second to Petra in the free - skating event. Valerie Jones of Toronto was fourth with 1,193.4 points.

The judges awarded Snelling a total of 1,289.0 points. Knight drew 1,211.0 points and Jay Humphrey of Vancouver, last year's Canadian junior champion, was third with 1,122.8 points. Bill Neale of Fort Erie, Ont., finished fourth with 1,179.5 points.

Debbie Wilkes and Guy Revell of Unionville, Ont., left little doubt about the outcome of the pairs competition following Friday's romp to win the figure event and turned in a gilt-edge performance in the free-skating department Saturday.

Second place went to Linda Ann Ward and Neil Carpenter of Galt. Faye Strutt and Jim Walters of Vancouver edged Juniors Susan and Paul Hesketh ergard of Toronto for the third spot.

The Heuhnergards captured the junior pairs championship Friday.

WINS SENIOR DANCE

Toronto's Paulette Doan and Ken Ormsby won the senior dance crown, compiling 184.61 points. Carole Forrest and Kelvin Lethbridge, Toronto gained second spot with 177.88 points and Marilyn Crawford and Blair Armitage of Ottawa were third with 169.40.

Ernnie Anderson, Laura Maybee, David Dore and Gregory Folk, all of Toronto, copped the senior fours competition with 47.1 points. The other Toronto team of Barbara Graham, Gail Soyder, Wayne Palmer and Tom Monypenny was second with 46.3 points.

Czechs Shut Out Olympics 6-0

PRAGUE (AP) — The Czechoslovakian Olympic team blanked the Canadian Olympic squad 6-0 Sunday in a pre-Olympic Games hockey exhibition at Brno.

More than 14,000 fans watched as the Czechs scored two goals in each period to win.

The Canadian arrived here Saturday from Moscow, where they had played two games against Russian squads and lost both.

Russia overwhelmed Canada's Olympic hopeful 9-1 Wednesday and Friday the Russian reserves squeezed 3 3-1 win from them.

Canada earlier won two games against the West German champions E. V. Fussen 9-5 and 4-1 and walloped Mannheim 13-0.

In a meeting last Monday in Geneva they lied a team of Canadian professionals playing in Europe 4-4.

Three further games are to be played in Czechoslovakia.

In Sunday's game Polach and Golonka each got two goals for the Czechs, Valtr and Hrbaty singles.

The official Czech news agency CTK described goalie Ken Broderick of Toronto, defenceman Terry O'Malley also of Toronto, forwards Roger Bourbonnais of Riviere Qui Barre, Alta., Brian Conacher of Toronto and George Swarbrick of Moose Jaw, Sask., as the best players on the Canadian team.

CTK said in describing the game that both teams concentrated on simple tactics rather than on fancy combination work.

The Russian and Swiss who refereed the game handed eight penalties to the Canadians and four to the Czechs.

Four of Czechoslovakia's players were injured while Canada was shorthanded.

Minor Hockey Results

Many of the B.M.H.A. teams prepared for Minor Hockey Week with hard-fought games in the Peewee, Bantam, Midget and Juvenile divisions over the weekend.

JUVENILE

Benard got two helpers each. Hornets, Middleton and Harvey one apiece. B. Smith, R. Clapp and D. Bertrand, Aces' Acres' marksmen. A. Lentini getting the only assist.

Tigers moved to a 64 decision over the Comets. R. Goodfellow starred for the Tigers with three goals and one assist. J. Boyle had a goal and two assists, M. Follwell and D. Mechlem getting the other goals. Moore, Pringle and Steele collected assists.

MIDGET

The Red Wings and Bantam Odd Fellows battled to a 4-4 stalemate. Bull, Nelson, M. Smith and S. White scored for the Red Wings. D. Dickie and D. Hefler got assists. A. Holgate, C. Wilson, L. Moore and L. Whitehead were the Bantam scorers. D. Loder, Holgate and Moore got assists.

BANTAM

Lead's buried the Browns by a 10-4 score, led by Cal Wilson's four-goal performance. Jim Dafoe and Tim Doran contributed two goals apiece with one each for David Eves and Frank Martin. Ron Reeves drew three assists, Eves two, D. Hiatt, Doran and Paul Perrett one. Tom Boulter triggered three Browns' markers while Bill Morrison got one and Voorman had an assist.

In close action, Bruins shaded the Royals 3-2, Larry Moore scoring all three of the winners' goals. John Holgate potted both Royals' goals, L. Loder and Doug MacCormack getting helpers.

Canadiens fought the Peewee All-Stars to a 2-2 deadlock. B. Buchanan and T. Meagher scored for the All-Stars, B. Moore and D. Fobert getting assists. J. Lennox and Storms potted Canadiens' goals. Lewis and Salter drawing assists.

Quinte trounced the Red Wings 10-1. B. Carter bagged three goals, B. Janitsch, Wayne Muir and Dalton Lambert two each and John Bird one. Lambert earned two assists, M. Watchorn and Muir one. Paul Goodfellow from Steve Tullah was the Wing scoring play.

Barons grabbed a 6-4 victory over the Tee Peas. Bruce Leeson scored twice, Bob Mulvihill, Ray Dunnink, Wally Zinn and Gery McGillivary once each for the winners. Bill Romain got two helpers, Terry Young, LaRue, S. Foster, Mulvihill and Terry Goyer one apiece. Allan Ray tallied for Tee Peas, aided by David Cresswell.

Mets and Rangers played a 4-4 tie. W. Latchford, H. Smith with one each and S. Sharpe, with a pair, looked after the Ranger scoring. Smith and M. Aquafredde had assists. C. Scott was a two-goal man for Macs with Latchford and Thompson also scoring. Thompson also got an assist.

Hawks took a 4-2 win over the Frontenacs. Jack Shore, Ted Beresford, R. Fuller and B. Mallory had a goal apiece. Mallory, Beresford and D. Cass got assists. J. Scott and W. Shaw were the Frontenac scorers. D. Hutchinson and D. Middleton having assists.

PEEWEES

Four goals and one assist, picked up by P. Hayes, sparked the Macs to an 8-0 whitewashing of the Tee Pees. D. MacCormack potted two goals and had assists on two others while C. Bonisteel and A. Genereaux added the other goals.

Browns topped the Frontenacs 8-1. B. Storms picked up two goals and one assist and G. Smith had a pair of helpers to pace the Browns' attack. S. Muldoon also scored and R. Belnap had an assist. D. Bertrand was the lone Frontenac scorer.

Barons defeated the Generals 8-3. J. Bonisteel scored three times, Bill Buchanan, Mike Lattimer, twice each and Ben Buchanan once. Barons' goals were unassisted.

Adams, P. Noble and D. Fobert scored for Quinte, J. Cass getting the only assist.

Finishing in the Juvenile league standings:

Midget All-Stars	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Hornets	7	2	1	15
Aces	6	3	1	13
Comets	3	5	2	9
Tigers	3	6	1	7

Central Pro League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Louis Braves may not reach first place in the Central Professional Hockey League this season but their trigger-happy winger Al Caron is sure to spend some time with the parent Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

Caron ran wild during the weekend, collecting a pair of goals in St. Louis's 8-4 whipping of Cincinnati Wings Saturday and adding three more in their 7-5 loss Sunday to Minneapolis Bruins.

Caron, the league - leading scorer in points and goals, pushed his output to 46 goals in 45 games.

The Braves sharpshooters' performance took most of the spotlight away from substitute goaltender Lynn Davis, who made 31 saves in leading St. Paul Rangers to a 5-0 shutout of Cincinnati Sunday.

The only other weekend game saw the league-leading Omaha Knights register their eighth straight victory while stopping Minneapolis 6-2 Saturday.

Today

The only other weekend action had Des Moines Oak Leafs trouncing Fort Huron Flags 5-2 Saturday only to lose 3-2 Sunday, both games in Des Moines.

The standings show Fort Wayne on top with 52 points, followed by Toledo with 43, Fort Huron, 37, Windsor, 31, Chatham, 30, Des Moines, 29, and Muskegon 26.

Don Simmons, Toronto Maple Leafs netminder, who rebounded from an ill-post nightmare to blank the Chicago Black Hawks 2-0 with a 27-save performance.

Terry Sawchuk, who set a career record for most shutouts with 85 with a 2-0 whitewash on 26 saves against Montreal.

Don Marshall of New York, whose second-period goal was the winner in the Rangers' 3-1 victory over Detroit.

Fights Self On Ice, Says Young

NEW YORK (CP) — Howie Young, National Hockey League bedman frequently in trouble after his brawling on and off the ice, says the only guy he's really fighting is himself.

The 26-year-old Chicago Black Hawk defenceman, recently suspended for five games for an outburst of profanity while serving a penalty in Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, makes the statement in a copyrighted first-person story in the March issue of the magazine Hockey Illustrated.

"That's always been my trouble—being angry with myself," Young says. "Sometimes I don't even know who I'm fighting on the ice. Then, I realize that the only guy I'm fighting is Howie Young."

He adds:

"Although some people may feel otherwise, I consider myself a clean player. I'd call myself emotionally caustic or aggressive. I don't look to hurt anyone. So far, I've hurt myself most of all."

In the article, written before his most recent suspension by NHL president Clarence Campbell, Young says his real trouble began when he was 16. That's when I quit school and began playing hockey for money."

He said he feels now that his life depends on the game and "I became a wild man on the ice because of it.

"Anyone who skated around me and made me look bad on defence was my enemy. I've always had the fear of losing my job. . . ."

Aces Score Three In Two Minutes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A month ago, 21-year-old Gilles Banville hadn't played organized hockey.

Actually, three goals in two minutes and seven seconds of the second period against Providence and then coasted. The victory kept Quebec a point in front of Hershey in the eastern race.

Bears, meanwhile, defeated Buffalo Bisons 3-0 for Ed Chadwick's first shutout of the season. Chuck Hamilton scored with 2:37 to go to break a scoreless duel and then Mike Stankiewicz iced it with an open net goal 30 seconds later.

Rochester Americans, playing without five regulars, got three goals from veteran Dick Gamble to whip Cleveland Barons 5-3. Americans used Ed Babich in place of injured Gerry Cheevers in goal and also had defenceman Al Arbour and forwards Dave Burke, Red Armstrong and Ed Litzenberger on the sidelines.

Komets Lose To Zephyrs, Maroons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons and Muskegon Zephyrs—both lower division clubs—were the only two teams to emerge from weekend action in the International Hockey League with clean slates.

Ironically, the league-leading Fort Wayne Komets, fresh from a 16-game winning streak, rendered a helping hand to the Maroons and Zephyrs by dropping games to both.

The Komets were dumped 2-1 Saturday in Muskegon and lost 4-1 to Chatham at home to have their lead atop the standings cut to three points. Maroons place Toledo Blades picked up a pair of points off a split with Windsor Bulldogs — losing 4-3 Saturday and winning 3-1 Sunday.

Marauders Top College Circuit

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A bit of order was restored to the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League over the weekend as McMaster University Marauders edged McGill Redmen 3-2 and University of Montreal Carabins blanked University of Toronto Blues 1-0.

The McMaster triumph, combined with the Toronto defeat, snapped a two-way deadlock for first place. The Marauders now top the circuit with nine points, a spread of two over the Blues.

Montreal's win enabled them to takeover sole possession of third place with six points. McGill and Laval University of Quebec are tied with four each while Queen's Golden Gaels and Waterloo University share the cellar slot with no points to their credit.

Rifle Heads Quebec Team

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam (The Rifle) Etcheverry, whose passing wizardry dazzled the Canadian Football League and endeared him to Montreal grid fans, is returning to this city as non - playing coach of a United Football League team that was named after him.

The former Montreal Alouettes quarterback has agreed to accept head coaching duties with the Quebec Rifles, born during the weekend when the minor pro U.S. league granted three Montreal football fans a franchise in the eight-team circuit.

The team, named Quebec to avoid a conflict with the CFL Alouettes, will play U.S. rules, use mostly players from the U.S. and stage its seven home games at the 13,000 - seat Delorimier Stadium, former home of the Als and the defunct baseball Royals.

The owners are Hy and Wylie Kats and Jack Goodis, proprietors of a drum manufacturing company. Kats, a part competing with the Als, they said, and will "probably retain our present link with the Alouettes this year."

The club's non - playing roster is liberally sprinkled with former Alouettes. Onetime recruiter J. I. Albrecht will be general manager; Margaret Rey Cicia is assistant manager; George Brancato, a former defensive halfback who played for Ottawa and Vancouver, is assistant coach; and ex-lineman Herb Trawick is a possible line coach.

Charleston, W.Va., was also granted a franchise at the UFL meeting in Columbus, Ohio. Former Alouette coach Perry Moss has been mentioned as possible coach at Charleston and if he gets the job, the UFL plans to have Jim Ridlon open the season at home Labor Day against Charleston.

Joe Klukay Quits Bulldogs

WINDSOR (CP) — Joe Klukay, coach of Windsor Bulldogs of the International Hockey League, announced his retirement Sunday as the Bulldogs decided to continue in the IHL following a meeting of management and players.

The Windsor team threatened to pull out of the league last Tuesday after John Wismer, Port Huron, Mich., radio executive withdrew financial support of the club which he said had left him $25,000 in debt so far this year.

Klukay said his job no longer "allows him to burn the candle at both ends," referring to the time he spends as coach. The club did not say when a new coach would be appointed.

Bulldogs also lost the services of Jim Josephson who decided to retire because he found difficulty making games because of his work schedule.

Following the players-management meeting, it was announced the players approved a proposal by new franchise holder, Sam Fox—the new general manager under the direction of Wismer agreed to keep the payroll at $1,400 a week.

Under the new set-up, the players will share in any profits at the end of the season on a proportionate basis to Tuesday prior to Wismer's withdrawal.

Jerome To Run At Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Jerome, co-holder of the 100-metre world record, will compete in the 60-yard dash at the Maple Leaf Indoor games here Friday.

The competition will be the first for Jerome since 1963 when he tore a thigh muscle at the British Empire Games at Perth, Australia.

Jerome, a native of Vancouver attending University of Oregon, has a 60-yard dash time of 5.9 seconds, and was at one time co-holder of the world 100-yard record of 9.2 seconds.

RUSSIANS WIN AGAIN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Olympic hockey team beat the U.S. Eastern League all-stars 11-2 Sunday in an exhibition hockey game before 15,000 fans who nearly filled the Sports Palace.

Al Johnston of Montreal won $231, finishing with a 71-74-74-75 —294.

Balding, who had a 66 the first day and a 67 the second, had his ups and downs Saturday. He hit into a bunker on the second hole and went one over par a second time at the fourth when the wind carried his ball into a trap.

Then came another of those devastating par-3s, the seventh, and Balding went three over. He hit his first shot into the breaking ocean waves and the second into a trap.

On the eighth he knocked a ball over a cliff and exclaimed in disgust, "I may never finish this thing . . . I just may never finish."

Lema Collected $5,800 For His Triumph

Then men followed the three leaders, their scores illustrating how the weather affected play:

Tommy Aaron 77 — 298, Al Geiberger 78—300, Australian Bruce Devlin 79 — 299, Dave Marr 78—299, Gardner Dickinson 75—299 and George Knudson of Toronto 75—299.

Knudson's 299 earned him $1,620. His score was 72-76-69-75—289.

'The Art of Collecting' Excellent NBC Special

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — "Art washes away from the soul the dust of everyday life," said Picasso.

That statement, quoted by art critic Aline Saarinen, explained what paintings mean to five collectors. It was part of Sunday night's warm, rich NBC special called The Art of Collecting.

With Mrs. Saarinen as guide, the cameras showed old masters in the collection of a New York financier, the varied collection — ranging from dolls to textiles—of a New Mexico architect, the mixture of old masters and moderns assembled by a Los Angeles businessman, and the modern paintings and sculpture owned by Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

Viewers saw a king's ransom in works by Rembrandt, El Greco, Matisse, Picasso and Degas.

Donizetti's music is delightful and the NBC opera company sang his Lucia Di Lammermoor in great style Sunday.

But there is one thing to be said in favor of opera when it is sung in a language the listener does not understand. The libretto does not get in the way of one's appreciation of the music.

NBC's version of the Italian opera about a Scottish lass was in English and every single syllable came over as clear as Ethel Merman doing No Business Like Show Business.

Recommended Tonight: East Side, West Side, CBS, 10-11 EST —the serious - minded show tries a light - hearted theme.

"IN THE FRENCH STYLE"

Internationally acclaimed for her brilliant performance in the French New Wave film, "Breathless," lovely Jean Seberg brings an equally breathless, moving and memorable performance to the Park Theatre screen in the new Columbia Pictures release, "In the French Style." An Irwin Shaw-Robert Parrish production also starring Stanley Baker, "In the French Style" is the story of an American girl in Paris who is educated and matured by her surroundings and the people she meets. She falls in love, and love plays an important part in the four years she spends in the French capital.

There can be no doubt, from the absorbed audience attention that "In the French Style" obtains, of the authenticity of the film's characters, situations and Paris atmosphere. Here is an acute, intelligent and always passionate insight into a Paris known to, understood and loved by the film's writer, director and stars.

Adding lustre and distinction to the story, Shaw and Parrish cast rugged Stanley Baker and strikingly handsome young French actor Philippe Forquet as Miss Seberg's co-stars. They share her romantic moods, in their different ways, contributing capably and professionally to this superb telling of a sensitive love story. Forquet is the first man in her life and Baker the one she loves beyond all others.

"In the French Style" is a truly compelling story of a shy, uncertain and vulnerable young girl who brings her own particular combination of virtues and faults to the city of Paris, moves through the streets with joy and passion and is enriched by her experiences.

"In the French Style" is truly a triumph for Miss Seberg, for director Robert Parrish and for Irwin Shaw, the writer and co-producer.

Complete shows are at 7.00 and 9.15 p.m.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 21

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be practical where friends are concerned. Be sure you actually are being constructive. Bending over too far merely encourages weakness. Stress objective approach.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Cycle high. Show ability to handle responsibility. Express determination to succeed. You can now impress important persons. Do so! Key is sincerity of purpose.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Meeting today could prove significant in future. Take care to be courteous. Express desire to co-operate. Be instructive — show reasons for your opinions.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Good time to formulate new plans. Seek advice from one in authority. Read your paper for special hints. Take initiative — trust own judgment.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Be gracious to fellow workers. Resist temptation to be envious. Applies to personal as well as professional life. Share spotlight. Modest approach will receive favorable reaction.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Stress toward greater harmony. Avoid Persons who argue, complain or implore you to make changes. Instead, seek company of those who share your interests, desires.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): New creative "stirrings" evident. Make up your mind to express yourself. Check various sources, contacts. No more holding back. Make this the start of something big.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Day keynoted by change, exciting information — and romantic interests. Don't be in too much of a hurry. Cycle indicates caution is necessary. Absorb information.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec 21): Co-operation from source indicated. Your ideas due to prove workable. Consult with family member, business associate. Important that you have good wishes of loved one.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Financial picture will be brighter. But avoid actions based on impulse. Be willing to accept advice from experienced source. Calm, deliberate action is advised.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Sun enters your sign. Prospects brighten. Solid basis exists for optimism. Taurus message applies. Recent events have added to your maturity. Now, gain stature.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Follow through on recent actions, ideas. Complete projects. Work favored in connection with hospitals, schools. Group activity can bring tremendous satisfaction.

If today your birthday . . . you are natural humanitarian. You seek ways and means of helping your fellow man. Might also be good idea to help yourself.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Taurus, Gemini, Cancer. Special word to Sagittarian: If you are able to make others realize you are sincere, the sky is the limit.

3-5 Year Suspensions Given Jrs.

MONTREAL (CP) — Suspensions of five and three years each have been handed out to two Montreal Metropolitan Junior Hockey League players by the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association.

The QAHA announced Saturday that Claude Garneau, 18, of St. Jerome Alouettes, was barred from organized hockey for five years following a stick-swinging attack on Lachine's Bill Plager in St. Jerome, 30 miles north of Montreal, recently.

Jacques Chiasson of Montreal North Bears was suspended for three years for falsifying his birth certificate.

At the same time, the QAHA announced a one-year suspension for coach Len Corriveau of Quebec junior Aces of the Provincial Junior Hockey League. Corriveau's suspension was for delaying the start of a PJHL game last Dec. 19.

Spurs Whip Blackpool, Up Lead

LONDON (Reuters) — Tottenham Hotspur, who went back to the top of the English football League's first division last week, increased their lead to two points by winning 2-0 at Blackpool Saturday.

Spurs took an early lead when Welsh centre forward Terry Dyson struck the goalkeeper's leg and crossed the goal line. They got a second goal after Tottenham had through Jimmy Greaves.

Tottenham now has 37 points, two points more than Blackburn Rovers, who could manage only a 1-1 tie in their home match against Wolverhampton Wanderers.

Third in the standings with 34 points is Liverpool, which failed to take a point at West Ham, and fourth is Sheffield Wednesday, who beat Sheffield United 3-0 before 43,000 spectators.

Arsenal, in fifth place, has the same number of points as Sheffield Wednesday but a lower goal average. Arsenal downed a home point in their all-London battle with Fulham, tying 2-2.

Manchester United came back into form with a 4-1 victory over Burnley's improved West Bromwich Albion.

STUDENTS PARADE

MONTREAL (CP) — Eight student demonstrators marched in front of the United States consulate Saturday with placards urging the U.S. to "get out of Panama." David Dent, an organizer of the demonstration, said the group is protesting "U.S. imperialism in Panama."

IS OUT OF HOSPITAL

BALTIMORE (AP) — Goalie Gump Worsley of Quebec Aces was released today from Maryland General Hospital where he was taken after being hit by a puck in Friday night's American Hockey League game with Baltimore Clippers. Worsley was struck under the right eye on a shot by Ken Schinkel.

OKAY PENSIONS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The American Football League unanimously approved a player pension plan Sunday as its annual meeting came to an end. The plan will be retroactive for players who have been in the league since it began in 1960. Players with five years' experience in the AFL will be eligible.

U.S. TEAM TIES

AUGSBURG, Germany (AP) the United States Olympic team tied the German champion Eintracht of Fuessen 6-6 in an ice hockey game here Sunday watched by a crowd of 8,000. The Germans scored a 3-2 victory against the Americans Thursday.

WANTS WELFARE FUND

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The World Boxing Association executive committee adopted a resolution Saturday calling for establishment of a welfare fund for fighters. Bill Glick of Miami was named chairman of a committee to incorporate the fund so it can gain U.S. federal tax exemption and to work out mechanics of the plan.

HIRES NIZER

NEW YORK (AP) —Famed trial lawyer Louis Nizer will represent Charles O. Finley in his legal battle to move his American League baseball team from Kansas City to Louisville. Kinley decided a court action after AL club owners vetoed his proposal to move to Louisville. The league also refused to assign a lesas in Kansas City by Feb. 1 or face expulsion from the league.

WINS EUROPEAN TITLE

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — Alain Calmat of France dazzled the Judges and the hometown free-skating program Saturday to win the European figure skating championship. Calmat, who was the third successive European champion for Calmat, 23 - year - old medical student who automatically became the favorite to win a gold medal at the Olympic Games in Innsbruck, Austria, later this month.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Cotton Davidson of Oakland Raiders connected with his pass - catching teammate, Art Powell, on a 25-yard scoring strike with 43 seconds remaining to give the West a 37-34 triumph over the East in the American Football League's annual all-star game Sunday.

Trailing 24-3 at the half as the East's Babe Parilli of Boston put on a brilliant passing show, the West rushed back into contention in the third quarter on sparkling long range plays that produced two touchdowns and closed the margin to 24-17.

Keith Lincoln of San Diego Chargers electrified the 20,016 fans in Balboa Stadium, as well as Chatham Clippers of Ontario, with a spectacular 64 - yard touchdown run.

Then Tobin Rote, the West's starting quarterback from the champion Chargers, hit teammate Lance Alworth with a 51-yard pass to the East four. Paul Lowe took it on in and the tension began to mount.

Powell, Parilli and Rote all were regular performers in the Canadian Football League at various times.

The West's Jim Fraser kicked a 12-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter to make it 34-30, and the powerful West defence continued to hold Parilli, Larry Garron, Boston QFL star back fielder Cookie Gilchrist, and the East offence scoreless throughout the final two quarters.

Canadians Break Own Skate Marks

DAVOS, Switzerland (Reuters) — Canadian speedskating records were knocked flying Saturday by Canadians taking part, but not competing, in the Swiss national speedskating championships.

The sparks they achieved here broke several Canadian records.

Doreen Ryan, 32, of Edmonton, lopped seven tenths of a second from the Canadian women's 500-metre record of 47.7 set at Squaw Valley, Calif., in 1960.

She then skated 1,500 metres in two minutes, 32.6 seconds, to break the Canadian record of 2:34.5, also at Squaw Valley.

Doreen McCannell, a 16-year-old Canadian schoolgirl and member of the Olympic team, also beat the 3,000-metre record with a 2:33.0 clocking.

Earlier in the day Mrs. Ryan bettered the Canadian record for 3,000 metres by more than 14 seconds with a time of 5:25.5, compared with the old mark of 5:39.7. Miss McCannell was timed in 5:35.5 in the 3,000.

Ralph Hall, 27, Ed Barry, smashed Canadian men's records for 5,000 metres and 1,500 metres.

Olin skated the 5,000 in 8:04.6, compared with 8:09.4, and the 1,500 in 2:13.5 compared with the old mark of 2:17.4 set by Paul Enock of Toronto in 1962.

Schoolboy Curling
Ont. Title To Owen Sound

SARNIA (CP)—John Harris skipped his Owen Sound Collegiate and Vocational Institute foursome to the Ontario schoolboy curling championship Saturday.

The 17-year-old captured the title with a convincing 11-5 win over Don Anderson's quartet from Napanee District High School.

Harris had three 16-year-olds on his team—lead Doug McNeill, second Jim McGill and third Peter Whitelaw. The foursome will represent the Ontario Curling Association in the Dominion School Championships at Regina, Feb. 17-21.

Harris displayed a masterful touch, curling in the seventh end when his final stone rested near the button to wipe out four Napanee rocks. He cut Anderson's score to 4 two on the ninth end with a triple takeout.

Harris led 4-1 after three ends, 7-2 after six and 9-5 heading into the final three ends.

Harris entered the finals with a 10-4 semi-final victory over Doug Beckett of Toronto Royal York Collegiate while Anderson was squeaking through a 7-3 win over Don Laird of Guelph Collegiate and Vocational Institute.

MICHIGAN IS WINNER

ANN ARBOR (AP) — The University of Michigan hockey team swamped Loyola of Montreal 14-2 Saturday. Eight men scored for the Wolverines with Ron Corinstine getting three goals. Michigan built up a 9-1 lead in the first two periods.

Gaels Trounced
Lancers Unbeaten In Four

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Lancers ran their victory string to four straight Saturday, walloping McMaster Marauders 102-63 in a senior intercollegiate Basketball League game in Hamilton.

The game, one of three scheduled for the circuit Saturday, was witnessed by a record 1,500 fans—largest crowd ever to see a game at McMaster.

In the other games, University of Waterloo Warriors trounced Queen's University Golden Gaels in Kingston while University of Western Ontario Mustangs from London had little trouble scoring a 69-42 win over McGill University in Montreal.

Bernie Priesmuth hooped 24 points to pace the Lancer win. Bob Horrath and Bill Crosby with 13 points each, Tom Henderson, 12 and Bill Cowell with 10, also paced the Windsor assault.

Jim Daly and Jim Baird scored 15 and 13 points respectively for McMaster.

Jerry Raphael and Bob Balshaus scored 20 points each in the Warriors win over Queen's. Jim Hann added 15. Larry Ferguson's 15-point effort was tops for the Gaels.

Tom Willi I a m son, on the strength of 12 free throws, led Western's point scoring with 20 while teammate Wally Dick dunked 15. McGill's prodiger was Marty Wright with 18 points.

McGill also had the services of George Langyary, who wore a plastic mask to protect the broken nose he suffered in a Friday night game.

Formosa Quake Kills 104 Persons

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — A pall of shock and grief hung today over the southern Formosan cities of Tainan and Chiayi where an earthquake killed 104, injured 452 and left thousands of homeless walking the littered streets in stunned silence.

Crying children and barking dogs punctuated the mournful quiet as soldiers and volunteers searched for more victims in the rubble of hundreds of homes wrecked by the initial 30-second jolt Saturday night.

Of the 1,758 homes that collapsed and 2,671 badly damaged, most were in Tainan, a city of 250,000 and the former capital of this island nation. Fires apparently started by overturned charcoal stoves destroyed 124 homes at nearby Chiayi.

SEEKS ASYLUM

JERUSALEM, Israel (AP) — A United Arab Republic Air Force officer flew a Soviet-built trainer into Israel from Egypt Sunday and asked political asylum, the government announced. A spokesman said Israeli army planes drove off U.A.R. aircraft which pursued Flight Capt. Mahmoud Hilmi Abas toward Israel. Abas landed safely in his Yak 11 plane.

PROTECTION FOR ZANZIBAR STRONGMAN — Field Marshal John Okello, 27, described as head of the Zanzibar revolutionary forces, was well protected with firearms during a news conference on the island Wednesday. Okello, a former member of the Mau Mau terrorists in Kenya and leader of the African nationalists who overthrew the Zanzibar sultan, announced in a broadcast all British publications had been banned for their reporting of the revolution.

chamber would reduce all existing rates by 10 per cent and establish a top rate of 80 per cent instead of the present 80 per cent.

Commission Chairman Kenneth Carter estimated that the cuts in corporate and personal taxes would result in a $500,000,000 loss to the treasury, and even with the elimination of incentives the net loss would be $300,000,000.

The Chamber suggested that the bulk of this be recovered through sales taxes. The base of the present 11-per-cent federal sales tax would be broadened to include services.

STEAL SMOKES

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP)— An estimated $9,000 worth of cigarettes—roughly 450,000 cigarettes, or 194 boxes—was taken from the George Robertson and Son wholesale warehouse. Police say thieves entered the warehouse by smashing a window.

Johnson Proposes Nuclear 'Freeze'

Climate Of Hope Is Seen As Arms Parley Resumes

Suggests U.S., Russia Limit Atomic Arsenal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson proposed today that Russia and the United States "explore a verified freeze of the number and characteristics" of strategic nuclear vehicles.

Johnson laid a five-point program of possible agreement before the 17-nation Geneva disarmament conference as it resumed sessions after a break of several months.

In a message to the conference he said that by laying the groundwork in earlier years for the limited nuclear test ban treaty it had already contributed more to a disarmament than any other conference in modern history.

"Today your search begins anew in a climate of hope," Johnson told the delegates, including envoys of Communist, Western and neutralist nations.

Johnson's proposal to impose a freeze on the number and types of nuclear weapons, "offensive and defensive," was the second of his five points. It was not spelled out in detail.

NEEDS INSPECTION

In ordinary terminology of disarmament experts a "verified freeze" would mean a agreed limitation on the size of nuclear forces and on the types of weapons, with the agreement to be guaranteed by inspection in the participating countries.

OFFERS SUGGESTIONS

Other points in Johnson's program:

1. A discussion of the "means of prohibiting the threat or use of force, directly or indirectly —whether by aggression, subversion, or the clandestine supply of arms—to change boundaries or demarcation lines."

2. Consideration could also apply to any interference with access to any territory or to any effort to extend control over territory "by displacing established authorities."

3. The powers should attempt

Bankers Ask Taxes Be Sliced

OTTAWA (CP)—The influential voice of the Canadian Bankers' Association Monday was added to the long list of participants who have appeared before the royal commission on taxation seeking a reduction in Canadian income taxes.

The existing rates are "stultifying," said the association, as it proposed that the government get out its pruning shears and slice its expenditures. Only the curtailment of major public programs could bring about the necessary tax reductions, the association said.

The 11-member delegation, headed by President W. M. Currie, chief general manager of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, told the commission that the high rates of income tax boost the costs of production, dampen incentives to work and discourage Canadians from investing in equity stocks.

The association represents all major chartered banks in Canada.

The only other brief presented to the commission Monday also called for an income tax cut this time by Frank M. McMahon, of Vancouver, chairman of Westcoast Transmission Company Limited. He appeared as a private citizen.

HAS 5-YEAR PLAN

His proposal involved a three-year program of tax reductions for Canadians earning less than $20,000 a year and for all corporations. The rates would be reduced seven per cent each year so that at the end of three years they would be about 20 per cent below present rates.

'Public Curiosity May Swamp You' Dionnes Warn Fischer Quints

NEW YORK (AP)—The four living Dionne quintuplets, in a published letter to the Fischer quintuplets of Aberdeen, S.D., warn that "public curiosity is a tidal wave that sooner or later may threaten to swamp you."

"The decisions your parents make in these first months may well be the most important of your whole lives," Annette, Cecile, Marie and Cecile Dionne told the four-month-old Fischer quints in an open letter published today in McCall's magazine.

"It is so difficult, but so necessary, to think in terms of a lifetime, not only of the immediate urgent future," the Dionnes said.

"Whether this contract should be signed or rejected. What arrangements should be made to allow you that privacy of normal childhood. Whether you will be brought up together with your family or apart . . ."

The Canadian Dionnes reminded the four boys and a girl born last Sept. 14 in the Fischer home that the families of both sets of quints "have encountered the same challenge" and "it makes us feel very close to you."

From their own experiences, the Dionnes pointed out that "quintland" is a magnet that lures lawyers and promoters and men waving cheque books at it. It is a hazardous situation to be in. Quintuplets can so easily be turned into a bonanza for all kinds of people.

"The dividing line is slim between meeting real need and cashing in on an opportunity . . . we have learned that a price must be paid for everything our receives . . .

Johnson Pares Budget

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson today presented Congress with a slightly pared $97,900,000,000 budget, including a planned $1,100,000,000 drop in defence outlays. It was the first U.S. budget decrease in, five years.

The budget, effective for the fiscal year starting July 1, assumed early congressional passage of an $11,000,000,000 tax reduction.

Johnson called it a "giant step toward . . . a balanced budget in a full-employment, full-prosperity economy."

The over-all budget expresents a $600,000,000 decline from the current year's estimated $98,400,000,000. However, the government's budget usually undergoes heavy mauling by congress and the final program approved may be sharply different from Johnson's proposals.

Nevertheless, on his estimates the government would end the next fiscal year with a deficit of $4,900,000,000 — compared with an estimated $10,000,000,000 deficit for the present fiscal year. This would bount the U.S. national debt to a peak of $317,100,000,000. Financing this huge debt would run to an estimated $11,100,000,000 next year, Johnson said.

CUT MILITARY OUTLAYS

The budget would cut military outlays to $51,200,000,000 from $52,800,000,000 this year. This would include elimination of 57,000 Pentagon civilian jobs. All told, including stockpiling costs and foreign military assistance, U.S. national defence outlays for next year are estimated at $56,211,000,000, down from $56,011,000,000 this year.

Spending Estimates To Be Cut

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is making four-hour cuts in the spending estimates for the 1964-65 fiscal year which begins April 1, informants said Monday.

The move was to be effected at one official cutting.

It came after the year's spending by each department already had been approved—well before Christmas—and the whole package had been sent to press.

That report said the government was trying to "find" another $90,000,000 by reducing expenditures from the level previously passed. Total spending likely will be around $6,600,000,000.

All departments were asked to make proportionate cuts, sources said. Department officials spent a good part of last week before treasury board, a cabinet committee.

Meanwhile, Finance Minister Gordon returned to Ottawa Monday after a brief holiday in Jamaica and was expected to take a personal hand in the trimming operation.

CUTTING DEFICIT?

Speculation was that he was trying to reduce the anticipated amount of his deficit for 1964-65.

For the current year, for which originally budgeted for a $655,000,000 deficit but later raised this to $709,000,000 as a result of his decision to implement a new 10 per-cent sales tax on building materials and production machinery in stages, instead of all at once.

Mr. Gordon clearly indicated in a recent Toronto speech that he will have another deficit in the coming year, but said the government still is moving to-

Shooting, Looting Renewed in Tanganyika, British Troops, Navy Ready to Intervene

CP from AP-Reuters

NAIROBI, Kenya — Shooting and looting broke out in parts of the Arab and African quarters of Dar es Salaam, breaking a calm that had raised hope the capital of Tanganyika was returning to normal.

The revolt of the new outbreaks reached Britain's Commonwealth relations office at midday after British ordered nearly 2,000 troops and an aircraft carrier to Tanganyika's borders amid unconfirmed reports the threat of a bloody mutiny in the East African nation's army.

A brief Associated Press dispatch from Dar es Salaam said earlier that President Julius Nyerere, an African moderate whose hold on the nation was shaken by Monday's army mutiny, would broadcast to the nation.

A Tanganyika government information officer said Nyerere was safe in the white, Arab-style state house of the palm-fringed capital. The state house is the presidential residence.

Foreign Minister Oscar Kambona also was quoted by Tanganyika radio as saying the president was safe.

Police resumed patrols in the centre of the capital, where mutinous soldiers armed with automatic weapons had moved unchallenged at the height of the revolt.

F. Stephen Miles, British high commissioner in Dar es Salaam, is a report to the Commonwealth office bore out other advices reaching London that the situation was unstable and subject to changes almost hourly.

Diplomatic reports trickling into London said the Tanganyikan capital was calm today but under military curfew and the rebellious first battalion of the Tanganyika Rifles, the country's army, apparently had taken over from the police.

The reports said at least 14 persons were killed and 120 injured in Monday's mutiny, triggered by resentment over low pay and delay in replacing British officers commanding military forces of the two-year-old Commonwealth nation.

No white casualties were mentioned, and all victims were all believed to be African or Asian. Many were believed to be Indian owners of shops and bazaars that were looted during the disorders.

The mutiny, coming only a week after the leftist coup on the nearby island of Zanzibar, brought quick British action to protect the 5,000 British citizens in Tanganyika.

The aircraft carrier Centaur sailed from Aden, the British protectorate in southern Arabia, with helicopters and other aircraft. From manoeuvres in Aden, 800 crack riflemen from the Scots Guards were flown back to Nairobi and placed on emergency call.

The British naval survey ship Owen was placed on alert off Mombasa, Kenya. It had 150 British riflemen aboard. The frigate Rhyl was standing by off Dar es Salaam with an infantry company aboard.

The mutiny apparently succeeded in placing a Negro in over-all command of the Tanganyika Army. Dar es Salaam radio said Lieut. Elisha Kavana took command, presumably replacing Brig. Patrick Shoito-Douglas, senior British officer of contingent which has been training and commanding the native force.

Bill Will Limit Work Week For Girls, Youths Under 18

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario legislature began its first full week of sittings here Monday with a quick and subdued gathering.

Members sat for only an hour and most of the time was devoted to formalities. Keith Butler, member for Waterloo North, and Ada Pritchard, member for Hamilton Centre, moved and seconded the traditional address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Labor Minister Rowntree introduced four bills, one of which will limit the work week for girls and youths under 18 in Ontario.

The only flareup came as the house sitting was adjourned.

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald rose to accuse the government of laziness and called for adoption of a federal government policy of rotating bills and resolutions.

Premier Robarts retorted that he would hate to see the legislature "get into some of the problems that I see in the House of Commons because of their procedure."

BILLS HELD BACK

Mr. MacDonald complained that the legislature had had no formal session for only four hours since the opening last Wednesday. He said several resolutions and private bills, placed on the order paper by NDP and Liberal members, will probably be held back until "somewhere between 11 pm. and midnight in the dying days

Pension Plan Changed

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Under provincial pressures, the Pearson government has remodeled its proposed retirement - pension scheme in a way that would affect 1,000,000 Canadians by requiring many of them to make slightly higher contributions, in return for lower benefits paid to all.

The maximum benefit payable at age 70 to a person who has been in the plan at least 10 years now would be $75 a month instead of $100 as planned originally. Atop this would be the tax-financed old age security pension of $75 a month payable to all at age 70.

The rate of contributions would not be changed—it still would be two per cent of an income limit, shared equally by employees and employers. But by raising the income limit to $375 a month from $333, the government would force those at or above the limit to contribute slightly more.

The main result of the new system would be a rapid build-up of reserves in the fund of

Adds 3 Members, Shifts Six To Other Portfolios

Changes Will Become Effective February 3

OTTAWA (CP)—Appointment of three new cabinet ministers and a reorganization of cabinet responsibilities, effective Feb. 3, was announced Monday by Prime Minister Pearson.

Maurice Sauve, 40 - year - old MP for Ile-de-la - Madeleine, will become minister of forestry. He has been designated to become minister of rural development and forestry on parliamentary passage of planned government legislation to merge the agriculture and forestry departments.

Yvon Dupuis, 37, member for St. Jean-Iberville - Napierville, will become minister without portfolio and a similar appointment goes to Senator John Connolly, 57, of Ottawa, who will become government leader in the Senate.

The present government leader in the upper house, Senator W. Ross Macdonald, is resigning that post and his cabinet position as minister without portfolio.

Mr. Pearson also announced cabinet shifts affecting six present cabinet ministers.

TWO LEAVE

Mr. Pearson said the shuffle was brought about by the reorganization of ministerial responsibilities within the government and by the departures of two ministers, Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier, 60, becomes Canada's high commissioner to London and Postmaster-General Azellus Denis, 56, has been named to the Senate.

Immigration Minister Guy Favreau, 46, will become justice minister and will also shoulder the difficult task of government leader in the Commons, now held by State Secretary J. W. Pickersgill.

State Secretary Pickersgill, 58, will become transport minister in place of George McIlraith, 55, who is a central figure in one of the main proposed changes in government organization.

For the time being Mr. McIlraith will be president of the privy council, but he is tabbed for a new post—president of the treasury board.

GORDON IS HEAD

At present Finance Minister Walter Gordon is chairman of the treasury board, with a five-member committee of cabinet which supervises government expenditures.

New government legislation, to be submitted to Parliament after the new session opens Feb. 18, will set up the treasury board under a president, with responsibility for co-ordinating administration, balancing priorities of government projects and improving management of the public service. This

Thousands of Watutsi Tribe Slain In Rwanda in Reprisal for Raids

USUMBURA, Burundi (Reuter)—Thousands of men, women and children of the Watutsi tribe have been killed in reprisals for raids by refugees of the tribe on Rwanda territory last December, according to reports here.

Some unconfirmed reports put the toll as high as 8,000.

For several days the Burundi authorities have been taking bodies out of the Rusizi River, which links Lake Tanganyika with Lake Kivu and serves as a common frontier for Rwanda, Burundi and The Congo.

Rwanda and Burundi were formerly joined as Ruanda - Urundi, a Belgian-administered United Nations trusteeship. The two states became independent in July, 1962. Each has a population of about 2,500,000.

The massacres in Rwanda recently broke the power of the giant Watutsia, their overlords for many years. The majority Rwanda government is now Bahutu-led.

Interna refuel agencies with field missions in the area said last week a killing wave had already cost the lives of thousands of Watutsis still resident in Rwanda and said the killing continued unabated.

(The reports said the killing was apparently started by rebel Watutsi refugees against the Rwanda government some time during the Christmas period.)

Council Approves 5-Year Capital Works Program as Presented by City Manager

Belleville city council yesterday approved its five-year capital works program which was tabled a week ago at a special meeting following presentation by City Manager J. R. Reynolds.

Approval of the capital works budget did not come, however, until a lengthy discussion which saw an amendment from Alderman Donald Joss calling for the city manager to re-submit the works program for the year 1964 and 1965 and cut 10 to 20 per cent from total expenditures.

The amendment was defeated and council went on to pass the $8,816,000 five-year budget of which $3,938,000 is earmarked for this year, including a major item of $2,900,000 as the city's share of the proposed addition to Belleville General Hospital.

The five-year capital works program calls for purchase of the downtown Bell building and its renovation as a police building, construction of a new public works depot and also a new wing at the hospital.

Also included is construction of a new bridge over the Moira at Dundas Street, and the cost of new schools planned for the next five years.

Council will still meet with the public and high school boards and with the hospital board to further work out details of their respective programs.

LENGTHY SESSION

Yesterday's regular meeting of council was one of the longest in recent months with the city hall clock about to ring seven o'clock as adjournment came.

Council met at 3.30 to inspect the city fire station as a group; then went into caucus at city hall for half an hour before the regular session opened at 4.30.

Alderman Joss made a strong bid to have the capital works budget reduced, claiming it was too large, both in relationship to the city's assessment to come and assessment over the next five years.

"If there is no increase in senior government grants to the city, or if there is no new industry located in the city, then the proposed capital works program can lead to only one end — higher taxation," he said.

CALLED AVOIDABLE

Mr. Joss said avoidable expenditures in the capital works program were the public works building, the police station and the Dundas street bridge, which with other minor items amounted to just over a million dollars.

"We need each of the above projects," said. "As the city grows the need for them will increase. Yet, are the citizens of Belleville willing to pay for them?"

He said that the city also needed a hospital, new public schools, new sewers and more street paving and other things which the citizens here do not have because they are necessary for the continual operation of the city.

He claimed that items which were not basic essentials should not be undertaken until the city knows exactly where the money is coming from to pay for them.

City Manager J.R. Reynolds said, however, that passing of Alderman Joss' amendment would put the council right back where it was a week ago.

NOT POSSIBLE TO CUT

"We did not say how it was possible to cut from 10 to 20 per cent from the works budget for 1964 and 1965.

Moving approval of the works program Acting Mayor Ben Corbett who presided over council in the absence of Mayor Jack Ellis, pointed out that this would be a safeguard in that each item had to come before council for individual approval before it could be started.

He asked that council take the optimistic view and suggested that increased assessment and high wages would assist in offsetting any increased taxation.

But before the vote was taken Alderman Joss rose again so as to when council was to meet with the school boards to determine what their capital requirements as had been suggested a week ago.

CARE BEFORE HORSE

Some members felt the meeting with the school boards should be before the works budget was dealt with otherwise there would be no reason for the meeting.

"We can't approve of something and then go and see where we can cut it down," he said.

But the city manager felt council did not have the certainty of figures to do that and no question of getting the school board to cut their capital requirements. Rather it was a question of getting the boards to share costs over the five-year period.

"Council should make up its mind what it wants to submit to the Municipal Board," he said.

WANTS NEW BRIDGE

He said the capital works program included a former MTC requirement for the five-year period but not the years in which the assessment would be required.

Alderman Jack Aflin put a plug in for replacement of the College Street bridge which he said was not included in the capital works program.

He said the bridge was dangerous and totally inadequate for present day traffic and should be replaced as soon as possible.

First 'Y' Week Demonstration Staged Monday

Monday night marked the beginning of demonstrations taking place at the local YMCA in recognition of national YMCA week.

Boys and young men took part in various gymnastic demonstrations, exhibiting and apparatus work under the direction of program secretary Ralph Driscoll.

Following the gymnastics displays, a special judo demonstration was carried out under the direction of Jim Driscoll.

The evening's program was emceed by a former YMCA instructor, Robert Doogan.

The evening, girls and young women will demonstrate their gymnastic skills, commencing at 7.15 at the YMCA on Campbell Street.

The public is cordially invited to attend.

Miss Gothard's Two Loves Are Her Hometown and Sea

TRENTON — Miss Marguerite Gothard of Trenton isn't from Missouri, but she has to be shown. If there's a public issue at stake, Miss Gothard doesn't get her facts through correspondence. She makes a trip to the spot; attends meetings; delves into the issue. Miss Gothard never wines an inaugural meeting of council and, as a former basis teacher at Trenton High School, she attends most meetings of the Trenton school board.

A long-time member of the Trenton Health Board, Miss Gothard fights for the health of her community with a zest worthy of a crusader. Air pollution and its hazards to the leaves and rubbish in the back yards or on the street are her pet peeves. Although the sanitation last year not to pick up the leaves (for economic reasons), but to give residents a chance to burn them if permission had been granted from the fire department, gave rise to a number of caustic criticisms of the city fathers in the local press. Concerned with the presence of Strontium 90 from nuclear tests in the atmosphere, Miss Gothard had a theory that rising smoke "traps" the substance, and that it falls to earth eventually with the smoke.

TESTED SHELTER

Owner of one of the town's first air raid shelters in the basement of her Harmore Street home, Miss Gothard has had long-time companions, a dog and cat, spent a week last year living in the shelter during simulated "attack" conditions. "It can be done", was her comment when she emerged.

Of sea-faring and warrior stock, (one of her ancestors was aboard a British ship which took part in the defeat of the Spanish Armada) Miss Gothard is direct descendent of Sir James Maitland to whom Napoleon surrendered (Sir James Maitland-Lucy). Miss Gothard has had the smell of salt air in her nostrils ever since she was born into her father, a successful coal merchant, and his family.

In her teens, her interest in the sea led her to travel to Canada's Canadian Pacific ships and this interest carried over into her adult life. Soon, she found herself a keen air traveller and eventually became an honorary First Officer on the CP line. Her health improved Miss Gothard has given up long sea voyages, but should she decide to resume them, she would be given her own officer's table in the ship's dining lounge.

CP captains know Miss Gothard and she is given the right to enter any part of the ship's engine room, an almost unheard of honor for a mere woman.

SUPPORTS MTC

As an off-shoot of her interest in the sea, Miss Gothard has long been a proponent of Navy League activity. She is one of four women in Canada to hold a rare membership in the league. Miss Gothard sponsored the formation of Trenton's sea cadet corps, the MTC "Trent." She describes herself as a "hanger-on" of the Navy League and is not a member or a member of the Trenton corps' auxiliary, but works untiringly to further the aims of both.

During the last war, Miss Gothard opened her home to the auxiliary and thousands of dirty dishes for Red Cross parcels.

The sea, to Miss Gothard, is a "friend". Her bedroom is decorated like a ship's cabin, and the sea is used by her as a means to an end. A little more than ten years ago she decided to spend the weekend in Scotland, to attend special services in a "kirk" in Dundee. She boarded a CP ship, attended the service and returned to Canada . . . via CP of courses.

TAUGHT LATIN

With a local record for having pushed and pushed the operation of Trenton high school students through Latin courses, Miss Gothard maintains a keen interest in education after her retirement. She has almost become a fixture at school board meetings and takes an avid interest in the welfare of the younger generation, particularly in matters of education. A music scholarship, established by Miss Gothard in the name of her mother, the late Mrs. Thomas Gothard, is awarded at the commencement exercises each year to a promising student.

Snow Removal Will Be Left To Residents

TRENTON — On the verge of turning down the suggestion that Provincial Install underground heating cable on Gilmour Hill because of projected costs, council held a re-take last night when the councillors were told that A. J. C. Ward, "Protestant manager of casinos" to meet with a council committee to discuss a lowering of the rental.

With the cost factor in mind, also, council voted not to attempt snow removal from town sidewalks this year, but agreed with Mayor James MacDonald that a by-law, making it harder for residents to leave the snow on their walks, might be forthcoming.

Council will put some Preliminary planning into a proposed 30-unit townhouse development on the Front Street area. It has been suggested that the area be bounded by Bell Street and the route of an old road along the river.

Council decided however, has asked that Sidney Street be completed before any serious thought is given to spending money on exploring the possibility of re-locating Highway 33 in the Front Street area. It has been suggested that the road continue from Dundas Street eastwards this year, but agreed with Mayor James MacDonald that a by-law, making it harder for residents to leave the snow on their walks, might be forthcoming.

Total population of the municipality, including the recently annexed areas is 11,-356, these, 6,980 persons fall in the 20 to 59 year class; 605 in the 60 to 65 class and 1,046 in the under three year class.

Association Gets $250 Grant

TRENTON — Mrs. R. H. Smithrim, president of the Community Assistance Association, gave her annual report to council last night and asked that the 1963 grant of $250 from council be duplicated this year.

Mrs. Smithrim said that was seen from various church groups and other town organizations, assisted by the town's welfare department and welfare association, Gordon Davis, had supplied from the association depot on Quinte Street, clothing, shoes, etc., to needy families and individuals last year. Merchants had donated many articles of clothing and the welfare officer had issued vouchers for new clothing or shoes where the individual could not be fitted.

Mrs. Smithrim suggested that in the future a public building, encompassing welfare offices, public washrooms, a free medical clinic and a new clothing depot, could be built.

Council agreed that this might be a good idea, "something in the future," and agreed to the grant application asked for grant of $250.

Pet Control Officer Named By Council

TRENTON — Mrs. Hilda Jones, 46, Carrying Place Road, has been named Pet Control Officer by Trenton council at a salary of $300 a month.

Mrs. Jones, president of the Trenton Humane Society, formed last summer, will guarantee to impound straying dogs, cats and other animals, keep them in her kennels, collect pound fees, see that the animals are humanely treated and conform to council's by-law governing the activities of a dogcatcher. Mrs. Jones' application was "accepted over that of J. Potter who thought the job was worth $300 a month.

BAD SITUATION

At the instigation of Councillor Edward Todd, the Committee of the Whole Council Committee will be asked to come up with suggestions for amending the parking situation on the one way streets in the town and council will then act to put the suggestions to practical use. Until council does come up with a solution.

EMO Costs For Year Will Total $15,000

TRENTON — Quinte Emergency Measures Organization costs this year will be a mere $15,000, opposed to last year's $24,000, Controller Harold Campbell told last night. The information was contained in the annual report of EMO co-ordinator Lt.-Col. Angus Duffy. Col. Duffy said most of the 1963 costs could be laid to the cost of the wireless equipment. Trenton's municipal office will soon be fitted out with emergency communications equipment.

One of the duties of running the organization, the federal government pays 75 per-cent; the province, 12 per cent and the remaining 10 per cent is paid by the participating communities. Trenton, Belleville, Picton, and the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward on a "pro rata" basis.

In answer to a query by Councillor Ward, Controller Campbell OEW. Larry confessed last night that he didn't rightly know what "pro rata" meant.

Cadet Hockey Loop Starts Operations

TRENTON — A spokesman for 173 Air Cadet Squadron at Trenton said last night he said today that a long - fostered plan to get an inter-cadet service league in action got off the ground Saturday night with a game between the high school squad and a team from RCSCC "Trent", the local sea cadet corps. The exhibition game was held at the No. 6 Repair depot rink and the score was air cadets 12; sea cadets 1.

On Sunday, 173 played 732 Bata Air Cadet team at Glen Miller with the game ending in a 3-3 tie. Coach for Batawa was Bob McGeachy; for 173, Bill Mack of Trenton.

Trenton's scores on Sunday were by Bob Bell, Jim Bedford and Larry Greenough. For Bata, McGeachy, McDougal and Gillette scored.

Trenton goalie was Verne Fraser. Bata goalie was Stan Middleton.

Next Friday and at 9 p.m. the 173 team will take on a team from the first 10 Air Scout Troop at No. 6 RD rink

St. John Ambulance Appeal Is Planned

TRENTON — Gen. Sir Neil Ritchie, president of the Ontario Council of St. John Ambulance, has announced that Capt. J. Allan Smith of Trenton, will head up the St. John Ambulance appeal for the area.

The St. John Ambulance volunteers in Trenton give more than 800 hours of their own time to the service of the community each year. It is hoped that the people of Trenton will give generously in this once a year appeal for funds." The appeal will be made in Febru-

IN MEMORIAM

NOTTON — In loving memory of a dear brother (Bernard (Bud) Notton) who passed away January 21, 1960.

Sadly missed on we love go out of sight

But keep out of mind,
They are cherished in the hearts
Of those they left behind.
Ever remembered by Irene,
Art and Lorraine.

GIRARDIN — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Henry (Gerard (Jim)) Girardin, who died suddenly on January 21st, 1956.

Sadly missed on we love go out of sight
And think of you often,
God bless you, dear Dad.
You are never forgotten,
Always remembered by daughter Leona, son-in-law Greg and grandchildren.

REID, Samuel C. — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away January 21, 1963.

Sweet memories of a sleeping,
Sweetest rest that follows weeping,
Dear one's memory keeps him alive,
But trust in God to meet him.
Lovingly remembered by wife Lillie and son Don.

STERRY — In loving memory of our dear father and grandpa, Arthur William Sterry, who passed away five years ago today, January 21st, 1959.

Sadly passed on we often stand,
With heart both crushed and sore,
Silent thy name we cannot speak,
"Not lost but gone before."
God knows best.
He counts the tears we shed.
And every night we miss you dear,
Your loved one is not dead.
Lonely is the void,
And pray to God each day,
That we shall be united to you
In Heaven will guide our way.
—Dearly loved by daughter, son-in-law Barbara, grandson Kenny.

Aldermen Get First-Hand View of Police Station on Guided Tour by Commission

Belleville police department came under investigation yesterday.

The probe was designed to furnish first-hand clues to city councillors of conditions at the Market Square headquarters of their police force.

For years, the department has had space troubles that would make Khrushchev reel, a cumulative problem that has beset various city administrations.

Yesterday's inspection was an offspring of current debate among city fathers on the urgency to relocate their cramped administration of law and order in new quarters.

To that end they toured the dingy edifice, inspecting everything from cells to ceilings.

Whether they decided a case existed to approve a police commission suggestion that the department could well be rehoused in the soon-to-be-vacated YMCA Campbell Street building, is something only a future council vote will tell.

However, with the inspection the commission may well feel it has at least proven its case.

Along to discuss that case with the aldermen yesterday were chairman Judge J. C. Anderson and Magistrate T. Y. Wills of the police commission. They accompanied the councillors on the tour, answering questions off the cuff as they cropped up.

Those questions and answers would likely sound familiar to any veteran officer on the force. Relocation of their headquarters has been a promise often noted but — as yet — unfulfilled.

LONG CIVIC NEED

A new police building has long been recognized by the city as a civic need. However, location and financing long have been the stumbling blocks to its solution.

Meantime, the department was left alone — to grow and grow some more.

With the YMCA decision to take to the city's eastern suburbs, a new possibility broke, which seemed to match the basic requirements of the issue says the commission.

The Y's Campbell Street building has the ideal central location required. The commissioners felt its purchase also is a financial feasibility.

Cost of necessary remodelling is estimated at about $127,800. Offered price for the building is an additional $55,000. present police requirements is estimated by architects at $312,000. This, says the commission is without purchase of a site.

The architects, after a survey also reported the building was good for 20 years in its present state. While repairs are unnecessary their report added that "there is no reason to doubt the structural adequacy of the walls and their foundations".

Structural firmness is at least something the proposed new headquarters have in common with the present offices, which has been stolidly flanking Market Square for more than a century.

ONCE VILLAGE HALL

The oldest municipal building still in use by the city, it went up when the local era of dogged pioneering was ending and the community was still a pup.

Once known as the village hall (which may date from Belleville's 1836 incorporation as a police village) it was used for many community activities, from entertainments to training the local militia.

The police force, after a sojourn at city hall from 1872, moved into the building about 1907. A police station it has remained ever since.

Interior alterations occurred as the force and its equipment grew. Available space remained the same though, a fact easily evidenced by any visitor in the puzzle of cables, wires and pipes that trace separate ways around the dingy public office.

Structurally sound, the strength of its interior bindings has not always been found reliable.

There was the night a washbasin fell out from the wall, pouring water into the offices. No one knew where it turned off.

There was the morning an obstinate felon was being escorted upstairs to magistrate's court and mixed it up with a constable. At the height of the rhubarb the staircase fell away.

But the starkest feature — one which even drew comments from some of yesterday's aldermanic party — is the cell block.

BAD STENCH IN SUMMER

So badly ventilated the stench of years seems sunken into its cement walls, the block reaches its peak of unpleasantness in humid, summer weather.

Prisoners must be escorted in full public view to the block. Those wishing to converse with relatives in the cell must also stand in public view.

But this is only one feature of the overcrowding problem which is the crux of the need for rehousing the department.

A lawyer wishing to discuss a case, must either do so in the cells, or leave the station. And there are no offices to spare. Not even the detectives have an interview room. The citizen who wishes to talk a problem over with an officer would also be advised to keep his voice down. All conversations leak through the ancient walls and doors.

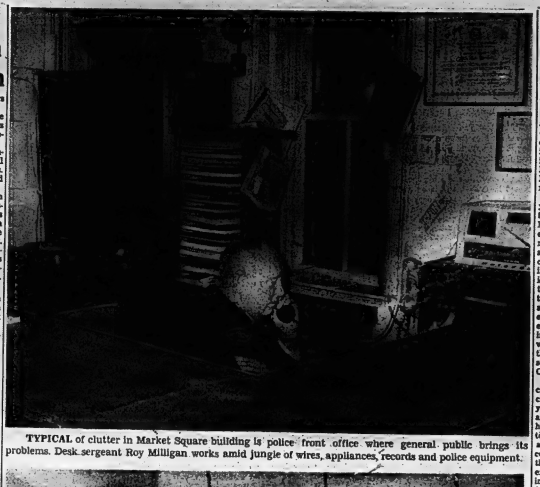
Statistics reveal the crucial extent of the problem.

Chief Constable J. B. McLauchlan, under whom the department recently has been reorganized, estimates about 15,000 square feet floor space is needed to house his administration - - including a court room.

The Market Square building has a total area on two floors of 3,500 square feet.

MORE STATISTICS

Here's one more statistic.



In 1943 records show the force has a total of nine men — including its chief.

Today it numbers 41 officers and two stenographers. Compounding the space problem is the complexity of modern police work which continually marshalls more equipment, records and more records into every police department.

Whether city council decides to launch the rehousing project proposed by the commission, is still to be debated.

However, Belleville's police department long ago lost its space race.

As one veteran on the beat put it: "If you caught the biggest crook in history you couldn't swell with pride around here. There isn't even room for that."

TYPICAL of clutter in Market Square building is police front office where general public brings its problems. Desk sergeant Roy Milligan works amid jungle of wires, appliances, records and police equipment.

Downtown Businessmen Name Officers

Front Street store owner Jack Ireland was named the executive secretary of the Belleville Downtown Businessmen's Association at its annual meeting held last night at the Knights of Columbus Hall. He succeeds Irvine Shulman who was the 1963 chairman.

Other officers named were Ronald Keele, vice chairman; Gerald Hyde, secretary and Ron Fox, treasurer.

In relinquishing the chairmanship of the Downtown Merchants' Association Mr. Shulman reviewed the accomplishments of the year, noting that the aim should be to benefit the city as a whole.

The well-attended meeting approved of an aggressive 1964 advertising campaign aimed at promoting of the downtown area as a place to shop.

Plans to Close Track Crossing Are Protested

Residents of the Grier Street area are not happy that the pedestrian walkway over the CNR tracks is to be closed, along with the roadway.

Yesterday Alderman Don Whalen said he had received several complaints from residents of the area, who, he said were "alarmed" at plans to close the walkway over the tracks.

Following completion of the new railway overhead bridge on North Front Street, council moved to close the Grier and St. Charles Street crossing, with the closing scheduled for later this month.

Opposition to the closing will be referred to the city traffic committee.

Food Market Is Entered

Scene of the break-in was Buckley's Food Market, 133 Victoria Avenue.

The break-in occurred some time between Saturday night and Monday morning.

Jaycees Given Permission to Put up Banners

The Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce yesterday received permission from city council to erect banners advertising its proposed Quinte District Home and Sports Show on March 13-14.

But council drew the line there and withheld approval to a request to drop leaflets advertising the event.

Alderman William Jarvah said he didn't think council had the right to give permission to any organization to "clutter up" private property.

The Jaycee request to drop leaflets was accordingly turned down.

G. C. Baragar Dies in Hospital Ill Long Time

George Clifford (Cliff) Baragar, former Goodyear Tire dealer, prominent in civic, social and fraternal organizations in this city for many years, died in Belleville General Hospital late Monday evening after a long and serious illness. He resided at 209 John Street.

He was born in Picton, 61 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Baragar and after receiving his early education in the County moved to this city where he spent almost his entire life. On coming to the city he entered into the activities of the municipality in many ways and contributed a great deal of his time and ability to the furtherance of his adopted city. He entered municipal life and was elected as Alderman and served in council during 1936-37 and 38 with distinction to himself and could be represented. He also served on the Public Utilities Commission.

Mr. Baragar was proudly called "Mr. Kiwanis" in this city. He joined the club for 27 years and had a perfect attendance in the work of service to his fellowman. He was elected to the presidency of the club after working through many committees and he represented the district as Lieutenant Governor. With his associates he instituted and ran a successful conclusion one of the best carnivals ever given in this city and from the Kiwanis Club derived a great deal of revenue which was allocated to the work of underprivileged children in the community.

PROMINENT MASON

Fraternally he was a member of Moira Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 11 and a Past Master of that lodge. He was also a member of Chapter No. 86 of the Order of the Eastern Star and also a Past Patron. In all organizations he gave of his very best. He was a member of the Temple Corporation at the time of his death and a Member of the Belleville Club.

Mr. Baragar was a man of pleasing personality, had a ready smile for everyone and was kind and considerate of his fellowmen. He was a delightful companion and he enjoyed the respect of a wide clientele in the operation of his business over the years. He enjoyed a wide circle of friends in every walk of life who will sincerely regret his death.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and is survived by his wife, the former Hazel Matthews, one sister, Mrs. Mrs. E. A. (Estelle) Geen of Bradenton, Florida, one nephew, John Geen of his city and two nieces, Mrs. Ned (Mary) Chapin of Bradenton, Florida, and Mrs. George (Phyllis) Scott of Shreveport, Louisiana. A brother, Arthur Baragar, died in 1962.

The funeral will be held from the Grant Funeral Home, North Front Street on Thursday afternoon with interment in Belleville cemetery.

ARCTIC COLLIERY

Coal shipments from the Norwegian mine in the Arctic island of Spitsbergen in 1963 were 430,000 tons, a record since the Second World War.

MASONIC MEMORIAL SERVICE

The officers and members of Moira Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 11, G.R.C. and Sister Lodges are requested to assemble at the Grant Funeral Home, 66 Front Street, on Thursday, January 23rd at 7.30 p.m. for the purpose of attending a Masonic Memorial Service in memory of our late worthful brother, George Clifford Baragar. By order of the Worshipful Master, A. Ross Burnett.

Furnace Room Flooded With Fuel Oil

MADOC — The new Madoc Vocational School furnace room was found flooded with fuel oil shortly after the noon hour on Sunday. Mr. Ed Gates, caretaker of the Madoc Waterworks Department, discovered heavy dark oil at the sewage disposal plant earlier Sunday morning. He reported this to the chairman of the Waterworks Department, Councillor T. C. Barton, who upon realizing that the oil must be coming from a furnace that burns this heavy type fuel oil called the caretaker of the vocational school Mr. Thomas Forestell.

On entering the building Mr. Forestell discovered approximately six inches of oil in the furnace room itself and it had flowed out into the corridor and down a floor drain into the sewage system.

Cleaners were called in and after some hours of hard work the oil was cleaned up. It is thought that a broken fuel line caused this and the pump kept pumping the oil out onto the floor.

Insurance companies are investigating the damage.

Rollins Presents Cheque to Arena Board

MADOC — Mr. Clarke Rollins M.L.A. of Hastings East met with Reeve Thomas Burnside of the arena committee, John Livingston and clerk J. A. Kincaid on Saturday afternoon and presented a cheque for $3,800 to the arena committee from the Provincial Government.

Volunteer help has put the arena in excellent shape and this grant was made available to the arena, committee by the Department of Agriculture based on time and materials that went into the arena.

The committee and the people of Madoc are most grateful to Mr. Rollins on his interest and effort that he has shown in this undertaking.

Changed Theme

Remember the "Buy Ontario" campaign?

The theme, though, has been changed. The Ontario Intelligencer has a parking lot at the corner of Pinnacle and McAnnany Streets. Along the north side of the lot are billboards. One of the current posters announces "Every-one's switching to Canadian products." Presumably hundreds of similar posters are on display at various vantage points throughout the province. They are part of the Ontario Trade Crusade.

The speech from the throne at Wednesday's opening of the Ontario Legislature declared that Ontario would "resist attempts to divide us through economic competition among the provinces . . . Every Canadian has a stake in maintaining the national market and the benefits from industrial specialization."

This is a switch, and an improvement, over the original "Buy Ontario" theme. It is not difficult to guess what prompted the change. It was feared the "Buy Ontario" slogan would backfire, leading other provinces into similar appeals and thus depriving themselves of "the benefits from industrial specialization" which, of course, Ontario is prepared to offer them.

We cannot help wondering though, whether future trade developments may not make advisable even more startling revisions of slogans.

For instance, a recent financial page report told of large shipments of Russian gold bullion to the West. This gold is being used to pay for purchases from western countries, including wheat from Canada. But Russia's supply of gold cannot hold out for ever. If it is to continue buying from the west, it will have to earn some western currencies, which means that it will have to sell to the west.

Right now, Russia's purchases from Canada are large, her sales to this country infinitesimal. But we cannot hope to continue to sell her wheat unless we buy from her.

Anybody want to try "selling" such a slogan as "Look for the stamp of the Hammer and Sickle or the wheat farmer will be in an awful pickle?" Or "We've got to put the Reds in the black or else they'll ship our wheat back?"

How's That Again?

The Kingston Whig-Standard has reported an interview with Dr. J. A. Corry, Principal of Queen's University, in which he commented on the plea of Dr. John B. MacDonald, president of the University of British Columbia, for abolition of tuition fees.

Dr. Corry is opposed.

According to the Whig-Standard he voiced his opposition in these words: "A high proportion of young people will not enter university for a number of reasons and if the taxpayer pays tuition for students he is giving graduates preferred position for life. I don't think that is fair."

Yet Dr. Corry, in the same interview, is also reported to have said:

1—That a Queen's student pays less than one-third of the cost of his education through tuition and that some 53 per cent of the cost is borne by provincial and federal grants, the money for which, of course, comes from the taxpayer.

2—That, with universities setting larger admittance quotas each year, it was obvious provincial funds would have to play an important part in bearing the cost.

How does one reconcile this was the earlier assertion that the payment of tuition fees by the taxpayer would be unfair?

A simple explanation would be that Dr. Corry also thinks it unfair that the province should pay bursaries and that in the future it will have to play "an important part" in paying increased costs.

But Dr. Corry is also reported to have said: "We set the (higher admittance) quotas because we share the responsibility with the province of meeting the need for higher education."

It is difficult to discover consistency in these views.

Love, according to Reginald R. W. Telford of the Toronto Real Estate Board, is giving Ontario's economy stronger impetus and an uplift in sales of houses, house furnishings and major appliances. The marriage and baby boom whirl is providing a promising market.

This is the type of sales promotion work that some people are eager to undertake for the mere love of the fling.

Liberals Treating Defence As if Ballots Out of Style

By RICHARD JACKMAN
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — To hear some of the Bronze at National Defence Headquarters here sound off, the Armed Forces have come to a parting of the ways in their political loyalties, with their vote looking for some place to go in the next Federal election, come when it may.

This is a switch, and a big one.

Could be crucial, too, in an extremely tight election won or lost by as much as a constituency or two.

For years, in election after election, back through the administrations of former Prime Ministers John Diefenbaker and Louis St. Laurent, the vote of the three Services, Navy, Army and Air Force, and certainly their civilian establishments, particularly those in the Capital, was all but a Liberal monopoly.

That, in its day, was a switch, too.

Since in the election of 1945, just after Mackenzie King had come out of his politically tomb - and go - "Conscription Crisis", the Forces were like as solidly Conservative as they so soon afterwards were to be Liberal.

Then, 19 years ago, the Armed Forces were widely anti-Liberal.

The Army, on an inspection in Britain, was booed by the men as to openly boo Mackenzie King, and he, in turn, later had dumped into the lap of the Army and defender, Defence Minister James Layton Ralston, from the Cabinet he resigned in a compromise in his demand that there be conscription to beef up the overseas forces. Operations, then dangerously short of manpower while reinforcement pools here were being overflowing with limited-service soldiers known as "Zombies."

Mackenzie King, according to his own sources, had private papers, for a time was convinced that the Big Brass at Defence Headquarters, Ottawa, were planning a "coup", a march on Parliament Hill to take over the administration and invoke conscription.

The service vote in the '45 election, even although Mackenzie King had stepped down, was still supposed to be anti-Liberal, if overtly pro-Conservative.

The real switchover came in the '53 election, and by the time the campaigns of '57 and '58 arrived the Liberals could count on huge majorities in the Armed Forces' vote.

To be precise in '57, the Liberals gathered in 48,569 votes to the Conservatives' 18,121.

And even in the debacle of '58, when the Conservatives won those still-astonishing 208 seats in the Commons, the Armed Forces stood rock - solid in the face of the political avalanche, giving the Liberals 39,000 votes and the Tories only 31,159.

The Liberals were out front in the Service vote in '62, but better than a two-to-one edge, and in last June's election, the Armed Forces' vote was so lopsided it swung two constituencies, Liberal-turning and Hastings South, from Tory to Liberal.

The Pontiac vote, you'll remember, was a breathless contest, the Conservative, after a narrowly-defeated Tory Member on the Service vote, running a dead heat on the recount and, finally, winning it still uncertainly, on that zany ruling by an inventive Returning Officer.

Point is that the Armed Forces could swing two constituencies in a close campaign helping, although as it turned out, the Liberals to turn out one and bring in another Government.

But it is not beyond the bounds of political possibility, if minority governments continue, that the vote, or even one, could make or break a Government.

That being so, it is interesting to see the Pearson administration now so uncaringly kicking away the Armed Forces' vote with its "sinking" of the Navy, the "shooting down" of the Air Force, and the "massacre" of the Army, especially the highly-regarded Reserve units.

Call it, hopefully, as the Administration does, "judicious pruning" but the Navy knows it has lost more ships in the last six months than at any time in its long and honored history except, of course, in World War II.

And the poor Air Force! It worries that after only a little more of this "judicious pruning" it won't have much left to fly except a few lumbering transports.

But what's a hundred thousand or so votes and a couple of constituencies? The next election years are far away. It's almost as if the Government thinks the ballot has gone out of style.

Strictly Personal

Beliefs Can Often Change True Realities

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

There is, in the field of the social sciences, something called "the theory of fulfilled expectations." It was illustrated with remarkable clarity during the late Robert Redfield, the anthropologist, in a lecture he gave to members of the Chicago police force.

Suppose, he said, that red automobiles were generally believed to be more mechanically defective, more accident-prone, than cars of any other color.

"What then," he asked, "would be the overwhelming cry of the officer who was trying to keep the traffic running smoothly? He would have to know that every time he saw a red automobile in a traffic difficulty he would anticipate a greater chance of accident.

"Now what," he continued, "would be the effect of all the beliefs upon the drivers of red automobiles?" The effect of the belief, naturally enough, would make them nervous and apprehensive and they would tend to drive less steadily.

"Next," he went on, "people would come up with statistics showing that there are 31 percent more accidents with red automobiles than with any other color. And it would be so.

"But," he concluded the illustration, "the statistical proof would, of course, not really be proof that the cause of the accident lay in the color of the car. It would lie in the way people thought about the situation."

What he was pointing out was simply that belief is important in changing reality, and that if you have any expectations of a certain sort of behavior, your very attitude tends to make that behavior more probable. What we think about the future (the point he was getting at) both confirms and changes that future in response to any given social situation.

Perhaps we can see it more easily if we go from the tragic to the frivolous. Almost no wife drives the car as well when her husband is sitting beside her—if she knows he is certain he is a superior about his driving ability. One reason (perhaps the main reason) that women are "bad drivers" is the prevalent male view of them as bad drivers; it makes them nervous and insecure, and so they begin to drive badly. It is extremely difficult for a woman to park a car in a tight spot if a man is watching her, because she knows he expects her to mess it up. And most of the time she will mess it up — but not if she is unobserved and feels unchallenged by male superiority. Those who expect more of people — of motorists, of women, of children — are generally gratified; those who expect less find exactly what they expect.

But, I Wonder

Women Do Varied Jobs

Sault Ste. Marie Star

Women are not permitted to work underground in any of Canada's provinces and are banned from working in asbestos, tin factories where explosives are handled or where there might be poisonous fumes in Quebec and, in the case of pregnant women, are forbidden employment in federal atomic energy plants.

But elsewhere and in many fields that once were considered the sacred domain of men, women are emerging as useful contributors to society.

Not only does this changing role for women call for greater recognition within the labor movement but it calls for closer examination in regard to the effects on the security of the home and family and on the community.

The changing role of woman has been a gradual process but the recognition of this change cannot be such a gradual process.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF YESTERYEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 21st, 1944.

Following their usual custom at the opening meeting of the New Year, Trenton Rotarians were hosts to the Mayor and council on Monday evening, with Mayor H. R. Cory as the principal speaker. Mr. Cory gave first hand facts and figures regarding the town's financial standing, as only one could who has guided the ratepayers' interests for the past ten years.

During the present he reviewed figures, telling of the various debentures, etc., and stressing the fact that after 1945 the only town debts would be high and public schools, the latter of which expires in 1947 leaving only public schools to be dealt with. He told of the extra expenditures which had been paid during the past year showing a total of $39,711 spent in 1943 over and above 1942, which included a reduction of two mills in the tax rate.

Charles Hall was appointed to report to the Chalk-River conscientious objectors' camp. Raymond J. McCoy of Church St., was apprehended by P.C. Wright on a warrant issued by Magistrate Ponton. He appeared before Miss Mary Butler, local justice of the peace and remanded to custody until tomorrow's city court.

According to the official weather bureau in the city there was eight inches of snow lying on the ground one year ago today. The deepest the snow had become up to January 9th last year was ten inches. The "unusual" weather this year indicates a mild winter, so far, except for these days the city may find itself snowed under.

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

May I take this opportunity of expressing my admiration for the Saturday issue of The Ontario Intelligencer.

Your reporters must be right on the beam, as it contained everything in the way of interesting reading. News, romance, tragedy, advice to the teenager and the young married couples who are the immature to solve their own problems, as well as advice to those who have reached the golden years.

It was particularly interesting to read about the flower shop on Victoria Avenue. Now, who wouldn't want to cultivate a hobby instead of sitting and letting life pass you by? I could not help but realize the happiness that Mrs. Irene Lord Tweedsmuir must have brought to the receiver.

I remember an article written several years ago by George Carver entitled "Slide Grandma Slide." He must have been behind me coasting down Campbell Street hill, one winter day. To my surprise I met him a few days later at the doctor's office with his arm in sling, while I was there getting my ribs strapped.

I could write paragraphs on the many interesting articles that appeared in your paper.

What a pity people don't have the time or take the time to read the paper thoroughly. I am amused at the Astrological forecasts, as the forecast for my birthday, usually says, "Good night for romance" and it just so happened I am an elderly widow.

I hope my eyesight never grows dim as The Ontario Intelligencer is the highlight of my day. No other paper can compare with it.

Chances of Peace

Guelph Mercury

A survey of world foreign offices on the "facts of life now presenting themselves says we are meeting fewer rather than rising — tensions and the chances of peace accord with this.

Most of the world nations will now be very interested in something their own relations with President Johnson — and this is very reassuring for a general peace — better than it has been in recent years.

To Your Good Health

Your General Practitioner Is First Medical Defence

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Your article on hypertension, or high blood pressure fits my husband exactly. What kind of a doctor should he consult? — Mrs. R. S. M.

Why not his regular doctor? I assume he has one. The general practitioner remains the first line of medical defense. Even though the number of specialists has multiplied vastly, it's the man in general practice who knows when you need a specialist.

It is often more important, in the various ills that we all must contend with, to have as a doctor someone who is thoroughly familiar with you, and with your physical peculiarities, than to have a specialist who knows his subject intimately but does not know you.

Have you ever stopped to think that the Presidents of the United States rather invariably have as attending physician a non-"presidential doctor." When or if some ailment becomes aggravated, or is such that special-ized knowledge is required that's when a specialist is called in.

This is a rather simple, obvious fact that has been rather lost in the shuffle — especially because a certain type of people make a confusing lot of braggy noises about going to specialists for everything that ails them.

This dividing line between general care and care by specialists isn't a rigid one. In the cities, there is a swifter calling of specialists, because they are more readily available, in the smaller towns and the country, necessity the "family doctor" handles a wider area of problems himself — like delivering babies and performing minor surgery.

The small-town doctor, quite sensibly, will use his better known remedies if, for example, you have an annoying skin condition, whereas in a big city you may very well go to a dermatologist.

But whether in city or country, have a regular physician and depend on him to tell you when you need a specialist.

It's only the physician who has known you over a period of years who can readily distinguish between a case of nerves and some truly organic disturbance. Sure, a specialist can find out, but it will take him some time and some tests.

Your own doctor can save you time, money and worry — and choose the best available specialist if, as must happen to some of us, the really hard problem comes along.

Don't think the general physician has "gone out of style." The biggest medical organization in the United States is the American Medical Association — which includes all types of doctors.

What's the second largest? Why, it's the American Academy of General Practice! The general physicians.

"They are the physicians' greatest challenge," said Mr. Allen, the English wizard.

Find It Hard To Fool Child

By Jan Kozicinski
In the Winnipeg Tribune

The meeting of the local chapter of the International Brotherhood of Magicians was called to order at 8.30 p.m., in the comfortable surroundings of a campus room.

The gentle disciples of Merlin wore natty business suits and didn't look at all like the wizards of fable and legend. There was present a single stuffed owl in sight, on the bin inside of the fireplace. Nobody drew mysterious chalk marks on the gleaming tile floor, and there were no sinister incantations.

Nevertheless doesn't allow us to divulge the content of the rites dealing with business of the Magicians' Club, but once business was done with, the rubbery sorcerers became quite talkative and regaled us with a great deal of information.

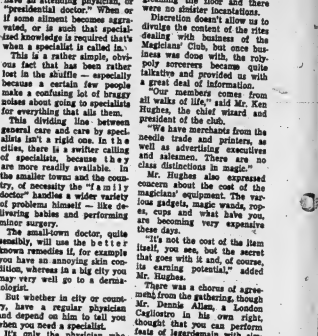
"Our members comes from all walks of life," said Mr. Ken Hughes, the chief wizard and president of the club.

"We have members from the needle trade and printers, as well as advertising executives and even priests. There are no class distinctions in magic."

Mr. Hughes also expressed his views about the cost of the magicians' equipment. The various gadgets, magic wands, rope-tricks and the like have you, are becoming very expensive these days.

"I think the cost of the item itself, you see, but the secret that goes with it and, of course, the inventing potential," added Mr. Hughes.

There was a chorus of agreement from the gathering, though Mr. Dennis Allen, a London Cagliostro in his own right, thought that perhaps these affairs of legerdemain with simple, inexpensive objects, at Hobo or no cost at all.



In discussing the psychological aspects of magic we heard the word "misdirection" mentioned several times. Inquiring into the problem we learned that a good magician uses all kinds of methods to divert the attention of his public away from himself — be it only for a second or so — to perform the crucial move and succeed in mystifying the audience.

Adults, it seems, are easier to deceive than children. They tend to analyze what they see and end up in confusion. Children move direct. They act on instinct and if there is a trick at a guess, often coming up with just the right solution.

"They are the physicians' greatest challenge," said Mr. Allen, the English wizard.

The announcement was made today by John W. Scott, manager of the Company's Southeastern Ontario branch. The President's Club is composed of leading representatives of the Company.

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP)—The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was unchanged at $1.06½. Pound sterling was up ¼ at $2.02 7-16.

Three Youths Remanded Week For Sentence

Three youths, caught redhanded during a burglary, today were remanded a week for sentence in Belleville magistrate's court.

Robert Whitmore, 19, Carl R. Haines, 18 and Kirk Raymond Downey, 21, pleaded guilty to breaking and entering Patterson's Esso station on West Dundas Street, January 16.

The three were arrested after the break-in was spotted and police rushed to the service station.

"Haines and Downey were hiding in a truck after entry had been put in the service station overnight," detective sergeant Harold Ashley told the court. "Hiding behind a boiler room door was the accused person Whitmore."

Haines had $14 taken in the garage, in his possession.

'Railway Week' Will Be Held Next June

Completion of the agreement between the city and the Canadian National Railways for removal of the tracks from Pinnacle Street is prompting plans for a special celebration to recognize the event.

Although the agreement has been finalized it is not expected the tracks will be moved this year but a special committee representing the city and officials of the CNR has been named to plan "railway week" celebrations for the week of June 29th.

Yesterday city council appointed a committee of Aldermen Frank Ryan, Harry with Norman Keith, Jerry O'Connor, Zdenek Kvetan and Keith Alexander to work with a railway committee to plan the celebration.

Railway committee members include J. Kenneth Fleming, passenger sales manager, G. A. Vandervoort and Norman Lowe, CNR public relations officer from Montreal, City Manager J. R. Reynolds will act as coordinator between the city and the railway.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market moved through a second day of declining prices during moderate morning trading today.

Industrials were off across a broad front, with papers, banks and oils leading the list. Mac-Millan-Bloedel led papers down with a ¾ loss, while Great Lakes and Abitibi both slipped ¼.

Banks were easily the weakest group. Montreal fell ¼ and Royal ¼.

General Motors Trust gained ½ to 63¼ on volume of 8,295 shares, all but 200 shares of which was a special cache transaction at 64¾ a share.

Speculative action was quiet except for Gulf Minerals, which dropped eight cents to $1.73 on volume of 43,540 shares.

The senior base metals list was weak, Falconbridge down ½ and International Nickel ¾. Golding in golds and senior western oils was light with few changes.

The exchange index fell .49 to 132.23 and industrials .53 to 141.38. Base metals dropped .12 to 81.48 and western oils .41 to 125.37. Golds gained .68 to 153.21. Volume was 832,000 shares compared with 1,321,000 shares traded at the same time Monday.

The market dropped on all fronts Monday.

Steels, liquors, utilities and integrated oils largely caused the decline, with fractional losses prominent.

Among steels, Algoma dropped ¾, while Page-Hersey and Dominion Steel and Coal fell ¼ and ¼ respectively. International Utilities and Bell Telephone both slipped ¼, and Calgary Power dipped ⅛.

Some industrials—banks especially—swam upriver. In that group, Montreal rose ½, Nova Scotia ¾, Royal ¼ and Imperial Bank of Commerce ¼.

Senior base metals action was light. Hudson Bay Mining set the lone step-up of the day at 60, while International Nickel dropped ¼ and Rio Algom ¼.

Golds were mixed with Dome dropped ⅛ and Hollinger gained ⅛.

All indexes fell. Industrials dropped .78 to 132.95, base metals .23 to 132.95, golds .38 to 61.60, western oils .33 to 83.98 and the exchange index .73 to 132.72. Volume was moderate at 2,975,000 shares compared with 4,392,000 shares traded Friday.

Theft of Bonds From Law Office Probed

Police continued to press inquiries today into the disappearance of $80,000 in stocks and bonds from a city law office, without uncovering any new developments today.

The probe has been in a stepped-up phase since the weekend when the month-old theft, without-a-trace from the offices of Ronald Scott, Q.C., was confirmed.

Investigations are in charge of city detective sergeant Gerald Reid and inspector H. M. Sayeu, from the OPP Criminal Investigation Branch.

The inspector arrived early Saturday after local police revealed the theft from Mr. Scott's office sometime between December 10-14. To that time the theft had been kept secret while police awaited an attempt to cash in the securities.

Now the investigation is in full swing and out in the open, police seek clues to the baffling theft.

Interviews went on at police headquarters until late last night and started again this morning.

Most of the haul was in government bonds, the rest in stocks — all the personal possession of Mr. Cass.

Name Ted Poste Deputy Chief Of Fire Dept.

Named in an acting capacity last June, Ted Poste of the Belleville Fire Department, has been officially named as deputy chief.

The new deputy fire chief replaces Gerald "Warpy" O'Brien, who has been forced to retire from the force because of ill health.

The official appointment was made yesterday by city council.

Appointments Are Approved

Township appointments to the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board were approved yesterday by city council.

Further appointments to the Board are Reeve Clayton Hall for 1964-65, and Stanley Geen for 1964-5-6.

Sidney township appointments are Reeve Gerald O. Irvine for 1964; Horace Knight for 1964-65 and E. G. Hart for 1964-5-6.

To Hold Meeting

The luncheon and annual business meeting of the Canadian Dual Purpose Shorthorn Society will be held at Rockhaven Motel, on Highway 28, just south of Peterborough, Saturday, January 25th. Speaker will be Dr. George Fisher, Peterborough. Trophies will be awarded to herds with high average production for the past year as well as awards to high individual producers. Plans for the coming year will be discussed. Joseph Sullivan, Peterborough, is national president.

BLACK DIAMOND

A shift in the top level directors of Black Diamond at the last directors' meeting. Mrs. S. Joss resigned as chairman of the board, replaced by A. Montye MacRae, former president of the firm. New president is Dr. Greenleaf Joss, former executive vice president. No new man chosen yet, for that slot.

Big shake-up in the Black Diamond's shipping department, a result of the new additions going up on the west side of the plant. Three of the five shipping doors are sealed off, a wooden ramp leads from the two remaining doors over the construction site to the north side of the plant, where the trucks are loaded. Shipping going out as fast as before, but with more organization is required to keep things rolling. The addition will include five shipping doors on the north side.

PROVINCE WIDE PIPING CO.

New firm in town, just swinging into full operation now. Province Wide Piping Company began setting up in an old garage on The Houston Co. property Jan. first - the day Norm Gagnon left Allen's to start working for Lakeland Natural Gas. Mr. Gagnon bought the truck he drives for Lakeland, and began doing piping work for the firm as an independent contractor. Plans for the new firm include more than pipes however, and work began on the fibre glass of a planned line of lag-along trailers last Friday. The lag-along are a type of low trailer originally towed by a dump truck and used to carry construction equipment. The new firm also has plans for entering the ornamental iron business, welding and machine repair and custom work.

FOLEY FOUNDRY

Foley Foundry is sending a crew down to the Welland-Port Colborne area today, to start work on a new contract for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. Contract involves rebuilding the machinery on two railway lift bridges over the Welland Canal at Welland and Port Colborne — it might keep as many as 40 men busy for about two months on the site. Lots of shop work, as well. Also included in the contract is conversion of the standby power from gas to diesel. The two bridges are of the vertical type — in which the centre section goes straight up on two towers, remaining horizontal all the time. Skilled men on the job will come from Belleville, som of the labor might be hired locally.

CORBY'S

Victor Baron, plant engineer of a distillery in Bella Vista, near Buenos Aires, in Argentina, is at Corby's now, for a working visit. Staying at the Hotel Quinte with his wife, Mr. Baron is on a tour of distilleries in Canada, picking up technical tips.

BRUCE MAY MANUFACTURING

Production is rolling again at Bruce May Manufacturing. Big contract for 45C door, an adjustable window for screens for a large hardware and automotive supply chain began last week, according to Bruce May. The screens are adjustable to fit most windows, have a galvanized frame and aluminum screening. Production starts this week, with folding lawn fence, to be sold through various wholesalers. Average production of the line is 300,000 feet a year.

Tests Fail To Disclose Cause of Death

KINGSTON (CP)—Laboratory tests have failed to disclose the cause of death of Nora Elizabeth Whitehead, 45, Kingston mother of seven whose body was found weighted down with concrete in Sharbot Lake Nov. 28.

Crown Attorney John E. Sampson of Frontenac County said today an inquest will be held in Toronto if detail analysis of body tissues at the attorney-general's crime laboratory there fail to reveal positive fruitless, he said.

The inquest date will be set by Coroner C. J. Whytock of Sharbot Lake, 38 miles north of here.

Mrs. Whitehead did not return home Nov. 1 after leaving the house to buy groceries.

NOMINATED BY ROTARIANS

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — The medical director of a tuberculosis sanatorium in Lazen, The Netherlands, was nominated Monday for president of Rotary International in 1965-66. C. P. H. Teenstra received the unanimous vote of the organization's nominating committee. If other nominations are received, a mail election will be held during Rotary's convention June 7-11 in Toronto. Otherwise, Teenstra's election will be automatic.

Seek Tenders For Demolition Of Four Houses

Belleville is still in the house demolition business.

Yesterday council voted to call tenders for the removal or demolition of two houses (63 and 65 Bell) North Front Street purchased from Mr. N. Mason, and also two other vacant houses, one in the Foster Ward area and the other in Hillcrest which have been condemned.

Early last year a number of houses on North Front Street were razed to make way for the new overhead bridge. The two Mason houses were among those purchased to provide for the bridge approaches.

Dr. V. N. Malach Joins Staff of Business College

Ontario Business College is proud to report that Dr. V. W. Malach has joined their staff as accounting instructor. Dr. Malach was educated in Port Arthur, Vancouver and White Mouth Lake, Manitoba, primary and secondary schools. He earned his Bachelor of Commerce and Bachelor of Arts, honors degrees at Queen's University and his Ph. D. Economics degree at London School of Economics, London, England. Dr. Malach is a former lecturer of economics at Queen's University, and Professor of Economics at Royal Military College, Kingston and will be instructing, in accounting, those students who are taking the bookkeeping and accounting course at O.B.C.

O.B.C. is also very happy to report that Mr. Frank J. Leach, co-principal who was seriously ill several months ago, has now recovered and has been able to join the staff as business manager. Other members of the staff, Mrs. O. Jones, instructing in typewriting, spelling, English and penmanship; Mrs. M. Reynolds instructing in bookkeeping; Miss E. Prentice instructing in shorthand, join with Mrs. O. A. Brown, principal, in a welcome to Dr. Malach and Mr. Leach. We know that these additions to the staff will assist present and future students at O.B.C. to achieve their business education.

Sale of Lots Postponed by City Council

City council yesterday tabled for two weeks a recommendation to sell three city owned building lots in the Plan of Subdivision of East Bridge Street as a site for a proposed RCMP headquarters.

On the same date council will try to find some other location in the city which might be suitable as a headquarters for the "Mounties."

The federal government offer to purchase the lots was made before council several weeks ago, the matter being tabled to allow a public notice published, and to get approval from the Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs.

In the meantime residents in the area have voiced objection to any change in the police building being erected in the vicinity.

The Minister's approval for the sale has been received with a minimum price of $10,638 being set for the three lots, but in view of the objection from residents and from members of council, the sale was again deferred.

A recommendation from Alderman Frank Murray a committee will be appointed to try to find another suitable location in the city.

ENDS FAST

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Chaput said Monday night he has ended his fast and has resigned as president of Le Parti Republicain du Quebec, a separatist group. Mr. Chaput told a press conference his 63-day fast, during which he took only fruit juice and water, raised $22,000 for his political party, which advocates the secession of Quebec from Confederation.

Shuffle Seen as Move To Apply Business Rules

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet shuffle is seen as a mixture of politics and good business management. The changes he outlined in Commons questions today in ministerial responsibilities represent the most sweeping reforms in government organization since the Second World War.

Mr. Pearson told reporters he supports the idea that there should be a large representative cabinet, employing more MPs in ministerial responsibilities and a small executive group within the cabinet.

Such a system is used in the United Kingdom.

What may be the start of this system was his announcement that nine cabinet committees are being set up to deal with various aspects of government business.

Each committee would have a chairman, but Mr. Pearson would not say whether committee chairmen would themselves meet as a committee.

Mr. Pearson also does not think this system will reduce the number of cabinet meetings, but it will speed up government business.

MAKE RECOMMENDATION

Matters requiring cabinet decision would be considered first by the minister concerned to the appropriate committee of cabinet where a recommendation would be thrashed out for full cabinet action.

In moving Transport Minister George Mcllraith from his heavy department to the new post of president of the treasury board, Mr. Pearson not only strengthens the board in principle, but also fills the gap left as MP for Ottawa West, a more prominent figure in local Ottawa affairs.

Replacing him in the transport department with State Secretary J. W. Pickersgill will bring a more adept parliamentary hand to the piloting of contentious new legislation through the next session of Parliament.

Recommendations of the MacPherson royal commission on transportation are expected to be embodied in legislation next session. Mr. McIlraith, a meticulous man, has drafted much of the legislation but it is believed Mr. Pickersgill can display more flair in getting it through the Commons.

LEGAL TALENT

Secretary Pickersgill as the government's House leader is Guy Favreau, a former deputy minister of justice, now minister of migration minister since last April. His talent as a legal draughtsman has kept him in touch with progress of important legislation through the Commons.

As a parliamentary tactician, Mr. Favreau lacks Mr. Pickersgill's experience but has the kind of politician who is willing to sacrifice partisan considerations in parliamentary progress.

The two new ministers in the Commons—Maurice Sauve and Leon Dupuis—are both young men with considerable success in the Liberal party in Quebec.

Mr. Sauve's principal record has been made in small liberal philosophy and organization; Mr. Dupuis as a fiery orator.

In the Senate, W. Ross Macdonald, a former Speaker of the Commons and solicitor-general in the previous Liberal government of Louis St. Laurent, is retiring from the government leadership which he has occupied with quiet flexibility.

Senator John Connolly of Ottawa, as the new leader, is expected to bring a younger and more aggressive approach to the Senate leadership at a period when younger men are being appointed to the upper House and when it is showing increasing ambitions to assert itself in parliamentary affairs.

Rotary Club Hears of Work Of Y.M.C.A.

"Week was observed" by the Rotary Club at their regular dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte on Monday.

Speaker for the occasion was Joseph A. Caulder of Toronto, known by Rotarians and Y's Men as Mr. Rotary of the YMCA".

Mr. Caulder said that the Belleville YMCA had made a good start referring to the new YMCA building and said he hoped they would continue their efforts in the future.

Mr. Caulder said he hoped the Rotary Club would work as closely with the YMCA as possible.

The speaker stated that he had visited many Rotary Clubs in his extensive travels around the world and also added that he had visited twice as many YMCA's. He said he seldom goes to a city to speak to Rotary without first paying a visit to the YMCA.

The speaker was introduced by Past-President, M. Thompson and was thanked on behalf of the club by Past-president Percy McGuire.

Several other representatives of the local YMCA were introduced by D. G. Dimanides, General Secretary of the Belleville YMCA.

Also present at Monday's meeting was Mr. Bruce McKenzie, president of the Young Men's Christian Association.

CENTRAL SCHOOL

MARMORA — The yearly "Open House" meeting of the Marmora Home and School Association was held at Central School for the business meeting. Mrs. Alan Wells, president chaired the meeting and minutes were read by Mrs. Ray Smith. Treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Sid Demorest.

The Hastings County Health Unit was discussed at the December meeting and a petition was drafted and presented at the January meeting. There were 46 who signed in favor. A donation of $10 was made to Belleville Home and School Council to be used towards the library of the Trent University.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Florence McCoy, principal of Madoc Township Area School was introduced by Mrs. Marie Cook. Her topic was the "Four Phases of Education" and teachers — "The Home," "Playmate, Teachers," "Community" and "School Teacher" which proved most interesting.

Mrs. Stewart Hardy, thanked the speaker.

The assembly moved to the Earl Prentice School where the parents of the kindergarten class were entertained.

The banners were won by Miss Marie Cook's room, Grade 1 of Earl Prentice School and Mrs. Chard's Grade 5 Central School.

Lunch was served by the mothers of Mrs. Empey's room.

The February meeting will be Founders' Night.

Successful Living

Reader Curious to Know If Virgin Birth Possible

DEAR DORIS — I was interested in your reply saying there is no known way of controlling the sex of an infant. But Nature does a good job itself. A town near here has an equal number of each sex and has had for the past 30 or 40 years.

Now for my question: How would you account for the virgin birth? Scientists claim it would be a female if such were possible. But like myself I think they would also claim that without the human spermatozoon there would be no human life. — E. H. T.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR E. H. T. — I don't account for it. Seems to me birth itself is sufficiently marvellous under any circumstances. I agree that life would be difficult — not to say impossible — without our males.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I would like information about becoming a policewoman; such as how many years of school you have to have and what they do. — WANTS TO BE ONE.

* * *

DEAR WANTS — Training for policewomen is done locally; there are no Canada-wide standards. Usually at least grade ten is required.

Policewomen are particularly adapted to preventive work with women and young people. They may patrol dance halls, playgrounds, lower class neighborhoods, bus depots.

They are law enforcement officers and not social workers, but often find themselves dealing with family problems relating to non-support or juvenile delinquency. They help with traffic safety education in the schools.

A woman who is mature, resourceful and not easily shocked can fill an important post on the local police force. Ask there.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am 19 years old and in love with a married man. He doesn't love his wife but he won't leave her because of his children. He tells me he loves me, and when I'm with him I believe him. Then for days and sometimes weeks I don't see him and he doesn't phone. Sometimes I feel so unhappy I feel like killing myself; then he phones and it starts all over again.

I know that I'm the only girl he's taking out. He tells me that some day we'll be together always. Should I keep waiting for that "some day" or should I break off with him now and try to forget him? No one will ever take his place in my heart — MIXED UP.

* * *

DEAR MIXED UP — Waiting for that "some day" can give you a lifetime of heartbreak. Break off while there are still single men who would enjoy your company. At 19 you simply cannot say for sure that you will never replace such a lover.

* * *

Confidential to DESPERATE — Keep your feelings to yourself. Declaring love at this point is a sure way of chasing your friend away. Besides, it just isn't love.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Now in our fifties when we are retired, and not a worry financial or otherwise, I am still faced with an old problem. I've tried going away long enough and far enough to see if it will help. But it rears its ugly head at the most unexpected times.

In every way I have a good, quiet gentleman for a husband. But the minute I decide to visit my sister, daughter, or friend he immediately says he is going to Jamaica or some place and if I go anyway, I get a phone call that he is sick, and have to rush home. —NEED ADVICE.

* * *

Next time, send him to Jamaica—or some place." It is good for individuals to have friends, family, trips of their own. Standing too close together, holding on too tight, encourages weakness.

Then when you are away — and I strongly advise you to go—arrange for a doctor to be within reach of your neurotic mate. And be sure to pamper him with plenty of mail!

Doris Clark is a Master of Social Work and has learned how to counsel people with problems. Write to her with yours.)

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

HOLIDAY AFTERMATH — REQUIRES PATIENCE

Right around now is the time of year when some people get the "post-holiday jitters."

You're had a chance to recover from the round of Christmas and New Year festivities a la social activities. Perhaps you have pleasant memories and, quite possibly, some regrets.

In any event, your physical recovery might be complete, but certain aspects of the past holiday season may be bothering you and will continue to be a bother until the magic month of February appears on the calendar.

* * *

For example, you're anxious to show your appreciation for being invited to that wonderful party New Year's Eve. You've already sent the proper thank-you note, but you feel that your appreciation should take a more tangible form — like inviting the hosts to your own home.

You're right, of course, but you should never make it seem that you're extending the return invitation as a "pay-off." Relaxation is the key word. Possibly other guests are besieging the New Year's hosts with their own invitations. Any time within the next month or so is time enough for your bid.

* * *

Each time you open your dresser drawer and see the pair of gold gloves two sizes too small, you wonder if you still offend the donor by taking them back to the store for a pair in black and in the right size.

CUSTOM OF EXCHANGING

The custom of exchanging Christmas gifts is fairly well-established now. Anyone who sends a gift should expect it to be used. If you find it unusable for any reason, such as wrong size or color, you are apt to offend your friend by exchanging the gift. You can explain that you prefer a different color.

However, you would show bad taste if you exchanged the dress for, say, a pair of shoes. And you'd probably offend your friend if you applied the cost of the dress she sent you to buy more expensive pair.

Now is the time when the resolutions you made New Year's Day are beginning to feel like blood-oaths rather than promises to yourself. Don't bore other people by describing the tortures you're going through. Remember that now also is the time when actions speak louder than words.

Then there's the possibility that you miffed someone in the exuberance of that last holiday party. If your conscience is still giving you needles, invite the person out to lunch or Sunday afternoon refreshment.

You'd be surprised how that phone call will clear the air and bring February 1 that much closer.

BARS PAINTINGS

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta Liquor Control Board ruled Monday that the Seagram collection of Canadian paintings cannot be shown in the province. The board said the collection is advertising. Asked how the Seagram collection was shown in Edmonton in 1955, Board Chairman A. D. "Pete" Elliott said there was "a different board chairman then."

Experience Great Teacher Says Member

TORONTO (CP) — Ada Pritchard, the only woman member of the Ontario legislature, said Monday women should make no apology for venturing into public life.

Mrs. Pritchard, Conservative member for Hamilton Centre, was chosen by Premier Robarts to second the motion for acceptance of the Speech from the Throne.

She said in her maiden address in the legislature it is outmoded to believe that only women who are "rebels" enter public life.

"Sex has no monopoly on brains," she said. "Experience is a great teacher.

"Those who have studied the progress of women and observed their improved status realize the value of their contribution whether it be at the level of government, business or the profession."

Mrs. Pritchard agreed that she could not underestimate "the first sphere of women, the home and family."

She said, however, that all women should taken an interest in public affairs and be vocal with their opinions.

Church Groups

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held its first meeting of the New Year on January 14th with a good attendance.

After a brief business meeting Mrs. Darrel introduced the speaker, Mrs. Alton L. Sutherland, wife of the minister, who gave a fascinating account of her trip to Jamaica. Dr. Ida Scudder taken from the book written by Stella Smith.

Dr. Ida Scudder was the daughter of a medical doctor in India who returned to America in 1900. Returning to India she saw the needs for medical skill among women and decided she must go back and further her studies to become a missionary doctor.

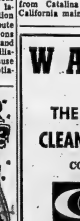
After completing her education she went back to India where she started training volunteer native girls to become doctors.

MEDICAL COLLEGE

Dr. Scudder founded a Christian Medical College at Vellore which has now become the best medical centre in Asia and the biggest cooperative Christian project in the world. It is supported by 40 mission boards of different denominations. Mrs. Sutherland showed slides to illustrate her talk which included pictures of the beautiful college, medical centre where treatment was given, also the mobile units which carried doctors and medical supplies to be administered to the natives. They had been sent word to meet at certain places by the roadside or in outlying villages to receive treatment for various diseases especially leprosy.

The president, Mrs. W. M. Barlow thanked Mrs. Sutherland for her interesting and informative talk after which refreshments were served and a social time spent.

C.A. SERVICE



FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel C.A.'s held their service on January 19th with Mrs. F. Spring in charge. Mr. Len Reilly led in prayer. Rev. James Pierce played a trumpet solo. Also contributed a vocal solo.

Guest speaker, Rev. James Pierce of Sarnia spoke on "Getting Right With God". A time of prayer closed the C.A. meeting.

ASK FOR BOARD

MONTREAL (CP) — Frank Hall, chief negotiator for 100,000 non-operating railway employees, said Monday the unions have asked the minister of labor to set up a conciliation board in their contract dispute with the railways. Negotiations broke down last Thursday and both sides said federal conciliation was the next step because of lack of progress in negotiations for a new contract.

U.C.W. Meeting

SALEM U.C.W.

The January meeting of Salem U.C.W. was held on Thursday in the form of a quilting with dinner at noon. Mrs. Mel Wickens was hostess and Mrs. Bert Heagle, program convener.

During the afternoon Mrs. Everett Sine, president opened the meeting with an appropriate verse. Minutes of last meeting were read by new secretary, Mrs. Bert Sine. Several "thank you's" were read for Christmas remembrances. Mrs. Stanley Thompson was appointed delegate to attend U.C. House in Toronto. The annual Presbytery was announced. Mrs. Everett Sine as treasurer gave a report. New dishes which had been purchased were displayed.

Mrs. Bert Heagle presided over the program and read a poem. Readings were given by Mrs. Heagle, Mrs. Ivan Saries and Mrs. Stanley Thompson. Mrs. Ivan Saries conducted a topic entitled "Where Falls the Thin Line." Mrs. Heagle thanked all who helped with the program.

SCOTT'S U.C.W.

9TH SIDNEY — Mrs. Edison Sine was hostess to Scott's U.C.W. on Thursday evening when the new president, Mrs. Maurice Sine took the chair. There were 11 members and two visitors present. A letter from Mrs. Weaver was read re. the bus trip to Toronto on January 29; also an invitation to meet with Quinte U.C.W. for World Day of Prayer on February 14 at 2 p.m.

Mrs. Alton Sine conducted the program with readings by Mrs. Earl Dafoe and Mrs. Nelson Sine. Miss Bonnie Sine contributed the music.

Mrs. C. Frost will be hostess for the February dinner at the church hall; Mrs. G. Sine will be hostess for the U.C.W. meeting and Mrs. E. Sine will be program convener.

The ladies of Scott's U.C.W. served meals at the Belleville sales' barn on Tuesday, January 21st.

GILEAD U.C.W.

GILEAD—The regular monthly meeting of the U.C.W. was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Arthur Balcanquel with an attendance of ten adults and three children.

Rev. Packman installed the new officers as follows: president, Mrs. Ross Huffman; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. John Huffman; treasurer, Mrs. Clarence Martin; secretary, Mrs. Wilfred Clare. The first vice-president, Mrs. Gerald Swan was not present.

Business was conducted. Miss Livingston and Mrs. Clarence Martin are to prepare program for the next meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Clare, February 12. It was voted to give $5 to the Ladies Missionary Board for 1964 and the president read a letter stating Canniffon's share of Missionary money will be $12.15 with $30 expenses. Mrs. Earl Treverton read a letter of thanks for baby sent in the fall.

Mrs. Walter Treverton took charge of the program and Mrs. Ross Huffman gave a reading.

Meditation and prayer, also a reading by Mrs. Wilfred Clare. An interesting film contest concluded the program.

FIND BALLOONIST DEAD

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)— The skeletal remains of a 42-year-old Mrs. Barbara Keith were found Monday about four miles off Dana Point, the U.S. Coast Guard reported. The Hartford, Conn., grandmother of 10 had been the subject of a widespread sea and land search since she disappeared during an eight - balloon race Saturday from Catalina Island to the California mainland.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

P/L J. R. "Bud" Richardson of RCAF Air Division Headquarters, Metz, France, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. B. Moorcroft, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Brown. P/L Richardson is attending a 12-week course at RCAF Staff School, Toronto.

* * *

Miss Margaret Hesse, formerly of the Ontario School for the Deaf teaching staff has been awarded the H. L. Tracy prize in the English 37 course taken at Queen's Summer School 1963.

* * *

Mrs. Ethel Brant has just returned home after spending the recent holiday season with her daughter, Mrs. George Vieau of Rivers, Manitoba.

* * *

Mrs. T. Hay, Pine Street has returned home where she is convalescing following surgery in the Toronto General Hospital.

Church Groups

BAPTIST MISSION CIRCLE

The Mercy Rae Mission Circle of Emmanuel Baptist Church opened their 1964 session on January 14th with a dessert tea, held in the church basement. Mrs. F. Weigand, Mrs. S. Campbell and Mrs. D. White were hostesses in charge of a beautifully appointed table of delicious desserts.

Mrs. E. Sinclair gave the treasurer's report, the new president, Mrs. J. MacGregor welcomed all to the meeting.

Mrs. R. Bowerman led the devotional period with a few words of welcome to the New Year with Christ. Mrs. B. Kerr, Mrs. E. Sinclair, Mrs. S. Campbell and Mrs. F. Weigand took part in a season of prayer. Mrs. E. Quirk the speaker of the evening gave an interesting talk on her experiences in Kalinada, India during the war when they entertained troops in their home and how the Lord provided all their needs.

Mrs. S. Campbell thanked Mrs. Quirk for her inspiring message.

Women's Institute

CHATTERTON W.I.

The January meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the Sidney Baptist Church hall with an attendance of 13 members and five visitors.

The meeting was opened by the 1st vice-president, Mrs. Emory Demille and correspondence included a card of thanks from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frost; also a letter from Mrs. Leonard Prest.

Mrs. W. D. Dixon was convener for the program. Mrs. Neil Kuglin, Reg. N., spoke briefly before showing two films which were loaned by the Stirling Cancer Society. Mrs. Kuglin stated that cancer is the second largest killer in Canada. At present, twice as many people develop cancer as die with it.

The first film gave the story of a man with cancer who was given cobalt treatments at Princess Margaret Hospital in Toronto and how closely able to return to his own home. The second film was on breast cancer. This film was very informative discussion followed. Mrs. Kuglin distributed leaflets and also listed seven symptoms of cancer. It is wise for every person to have a medical check-up regularly so if one should possibly develop cancer, it may be treated in the early stages.

Mrs. David Little favored with a piano solo and the meeting closed.

GIFT SHOPPING WITH INTELLIGENCE

How often have you been on the receiving end of a thought-less gift? If you are like the average, the answer is often. I myself, am guilty, gallantly struggling to lose 30 pounds who received for her birthday last year the biggest, most magnificent box of dark, rich chocolates she had ever seen. Now the gift of candy comes from a far away aunt, who was ignorant of her dieting. It came from the heart, and I was not about to bother to take her plans for a diet seriously.

Most of us have been guilty, at one time or another, of this type of thoughtlessness. I know a woman who never wears gold or gold-toned jewelry because it is not becoming. Anyone who knows her well will have observed that she wears only silver, white gold or pearls. Guess who received a gold pin for Christmas?

Many people have a favorite colour, or even perfume, and a wardrobe theme, regardless of fashion's dictates. The devotees of the blue school are sure to receive something in red from someone who just did not observe, or care enough to come up with even the smallest gift in her favorite color.

To give a woman something for her home, when she lives in a one room bachelor apartment is as senseless as giving a ski sweater to Aunt Mabel, who will be 70 next year. The fact that Aunt Mabel lives quite comfortably in Florida only confuses the issue. But don't get rid of gifting happens all the time.

EFFICIENCY FIRST

A most efficient gift list was drawn up by a young man I know. His whole approach was hinged on making his slim budget buy or supply something thoughtful for each of the people on his list. His main goal was to make each recipient feel flattered that a person special to him or her would have aroused herself enough to say that he was very clever just because all those potatoes came from him. However, as she is inclined to be sentimental, and the Friendship Group will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Vina Ellis, on January 28.

The meeting closed and Mrs. Horwood served refreshments.

MULLIGATAWNY

A Chicken-Based Main Course Soup

by Mary Moore

Last week I mentioned to you that I had made Mulligatawny and served it as a main course soup with Anadama Bred on New Years Day.

This is so good and easy and economical I am hoping all of you will give it a try. I made it from a 2¼-lb. chicken I bought at a bargain sale of chickens when they were 29c per lb.

MULLIGATAWNY (a main course chicken soup):

Into a large stewing pot put 1 ready-to-cook 3½ to 3-lb. chicken. Add 13 cups cold water and simmer covered until chicken will fall from bones. Cool chicken in liquid in cool place overnight. Lift chicken from broth and remove flesh. Strip meat from bones, discarding bones and skin. Cut meat into approximately ¼" pieces, including giblets, if any. Return chopped meat to strained broth.

Add: 1 teaspoon MSG (accepti), 1½ or 2 teaspoons salt, 2 chicken bouillon cubes, 2 medium onions, chopped finely, 3 medium large carrots, cut into small even dice, 2-3 cups raw long-grain rice, 1 teaspoon (or more — see below) curry powder.

Simmer until rice is tender — 30 to 35 minutes. Just before serving time add ½ pint 18% cream and ¼ to 1 cup finely chopped parsley and bring to just below boiling point and serve from preheated soup tureen. Our crowd ate 2 bowls each of this with generous slices of Anadama bread.

NOTE:

I was timid when adding the curry powder but my brother said he would have liked a little more of it. So if your family enjoys curry add 2 or 3 teaspoons.

If you feel poor but hospitable try serving this at your next guest meal.

The following Cheese Muffins would be an easy and ideal accompaniment.

CHEESE MUFFINS:

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 cup grated old Cheddar cheese, 1 egg, well beaten, 1 cup milk, 4 tablespoons melted shortening (or oil).

Sift together flour, baking powder, salt and sugar, and add cheese to them. Combine remaining ingredients. Add all at once to flour-cheese mixture, stirring, not beating, quickly until just moistened. Fill greased or oiled muffin tins 2-3 full (and if desired sprinkle tops with a little additional grated old cheese). Bake at 425 deg. F. for about 20 minutes. Makes fourteen 2½" muffins.

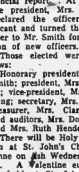
CHARGE BY LENGTH

NORWICH, England (CP)—A notice in a Norwich woman's hairdressing salon reads: "Cliphead with long hair will be charged twopence extra because of the time it takes in combing out."

St. John's F.G. Elects Officers

POINT ANNE—The annual meeting of St. John's Friendship Group was held at the home of Mrs. Paula Horwood on January 14. The Rev. Everett Smith opened the meeting with prayer after which three new members were introduced.

The treasurer, Mrs. Clara Green, gave a favorable financial report for this year. the president, Mrs. Horwood, declared the officers' chairs vacant and turned the meeting over to Mr. Smith for the election of new officers.



Those elected were as follows:

Honorary president, Mrs. E. Smith; president, Mrs. Vina Ellis; vice-president, Mrs. Frieda King; secretary, Mrs. F. Akey; treasurer, Mrs. Clara Green, and auditors, Mrs. Doris Mollin and Mrs. Hugh Watterton.

There will be Holy Communion at St. John's Church, Pt. Anne on next Wednesday, Feb. 12. A Valentine euchre will be held at St. John's parish hall, Point Anne, on February 11th.

The next regular meeting of the Friendship Group will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Vina Ellis, on January 28.

The meeting closed and Mrs. Horwood served refreshments.

BETTER BE BOOSTER—When Nikki the Cougar gives you that look, it's pretty hard to be anything but a booster of the Kootenay district of British Columbia. As unofficial chamber of commerce representative of the Kootenays, the six-year-old mountain lion makes numerous public appearances with his owner, amateur zoologist Allen Woodrow of Robson, B.C. (CP Photo)

Cougar, Harmless as Housecat, Often Steals Spotlight From Guest of Honor at Banquet

ROBSON, B.C. (CP)—As an unofficial symbol of British Columbia's Kootenay district, Nikki has a built-in advantage. People can't help but notice (and remember) him.

Nikki is a cougar.

Although he is harmless as a housecat, not everyone knows it, and when he strides, purring loudly, into a public function he inevitably attracts attention.

Sometimes he steals the spotlight from the guest of honor, such as the time he was led on to the speaker's platform as Phil Gagliardi, British Columbia's loquacious and colorful highways minister, was opening a new road in eastern B.C.

Nikki is owned and trained by Allen Woodrow, an amateur zoologist who runs a small zoo in this village 31 miles north of Trail.

APPEARS ON TV

The mountain lion is a full-grown six-year-old who, in his role as representative of the Kootenays, has travelled as far east as Lethbridge, Alta., and as far west as Vancouver.

Sometimes he wears a bib reading "I am a Kootenay booster. R.U.?" and this is a tipoff that he's a tame cougar. But other times he may turn up at a wrestling match or some other function without the bib, causing spectators some anxiety despite the fact he's on a leash.

Recently Nikki acted in a scene for the Walt Disney television series The Littlest Hobo. He also has appeared a couple of times on the CBC television network.

Woodrow was given Nikki when the animal was two weeks old, left without kin by a hunter who had more sympathy for the whimpering cougar kitten than for the mother.

HAS STAND-IN

Nikki, a bottle-fed baby, probably could not have been tamed if he had remained with his mother more than five weeks from birth. And while Mr. Woodrow feels most mountain lions are likely to revert to their wild state after two years of age, there's no indication that Nikki will outgrow his good nature.

Nikki may not have many years left, but Mr. Woodrow has a replacement ready in a year-old cougar female he calls Sheba. She's a playful animal who startles guests by racing into the house, leaping into Mrs. Woodrow's lap and gnawing with mock ferocity on her arm.

Mr. Woodrow also has two cougar kittens in the bathroom where they enjoy a milk diet administered by bottle.

Other animals and birds also run loose in the zoo and the owners don't mind because they have a policeman, a female mallard. When the duck isn't taking turns with Sheba on Mrs. Woodrow's lap she's likely to be keeping other residents in line with a flap, quack or snap of the fill.

Hooked!

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Governor George C. Wallace spent more than five hours in front of television sets Sunday helping raise $12,700 for the March of Dimes.

Another participant took a telephone call from the governor's children, who said they wanted to contribute $10.

Asked whether they wanted someone to pick up the money or if they wanted to mail it, George Jr. said: "Daddy's out there. Get it from him."

employee - employer contributions—to a staggering $2,500,000,000 plus interest after 10 years, or more than 10 times the reserve under the original pension proposals.

TO BE AVAILABLE

Ottawa would make half this reserve available for investment in provincial bonds, or provincially-guaranteed bonds, on a level proportionate to the total contributions of each province. It likely would mean more than $420,000,000 earmarked for Ontario alone.

This may be the selling point with which the Liberal administration will win Ontario's support for the federal system. With Quebec already out of the national scheme, the federal government needs Ontario's contributors — perhaps 2,300,000 of them—to make the plan work at all.

Until now, Premier Robarts' biggest criticism of the plan was that by not being "funded," it would tend to draw money away from private pension plans and thus reduce the pool of trust and insurance company funds on which Ontario and its municipalities rely heavily for borrowing.

Prime Minister Pearson, releasing Monday what had been a confidential Jan. 11 memorandum to the provincial premiers dealing with the proposed changes, invited their comments.

WON'T CONSULT PROVINCES

But at the same time he indicated that he does not intend to consult the provinces formally again. Their reaction was sought at a special conference last July, soon after the original plan was announced, and again at the federal-provincial conference in November.

Mr. Pearson said the government now intends to introduce the pension legislation in the next session of Parliament, starting Feb. 18. He reiterated that it will be referred to a parliamentary committee "for detailed study."

His statement gave no indication of when the plan would take effect. It is understood that the earliest starting date would be Jan. 1, 1965.

The plan—officially titled the Canada Pension Plan—shapes up as possibly the biggest political issue of the year. In addition to the test of a strong lobby of trust and insurance companies and the Commons opposition, the legislation will have to go through the Upper house where at least 17 Senators are directors of trust or insurance companies.

Hamilton Seeks Uniform Ban On Huge Trucks

HAMILTON (CP)—City council's traffic committee decided Monday to invite Ontario cities to send representatives to a meeting here in April to discuss possible bylaws to ban big trucks from city streets.

Alderman Joseph Lanza, chairman of the traffic committee, said an aim of the meeting would be to have the cities present a united front in banning trucks longer than 50 feet in city areas.

Of the 12 centres approached by mail, Brantford, Toronto, Metropolitan Toronto, Kitchener and Oshawa have agreed to the meeting. Windsor, Ottawa and Port Arthur have rejected it. London, Sarnia, St. Catharines and Sudbury are considering it.

Kiwanis Club Will Stage Many Projects

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton Kiwanis Club is sponsoring a hockey game between the Kingston "No Stars" and the teachers of the Prince Edward Memorial Collegiate on February 6th at 8 p.m. at the arena.

The proceeds will go to Gerry Tinlin's "Operation Pennies."

This will give the students of the school an idea of just how good their teachers are at Canada's national sport.

This is the regular Junior hockey night at the arena, but the Picton Juniors will be playing at Napanee on this night leaving the rink clear for the "Battle of the Century."

Fans of this game whose "no stars" are a riot and well worth the price of admission of 50c. And it goes for a worthy cause, win, lose or draw.

Also at the Kiwanis Club last night, plans were attended for the annual Fancy Dress Skating Carnival and Fun Night, also sponsored by the Kiwanis Club.

This event drew so much attention last year, that the club is going it one better in order that this year, it will be an even bigger and better show.

The date — Feb. 29 at 7.15 p.m. Watch the Intelligencer for further details on this show, including the list of age groups for which there will be prizes for the best costumes.

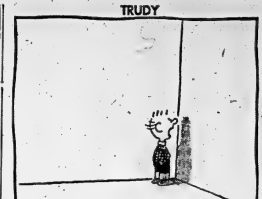
It has been suggested that the schools all over the Prince Edward County each send at least six participants to the show. There will be a special prize offered to groups of school children, who come dressed as a family, or group from the schools outside of Picton.

Kiwanian Lloyd Thompson, showed a color movie, courtesy of Kodak, on the trials and tribulations of the amateur photographer which was much appreciated by those attending.

Only One Civil Action Before Supreme Court

PICTON (Staff) — The Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court of Ontario got under way at the County Court House at 2.00 p.m. Monday with the Honorable Mr. Justice E. G. Moorehouse presiding.

Two former actions were quickly settled, leaving the way clear to start on the only other case left, a civil damage suit arising from a motor vehicle accident on January 9th, 1963.



In the divorce actions, Geraldine Muriel Cooper, the plaintiff, of Brockville, was granted a decree nisi from John Lewis Cooper of Picton. The son of the marriage will remain with the mother, with the defendant paying $20 per week towards his upkeep until he shall reach the age of 16. The costs of the action are against the male defendant.

Edessa Dawn Fogarty, Belleville, was granted a decree nisi from the defendant, Michael Allison Fogarty, now believed to be residing in Sudbury. Costs against the male defendant. A daughter of the marriage shall remain with the plaintiff.

In the civil action, Jesse I. Mason, Picton, and Marie Kurth, Napanee, are asking damages from the H. J. Heinz Co. of Canada Ltd., for damages sustained in a motor vehicle accident in which it is alleged the company truck rolled into the rear of the Mason car, while it was stopped.

Cement Plant at Picton To Increase Daily Output At a Cost of $7,300,000

PICTON (Staff) — Mr. J. G. Pickard, president of Lake Ontario Portland Cement Company Limited, announced today that the company would immediately be undertaking a $7,300,000 expansion of its plant at Picton.

This expansion, the engineering of which has been largely completed, will add an additional 1,750,000 barrels of capacity. The first phase costing $6,000,000 is expected to be in production by the summer of 1965. Mr. Pickard advised that satisfactory financing arrangements had been made for the expansion.

Mr. Picard noted that expansion at Picton will provide additional needed capacity in the quickest possible time, but that it was not expected to affect the company's, long term plan of constructing a new plant in the Waterloo area of New York State. In fact he pointed, out that the company had just received its option on the desirable property in that area.

In commenting on the company's 1963 operations, Mr. Pickard stated that the consolidated net earnings for the year ending Jan. 31, 1964 will be approximately 100 percent greater than for the same period last year.

On Nov. 1, 1963 Lake Ontario made its first payment of 50 cents per share against the dividend arrears on its convertible preferred shares. On Jan. 1, 1964 the company initiated a program for the regular payment of current dividends on its preferred shares and made a further payment of 25 cents per share against the dividend arrears.

The above press release was handed out at 4:30 p.m. Monday by William Barron, Operations Manager at the plant at Picton.

MORE MANPOWER

Presently the plant is producing 3,200,000 barrels of cement per year, when the new addition is completed, the almost 4 millions barrels capacity will take place at the Lake Ontario Portland Cement Co. Ltd., well up with the largest single cement plants in Ontario.

Questioned as to any increase in employment when the new addition is ready, Mr. Barron said, "It is inevitable that when the new addition is ready and operating, an increase in manpower will eventually follow."

"We are hopeful, however, that in the actual building of the addition the contractor will be able to use many people from the local area," he added.

The new addition will provide for a new kiln which will be some 500 feet long, as against the two now operating whose length is about 375 feet each. The relative additional equipment will include a new Ball Mill with a tremendous horse power motor.

When the plant was originally designed and built it was for a yearly capacity of 1,750,000 barrels per year, which makes the new addition just double the original plant. Many improvements and additions have been done since the plant was first put into operation in 1956.

"Construction should be under way by mid August," said Mr. Barron in conclusion.

Favreau on National Stage

Enters as New Political Lead

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP)—A new political personality is emerging from the province of Quebec and many Liberals consider him a candidate for the mantle of Louis St. Laurent and Ernest Lapointe.

He's 46-year-old Guy Favreau, a stocky lawyer from Montreal who says he doesn't feel like a politician but whose influence as one has soared meteorically since his election to the House of Commons last April.

Mr. Favreau, former associate deputy minister of justice, was a political unknown when he joined Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet as minister of citizenship and immigration.

However, on the basis of Mr. Favreau's administrative ability and earlier knowledge of the workings of the immigration department, Mr. Pearson selected him for one of the most sensitive posts in the cabinet before he had ever made a speech in the Commons or sat in the green chamber.

Mr. Favreau quickly gained the respect of his departmental officials and became recognized as a man who was not afraid to make decisions on controversial immigration matters.

FAVORS IMMIGRATION

He initiated a sweeping review of the immigration Act and its regulations with a view to proposing amendments at the next session of Parliament. He also announced plans to modernize the Indian Act, to hear claims of Indians under various treaties and launched a program to increase immigration to Canada.

First French-speaking head of the immigration department, the MP for Montreal Papineau made it clear soon after his appointment that he does not agree with French Canada's traditional opposition to immigration.

"I intend to see immigration increased," he said.

At the same time, he criticized the indifference to immigration shown by Quebec governments over the last 20 years. As a result of this indifference only 20 per cent of new arrivals since 1946 have settled in Quebec.

During the first session of the current Parliament, Mr. Favreau's ability in the drafting of legislation became apparent. Frequently, he was at the elbow of other ministers, helping them pilot legislation through the Commons. On numerous occasions when opposition members proposed amendments acceptable to the government he did the paper work right in his seat, expediting passage of bills.

FUTURE LEADER?

Most observers felt he was being groomed to become eventually Mr. Pearson's Quebec spokesman. There were also reports that he was being groomed as a possible candidate for the Liberal party leadership when the time comes for Mr. Pearson to retire.

Many Liberals regard Mr. Favreau as a natural choice for Quebec lieutenant, seeing in him the qualities that enabled Mr. St. Laurent and the late Mr. Lapointe to fill this post under Mackenzie King with great distinction. They feel he would be equally acceptable in both English and French Canada.

As Quebec lieutenant, Mr. Favreau would play a major role in the new movement to obtain recognition of the French fact in Canada. A man with a burning desire to see Confederation work, he is a vigorous foe of separatism and a champion of the movement to bring about equality between the two founding races.

Mr. Favreau said he regards the period that Mr. St. Laurent served as prime minister as an "era marked for Canadians of French origin and Canadians of English descent by a collective effort to give Canada at the same country and the existence of common loyalties and interests."

SEES DANGERS

He said that in the cabinet, in Parliament and in the civil service "the presence of French-Canadians is accepted today not as a necessary evil, but as the very condition for a dynamic and progressive Canada."

He urged the people of Quebec to recognize that the remodelling and readaptation of Confederation will not be achieved overnight.

"Canadian interests require that we do not rush and risk running into a political blind alley," he said. "We must seek the solution to our problem in a series of dialogues. Our salvation is the round table discussion at which everyone shares not only an acute awareness of his sovereignty, but also of his responsibilities to all."

A graduate in law from the University of Montreal in 1940, Mr. Favreau first entered the federal field in 1950 as a member of the Restrictive Trade Practices Commission. Later he served with the Copyright Appeal Board and became associate deputy minister of justice in 1955.

As an officer of the justice department, he acted for the immigration department in a number of important deportation cases and helped revise immigration regulations in the mid-1950s. After leaving the justice department in 1960 and returning to his law practice in Montreal, he acted in a number of cases against the department, giving him a broad concept of the workings of the branch of government he now heads.

CRITICIZES QUEBEC'S IMMIGRATION STAND — Guy Favreau, Canada's minister of citizenship and immigration, says he intends to see immigration "remain" for Canadians of French origin and Canadians of English descent by a collective effort to give Canada at the same country and the existence of common loyalties and interests." ward a balanced budget in the future.

Another factor may have been President Johnson's success—as announced Jan. 8—in trimming the level of 1964-65 United States expenditures below the level of the current year. The Canadian government may wish to follow suit.

In preparing next year's program, the government already had at least one source of savings—the cuts in the defence establishment announced over the last few months by Defence Minister Hellyer. These could amount to $100,000,000 or more in a full year, sources said.

Further cuts in other departments may have been made before Christmas. If so, the amount of these would not become known until the Blue Book

4. The nuclear powers should agree to ban the spread of nuclear weapons to non-nuclear nations, should ban all nuclear weapons tests underground as well as those now prohibited, and should accept inspection of their "peaceful nuclear activities."

Much of the ground had been covered by Johnson in a message to Soviet Premier Khrushchev made public Monday. That communication, responding to Khrushchevs proposal for an agreement banning most forcible efforts to revise national boundaries, centred on Johnsons counter-proposals in that area, and his suggestions for nuclear limitations.

The ministers had one new aid in their budgeting operations—four-year forecasts by all but a few departments of what their outlays will be up to fiscal year 1967-68.

These were not complete estimates, as Parliament and the public knows them. Rather, they were outlines of some of the future spending required under existing or contemplated government policy.

Main usefulness of these advance "estimates" is in attaching priorities to various government programs. Some may be moved ahead, or others set back, in line with the general fiscal policy of the government for any particular year.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids ... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved ... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Once a year for the past decade or more the mystery package has reached this sports desk.

It bears a New York City postmark and contains copies of the Journal American and the New York Sunday News.

Presumably it comes from a Mr. or Madame X who formerly resided in this city. There is no identification either on the wrapper or in the newspapers No stories are "marked" for reference.

I've searched the columns annually for some reference to Belleville, Canada, and sports in general. I've read the editions from the front-page streamers to the smallest classified ads. Nothing.

J. McKenzie Bowell
Sporting Editor
Daily Intelligencer
BELLEVILLE
Ontario

The mysterious sender must have been connected with the sports departments or acquainted with the personnel of the former Daily Ontario and Daily Intelligencer before April 21, 1923, when the newspapers were merged.

Before I commission Peter Gunn, Amos Burke or James Bond to investigate the Caper of the Anonymous Sender, it should be known that he or she has been painfully out of touch with developments newspaper-wise in this city.

The name of the recipient and the newspaper to which it is sent is proof of that.

For some years the mystery package was addressed to Mr. T. S. Carman. Mr. Carman was the publisher of the Daily Ontario prior to 1923.

More recently, as the accompanying picture bears out, the papers have been forwarded to Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, Sporting Editor the Daily Intelligencer.

Prior to the merger of the two newspapers, Mr. Bowell was the owner, publisher and editor of the Daily Intelligencer.

There are no records to show that at any time did the man who later became Prime Minister of Canada for a brief period, ever hold down the exalted position of "sporting editor."

After all it is a far cry from a press box to a political podium. Besides you can't hold fish fries, chicken fries or kiss babies while trying to cover the antics of hockey, football or baseball players.

My mysterious friend in Gotham, as was mentioned, apparently hails from Belleville and is well into his or her sunset years.

The first three or four packages were addressed with the penmanship of a shaky hand. It was clearly that of an elderly person. The last three or four years it would seem the address job has been given to a younger person.

And strangely enough they have been written on the back of a newspaper sports release.

I would like to know the identity of the sender if only for bringing him or her up to date with what has happened in the newspaper business here since the year Wall Street laid the famous egg.

It is time the mystery man or woman found out that Mr. Carman and the Hon. Mackenzie Bowell have long since departed this mortal coil: that the two newspapers have "married," and the family is doing fine.

I thought perhaps I had a clue when I noted a story in one of the Gotham papers "Bald Men Said Immune to Lung Cancer Through Cigarette Smoking."

But the yarn was not marked and anyway the mystery person does not know I exist unless that Millions About took a haunt holiday in New York and talked out of turn.

GUMP RETURNS

QUEBEC (CP)—Goalie Gump Worsley, out of the lineup for more than a week, returns to action tonight when Quebec Aces are host to Rochester in an American League game. Worsley was pronounced fit after treatment in hospital for an eye injury suffered when hit by a shot by Ken Schinkel.

WILL MISS DERBY

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Hurry to Market, champion two-year-old, will miss the Kentucky Derby and other big races because of a serious quarter crack in his left hind foot. The big colt may be set down for six months, his trainer Dave Erb said Monday.

Coaches Differ, Urge Control In Youth ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Pros Top Amateurs In 'Smoke League'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coaches and athletes across the country nearly all agree that smoking is a personal affair among adults, but should be controlled in youth.

A Canadian Press survey by The Canadian Press indicates more professional than amateur athletes are addicted to cigarettes, cigars or pipe tobacco.

Warren Stevens, director of athletics at the University of Toronto, says all the U of T coaches are opposed to athletes smoking.

"It has been a tradition that an athlete who is serious about training will not smoke. But there are always a few who will break the rule and you can't be a house detective to enforce it."

Harry Griffiths, athletic director of McGill University in Montreal, estimates that about 40 per cent of the college's athletes smoke.

"I'm not against the habit if it's taken in moderation, if the boy can give it up for two or three r onths," he said. "I don't like to see them with a habit they can't break."

Don Mackintosh, supervisor of athletics at the University of Alberta in Calgary, says the old fear that "smoking cuts down on an athlete's wind" is the reason why few of his basketball players smoke.

One man known in the past to drop players from teams for persistent smoking is John Metras, athletic director of the University of Western Ontario in London.

"I use the no-smoking rule as a disciplinary measure," he says. "Smoking is not good for condition and generally doesn't do the athlete any good."

Metras uses the "don't do as I do, do as I say" method. He averages about a pack of cigarettes a day.

Pete Kelly, athletic director of the University of New Brunswick and a former National Hockey League player, forbids members of his varsity teams to smoke during training sessions.

He says: "The United States report has brought the matter home a little closer. I think I could be more voluntary retraining."

The staff at the University of Ottawa also frowns sofe on the sample to its athletes by laying off the tobacco habit, reports Russ Phillips, physical education director of UBC.

Arnold Lowenbruger, director of physical education at the University of Saskatchewan Regina, thinks an a'h'e'e's performance is reduced by smoking.

He doesn't see any difference whether an athlete smokes cigarettes, cigars or a pipe. Lowenbuerger smokes cigars.

But Graham Fowler, coach of the U. of S. boxing team and Western Canada foil champion two years ago, states: "I quit smoking some time ago and haven't noticed any marked difference. To tell the truth, I think smoking helped me to relax a lot."

Bob Pelletier, athletic director of the University of Ottawa and a cigarette smoker, says giving up smoking helps an athlete to get in shape, "but once you're in shape, a little smoking doesn't seem to hurt."

Les Prince, coach of McMaster University at Hamilton Marlins, last year's Canadian university hockey champions, comments:

"Schools could take a much more definite stand on smoking. However, the growing responsibility lies in the home. We've got to stop youngsters before they begin or think they are big men by smoking."

Bobbie Rosenfeld of Toronto, a member of the 1928 Canadian Olympic track team, sees nothing wrong with athletes—either male or female — taking up smoking after they leave the athletic world.

She recalled that when she was competing, "it wasn't respectable for ladies to smoke."

George (Punch) Imlach, general-manager-coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL had no comment to make. He is a non-smoker, and through a spokesman, said because of this he did not feel qualified to make any statement.

"When an athlete reaches the professional stage of his career, he is old enough to make decisions like smoking, for himself," said Lew Hayman, general-manager of the Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference division of the Canadian Football League.

Ralph Sazio, coach of the Grey Cup champion Hamilton Tiger Cats, said: "I started smoking when I was in the army. When I started playing again I noticed a difference and immediately cut it out until I started coaching again."

Sazio has sliced his usual 30 cigarettes a day down to 10 and is seriously thinking of quitting

Pipe-smoking Red O'Quinn, general-manager of the Ottawa Rough Riders of the CFL, admitted about half of last season's squad were cigarette smokers.

"They're professionals with their breed and butter on the line and they know smoking affects their wind. I ain't recall one heavy smoker on the entire club."

But Ottawa coach Frank Clair is a bit different. He's a pack a game man. He lays down the law at the start of the season about late drinking and the rest, but never mentions smoking. He expects the players to make their decision on this.

Frank Boucher, a former NHL star and now commissioner of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League, thinks he has the smoking problem licked.

He only smokes half of each cigarette, working on the theory that in this way he avoids tar and nicotine in this way.

"I don't think it matters whether an athlete smokes or not," he said. "I've played with lots of guys who didn't smoke and they puffed just as hard as I did."

Bud Grant, coach of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the CFL—a non-smoker—was dead against it—prefers none of his players smoke. But he will not interfere with the habits of players, providing they do not do it in the dressing room, on the playing field or in his 'fifth a.

Coach Toe Blake of the Montreal Canadiens of the NHL is a believer in moderation.

"I figure smoking is just like anything else. If you do it in excess, it's bound to hurt you, like overindulgence in eating or drinking."

But Russians 'Will Win Easily'

Czechs 'Best Amateurs In World'

By JOHN JACKSON

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—With eight days to go before the Jan. 29 opening of the winter Olympics, International Hockey followers here say Russia should have no trouble collecting the gold medal in hockey.

The names of Czechoslovakia, Sweden, the United States and Canada are being bandied around by those confident that Russia is the team to beat.

This winter the Russians completed a highly successful tour U.S. and swept all before them in Europe.

The top hockey teams have to arrive in Innsbruck but the Olympic village is rapidly filling with other competitors.

All the bobsled squads have arrived and today will have their second training runs on the Olympic course at Igls.

At Seefeld the men's cross country and ski jump teams from Switzerland, West Germany and Rhesia are expected to have their first test of the course. East Germany, Finland and some of the Russian women already have tried out the course.

SKIERS COME LAST

Last to arrive will be the skiers who have decided to stay with the snow in Italy and other European ski resorts, rather than risk restricted training in Innsbruck where warm weather and lack of snow has been a problem.

Of the 16 nations that will compete in hockey, Czechoslovakia appears here to offer the strongest threat to the Russians. Like the Russians, the Czechs are extremely well disciplined and rarely resort to the busy body contact that is commonplace in North America.

Technically, they are regarded the best amateur players in the world. The only question is whether they can last the pace.

Bruno Holfeld, director of the modernistically designed ice stadium, commented:

"As far as I am concerned the Czechs are the best players in the world. They are better than the Russians, but the Russians will win the Olympic title, and easily."

THEY WANE

"The Czechs have a great reputation for storming through their first games and then waning in the final, vital ones."

The Canadians are considered here as perhaps too young and inexperienced for international competition. In an exhibition contest with the Russian first team in Moscow last week, Father David Bauer's collegians from the University of British Columbia were trounced 8-1. They later lost 2-1 to the Soviet's second team.

Sweden has a chance for the silver medal. The United States is regarded as an unknown quantity.

Holfeld said of the U.S. team's chances:

"I take the United States to win the bronze medal. Most people disagree, but I feel the first three will be Russia, Czechoslovakia and the U.S."

Sets Record In Plate Short Price

TORONTO (CP) — A 65-Northern Dancer has been made the shortest-priced winner favorite for the Queen's Plate in the history of Canadian racing.

Five months before the event, George Duffus, veteran price-maker for the Jockey Club, announced Monday in his annual wintrbook rating that the colt which races under the turquoise-and-gold colors of Windfields farm is his choice to win the classic next June 20 at Toronto's Woodbine course.

Conn Smythe's Jammed Lively was made second choice at odds of 4-1. Grand Garcon, at 6-1, is ranked third. The two-year-old is owned by Frank Sherman of Hamilton.

Scotch Cup Attracts Six Nations

TORONTO (CP) — Six countries will compete at Calgary March 16 to 19 for the Scotch Cup world curling championship, held this year for the first time outside Scotland, it was announced here Monday.

The defending champion Canadian rink—which has won the title for the last five years—will be challenged by curlers from Switzerland, Norway, Scotland, Sweden and the United States.

Fox Quits

Group Takes Over 'Dogs'

WINDSOR (CP) — The third group to hold the franchise of the Windsor Bulldogs in the International Hockey League in the last week takes the club into a game against Des Moines Oak Leafs tonight.

Sam Fox, former club manager who was granted the franchise last Thursday—two days after original owner John Wisener of Port Huron withdrew financial support — relinquished control of the club Monday night.

A group comprising individuals who are principals in ownership of the Windsor Arena has taken over the team's franchise and the move has league backing, according to IHL commissioner Andy Mulligan of Toledo.

The new group entered the picture when Fox was unable to sign enough players to form a representative team following meetings with the players Sunday and Monday.

Centre Irwin Gross, a Bulldog veteran, has been named interim coach for tonight's game, replacing Joe Klukay, who resigned Sunday.

Score Four In Second Period

Juniors Rally, Defeat Napanee

Belleville Junior "B"s won their first road game of the season in Napanee last night—and they did it the hard way.

Napanee Red Wings jumped into a 3-0 lead in the first period before Taylor's Quinte boys roared back to snatch a 6-3 victory.

Belleville scored four goals in the second period to grab a one-goal margin and sewed up the decision with two more in the third heat.

The "B"s dominated play during the final forty minutes and on the night's play outshot the third-place Red Wings 48-27.

In the first period, Napanee took command early with Winston Dowdell scoring, from Stinson and M. Cruji, at 2-1. Late in the period, Jim Stinson took Mike Cruji's pass for a 2-0 score, at 18.50 and Dowdell made it 3-0, with Stinson and Cruji again helping. That was at 19.50.

Belleville started it's comeback near the midway point in the second period and the game. Bob Boyle broke the shutout, aided by Roy Maracle, at 9.33 and just 14 seconds later Jim Rutherford finished off a play with Boyle and Gerry Jones to make it 3-2.

Belleville kept the pressure on and Boyle triggered his second goal to tie the score at 10.15. Rutherford and Grant Hagerman earned assists on this scoring play.

The "B"s continued to drill the puck at Tom Mercer and scored the winning goal, their fourth in less than four minutes at 12.51. Jim Rutherford was the marksman once again, this time assisted by Boyle and Bob Ehlier.

The winners' big scoring line clicked for both goals in the third period as well. Rutherford made it 5-3, with assists for Boyle and Hagerman, at 8.23 and Grant Hagerman ended the scoring at 10.04. Boyle and Rutherford helped out on this one too.

Belleville goalie Bob Mooh blanked the Wings in fine style after the opening heat, backing his mates' good scoring output. Bob Boyle was in on all scoring plays, two goals and four assists to give him top point honors. Rutherford was right behind him with three goals and two assists while Grant Hagerman got a goal and two assists.

There were 12 penalties assessed, including fighting majors to Rick Gerow and Larry Stewart, at 14.14 of the second and to John Kinsley and Roy Maracle, at 17.39 of the same period. "B"s defenceman Paul Paquin drew another misconduct for being the third man in the first fight. The winners collected eight penalties in all, the losers getting four.

Belleville meets Kingston in a home-and-home series next, hey Friday and in Kingston next Monday.

BELLEVILLE: Mooh, Glen Hagerman, Maracle, Jones, Lash, J. Pringle, Rowland, Ehlier, Boyle, Rutherford, Grant, Hagerman, Woodcock, Sterling.

New Wings Defeat Grey Birds

DETROIT (CP)—A capacity crowd of 15,555 jammed Olympia Stadium here Monday night to watch an oldtimers' version hockey game between retired and active Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

The Moderns won, 6-4, in front of the fifth largest crowd in Olympia history, attracted by the re-uniting of the old production line of Ted Lindsay, Sid Abel and Gord Howe.

Howe defected to the Old Timers for the game and scored one of their goals. George Gee with two and Bill Jennings were the other scorers. The Old Timers were coached by former Red Wing manager Jack Adams, now president of the Central Professional Hockey League.

New Association Formed At Cobourg

Jack Carson Heads E. Ont. Baseball Body

COBOURG—A new organization designed to govern and assist baseball in Eastern Ontario came into being here last night.

It is officially known as the "Eastern Ontario Baseball Association."

The area coming under the aegis of the EOBA stretches from Ajax on the east northward to Bancroft and south to Kingston.

Unanimous choice of 23 representatives of eleven baseball centres as the league's first president was Jack Carson, of Belleville, former Ontario Baseball Association president.

JACK CARSON

Adding further administrative experience to the governing body is Annis Spero, Peterborough, OBA secretary, who was named secretary-treasurer of the new association.

Other executive members elected by ballot are: first vice-president, Arnold Wade, Newtonville; second vice-president, Bill Rawlinson, Peterborough, and third vice-president, Jim Gilman of Port Hope.

Additional executive members will be representatives of zones contained in the EOBA area.

Designed along the lines of the Western Ontario Baseball Association, the EOBA, while an OBA affiliate, will act as a governing entity under its own constitution. There will be no appeal of EOBA decisions by the OBA.

The EOBA will embrace every category of baseball from the "tyke" class to senior.

The new association will abide by OBA playing rules, but may make certain changes in its constitution. This will be drawn up by the executive and presented at a future meeting for approval.

Executive members anticipate no objection from the OBA regarding territorial right of the area.

The EOBA will send only its zone champion in each category into OBA championship competition. This will eliminate much of the travel expense problem.

The executive will establish the various zones, expected to be four in all. Proposed but subject to change, were the Bay of Quinte area which would include the northern part of Hastings, the Ajax, Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville area; the Port Hope, Cobourg, Peterborough area, and that of the Lindsay district.

Representatives of teams, leagues and districts present were urged to contact as many teams and associations in their areas with regard to joining the association.

It was pointed out that the operation of the EOBA will in no wise interfere with city, town and village league scheduled play.

The executive will set a date for the next meeting.

Represented were Belleville, Cobourg, Port Hope, Peterborough, Oshawa, Corbyville, Campbellford, Trenton, Welcome, Lakeshore and Newcastle. Other centres sent in approval of the organization of the new association.

Belleville, the South Hastings League and the Parkdale minor league were well represented.

BAUN HURTS HAND

Marmora Peewees Edge Madoc 2-1

Madoc took a 1-0 lead in the first period on a goal by Kerr, with Smith assisting, at the ten-minute mark.

That lead stood up until late in the third when Marmora's Rickey Nobes fired two quick goals to pull out the decision.

The game was cleanly played and a good crowd is expected when the two teams meet in Marmora.

Group Buys Cooke Interest

Leafs Now Toronto Owned

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto business men purchased Jack Kent Cooke's 82 per cent interest in Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League Monday night.

Robert Hunter and Sam Starr declined to say how much they paid for the franchise, but said it was considerably less than the original asking price "of more than $100,000."

Hunter and Starr are associated with other Toronto businessmen in the deal, including Sam Shopsowitz, president of Shopsy's Foods Limited, and C. Frank O'Neill, president of Premier Trust Company.

The remaining 18 per cent of the club is the property of 15 shareholders, including former president Donald Ross, who sold his majority interest to Cooke in 1951.

Cooke owns 25 per cent interest in Washington Redskins of the National Football League, but has no other baseball connections.

Harry G. Kimber, appointed president when Cooke moved to California, has been asked to remain on the board of directors. Frank Pollock will be retained as general manager.

Hunter will be president of the new club, to be known as Toronto Community Baseball Club, and Starr first vice-president.

Special Games Friday, Saturday

'Minor Hockey Week' Features

Special exhibition games have been arranged for five Belleville teams in conjunction with "Minor Hockey Week," according to Belleville Minor Hockey Association president Russ Soule.

Two games will be played this Friday evening, prior to the Kingston-Belleville Junior "B" fixture and three games are slated for Saturday, beginning at 11.30 a.m.

Friday night, Belleville Midgets will play host to Napanee in the opening game of the "specials," at six o'clock.

Belleville juveniles will take over the ice for a game between the Aces and Tigers at seven o'clock. Both teams are from the city loop.

On Saturday, regularly-scheduled Pee Wee and Bantam games will be played from 6.30 a.m. until 10.30.

The first of Saturday's three tilts against out-of-town competition is slated for 11.30 when Belleville squirts take on Trenton.

Belleville Peewees move onto the ice for a 1.00 p.m. clash with the Oshawa Peewees.

No regular Bantam division games are slated for Saturday but the schedule will resume next Saturday, February 1.

Meanwhile, the B.M.H.A. has gone all out to make this weekend a god one, hoping to enlist parents and other interested adults to come out and "take a look at the younger fry in action".

Tickets are being sold by the players and B.M.H.A. coaches, managers and officials all this week. The price is only 25c and one ticket will take you into any of the games on any of the above mentioned games. It will also entitle the holder of the ticket stud to a chance at the portable record player which has been donated for the "Minor Hockey Week" draw. "You must get your ticket into the box at the Arena, however". Soule says, "to have a chance at the record player, so please attend at least one game", says Soule.

An edict underestimate the youngsters hockey powers. The kids go all out from whistle to whistle and provide fast, exciting action.

For this weekend, at least, take, don't send your boy to the rink!

Lightfoots Defeat Cobourg

Trailing until late in the contest, Belleville Lightfoots pulled out a 71-63 victory over Cobourg in a rugged Bay of Quinte Basketball League game played in Cobourg last night.

The home club led until only the last minutes remained to be played. Lightfoots mustered a couple of points ahead and finally opened up the six-point spread in the final minute.

The officials ruled with an iron hand, dishing out 29 foul calls against Cobourg and 19 against Belleville. Lightfoots, for Don Smith who hit for 13 of 14 free throws in the second half, made the most of their chances. All in all they outscored Cobourg 25-11 from the free throw line.

Don Smith had his biggest night of the year for Lightfoots, hooping 29 points. Doug Rose was next in line with 17 while Jim Brown collected 11. Belleville lost Campbell and Houchin on fouls.

Lightfoots led the Cobourg scorers, with 16 points, while Gary Quinlan had 14, Dennis Masters 13 and Jim Lamb 12. The losers had three players foul out in the game.

Belleville Lightfoots (71) — D. Rose 17, D. Smith 29, G. Smith 6, T. Ewing, G. Reynolds 2, I. Campbell 7, T. Houchin 11.

Cobourg (63) — D. Clarke 13, B. Stewart 5, G. Quinlan 14, Mitchell 1, Fitzgibbon 16, Coghlan 11, G. Coghlen, Frost 2, Jeffery, Moorehouse.

A Tip Of The Hat To Boston

Hall Has Vezina 7-Goal Lead

MONTREAL (CP)—A message of thanks to the Boston Bruins from goalie Glenn Hall would be in order.

For the Bruins, by pumping 11 goals into Toronto nets last Saturday night, enabled Hall to take a seven-goal lead in his race with Charlie Hodge and Johnny Bower for the $1,000 Vezina Trophy.

Hall held a three-goal edge over Bower and seven-goal lead over Hodge going into last weekend's action. When the tumult and the shouting ended, Hall was ahead by both by a far more comfortable margin.

The Chicago netminder has allowed 80 goals in 38½ games, but since the Vezina is awarded to the regular goalie on the team which scored against he is responsible for only that total outer Chicago nets. The same is true for Bower, although standby Don Simmons was between the posts for Boston's 11-0 thrashing.

HAS ALLOWED 90

Hall's record is 90 goals against in 44 games, seven better than Montreal's Hodge and 11 ahead of Toronto's Bower. His lead is even greater than the statistics show, considering the Canadiens and Leafs have played two games fewer than Chicago.

Other statistics released by the National Hockey League show Stan Mikita of the Hawks increased his lead by one point in the individual scoring race last week and now is atop the point parade with 58 points, three more than teammate Bobby Hull.

Hull passed Montreal's Jean Beliveau with a three-point output last week, including his 29th and 30th goals—marking the fifth season he has passed the 30-goal mark.

TOP PLAYMAKERS

Mikita has 24 goals and 35 assists, Hull 30 and 28 for 58 points and Beliveau has 24 points on 18 goals and 36 assist, top in the playmaking department.

New York's Andy Bathgate moved into fourth place with 45 points while Kenny Wharram of Chicago rejoined in fifth at 44. Phil Goyette of New York is next at 41 and four players, Frank Mahovlich, Murray Oliver, Bill Hay and Gordie Howe, are tied for seventh at 39 points.

Chicago's Reggie Fleming didn't receive a penalty last week but remains the most penalized player with 110 minutes. Mikita and Montreal's Terry Harper are close behind with 103 minutes.

The Hawks are the most penalized team with 773, followed by Montreal at 647. The Rangers are the NHL good guys with 435 minutes.

Moira S. S. Matmen Win In Toronto

In the Ontario Novice AAU Wrestling Championships held on Saturday at Victoria Park Secondary School in Toronto both Moira Secondary School and West Hill Collegiate held the spotlight. West Hill placed more persons in the first four than any other club, while the Trojans from Moira walked off with three of the ten championships.

Don Leween, winner of the 96-lb. class, was undefeated as he won his three matches by falls.

Trojan John Beeching won four bouts by falls to bring home the 105-lb. class championship.

In the 138½-lb. class, Les King of Moira won two bouts and lost one, but was still able to capture the championship as he defeated the second player by an exciting 1-0 decision.

Lenny Fritz, competing in the 154-lb. class, wrestled seven bouts, winning five by falls. These wins enabled him to place fourth in the final standing.

Night Shift New Record In National

CINCINNATI (AP)—The National League's "night shift" will be working at an all-time record pace during the 1964 baseball season.

The 1964 schedule, released Monday, shows the 10 clubs in the league have scheduled 438 games under the lights as compared with the previous record of 421 set last year.

Actually, 423 night games were played last year because of makeup of postponed games.

TORONTO (CP)—Mention the National Hockey League Maple Leafs and you get a flood of question.

No one, not even coach Punch Imlach, seems able to explain last week's sad performance culminating in the 11-0 humiliation by Boston Bruins Saturday.

But everyone is agreed that the surprise reversal Sunday, a 2-0 shutout over Chicago Black Hawks, delayed a possible coup for player shakeup and certainly saved goalie Don Simmons.

Ironically, a mechanical malfunction in a plane destined to bring Simmons' replacement in for the Chicago game contributed a touch of fate in getting Simmons and the team a gentle reprieve.

"Simmons saved his job Sunday," Imlach said frankly in an interview Monday night. Simmons had been in the nets for three straight Toronto losses—63 against Boston a week ago, 5-4 against New York Rangers last Wednesday and 11-0 last Saturday.

After the 2-0 shutout against the Hawks, Imlach chimed: "Now there's no doubt about it. He (Simmons) plays against Montreal Canadiens here Wednesday."

WAS TO BE MILLAR

Al Millar, netminder with Denver Invaders of the Western Hockey League, was scheduled to replace Simmons Sunday when his plane was delayed and Simmons had to go into the nets. Imlach said Monday that, as a result of the Chicago comeback, he planned no lineup changes for the game against Montreal.

He hailed the 11-0 defeat on everybody. "We could have used all the great goalies of all time and still got beat. But you can put on the brakes and right for it.

It takes a great knowledge of hockey and the individual players. If they check and find the puck, poke check the puck. Because a lot of times the puck carrier will give it to you, then take it away and walk on by you.

King of the Hill

Ron Saylor took Belleville and districts' top shooters in the five game qualifying round two weeks in a row and extended his winning streak as reigning king to seven weeks. Once again Saylor stole the show with a 300 single and 698 total for 5 of 10. He also received $16. for retaining his title without a roll-off. The big point of the day was his 416 game making it his 3rd 400 game of the season. To sum up Saylor received $91. plus a carton of cigarettes. The new Pot of Gold starts at $35.

Ron's five game total of 1459 included 4 400 games; 368, 335, 418, 241. Leo Labelle was second with 1351 followed by Garnett 1316 and Jack Canning 1297.

300 games besides Saylor's were Labelle 300, Saylor 335, Bob Kiser 310, Ron Elliott 307, Jack Canning 300.

National Legion of Decency Views All Films Produced

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The most important movie reviewer in the U.S. is in town to meet new bosses of the film studios.

"I came out to show them that I don't have horns and to see that they don't, either," smiled Msgr. Thomas F. Little between studio visits.

For 16 years the clergyman has been executive secretary of the National Legion of Decency, which advises the 40,000,000 Roman Catholics of the U.S. on the moral acceptability of film fare.

"We generally see all the important films before they are released," Msgr. Little commented. "Since the legion is an extra-legal body, there is no power of compulsion. But very often companies will follow our suggestions in making certain deletions in order to get a more favorable rating."

A cheery, ruddy-faced New Yorker who was once a curate in an Italian parish, Msgr. Little has seen virtually every film of any importance for 17 years.

The legion procedure is this: A group of laymen and women and priests sees the submitted film and makes a recommendation. Msgr. Little and his aide, Rev. Patrick J. Sullivan, see the film and determine if their recommendation coincides. If not, the film is submitted to another audience of professional men, husbands and wives, churchmen and others, and a decision is reached.

LABEL FILM

The film then is labelled as family fare, adults only, permissible for adults with reservations, or condemned. Thirteen films, mostly foreign, were condemned last year.

"Eighty-five per cent of last year's films were considered acceptable by some segment of the audience, and that is not bad," said Msgr. Little. "But what we think is bad is movie advertising."

One of the legion's concerns, he added, is the current run of sex comedies.

"Many of these films flirt around with accepted immorality and illicit sex, only to have some accident happen so the act is not carried out," he said. "Under the Yum - Yum Tree was one of those; it was saved only by a good speech that indicated that the situation had been immoral.

"Our problem is how the subject is treated. Films like Love with a Proper Stranger, Tom Jones and The Unsinkable Molly have treated touchy subjects in an artistic manner. But some supposedly adult films are merely adulterous."

HAS 21 STITCHES

LILIES OF THE FIELD

with Sidney Poitier, Lilia Skala,

Lisa Mann. United Artists

Tale of Warmth, Sensitivity and Humor, Unusual Story Told With Imagination

A thoroughly charming tale of unique and sensitive human relations and comic turns is offered in Lilies of the Field. Produced and directed by Ralph Nelson, he has deftly characterized the film as a love story without sex, a novel of emotional strength without violence, an instance of personal relationship without preachment.

The story is simple in structure yet subtle in implication. It deals with a kind-hearted Negro ex-GI who is thrown by chance into contact with five immigrant German nuns. The events that follow are warm and sentimental and create a lasting impression on a little Arizona community.

Sidney Poitier plays the ex-GI touring the American Southwest in his station wagon. He stops off at a barren farm for water and finds himself drafted into work by five strange women who, it develops, are refugee nuns from East Germany. To them he seems to have been sent by God.

Presently the Mother Superior, Lilia Skala, convinces Poitier against his better judgment to stay on. The interplay of personalities between Poitier and the Mother Superior forms the basic fabric of the story which is delightful in addition to shun formulas and cliches.

The film gains its full stride when Poitier is talked into building a chapel. It's a tremendous job, and even more tremendous is the material shortage to do the job. How the chapel is finally built becomes a delightful, touching part of the story.

Poitier turns in a first-rate performance, enriching his role with style and insight. Lilia Skala is convincing as the strong-willed Mother Superior who tangles benevolently with him.

Complete shows for the year's happiest hit 7:00 and 9:00 p.m.

Gisele MacKenzie Is Latest Of Sid Caesar's TV Wives

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Sid Caesar, over a long and eminent career, has had a wide assortment of television wives. While the sorority is comparatively small, it is a truly elite group of performers.

There have been of course, Imogene Coca, Nanette Fabray, Janet Blair, Shirl Conway —and, currently, Canadian-born Gisele MacKenzie, and if her predecessors' experiences are any guide, Miss MacKenzie is due for greater glory.

Imogene and Shirl are currently the stars of their own television series. Nanette had a television comedy series in which she starred, and went on to Broadway in star in an Irving Berlin musical. Janet Blair is in constant demand as a guest star in musicals and in television variety shows.

Gisele, however, may well be Caesar's wife with the most diverse talents. She is a singer, pianist, violinist, can handle comedy and straight dramatic roles. She dances well enough to get by. In recent seasons she has been active in summer theatres and her rich contralto has been heard in the leading roles of The King and I, Annie Get Your Gun, Gypsy, Wonderful Town, and Mame.

STILL WITH SID

This season she has been using her wide talents in the bi-weekly As Caesar Sees It, a series of short variety programs on ABC which have not received the public attention hoped for.

Comedy, Gisele said, is "very hard for a woman."

"Jack Benny always says that to be really funny a woman has to look attractive. And the more feminine, the more beautifully gowned she is, the funnier she can be."

The Caesar series has been taped in bunches of four in New York this season. Gisele's home is in Encino, a Los Angeles suburb. During the fall and early winter she had done a lot of transcontinental traveling, spending one month in New York and the rest at home. Her husband-manager, Bob Shuttleworth, and their two children, 2½ and 1½, have commuted with her.

The brunette musician is one of Canada's important contributions to U.S. show business. She was born 37 years ago in Winnipeg, daughter of a physician and his pianist wife.

Gisele started piano lessons at 3 and violin at 7, and won a scholarship to Toronto's Conservatory of Music. In 1946 Shuttleworth, then a band leader, hired her as his vocalist-pianist-violinist. They were married 12 years later.

She was a successful radio star in Canada when she went to Hollywood in 1950. United States audiences became aware of her in TV's Hit Parade, in which she sang and did comedy sketches.

Now that the Caesar tapings for the season are finished, Gisele can turn her attention to other facets of her career.

"I'd love a motion picture role or something that would keep me home for awhile," she admitted.

Arthur Godfrey Celebrates 30 Years in Broadcasting

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—A larger-than-life group of men and women turned up on Monday night's CBS I've Got a Secret to help guest Arthur Godfrey celebrate his 30th year in broadcasting.

They were the Lone Ranger, the Green Hornet, Bojon Blackie, the Shadow, Siella Dallay, Our Gal Sunday, Helen Trend and John's other wife.

These actors, who starred in the most popular adventure yarns and soap operas, date back to radio's golden day.

The gay salute to Godfrey provided an agreeable change from the panel show's format. The venerable half-hour show seems to have fallen into a dull rut lately.

CBS expects to have its 1964-65 schedule pretty well locked up by the end of this month, unusually early. Program vice-president Michael Dann said there will be at least 15 new programs in the lineup. These will include six hour-long dramatic shows, each with a continuing character.

Dann is convinced the anthology without continuing characters is a television format that cannot survive.

"There just is not enough good writing available to build up a script backlog," he said. "And it must be remembered that a filmed anthology costs almost as much to produce as a feature movie."

CBS' new dramatic series will include one starring Jackie Cooper as a county agricultural agent; a Carson Kanin effort about a Broadway press agent; an action-adventure show with Robert Horton, and another built around a reporter. Richard Egan will be an adventurer of the James Bond stripe in another series, and Dick Crenna, star of The Real McCoys will be a state legislator in The Lawmaker.

Accepts Cut In Libel Judgment

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Georgia football coach Wally Butts filed consent Monday in U.S. District Court to accept a $2,500,000 cut in his libel judgment against the Saturday Evening Post.

In an order on Jan. 14, Federal Judge Lewis R. Morgan ruled that a new trial would be granted Curtis Publishing Company unless Butts agreed within 20 days to take $460,000 damages instead of $3,060,000.

Morgan held that the post libelled Butts in charging that he and coach Paul Bryant of Alabama fixed the 1962 Georgia-Alabama football game. Alabama won 35-0.

However, Morgan, who presided at the trial, said the jury of award for punitive damages was grossly excessive. The jury gave Butts $3,000,000 punitive damages and $60,000 general damages. He had sued for $5,000,000 in each category.

Curtis has not yet said appeal regardless of Butts' acceptance of the reduced judgment.

Recreate 'Cement Gloves'

THE LITTLE WOMAN

MILWAUKEE (AP)—It didn't work, the Milwaukee Journal said after recreating the method of encasing Jack Dempsey's hands in plaster of paris as his manager says was done for the heavyweight title fight with Jes Willard more than 40 years ago.

Journal boxing writer Evans Kirkby says standins for all the main figures were assembled to do all the things Jack Kearns said in a magazine article were done before the fight in which Dempsey belted out Willard in three rounds on July 4, 1919 in Toledo.

"Using the same materials in the same way that Kearns described, showed that a plaster fist could not be made that way," Kirkby wrote. "Or maybe we weren't good plasterers."

Standing in for Kearns in the experiment was Al Fain, a veteran boxing figure who has taped boxers' hands for more than half a century. Eddie Mertie, a boxing manager and gymnasium operator, took the part of Walter Moynahan, Willard's chief second. Frank Linnemanstons, a Golden Gloves heavyweight, was assigned Dempsey's part.

All was done as prescribed, said Kirkby.

"What did we get when the mess had dried?

"We got a thin layer of soft cement which cracked at a slight touch and fell from the bandages at a slight brushing. Little if any of the plaster of paris would have been on the bandages by the time Dempsey travelled from his dressing room to the ring, where the gloves were put on. If any had remained, it would have turned to powder at the first light blow.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 22

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Being too sympathetic could defeat basic purpose. Be particularly careful where financial matters are concerned. Aspects favorable for career prospects. Move ahead with confidence.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Unusual disagreements indicated. Be sure before you take action. You will gain if you are daring. Be determined, but not stubborn. Creative pursuits favored.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Get ideas across. Make sure your messages are received and clearly understood. Get letters written — details out of way early. Plan for future. Initiate projects. Highlight originality.

Cancer (June 22 to July 23): "Public" reaction to proposals will be favorable. Strength on your side. Should financial question arise, be calm, logical. Stress maturity, understanding.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Your drive, energy may run into some obstacles. Don't try to surmount them through extravagant actions. Merely wait and see. Don't force issues. Exhibit sense of humor.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Surprises due. Especially in connection with family, chances for greater domestic harmony. Be ready to co-operate. Show that you will meet problems more than half way.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Time to add to knowledge through research. Investigate various possibilities. Gain through the discovering of "secrets." Wager on your own abilities. You'll win!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Friends can offer sound advice. Heed their suggestions. Your own judgment could be "off base." Place trust in loyal associates. Contact with public indicated.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Avoid self-deception. View persons, situations as they actually exist. Put ideas into action. Hard work accomplishes more than words. Transform aspirations into realities.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Your personal magnetism is sting high. Good Moon aspect corresponds to self-expression on highest level. You will attract members of opposite sex. Your judgment is keen.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Be thorough. Minor matters could turn into major ones. Check details. Get routine work out of way. Later, concentrate on project as a whole. Plan day for research, study.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Read Gemini message. Realize others want to hear from you. One who makes friendly gesture may have ulterior motive. Remain alert — and watch your pocketbook.

If today is your birthday . . . you are independent, were on your own early in life, are capable of tearing down the old in order to rebuild for the future.

General Tendencies: Money announcements made. Fine friends are miffed at each other because of budget considerations.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED R. WILSON

THE THRIFTY ONE

One afternoon last September we watched fascinated while a red-breasted nuthatch went backwards and forwards for half an hour getting something (we knew not what) from a small maple tree and taking it just a few inches away — but out of our sight. This performance was repeated at about the same hour for several days. What was the bird carrying?

The problem of hiding away food is known to be a nuthatch's habit, and so we guessed this must be some form of food which it is possible for a bird to get from the ends of twigs. Was it ants, caterpillars, insect eggs, or some luscious little buds or seeds? All these are on a nuthatch's diet sheet. It could hardly have been beetles, moths wasps, grubs, acorns, beechnuts or chestnuts, all of which a nuthatch also likes. We never found out, and your guess is as good as ours.

WELL-NAMED

These ever-busy birds are noted for wedging nuts into cracks — in fact this is how they came by their name. They can be attracted to feeding stations by hanging suet on trees. They dearly like suet, and sometimes carry it away, by small "beadfuls" to hide in a bark crevice. They have been known to do the same with crusts of bread. One blustery winter day some years ago a nuthatch was seen to go and dig out of a crack a crust of bread it had stowed away there several weeks before.

We have two species in Canada. The white-breasted is found throughout settled Canada, the red-breasted, a tiny bird, is of more northerly range and in the year round residents. They deserve protection because of their beneficial habits. They eat a lot with undesirable insects better than our modern insecticide sprays.

GOOD CLIMBERS

Adepts at climbing, nuthatches are never seen often upside-down on a trunk than rightside up. Their favorite position is head first, and in this way, and at any age to see insects and insect eggs that are hidden from woodpeckers and brown creepers, which travel rightside up. Properly equipped with strong feet and claws, a nuthatch needs no tail for support as do woodpeckers and creepers.

Nuthatches are much more frequently heard than seen. In summer, after the young are out, the whole family travels around a district together, loudly calling out to one another. In winter their high and trumpet-like tools can be heard from afar. But they are so demurely dressed in cool grey, white, and black that they are never noticeable.

Canadian Freed

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Canadian lay missionary has written his family that he is free again after his arrest in Turkey for spreading Christian teachings.

Herman J. Reitman, 34, says he was never brought to trial on the charge of spreading propaganda.

He was given a passport and released the day of his scheduled court appearance.

Reitman, whose family lives in Richmond just south of Vancouver, was on his way to Iran.

He wrote that he had been distributing literature door to door and two friends had been move was a main recommendation of the Glassco royal commission on government organization.

Until the legislation is passed by Parliament, Mr. McIlraith will be vice-chairman of the treasury board and act as chairman on behalf of Finance Minister Gordon.

Another key cabinet shift announced Monday contains a new president of the privy council—to secretary of state. The secretary of state, an economist, will continue to be responsible for the Economic Council of Canada.

The secretary of state also will have a series of what Mr. Pearson called "cultural" responsibilities, including the Centennial Commission, bilingualism in the public service, the Canada Council, the proposed Queen's publisher and the National Gallery.

TAKES CITIZENSHIP

Rene Tremblay, now minister without portfolio, will become citizenship and immigration minister. The 41-year-old MP for Montreal-Maisonneuve-Rosemont actually been tabbed—when Mr. Pearson formed his first cabinet in April—to become minister of eastern agriculture.

The original plan to divide the agriculture ministry into two—one western and one eastern minister—now has been altered to merge the agriculture and forestry departments.

Agriculture Minister Harry Hays, 56, will continue in that post, with added responsibility for a proposed new agency to plan and supervise railway plans for abandonment of branch line services.

The division described the result of the planned merger of the agriculture and forestry departments as a "combined department" with two ministers. Mr. Hays would be the senior minister.

Once the legislation becomes law, Forestry Minister Maurice Sauvé will become minister of rural development and forestry with responsibility for such projects as the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Administration — ARDA — and for farm matters relating specifically to Eastern Canada, such as administration of eastern feed grains.

Mr. Pearson, announcing the changes at a press conference in Ottawa, said Conservative party committee room, said he had given no thought as to who will be his minister in the Commons, succeeding Justice Minister Cheverier.

Traditionally, that seating position goes to an English-speaking prime minister's chief lieutenant in Quebec, and one reporter asked whether it will be Mr. Favreau, the justice minister-designate.

"I haven't given any thought to the seating arrangement in the House at all," the prime minister replied.

The reorganization of government functions spells the end of the separate existence of the privy council within the cabinet —a largely honorary post whose holder has often been given major special assignments. Mr. Pearson said the presidency of the privy council will be joined with the position of prime minister, "as has been done in the past."

State Secretary Pickersgill, the cabinets' Newfoundland representative, will continue to be responsible for the Atlantic Development Board after his shift to transport minister.

Responsibility for patents, copyright and trade marks legislation will be shifted to the justice department under Mr. Favreau from the secretary of state's department.

The prime minister will take on responsibility for relations with provincial governments, previously handled by Mr. Lamontagne, and announced plans for holding a small cabinet within his privy council office to handle general liaison arrangements with the provinces.

He also told the press conference there will be greater emphasis on the cabinet committees to handle the cabinet's internal work. There would be nine standing committees of the cabinet, and Mr. Pearson said he hoped this will result in speedier handling of business at full meetings of cabinet.

MPS' LABOR CABINET

Replying to a question at the session, Mr. Pearson said he thinks the present government organization should be in a position to insist—more ministers, but with "clearly executive committees" within the cabinet.

"I think that is the direction in which we should move."

Mr. Pearson said there will be "certain changes" among the 16 parliamentary secretaries to cabinet ministers, but he announced only one appointment. Ray Perrault, MP for Montreal Dollard and chairman of the Liberal caucus, will become parliamentary secretary to the prime minister.

Mr. Pearson declined to say whether one or other of his two present parliamentary secretaries will be dropped. They are Alexis Caron, 64, MP for Bell, and Jack Davis, 47, member for Coast-Capilano.

QUESTION: We would like to go to Miami Beach for two or three weeks in March, but there is a chance a reasonably priced room down there in one of the smaller hotels. We are an old retired couple, living on limited income and are not interested in undue luxury and entertainment, but we do enjoy the great outdoors. I have written to a few of the smaller hotels and the lowest quote was $10 a day each. We could not afford that. — Mrs. J. L., Belleville.

ANSWERS: Twenty dollars per couple per day would be about par most hotels in March, but there is a cheaper accommodation to be found. How about an efficiency apartment? Most have cooked meals will cut down the expense. Write to Miami Beach Chamber of Commerce for a list of moderately priced accommodations. If you wait until April the rates go down considerably.

QUESTION: My husband and I are planning a two weeks' vacation in Florida this month. Could you please give me the average temperatures for the month in Daytona Beach?

ANSWER: From December to February the maximum ranges from 69 to 74 with an average of 50 degrees.

QUESTION: Two school chums and I plan to motor to Florida for two weeks. We want to make our stay as inexpensive as possible and would like your advice as to how much we can expect to spend on a room or cottage — even the Y.M.C.A., in Miami Beach. We would consider Fort Pierceburg or any other spot with bathing weather. — C. Mc., Bath.

ANSWER: Accommodation in Miami Beach is usually at a premium during the cold months but you can still line up something if you act right away by writing the Chamber of Commerce there for a hotel and motel list. You might also write the Metro Miami Beach of Commerce. While the resort type hotel will be booked, there's a number of hotels in Miami where a couple might stay for $40.00 a night and slightly more for a third person. The efficiency motel would likely be best. For the latter, it might run you about $15 a day, but you could save a little by doing your own cooking.

In search for a warm climate country in which to winter, we will now find Mexico more economically attractive.

Elsewhere, you would have to show financial responsibility to the tune of $400 a month from pensions and securities. Now the monthly income requirement is reduced to $250, reflecting the lower cost of living there.

Under Mexican law, nationals are prohibited from taking employment or operating a business. But regulations have been relaxed to allow offers to invest in a business.

Popular with retired Canadians is Guadalajara, Mexico's second city, where nearly 3,000 now make their home.

Bill

of the session."

The bill introduced by Mr. Stewer limits the week to five days for girls and youths to 54 hours — permitting six hours of overtime a week in the case of men.

It also provides that employers of those in the category allow a half-hour lunch period. Earliest starting time would be 8 a.m., and the latest quitting time midnight.

The bill, as amendment to the Hours of Work and Vacations With Pay Act, was given first reading along with three others submitted by the labor minister.

An amendment to the same act, submitted by R. V. Gisborne, NDP member for Wentworth East, called for two weeks of vacation with pay after one year and three weeks after five years.

NOT ORGANIZED

It was given an introductory reading. Mr. Gisborn said the amendment was necessary because workers in the province were not organized.

Other bills introduced by Mr. Stewer were:

1. A bill updating the Apprenticeship Act and calling for all construction relating to government projects to employ an "appropriate complement of apprentices." Failure to comply with the act could mean a fine of up to $1,000. The bill also allow apprentices to take part in strikes without fearing for their jobs.

2. A bill to establish the Industrial Safety Act, 1963, to replace the old Factory, Shop and Office Building Act. It sets out regulations respecting fire, sanitation, work clothing, atmospheric conditions and control of explosives and inflammable materials. It provides that children under 15 years of age cannot work in factories.

A bill amending the Industrial Standards Act which, among other things, creates machinery through county or division courts for employees to collect unpaid wages.

Artist Should Reproduce Exactly What He Sees

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The grand old man of our family passed away several months ago at the age of 82. Uncle Cy left 64 descendants and he was loved by each and every one of us.

The family wants to have an oil portrait of Uncle Cy painted by a fine artist who works from photographs. We plan to present this portrait to Uncle Cy's widow on her 80th birthday. Please help us settle a question which has produced some strong differences of opinion.

Uncle Cy had a prominent scar on the side of his face — the result of a wound received in World War I. He also had a blood blister on his lip. Some of the relatives want the artist to leave off the scar and the blood blister. They feel it would be indelicate to have these abnormalities reproduced.

The artist does not agree. May we have your opinion? It will be the deciding one. — GO BETWEEN.

DEAR GO — A portrait should be a faithful interpretation of what the artist sees. This means scar, blood blister — the whole bit.

Abraham Lincoln was once faced with a similar decision. When Lincoln sat for his official portrait his wife did not want the artist to show the wart on Lincoln's face. Lincoln insisted that the artist paint him as he saw him — and he did — wart and all.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a girl 14 who has ten problems — my fingernails. I have bitten them ever since I can remember. No amount of shaming can get me to stop. Yet I'm so self-conscious about my nails that I keep my fingers turned in so nobody can see them. I wear gloves whenever I can.

Before an exam my fingers are actually sore because I bite my nails down so close. I envy my girl friends who have lovely nails and I'd give anything if I could let mine grow.

I've heard of some bitter-tasting stuff that can be bought in a drug store. Is it applied like polish and is supposed to stop nail-biting. Does it work? What about artificial nails? They are expensive but it would be worth a month's allowance if I could break the habit. Please give me some advice.—TEN TROUBLES.

DEAR TROUBLES — Nail-biting is a symptom of nervousness. You have cited the evidence by describing what happens to your nails before an exam.

The bitter-tasting stuff you buy at the drug-store, or the artificial nails may be helpful temporarily, but if you want to kick the habit you'll have to go to work on whatever it is that makes you nervous.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Maybe you can help. Our 21-year-old daughter is planning to be married next summer. Loretta is our only child and we want so much for her to be happy.

The problem is this: Loretta's fiance is of a different faith. Her father and I are upset about this, but we have accepted it. We are not insisting that he change for her, but I can't say the same about his parents. They are forever hammering at Loretta — trying to get her to change for him.

Loretta has started to go to church with them but he refuses to come to church with us. She loves him so much we think she will finally accept his faith to please him. This means our grandchildren will be brought up in their religion. This breaks our hearts.

What advice do you have for her, Ann?—UPSET PARENTS.

DEAR UPSET PARENTS — I have no advice for her since she didn't ask. But I do have some advice for you, since you wrote. Stay out of it. When I am asked for an opinion on this subject I always advise people to marry within their own faith. Marriage has enough problems without complicating it with this one.

Some mixed marriages have been known to work out well — but they are the exceptions. Of course those who try it think they are going th beat the odds — but they rarely do.

ELECTRONIC BOOM IN JAPAN — These girls, working in huge windowless, dustproof, air conditioned electronics plant on the outskirts of Tokyo, typify the modern aspect of Japan's post-war industry. Western observers see another side, however, involving thousands of small family enterprises still using outdated production methods and almost-feudal employment practices. (CP Photo)

Industry, Honorable Tradition -- Two Sides of Modern Japan

With all its emphasis on modern industrial methods, Japan never quite forgets its duty to tradition. In this story a Canadian Press reporter describes this blend of old and new as it appears to Western eyes.

By DAVE STOCKAND

TOKYO (CP)—In one corner of the vastness of a Japanese steel mill a visitor comes upon, unexpectedly upon a solitary flower standing in a simple vase.

He passes by, wondering who put it there. Will there be a fresh cutting tomorrow?

In an industrial giant of 95,000,000 people, in an economy with the greatest forward thrust of any in the world, the word is never far away.

To the younger Japanese, it can be an irritant and a frustration. To the foreigner, coming to compare, it clouds all encounters like a mountain mist.

Nowhere is this so evident as in seeking an assessment of Japanese living standards and working conditions.

Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda's Liberal - Democratic government — an administration with elements as conservative as the kimono despite its name — is committed to doubling the national income in real terms during the current decade.

But what is real?

JOBS ARE SECURE

Japanese in government say the per capita income—just over $400 compared to Canada's $1,600—is misleading considering the relatively high purchasing power of the yen; that living standards are substantially higher than would be construed from simple comparisons with other industrialized countries.

Industry points to fringe benefits—how it cares for the people's cenying it has any appreciable advantage is production costs over its international competitors or that the worker is not getting his fair share of the benefits of a booming economy.

Certainly in the great cities, in the complex of heavy industry and in the advancing frontiers of electronics and precision instrumentation, the fringe benefits—and in this the Japanese include job security — are many.

A man is generally hired for life unless he's an irresponsible dunderhead. There are company clinics and hospitals for the worker and his family; cafeterias with subsidized cultivate prices; subsidized housing for families and dormitory accommodation for single workers. Even gymnasiums, for the energetic.

FAMILY MATTER

In ratling off all the benefits offered by his company, a steel unit department supervisor says:

"This does not come to the employees in cash but it is customary in Japan. The company has to think about its employees' families, not just the employees themselves."

Yet in the view of foreign observers there is another, established—side to the coin, the dual economy of Japan.

Hidden in the shadow of the modern industrial firms are, they say, the thousands of hole-in-the-corner small family enterprises that have changed little in employment practices or methods of production in the last century.

In this assessment, a major factor in keeping Japanese production costs down is the subcontracting the downtrodden companies do with the cottage firms. Here there is no job security. Wages are extremely low, employment generally insecure and conditions, by some descriptions, almost feudal.

WORKS HARD

At its best, Japanese business is highly paternalistic. At its best, the Japanese employee, who work a six-day week and works hard, is almost overly loyal. Advocates of change describe this as a combination that cripples labor mobility and hinders development of realistic labor-management relations.

The younger Westward-looking Japanese, with the lessons and legacies of their history in mind, are concerned not with rice alone but with safeguarding the political and economic reforms of the post-war years.

Democracy in Japan is not traditional.

There are Japanese who would like to see at least a partial return to the pre-war system of society and, to a lesser degree, diehards who would probably prefer outright repeal of the 20th century.

This accounts for a certain wariness among Japanese who have grown to adulthood since the end of the Second World War; a suspicion of anything smacking of "guidance" from above.

"If textbooks were offered free to all students in Japan we would be suspicious, not grateful," said one of them who recalls in the death-rattle days of Japanese militarism being trained at school in the art of repelling invaders with bamboo spears.

IMPORTANT MARKET

Canada has a stake in the Japanese story, as a member of the Western alliance looking to her third biggest export market after the United States and the United Kingdom and as a Pacific neighbor only 10 jet hours away from Tokyo.

And over all, with all reservations considered, there is much that is heartening in Japan.

If the individual seems slighted at times, at least the gleaming plant cafeteria is not a company store in a depression coal-mining town. The cottage industries with all their abuses are on the decline despite the important role they still play.

Anyone who works for a living in Japan is caught in the same bind of prices rising faster than wages. But planners hope inflationary pressures will be cured through efforts to nudge present belt - and - leather progress into a pattern of more stable economic growth.

In the white-collar world, the young executive is hemmed in by a system in which age rates much higher than ability. Even here, the old order is slowly changing. In the meantime he can console himself with his liberal expense account, twice - yearly bonuses and his status-symbol scotch whisky.

RICH IN LUXURIES

Bank accounts are healthy, mainly through thrift rather than affluence, and Japanese are betting for the day when currency restrictions are relaxed and they are free to travel overseas for pleasure. Meanwhile, they tour madly around Japan looking at one another.

Japanese householders will never have living spaces in the North American tradition — too many people for too little urban land—and the taken-for-granted family car is a long way off.

But in television sets, in household appliances generally, is fact in most of the grills and comforts of modern living, the people here are matching the best in the West.

They have a hearty appetite for entertainment and with it the price of admission, whether their tastes run from stylized Kabuki drama to striptease extravaganzas.

For what it's worth, the most popular cigarettes have the brand name of Peace. Hope, another brand, sells almost as well.

Some Babies Undernourished In the Womb

QUEBEC (CP)—Research at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal has led to a distinction between premature babies and those who are undernourished in the womb.

The study has shown that premature babies—born before the normal period of pregnancy is completed—began to catch up with physical standards before too long.

About half the babies previously labelled premature were actually born after a full-term pregnancy. But they suffered from lack of nourishment as a result of some defect in the placenta of the mother.

As a result, they were beaten before they started.

"These babies seem to set even in the womb that they aren't getting a fair deal," Dr. Thomas Primrose, one of the researchers, told reporters at the annual reunion of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons.

HEART ENLARGES

In an obvious effort to survive, the heart of the unborn child enlarges itself and begins pumping more blood.

"This is fantastic," Dr. Primrose said. It was one of the earliest recorded attempts of a human being to meet his environment.

But despite valiant efforts, many of these babies died in the womb or shortly after birth. They were often born with physical and mental defects, or developed them.

Work by Dr. F. J. Tweedie, Fredericton born member of the hospital's department of obstetrics and gynaecology, had shown that the birth of such babies could be predicted.

A Manufacturers Life participating policy is protection for your family. But protection is only part of the story. Your policy is an investment too, with guaranteed, interest-earning cash values. And it pays yearly dividends.

The size of the dividend your policy earns in large part depends upon the success Manufacturers Life enjoys in its own investments. In this field, Manufacturers Life has an outstanding record. And 1963 was no exception. In fact, $13,706,965 will be paid as dividends to policyowners in 1964—including an increased payment for Johnny's Dad. (See 77th Annual Report, page 13. Army's Revolt 'Great Disgrace' Asserts Nyerere

Tanganyika President Speaks to End Rumors

By GRAHAM LOVELL

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (Reuters) — Nine ousted British officers of Tanganyika's 2nd army battalion left for Kenya today after handing over command to their former African subordinates.

British Army sources said it now is certain the 2nd battalion took part in an army revolt here earlier Monday but there was no indication that violence was used against the British officers.

President Julius Nyerere in a radio broadcast Tuesday said the revolt "was a day of great disgrace to our nation."

"I thank all the people who helped to stop this disgrace from getting out of hand," Nyerere added in his first public appearance since the mutiny.

He said his aim was to dispel anxiety. He accused rumormongers of trying to create a pretext for the rest of your natural life? Do you understand that his government was behind the coup.

No official said how many of his location or condition had arrested other countries since the revolt.

The mutinous troops, of the 1st battalion, Tanganyikan Rifles, stationed in Dar es Salaam, demanded the removal of their British officers and higher pay.

CASUALTIES LOW

Reports put casualties figures at 15 dead and more than 100 wounded.

In his three-minute talk Nyerere said he was happy that most people remained calm considering the crisis, but there were some who got into a panic, spread dangerous rumors and did things which might have brought more harm to the country.

Others thought the crisis was an opportunity to loot and break into houses.

"It is possible they believed there was no government," he said. But they soon learned their lesson."

Nyerere's address ended speculation he might have been harmed or deposed in the mutiny.

LONDON (AP)—The Tanganyika high commissioner, visiting here today said the country had returned to normal. It said "stories that the Tanganyika Army has taken over the government are unfounded."

The principal object of the mutiny appeared to be the dismissal of British officers and 16 British non-coms on loan to Tanganyika to train and lead the army.

However, some Britons wondered whether Communist influence lurked behind the outbreak in the former protectorate.

Only 10 days ago African nationalist leaders with Communist training, overthrew the government of Zanzibar, another British possession a few miles off the Tanganyikan coast.

Sales Tax Not Burden Says Brief

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — For the first time since hearings began last April, the royal commission on taxation Tuesday heard a company official say that the recently-imposed sales tax on production machinery is not much of a burden in the cost of producing goods.

This statement, said Commission Chairman Kenneth Carter, was "most refreshing." There had been a steady stream of complaints concerning the added costs involved in the tax.

George F. Plummer of Dunlop Canada Limited, who appeared with a delegation representing the Rubber Association of Canada, said it wouldn't be realistic to claim that the sales tax on production machinery made a big difference to the cost of goods. "It's such a very small part of over-all costs."

K. E. Kennedy of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company agreed that the sales tax by itself might not be a big item, but it was one more expense in the cost of production.

What the association sought was a reduction in direct taxation and more emphasis placed on sales tax — including a broader base with services being taxed with goods.

USES DIRECT TAXES

The association's brief said that apart from the United States, Canada derives a greater percentage of its revenue from direct taxes than other western nations.

"In our opinion it is highly significant that France and other countries of Western Europe whose dynamic economic growth has brought them unprecedented prosperity rely heavily on indirect taxation whereas Canada, the United States and the United Kingdom, whose economic growth has lagged behind, collect the larger part of their revenues through direct taxes."

Some faults with direct taxes: they inflate the selling price of all goods, including those exported; they subsidize unprofitable producers at the expense of profitable producers; they have a depressing effect on the ability to save and incentive to invest.

SHOE MEN DISSENT

Any suggestion that the sales tax on production machinery was not a burden, was sharply turned back by the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada, which appeared before the commission after the rubber delegation.

Accused Never To Be Freed

BARRIE (CP) — A judge promised Tuesday he would do his utmost to see that John Frederick McDonald, 46, convicted of non-capital murder in the slaying of 10-year-old Thomasina Baker, would never again walk as a free man.

Sentencing McDonald, of Newmarket, Ont., to life imprisonment after he pleaded guilty to the reduced charge of non-capital murder, Mr. Justice Charles D. Stewart said:

"Your distorted and twisted mentality renders you such that in my view no child who came near you would ever be safe. I propose to recommend to the parole board that you be released and I shall consult the attorney-general."

McDonald, charged with capital murder after Thomasina's remains were found in a shallow grave about 30 miles from her father's nearby Beeton area farm from which she disappeared 15 months earlier, stood quietly as Mr. Justice Stewart addressed him.

"I must understand that I will recommend that you never be released, that I shall recommend that you remain a prisoner for the rest of your natural life? Do you understand that?" the judge asked him.

McDonald when he asked him if he wanted to plead guilty to the reduced charge.

DIRECTS VERDICT

"Yes," McDonald replied. Mr. Justice Stewart then directed the 12-man Ontario Supreme Court jury to find McDonald guilty of non-capital murder. The jury retired for about two minutes and then returned to confirm the verdict.

Defence counsel William D. Mackie of Brampton did not call witnesses after the jury left after the Crown concluded its case. He announced that he and Crown Attorney Lloyd Acton were on the record chargeagreement on the reduced charge.

Mr. Justice Stewart said the insurance policy he had served consecutively with a 10-year prison term McDonald is currently serving after wounding a Hamilton policeman.

Earlier, Inspector James Harris of the Provincial police testified that on Oct. 13 McDonald had led him to the shallow grave in which Thomasina was buried, about 20 miles from the farm from which she disappeared April 15.

QUOTES STATEMENT

He said McDonald had told him before they set out from Brampton Crown Attorney's office, to take you to that little girl's body."

Insp. Harris said McDonald had dragged him and another policeman through a swamp.

"It was like a large tree," the accused said. "That is where I put her," Insp. Harris said McDonald told him, showing pieces of a blue bathing suit she had been wearing when last seen were found in the grave.

He said that on Nov. 15 he told McDonald he had been charged with capital murder and McDonald replied: "You know, inspector, I've never killed any other little girls."

U.S. Pays Hundred Million More To B.C. for Columbia's Power

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbia will receive possibly $100,000,000 more in benefits under revisions, signed today in Washington, to the 1961 Columbia River treaty with the United States. Full benefits could total at least $501,000,000 by 1973.

The United States is paying British Columbia, $344,400,000 in Canadian funds—including $274,- 800,000 in a lump - sum advance next Oct. 1—for a big block of power plus flood control protection on its side of the Columbia River basin, it was shown in documents signed today in Washington. The power sale is for 30 years.

These documents supplement the 60 - year Columbia treaty signed in Washington in January, 1961, and which was ratified speedily by the U.S. although never by Canada.

The federal government has set Oct. 1 as the date for completing parliamentary ratification of both the treaty and the supplements contained in a protocol signed by Prime Minister Pearson, President Johnson and others.

Ratification will follow parliamentary examination but the protocol indicates extensive efforts have been made to meet criticisms of the treaty, advanced by Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission, New Democratic Party members and private individuals — on grounds ranging from loss of Canadian sovereignty to failure to strike a better bargain with the U.S.

The unofficial estimate of additional benefits gained in the protocol, through renegotiation dating to a meeting last May between Mr. Pearson and the late President Kennedy, runs as high as $100,000,000.

This includes some $70,000,000 more in power credits to B.C., from Canadian control of the turbulent 480-mile international river which rises in southeastern B.C. and enters the Pacific at Astoria, Oregon.

The total U.S. payments, giving a hefty boost to Canada's foreign-exchange holdings of gold and U.S. dollars, would be worth $501,000,000 by April 1,

Committee May Not Change Plan in Medical Insurance

TORONTO (CP) — Members of an inquiry committee set up to advise the government on medical insur ance legislation dropped broad hints Tuesday that they have no intention of proposing basic changes in the draft bill.

Committee members indicated that fundamentals of the Roberts government's Bill 163 — introduced after Premier John Matthew Dymond had told the committee its job is to fill in details around Bill 163's fundamentals — "put flesh on the skeleton." The government intends to retain the bill's basics in its final draft, he added.

Other indications emerged from committee comments sharply critical of a brief submitted by the United Auto Workers (CLC), whose leaders described Bill 163 as deficient in benefits for the public and unlikely to expand protection against medical costs.

Union director George Burt called for a program of universal, comprehensive, taxsupported medical care and described proposed that the government should at least pay half the premiums for medical insurance.

Canada is really outside Bill 163 and any discussion related to Bill 163," said committee member Dr. S. D. Galloway of Toronto, "because the principle you are suggesting is the entire opposite of the bill."

Several committee members complained that the UAW brief

Mayors Seek New Tax Deal

TORONTO (CP) — Extensive reforms in the province's tax structure were proposed today by the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves.

The association, representing communities comprising 83 per cent of the province's 6,000,000 residents, urged a review of taxes and called the current tax and revenue system inequitable and inefficient. Its views were made known in a brief to the Ontario committee on taxation.

The brief recommended that provincial and federal governments either take over or provide greater assistance for municipal financing of services, especially those classed as "non-basic."

The association defined "non-basic" services as those which have no direct bearing on property and which do not benefit property.

It urged the taxation committee to specify which services were basic and which are non-basic.

The brief suggested non-basic services be confined to education, public welfare services, hospital construction, housing subsidies, administration of justice, police, provincial highways through municipalities and emergency measures.

OUTLOOK DECLINES

The brief said the financial position of municipalities con-

Pearson, Johnson Head For Talks After Welcome

Leaders Establish Close Understanding

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson, after a friendly opening discussion, plunged today into talks on how to establish economic guidelines that may help to avoid differences between their two countries.

A spokesman said the two leaders, in their first formal meeting, established a close and cordial understanding during a steak-and-champagne dinner Tuesday night at the home of Canadian Ambassador Charles Ritchie.

There was an awkward moment in the visit when a national U.S. broadcasting network said Pearson had brought a pledge to Johnson that Canada would not recognize Communist China. The prime minister authorized a categorical denial that any such assurance had been given. He said the subject of Canadian recognition had not even been discussed. Earlier in the day, a U.S. diplomatic source expressed confidence that Canada would not recognize Communist China at this time, even though Pearson is expected to do so and even though Pearson had stated publicly that Canada may recognize it position if the mainland does not press its claims to Formosa.

SPEAK ALONE

After dinner, the two leaders engaged in a short conversation alone during the course of the evening when 22 guests were at Ritchie's home. Among them was State Secretary Rusk, Undersecretary of State George Ball and Under-Secretary of State Minister Martin, who also accompanied Pearson during the prime minister's meeting with President de Gaulle in Paris last week.

Pearson's talks with de Gaulle and French relations with Asian countries were discussed briefly in general way, the spokesman said. Both leaders were reported to hold some similar views on world issues, as seen from a North American viewpoint.

Pearson assured Johnson during an exchange of dinner toasts, that though there are many difficulties in Canada-U.S. relations, the "awesome" responsibilities in world affairs

Pearson also recalled, it was stated, that the death of President Kennedy had created a political vacuum in international affairs that had brought fears and uncertainty throughout the world. But Johnson's steadhad overcome those fears.

In a lighter note, the prime minister also observed that Johnson was a Texan and there-

Gas Co. President Committed

TORONTO (CP) — Ralph K. Farris, president of the $52,- 000,000 Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company, was committed for trial Tuesday on two perjury charges after a court heard evidence that company stock was distributed to former officials of four Ontario municipalities in 1957.

A third perjury charge against the 53-year-old Vancouver financier was dismissed when Mr. Justice Donald no evidence on it at a preliminary hearing. Farris' $2,500 cash bail was continued.

Two former mayors testified to receiving NONG stock after their terms of office in which the company got municipal gas franchises in their communities. They were Mr. Justice Lou Jansteville, of the Ontario Supreme Court, former mayor of Sudbury, and L. Moore of Orillia. Miller of the town of Gravenhurst. The judge netted 7,500 shares and Mrs. Miller 150.

G. Kelly McLean of Victoria, former assistant to Farris, testified also he delivered 150 shares to former mayor Glen Coates of Bracebridge and 200 to William L. Moore of Orillia, of which he said 150 was for Moore, whose law firm acted as Orillia solicitor, and 150 for former Orillia mayor Wilmot Cramp.

Farris was charged in connection with evidence he gave at 1960 and 1962 Ontario government investigations into the company's dealings in connection with the obtaining of gas franchises in this province. The firm operates distribution facilities on about 1,100 miles of the Trans-Canada pipeline.

HELD IN SECRET

Hearings were held in secret and the report on the trial has not been made public. Farris was committed for trial on the basis that he perjured himself by saying he did not know how 14,000 NONG shares placed with Consumers' Gas investments were distributed and did not tell Mr. McLean's dispensing of 600 shares to various persons.

Magistrate Joseph Addison dismissed a charge that Farris had lied about his net worth.

McLean testified Tuesday that Farris asked him to hold the 600 shares he distributed, that former RCMP sergeant Arthur Wilmot of Orillia told him in 1962 that he had given instructions concerning Mr. Justice Landerkin's report which was in the Continental Holdings.

Synopsis: A complex storm is moving northeast from South Dakota and is expected to cause snowfalls across the upper lakes. Warm air and cloudiness associated with this storm should move back into southern Ontario this afternoon and there is a growing likelihood of showers tonight.

Echo II balloon, as scientists seek the best space system for world-wide radio, television and telephone coverage.

Relay II shot into orbit from Cape Kennedy Tuesday atop a three-stage Delta rocket.

On the satellite's first orbit, radio voice communications and teletype messages from here were beamed to it from Mojave, Calif. The satellite immediately retransmitted the signals back to Mojave and to a station at Nutley, N.J.

First intercontinental television broadcasts via Relay II were scheduled today—an exchange of programs between U.S. and Japanese government officials.

Echo II, successor to the Echo I balloon which orbited in 1960, is scheduled for launching from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., Friday. It is to expand to a diameter of 135 feet in space, and the United States and Russia have agreed to try to bounce radio signals off its aluminum skin. It would be their first joint experiment in talking via satellite.

Relay II and active communications satellite built by RCA, and Echo II, which has no electronic gear and serves only as a reflector of signals, are different approaches in a U.S. effort to develop the most effective type of satellite for a global space communications system.

Most experts believe an eventual network will consist of medium-altitude satellites similar to the Syncom II payload launched last year. Syncom satellites orbit 22,300 miles high, so they keep their relative speeds match that of the earth and they appear to hover over one spot.

The higher altitude poses many technical problems, but most engineers are confident they can be overcome. Meanwhile, testing will continue with lower altitude Relay and Telstar types and with the Echo balloons.

Favreau May Be Pearson's Chief Lieutenant in Quebec

OTTAWA (CP) — Guy Favreau, who becomes justice minister and House leader in the cabinet shuffle, appears to be Prime Minister Pearson's executive choice as his political lieutenant for Quebec province.

A source close to the prime minister, said, however, that Mr. Pearson may hesitate for several weeks or months before formally giving the accolade to the 46-year-old Montreal cabinet minister.

Justice Minister Favreau becomes Canada's high commissioner to London next month, has been Mr. Pearson's political right-hand man in Quebec, though there have been reports that some factions in the province regarded the veteran front-bencher with only qualified allegiance.

Mr. Chevrier is Ontario-born, and represented his native Cornwall district in the Commons for 18 years before leaving the cabinet of former prime minister Louis St. Laurent in 1954 to become president of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority.

Test Ban May Stop U.S. 'Digging' New Panama Canal With A-Bombs

WASHINGTON (AP)—If the U.S. decides to build a second canal in Central America in the near future, using nuclear blasts to move the earth, it almost certainly would have to get the agreement of Russia and about 50 other nations.

But if the much-discussed new waterway parallels the old disputed Panama Canal is built a few years from now, the Soviets may not have the power of veto under the nuclear weapons test-ban treaty signed in Moscow last summer.

It all depends on what the scientists call "the-state of the art" of using nuclear explosives for excavations.

Cost of a big ditch somewhere in the Central American isthmus would be far less if nuclear power were used than if conventional explosives had to be employed. Official estimates are that nuclear excavation could run as low as $500,000,000 whereas if the job were done with ordinary blasting materials the cost would exceed $2,500,000,000.

Sometime next month the joint Senate-House atomic energy committee plans to hold hearings on the possibility of using nuclear explosives for a new canal. But apart from what is certainly possible at this stage in view of the problems involved, there is the question of the United States' commitments under the test-ban treaty.

"We would have to get Russian agreement," said Representative Craig Hosmer, Holtville, Calif.), senior House member of the joint committee. "And they're not likely to give it willingly."

State Secretary Rusk told the Senate foreign relations committee last August that he thought the U.S. might well get word from Russia at some point "that they themselves want to use an underground explosion for a particular peaceful use purpose."

Testifying before the same committee, chairman Glenn T. Seaborg of the Atomic Energy Commission said that at the present time excavation made by nuclear power would involve questions of radioactive fallout. He said "we are not ready" for canal or harbor digging, adding that it will require a lot of development of atomic-devices and experiments in excavation would be required.

The limited test-ban treaty does not prohibit "peaceful uses" explosions if they are conducted under ground, but most would not blow into the air radioactive debris that could fall beyond the boundaries of the nation in which the explosion occurs.

The problem in using nuclear blasts on a canal, officials here said, is whether devices can be developed so radioactive fallout would not occur beyond the boundaries of the country in which the canal was dug.

The difficulties raised by the

Around the Tee

Mrs. Ena Corke and Mrs. Anne Acton will be the skip of the rinks entered in the Tankard competition for women in the Province and the district playoff will take place at the Trenton Curling Club on Monday, February 3rd. Mrs. Corke will have Mrs. Bev Neill, Mrs. Jean Meagher, Mrs. Audrey Gerow as lead. Mrs. Acton will have Mrs. Anna Parsons, Mrs. Marie McLean and Mrs. Miriam Graham.

There will be at least five clubs in the competition. Kingston Curling Club, Trenton Curling Club, RCAF Station Trenton, and Quinte Curling Club with a sixth club a possibility. The combined scores of the rinks will count and there will be a knockout draw. The zone playoffs for four district rinks winners will be played at the Cricket Club rink in Toronto. No doubt a number of local curlers will be on hand to watch the games and cheer on the girls.

The bonspiel for The Ontario Intelligencer trophy and replicas to be, started by the men's section of the local club will be held on February 10th and 11th with Mrs. Agnes Walker as general chairman. There has been a big response in the entry list and the committee is going to have a hard time keeping the sheets to the required number as many rinks which have not played before in the spiel will be coming to join in. Mrs. Amos Miller of Kingston, who has been the winner of the trophy for the three years of competition will be on hand to defend her laurels and will no doubt be the rink to beat for the beautiful trophy and the accompanying prizes.

Coming up is one of the best one-day spiels held in the district. The Victoria and Grey Spiel will be held at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday, February 15th, with Murray Johnson as chairman. "Bud" Trill, resident manager of the Victoria and Grey, is the sponsor of this spiel and some surprises are in store for those who are entered. This year the skips are being allowed to pick their own rinks and there will be some discussion as to how the prizes are distributed.

A feature of this spiel is the draw at the curlers' "Big" year a prize will be given for the best dressed rink, but don't let the word "best" fool you. There will be some weird costumes show up and probably the first curlers' rink will be in the last category. The rink of Dr. McCorvodale, Ted Sheppard, Jack Preston and Ken Monson always come up with something special in the former class. The medicos also get into the act and a lot of fun is engendered. Those in the best spiel and only 16 rinks are eligible, so get your rink on the board.

Congratulations to Joseph Bosh, Ali McCullam, Ron Benn and Mac White as skip for winning the Kingston open bonspiel in which 48 rinks were entered. They had a tough grind on Saturday playing four games before emerging victors. They received clock radios as prizes.

At Trenton on Saturday Dr. McCorvodale, Sheppard, Preston and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Smith were second three-game high in the Ladies and Men Bonspiel at the Trenton Curling Club. Another rink of Mr. and Mrs. Gil Whelbold with Mr. and Mrs. Vic White won the one-game high.

The boys, Bill Gault, Fred Maund, Cec Kirkwood and Ernie Wilkinson are back from Utica and all boys will say it "we had a good time." They did not do badly at curling against stiff opposition, winning two and losing three.

ANAF Oldest Veterans' Club In Empire

Back in 1814, when the war of 1812-14 had ended, veterans of this campaign, together with migrating veterans of the British Navy and Wellington's Army, decided to form a veterans' club. It was a rather unique idea, the first, with each part of the country having their own club. It went on for fifteen eighty-four years and then they decided to amalgamate all the various clubs into one main organization, realizing then could accomplish more this way. The first documented veterans club in the Navy and Navy Versans indicates its existence in Montreal in 1840 and that date has been accepted as the time of its founding and this year is the first in its one hundred and twenty-fifth year of continuous existence. This is believed to be the oldest veterans club in the British Empire.

From 1812 until 1871 the Imperial Government kept a garrison in Canada at all times against any possible invasion from the United States. Many of these soldiers left the service to become settlers and many of them joined the Army and Navy Veterans.

VARIOUS CAMPAIGNS

Soldiers who served in various campaigns such as the Ashanti Mutiny in 1858, the Fenian Raids in 1866 and 1870, the Red River Rebellion in 1870, and the North-West Rebellion of 1885 participated not only pride in the military achievements of Canadians but a sense of comradeship that lingers faced together. From this comradeship grew ever increasing membership in the ranks of all Canadian Veterans' Organizations.

During the South African War, Canada sent many nearly 6,000 men, probably half of whom served in South Africa, but Canadian participation fell off membership of the Army and Navy Veterans up to the start of the First World War. In the grave crisis members of the organization were foremost in volunteering their services and in recruiting activities. From the ranks of those who served in the 1914-18 War came strength of purpose and achievement, and the constant increase in numerical strength in the organizations' history up until the World War II.

INVITED TO JOIN

During this period, the organization fought hard for the rights of the veterans and in conjunction with other veterans' organizations, succeeded in bettering the lot of the veterans and their dependents.

After the second war ended, the number of units was greatly increased with a corresponding increase in membership. However, there are still a great number of ex-servicemen not affiliated with any organization and they are invited to join the oldest veterans' organization in Canada and help work for the good of the veterans and their dependents.

Added to those who served in the Navy and Army from the outbreak of hostilities that ended in the collapse of Germany and Japan, was the very large contingent who fought with the R.C.A.F. and the Royal Parliament passed in 1966, the name of the organization was changed to The Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada.

The change in the name, the vast increase in numbers, a wide range of action and a national influence and outlook have in no way changed the character of the aims of the organization. That has always been, is, and will always continue to be, a deep concern for the welfare of all veterans and the furtherance of best interests of all Canadians.

Well over a century ago our comrades began something that we ought to be very proud of, so help make it a larger and better organization than ever. All ex-servicemen will be very welcome to visit the clubrooms on Front St. so they can get a better idea of what the club is doing in helping the dependents of those who gave their all, and the disabled.

Acting Mayors Are Named By Council

TRENTON — Acting mayors for the year, appointed at Monday night's meeting of town council were: Councillor Ross Burtt for January and February; Councillor Joseph Gould, March and April; Councillor C. V. Graham, May and June; Councillor Duncan McDonald, July and August; Councillor Edward Todd, September and October; Councillor Gerald A. Weaver, November and December.

The acting mayor guides the destinies of council during the elected mayor's enforced absence, and may substitute for each other during the year should the occasion warrant it.

ATTEND BANQUET

Last Saturday, two cadets from the Trenton High School air cadet squadron, Sgt. Paul Greer and WO Robert Lincoln, attended Squadron 21 Chaplain's as the guests of the Oshawa Flying Club and special guests of honour. The commanding officer at Trenton, Thorne Spear and Mrs. Spear. Both cadets were their pilot's licences last summer.

The Trenton cadets were presented with their wings by the Oshawa club executive.

A highlight of the evening was the showing of a film in which the activities of student pilots were presented in a humorous vein.

Would Close Gas Pumps Over Weekend

TRENTON — The town's public works department inner committee has examined in depth by town council's chairman of public works, Councillor Gould.

Councillor Gould has recommended that the gasoline tanks, which supply the town's works equipment, police cruisers, etc., be locked up from Friday at 5 p.m. to Monday at 8 a.m. 9 p.m. to do away with paying a man overtime to man the pumps. Vehicles during the weekend would be filled at commercial outlets.

WILL PAY BILL

Early this month, the members of Trenton council queried a bill from the Ontario Water Resources Commission for $2345.64. The bill was the last end of a $500,000 cost of installing the sewage treatment plant and was a "surprise" item for 1963 when the work was done.

Monday night, council learned from a letter from the OWRC that the bill, itemized, was for a federal sales tax, levied on the purchase of an additional easement into the treatment plant land, $214.60.

Satisfied with the explanation, council voted to pay the bill.

School Board Looks for Site On East Side

TRENTON — With plans for a housing development on Ryan St. One piece of land has been acquired by the board. Monday night, board members gave the nod to James Bowman, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, to purchase additional land, adjacent to the first site. Building of the school is scheduled to start next year.

Finance chairman Walter Stevens told the board that this land was needed for the purpose in the high school account. Government grants were understood as being $1,000 per classroom. Mr. Stevens promised Monday night that the 1964 budget would be completed in a few days and ready for board discussion before presentation to town council.

Board members were told at the meeting that the Officially Opened Trenton High Senior School lacked many teaching aids and the board voted $500 to purchase a film purchase of needed handicraft instruction material. Teacher of the class is Mrs. Eleanor Gobeen.

College Street school is in need of air conditioning units and a re-vamp of wiring, which was installed in 1939. The building's electrical capacity is too fee will bring in recommendations to the board as to the most efficient and economical method of improving the lighting.

High school students will enjoy a holiday on Friday, Feb. 7 while their teachers are in attendance at Conference on professional development.

Given Year In Reformatory

TRENTON — A Consecon man, 20-year-old Carey Gerald Gibbins, was sentenced to one year definite and one year indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory yesterday, when he pleaded guilty to the theft on Dec. 27 of a quantity of clothing from the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Downs, 165 Dufferin St. The sentence was made a voluntary statement to a Trenton police sergeant concerning the break-in and theft on the day of this year, after having spent a night in the cells "for a place to sleep." The sergeant's evidence yesterday that Mr. and Mrs. Downs were in Europe when the break-in occurred.

Defence lawyer William Weston pointed out to the court that Gerrard had made a voluntary statement and asked that the magistrate recommend that he be allowed to continue a tailoring course while under detention.

Referring to the case as "unusual," Magistrate T. Y. Wills agreed to make the recommendation.

Three Remanded In Custody On Theft Counts

TRENTON — Three district men, facing upwards of 18 charges of theft in Trenton court yesterday, pleaded guilty to some charges and were remanded in custody for one week for sentencing by Magistrate T. Y. Wills. The trio originally was called for a pre-sentence report on the men.

Heading the charges of theft of a Sony portable radio, the property of Bruce McCaughey were Clare Gerald Whitehead, 20, of 40 College St., Trenton, Robert Lloyd Matthews, 19, of King St., Frankford and Lawrence Clifton Brown, 18 of Hillier. Brown pleaded guilty only to the theft of a metal box containing tools and a chain saw, property of Allister Mann, Roy Hamilton. BIRTHS

MORRIS — Bonnie and Barry Morris are very proud to announce the arrival of their chosen sister, Elizabeth Anne, on January 18th, 1964. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. R. Morris, R. R. No. 1, Belleville.

IN MEMORIAM

GREGORY — In loving memory of my dear sister and brother-in-law, Lloyd Gregory, who passed away January 22, 1962.

Death divides but memory can tell,
Of the joy we had of those we loved so well,
And though they sleep in peaceful sleep,
Their memory we shall always keep.
—Sadly missed by sister Madeline, brother-in-law Mark and children.

BELL — In loving memory of our dear sister Carrie Bell, who died January 22nd, 1962.
There is a link death cannot make by human hands,
Beyond its golden doors,
And the ones who love now await,
Not lost, just gone before,
And in that home not made by hands,
The master will prepare
A place for me, and soon he calls,
To meet my loved ones there.
—Always remembered by sister Lena.

CLARK — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, John Thomas Clark, who passed away January 22nd, 1963.
He is gone but not forgotten,
And in our memory he lives,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Memories of him we treasure.
Days of sadness will come over us,
Many like this we must spend,
But they little know the sorrow,
Of those whose dear one has passed away.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Ethel, daughter Mary (Mrs. Nail) of Chesley.

Queen Expected To Visit Quebec City and P. E. I.

TORONTO (CP)—The Queen is expected to visit Charlottetown and Quebec City last this year, centennial commissioner John Fisher said in a speech here today.

It was the first official confirmation of reports the Queen will visit the two cities to mark the 100th anniversaries of the 1864 Charlottetown and Quebec conferences, which led to Confederation in 1867.

Reviewing the program for the Charlottetown observance, Mr. Fisher said in a speech to the Ontario Hotel and Motel Association:

"Later it is expected her majesty the Queen will arrive to open officially the Memorial Foundation Building. Her majesty is then expected to proceed to Quebec City."

Text of Mr. Fisher's speech was given to reporters in advance of delivery.

BADGES OF LONG SERVICE were presented to three members of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society at their annual meeting Tuesday night. The presentations were made by President Newton Thompson, above left, to Mrs. A. D. Archibald (seen accepting badge) for 31 years of faithful service with the local branch, Miss J. Tickell with 23 years of service and Mrs. G. R. Miller with 20 years of service.

Flying Service Subject of Talk To Kiwanians

One of the best attendance of Kiwanians this year was seen at the Kinsmix Centre on Tuesday, when the club was addressed by public relations officer, J. Anderson of Eastern Airlines of Canada, from Toronto.

Mr. Anderson compared passenger flying service offered today with that offered when passenger service first began some years ago.

He said that many changes had been made, for the better and for the comfort and convenience of their passengers. "Passengers were once weighed," he said, "but this has been changed to speed up service". "We take for granted you weigh 160 pounds," he added.

The speaker stated that you could be over 10,000 stations in the world and purchase a ticket which will take you to over 1,000 points or pick up a telephone anywhere and just on your say so, reserve a flight to anywhere in the world.

Mr. Jackson said there has been a vast increase in the number of flights today with 40 flights daily between Chicago and New York by jet with a seating capacity from 110 to 130.

Mr. Jackson stated that the airlines have taken aggresive leadership in safety and stated that people are safer now in the air than in their private automobile. He said that a survey was conducted by four air line companys a few years at a cost of $60,000 in an attempt to obsolete the single motor plane, and to persuade people to fly more.

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian Ralph Cochrane and thanked by Donald Davenport. Following Mr. Jackson's address a film entitled "The Wonderful World of Florida" was shown presented by Eastern Airlines of Canada.

In the absence of the President, R. Freestone, the meeting was conducted by vice-president B. Bradley. Members observed a minute of silence in tribute to their past LL-Governor and a past president of the club, Clifford Basgar.

Newton Thompson Is Again Red Cross President Here

Members of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society held their annual meeting at St. Thomas' Parish Hall under the direction of President Newton Thompson.

He said Red Cross began its work in Canada in 1896 following an act passed at that time in parliament.

Mr. Partridge went on to explain the various tasks carried out by the Canadian Red Cross and how Red Cross is governed from a national point of view.

The speaker was introduced by Gordon Lewis and thanked by Donald Sifting.

The 1964 slate of officers was presented at last night's meeting and stands as follows — immediate past-president, A. J. Wolfenden;—president, Newton Thompson; vice-presidents, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. H. McCabe, Mrs. C. E. Argue and Mrs. G. R. Cameron; secretary, Miss H. Alexander and acting treasurer, Newton Thompson.

TREASURER'S REPORT

PRESENTATIONS MADE

Service presentations were made during the evening, the first of them being blood donor certificates. Those receiving these certificates were Lorne Bunnett and J. Chatten who were unable to attend, and J. T. Gollom, in recognition of his 70 donations. Mr. A. Lewis presented Mr. Graham with the certificate.

Badges of service were presented by the guest speaker, J. A. Partridge to Mrs. A. D. Archibald who served as a nurse during World War One and has assisted the Red Cross for the past 31 years, Miss J. Tickell who has served for 23 years, and Mrs. G. R. Miller, 20 years of service. Mrs. J. E. Madill who has served with Red Cross for 24 years and Mr. Red Cameron were also awarded badges but were not present at the meeting.

Homemakers pins were also presented at the meeting. Those receiving pins were Mrs. E. Weeks, six years' service, Mrs. F. Sills, five years' service and Mrs. L. Osland with two years' service. The pins were presented to the homemakers by Mr. Partridge.

President of the local branch, Newton Thompson, expressed his sincere thanks to the society and thanked members for their co-operation during the past year.

Wolves Not Wanton Killers, Deer Herds Decreasing, Fish and Game Club Told

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

"The Big Bad Wolf" came up with a champion here last night, at least as far as the deep pockets of the northwoods is concerned.

"The wolf is not a wanton killer. He kills for survival and to satisfy his hunger" the Belleville Fish and Game Club was told at its annual "Ladies Night" banquet at Club Canara.

The speaker was Ralph Bice, of Kearney, Ont., noted outdoorsman, trapper and hunter who called on five decades of hunting for a colorful address.

Mr. Bice drew on wealth of hunting experience recalling the days when deer was so plentiful they roamed the Algonquin Park and districts north "in the thousands".

Back in 1888, Mr. Bice said, there were no deer in the Park. By 1919 they had reached a point of production where the government issued permits to hunt them.

"They were so thick," he said, "that hunters could kill four or five in a day. I killed 96 deer in a period of five or six days."

He said the deer population was decreasing at a rapid rate due to the lack of natural food. "Instead of these fires", he said "was partly the reason, but the old days deer subsided on the new growth that came on the wake of heavy forest conflagrations.

Back around 1914 there were little or no deer. In 1941 they had reached normal numbers."

WATER DISCUSSED

At that time deer hunter pressure made itself evident. There were 10,000 resident hunters in Ontario. In 1962 there were 100,00 hunters accounting for a kill increase of 60 per cent.

Mr. Bice said in the Muskoka district alone there were 25,-000 hunters and that the Georgian Sound organization will try to get government control of hunter numbers.

In an off-topic statement, Mr. Bice said that moose-hunters were unable to "weigh" their bags. The record, he said was a 1,200 bull shot in Alaska.

"I hope," he chuckled "your anglers don't weigh their fish like hunters weigh moose."

Turning to wolves, the speaker said they are not, as is generally supposed wanton killers.

As a aerial survey some years ago, he said, revealed some 219 deer killed by wolves. The animals were eaten.

"Fifty per cent of wolves produce young annually", he said. But that is according to get thicker as nature intended.

There are some 300,000 wolves in Ontario with a reported annual kill of 30,000. This keeps the wolf population in check.

PRESIDENT IN CHAIR

The meeting was chaired by president, Jack Layton, who at his initial meeting paid tribute to his directors, members and Lands and Forests Department officials for their co-operation.

President Layton and Mrs. Layton, secretary Ken Yorke and Mrs. Yorke, treasurer Lloyd Clarke and Mrs. Clarke and guests were at the head table. Present were Robert Temple, M.P. and Clarke Rollins M.P.P.

Awards were presented to the youngest boy and girls and the eldest lady and gentleman present. The latter awards went to Mr .and Mrs. Fred Aiken. Mr. Aiken will be 80 within a few days.

Several door prizes were given and by a strange quirk of the draw, the "big prize", a handsome transistor radio was won by the president's wife.

By unanimous vote the membership gave the executive authority to enter in an agreement with the Moira River Conservation Authority for permission to lease certain properties in Thurlow township for game sanctuary purposes.

Members, their ladies and guests enjoyed two highly entertaining motion pictures.

The Fishing Contest winners were announced and the awards presented by Ron Isaacs. The story appears on the sports pages.

A nominating committee brought in the 1964 slate of directors which was approved by the members.

These include: Douglas Bateman, Bruce Bishop, Fred Hallett, Fred Fisher, Thomas Hall, Ron Isaacs, Bruce Kerr, Jack Layton, John Lennox, Ken Motley, Don MacKinnon, Ken Rose, William Phillips, Douglas Riordon, Mac Walbridge, Rud Walters, Geo. Woodhouse and Ken Yorke.

Directors will elect the 1964 president.

Postpone Trial To Seek Witness

Failure to subpoena a witness brought postponement today of a trial, likely, related to a double highway fatality.

Charged with dangerous driving causing death is C. Anderson was 19-year-old Robert Goika of Belleville.

He faces the count after the death of two companions March 30 last year in a head-on crash near Madoc. Goika's south of Madoc.

The driver of the second car —John Walker, resident at Queensboro when the accident happened — was not located in time for the trial this morning.

Goika, hospitalized for weeks with critical injuries after the accident, is being defended by Robert Temple.

Provincial officers from Madoc OPP and other witnesses were present in court for the trial which was expected to last most of the day.

Judge Anderson had just taken Goika's plea of not guilty to the charge when assistant Crown Attorney Gordon Robertson said the case could not be concluded today. Walker had moved to Toronto and could not be found by bailiffs.

Sheriff Roscoe Robson told the court he had seen Walker during a civil action at the court house but had not secured his address.

He believed the witness lived in Oshawa but could not locate him there.

(Later the man's address was discovered in court records of the civil action last year).

Counsel agreed on an alternative date of January 31 for the hearing, after Judge Anderson refused to split the trial over two separate days.

The judge warned Goika at that time you will have to proceed without him," the judge warned Mr. Robertson.

EVEN OLDER

Archeologists excavating ruins of Oslo's stone-built Maria Church, dating from 100 AD, unearthed foundation of a wooden hurch probably built 100 years earlier.

Y's Activities

The Y.M.C.A. was a beehive of activities again Wednesday evening when demonstrations of the various girls' classes and other groups performed before another large audience in the "Y" gym.

Girls took part in various gymnastic demonstrations, relay games, trampoline, parallel bars and in pyramid building under the direction of program secretary, Miss Carroll Anne McCullough. The evening was highlighted by a judo demonstration under the direction of Mrs. Gladys Smith and square dancing directed by Mr. and Mrs. Al Gordon.

The program ended with an induction ceremony at which 14 girls and boys were inducted into the Leaders' Corps.

Continuing with activities at the local "Y" today, the Board of Directors of the YMCA were hosts to principals of public and secondary schools of the city at a dinner at which Mr. N. A. Beach, executive secretary of Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations was the speaker. An induction of the Hi-Y Clubs was also included in the program.

Statement of Claim Filed Is Missing

TORONTO (CP)—A statement of claim filed last Nov. 29 that included paragraphs said by the defence to be scandalous was missing Tuesday from its file in the central office in Osgoode Hall.

"I've never known anything to be pilfered from these files," said Osgoode Registrar Gordon Beddis, "but it's possible that some unscrupulous person could have taken a document and destroy it, it could happen."

All documents in such an action normally are filed in the central office and are open to public examination. The file of documents was in order Tuesday when an application for examination was made—with the exception of the disputed statement of claim.

Mr. Beddis said persons inspecting the files on a counter are not kept under surveillance, nor are their names recorded.

Most of them are officers of the court, so the system has to work on an honor system," he said.

"You're kidding," said Nellis Starr, counsel for James Neal McDowell, when informed the document was missing. Mr. McDowell's court action, against Melchers Distilleries Limited, was filed last Sept. 4 for "wrongful reduction of salary by conspiracy among the defendants."

It also asked punitive damages, naming as co-defendants in the action Distillery Agent, Sarto Marchand and Vice-President Jules Thibaudeau.

A defence motion Sept. 30 asked that four paragraphs in the statement of claim be deleted from the file as being scandalous and tending to prejudice, embarrass or delay a fair trial.

The paragraphs defence counsel Peter White asked to have omitted as scandalous refer to men in public life in Ontario, including one provincial cabinet minister.

Mr. Starr said another copy of the statement would be filed at Osgoode Hall today.

Osgoode Hall is a law school and also the centre of the law courts in Toronto.

Many Organizations Request Grants From County Council

The Lake Ontario Development Association is broadening its field of activity with the view of bettering the role of the agriculturists in the area, members of Hastings county council were told this (Wednesday) morning.

Mr. George Coling of Brighton, president of the LODA, speaking to county council in request of a grant, said that in addition to former activity in the promotion of industry and tourism, his organization was now requesting studies by the Ontario research Council with the view of increasing the variety of cash crops which might be grown.

He said studies were being made for further by-product used from corn, soya beans and apples.

Investigations were also being made on the feasibility of combining cheese factories and canning factories, he said.

MANY GRANT REQUESTS

Mr. Coling said there was considerable demand at 401 highway service centres by tourists for regional information and said his organization would co-operate with the county on preparing data.

The morning's session of council was taken up mostly with grant requests from various local and other organizations.

Included in the requests were those from the county Ontario Department of Agriculture for support of junior farmer and 4-H club work; from the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and from the Madawaska Tourist Region Association. The request were all referred to the ways and means committee.

The Ontario Department of Highways dampened hopes that more signs along 401 highway directing tourists to local centres will be erected. Council at its December session had endorsed a resolution asking for additional signing.

DEFINITE LIMIT

The Department in its letter said there was a definite limit to the number of signs which could be placed along a superhighway. All signs erected must have high legibility for high speed driving.

The report from Agricultural Representative Sidney Macdonald said 1963 had seen the greatest success of the 4-H club movement in the county.

There were 1,200 junior exhibited and 271 girls taking homemaking courses with clubs having a 95.3 per cent completion.

Mr. Preston Timmins, speaking for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind said there were over 90 blind persons in the county with eight blind registrations being added each year.

His stressed the importance of remedial measures in the prevention of blindness and said that at least half of these need not have become blind if they had received proper attention.

WILL ATTEND MEETING

The question of a central jail taking in the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Prontenac, was discussed briefly with a committee of four being appointed to attend a meeting to be called at Kingston.

Ex-Warden Charles Long said that a central jail would undoubtedly result in a saving to the county. He said he would like to see the matter pursued but wondered how far the county should go.

Finance Chairman Reeve Fred Beckett of Huntingdon said it would be all right for the committee to "listen in" at the meeting but with the building program ahead for the county he did not see the way clear to possibly make plans.

A letter from the Deseronto Board of Education advising council of its wish to dissolve and another from the Association of Ontario Counties inviting membership, were ordered filed.

A Change in Principle

The Federal Government has revised its pension plan. The Canadian Press reports that the revision "slightly reduces pension benefits." The formula by means of which this is done is somewhat involved — for simplicity's sake it is easiest to say that the maximum pension will be trimmed from $175 to $150.

In the immediate future we are likely to hear a lot of argument as to whether a reduction of one seventh in the size of the pension can be accurately described as a "slight" cut. If those who argue that this reduction is, in fact, sizeable appear to be winning the argument, we may find the discussion switched to the other side of the balance. The reserve fund of two and a half billion dollars, plus interest, which the reduction will produce at the end of ten years.

Most people will miss the important point — that the change represents a complete switch in the principles governing the scheme.

All of the details — the size of the maximum pensions, the amount which will accumulate in the reserve fund — are more than educated guesses. They are based on what will probably occur if present trends in wages, employment and population growth continue as expected.

But the point about which there is no argument is that the Federal Government has abandoned the so-called pay-as-you-go principle, under which current pension payments would be met out of current taxes, in favor of the type of policy commonly offered by insurance firms, in which contributions from individuals are used to build up a fund from which pension payments are made.

It is true that the Federal Government has all along called its plan "contributory" but up to the present this was really nothing more than camouflage. The building of a reserve, though, is the unmistakable mark of a truly contributory plan. This does not mean, of course, that the plan is necessarily actuarily sound, that contributions will be large enough to provide the pensions promised, but with a reserve of the size forecast a big step is certainly being taken in this direction.

Many people will applaud the change.

We ought not to forget, though that while a contributory plan has advantages it also has disadvantages. It exposes pensions to all the perils of inflation. Who knows what $150 a month will be worth years from now? As long as the plan was on the original pay-as-you-go basis, it would have been simple to adjust payments in conformity with the rise or fall of the cost-of-living and the general standard of living. Now this will no longer be easy. There will be those who will maintain that we are not only reducing the maximum monetary amount of the proposed pension, but are sacrificing the most valuable feature of the original proposal, the feature which distinguished the Canadian plan from most others and which, if the plan had proved feasible, would have made it a milestone in the history of social legislation.

Dimeless Problem

Do you ever have a dime when you want to use a pay phone? Most people's purses have been found wanting at one time or another, and the problem is often annoying. Sometimes losing the dime may depend on getting a call through in time.

A recent story out of Toronto recounts how a man slipped out of a bank during a robbery, ran across the street to an office building to call police, and was directed to a pay phone. His didn't have a dime and it was several minutes before he finally made the call—with another phone.

Similar delays could be more serious in case of fire or accident.

You get your money back anyway, when you call the operator over a pay phone. Would it not be sensible for the phone, so users could call the operator without using a coin? Perhaps a button on the side of the instrument, could be hooked up to maintain contact between the phone and the operator as long as the button is depressed. Or the button might be rigged to provide a direct line to a special "emergency operator," who might have direct lines to police, fire departments and ambulances. Such a system might even be developed to replace the standard police and fire call boxes.

We must recognize that the secular puritanism which we have practiced, with its principles of absolute good, absolute evil and intolerance of dissent, has been an obstacle to the practice of democracy at home and the conduct of an effective foreign policy.—United States Senator J. W. Fulbright.

Letters to the Editor

Says Other Things Come Before School

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Does Deseronto require a new high school? This question has been asked and answered in so many ways, so many times that it has become an obsession, almost a password to success or failure for Deseronto. There can be no doubt that the education of our students is an important issue, but in this case the situation is so blown out of proportion that it cannot be discussed without hard feelings on both sides.

Before Deseronto should ever consider a new high school over even improvements on the old one, there are other pressing matters to be attended. The most important is proper sewerage and a good safe water supply. Can we expect to attract industry if the proper facilities are not available for them to work with?

Once these matters are taken care of — then is the time to decide about a new high school.

Another item Deseronto must take into consideration is the fact that in order to attract new industries the town must be advertised as being "on the" country, not by incidents like the school controversy the last two years. Are the people over speed-traps and radar (four years ago) but by presenting people with a favorable impression of our town. After the election of Mayor Lott in December we hoped that perhaps new business could be forwarded, the old business must be completed. So far, this has not work at this. Then when the time is ripe and Deseronto is moving ahead in every way, a high school will be possible. But until then let the old school stand as it is.

Roger L. McDonald,
Deseronto.

Deseronto Board Not Yet Dissolved

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

On Thursday, January 9, 1964, the Deseronto Board of Education held a special meeting to pass the following motion: "Moved that the Deseronto Board of Education be dissolved pursuant to the provision of Section 31 of the Secondary Schools Act, R.S.O. 1960 Chapter 359 and a copy of this resolution be forwarded forthwith to the Municipal Council of the Town of Deseronto that the question "Are you in favor of the dissolution of the Board of Education?" be submitted to a vote of the electors of the municipality".

Pursuant to the provisions of this Section, the Deseronto Town Council will, as required by the legislation, submit to a vote of the Electors at the next municipal election and if a majority of the electors vote in the affirmative by a majority of the electors voting, the Board of Education will be dissolved on December 31st.

Within the past two years, the Board of Education has been subjected to legal intimidation by the Town Council. On more than one occasion, despite objections from the Board, the Town Council has usurped the Board's function by proceeding to take the matter of closing the Napanee and District Collegiate School area to both the Lennox and Addington and Hastings County Councils. But for the interest shown by many taxpayers of Deseronto in stopping this move, the Council might have succeeded. A legal precedent would have been set if the Town Council had done so. This would have seriously threatened the autonomy of all School Boards across the Province. Their relations with Town Councils would have become meaningless.

We trust that this makes quite clear the fact that the Board of Education has not resigned. It has initiated proper steps to determine whether the electorate would have them do so. There is a right of dissolution.

One other point. We would like to use your columns to correct the impression of differentiate that the Deseronto School Board has refused to pay the Napanee and District Collegiate School Board the final $5,000 owing on the 1963 quarterly payment. The truth is there were no more funds available at that time.

Yours truly,
Deseronto Board of Education
Mrs. Elizabeth McVicker,
M. L. Detlor,
E. J. Reid,
J. R. Neal, Chairman.

Defence Need Still Exists

Christian Science Monitor

There is a paradox in today's international politics which fills any close student of world affairs with a rush of mixed feelings. There is every reason to join in the general happiness that the cold war has relaxed its icy grip. Most of the experts who live intimately with world trends have an intuitive feeling that this is a genuine change of climate. It could even be a historic turning point. The world has been heard a straight into the nuclear arms race for a considerable time now, and human events cannot go on for a straight- line course for that long.

The new softness in the air is good and no one but the hardened cynic wants to see a cold front coming at us again like a wall of dark cloud. On the contrary there is general agreement that one of developments like this need to be actively encouraged and nourished. We all want to push.

It is at this point that the world's thinking begins to sound. It was not, unhappily, the soft and humane approach that caused communism to change its strategy and become, for the present, less belligerent. Not primarily, at any rate. The way to prove this is to ask if the Kremlin would be doing today, had it not been blocked from expansion and if it were making over new countries handily, one after another. Would it then be retiring from the field of conquest?

It was not so much a change of heart on the part of the Soviet ruler, then, or even of their people although that helped. It was something approaching a rule of law which was set up, however imperfectly, in a world where international government with exclusive power is impractical. And it was a mobilization of world opinion, much more tangible than the hard-nosed analyst would consider, which has jolted the force of ideas against the force of weapons.

All along, the concept of law has to be defended as well as propagated, in this case the repelling of Soviet efforts to get on a nation and a system of alliances which are ranged on the side of the cold war. The United nations has had a different role: that of mobilizing world opinion, easing political pressures, and compelling special interests to argue their case in the presence of the larger world interest.

But the defence cannot be forgotten. So we return to a dual function: progress in peacemaking, in the defence which protects it. They both need to be nourished. But the greater of these is progress.

Humans Get Spare Parts

St. Thomas Times-Journal

The American Medical Association, in its review of medical advances in 1963, calls this the most exciting story of the year: The amazing strides in the transplantation of organs in the human body.

Doctors have long possessed the surgical skill to carry out transplants, but have been frustrated by the "immunological mechanism" — the reaction which enables the body to fight off invading bacteria, viruses and foreign substances. Without this reaction, we would be prey to the first germ that attacked. For, because of it, the idea of organ transplantation was unthinkable. Kidney transplants between identical twins had been possible for a decade because they were generally the same. But transfers between other persons, though, even if they were related, were considered only as a last, desperate gamble in the face of certain death.

Now, thanks to new drugs that suppress the immunological mechanism, six successful liver transplants and the first of the complex, would-be kidney varied out in 1963. In other cases, a spleen, some valve of the heart, a small piece of intestine is transplanted.

Most amazing of all, toward the end of the year, the first successful transplant of an animal's organ into a human — a monkey — to the body of a man was performed. Until it lived longer than they would have without the operations. One of the many patients died from an unrelated ailment.

But in science, success is measured by the accumulation of small victories over the unknown. Though an immense amount of work has been done, the implications for mankind are staggering, and read like wonderful pages of science fiction.

The day is coming when an organ transplantation will be a medical commonplace. There will be organ banks everywhere just as there are now blood banks. These spare parts, of course, must be free of germs other humans (whose deaths leave undamaged the particular organ).

For a source of supply, many scientists point to thousands of people needlessly killed each year by the automobile every year. Many of them are young and want the gift to help others. Medicine treads on the province of the law, and laws which make it legally possible for a donor or his next kin to bequeath organs will have to be re-examined.

Eventually, completely artificial organs may solve this problem by dispensing with them. Artificial hearts — small, air-powered plastic pumps — have been implanted in animals. Plastic valves have been stitched into human hearts.

Trouble in Panama

Montreal Star

At the time of the Suez crisis in 1956, Nathaniel Davis refused to quit under heavy American pressure, could be heard muttering that "we'll show the Americans get theirs at Panama". In the event, President Nasser's nationalisation of Suez proved no catastrophe; the Egyptians have shown they can operate the canal even more efficiently than their predecessors. Would a recognition of Panamanian sovereignty in the Canal Zone really be a disaster — when alternative is a further erosion of the United States' position in Latin America?

Tic Doulloureux Behavior Not Always Predictable

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about tic doulloureux and the possible effectiveness of Vitamin B-12 injections. — F. A. B.

Tic doulloureux is, in its severe form, one of the most agonizing pains known to man.

It is a neuralgia which affects the nerves of the face and head, which is a sensitive area.

Its cause is not known. Its behaviour is not altogether predictable.

It is a periodic pain, often subsiding or becoming less intense at night.

Simple movements or contacts can set off new attacks — the facial movement when you chew, touching the face as in washing etc.

Personality factors seem to be very important and such questions as the patient's feelings of dependency, his extroversion, and psychological state should be investigated. Altering his attitude can be very helpful.

The B complex vitamins seem to have a tonic effect on nerve tissue and this can be helpful, but it is doubtful that B-12, being only a fraction of the complex, would offer any more effect than B-1 (or thiamine) or the whole complex.

As I said, the pain of tic doulloureux is of varying intensity. In milder cases, simple pain medication can provide relief. Brief inhalation of trichloroethylene (breathing from a small disposable plastic bag over a handkerchief) gives emergency relief.

In more severe cases, drastic measure sometimes have to be taken. Alcohol can be injected into the ganglion (or nerve) of nerve, temporarily paralyzing the nerve and thus stopping the agony. The hope is that general anesthesia will not be required when the alcohol wears away. Sometimes when the tic doulloureux will be gone. If this does not succeed, there is one other solution — cutting the nerve surgically and putting it permanent end to the pain.

Numbness or other alteration in facial sensation, and some trouble chewing are consequences of either partial or complete cutting the nerve. These, however, are preferable to extreme pain for some patients.

Cutting of the nerve should be a last resort, employed only when other methods of treatment are not adequate.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the symptoms of a disease called leptomania? Can it be treated? Some say there is no such disease. — W. G. S.

Yes, there is such a disease but it is mental, not physical. It consists of a compulsion to steal things, very often with no reason for taking any particular article, but just for the sake of theft. Since it is a mental (or emotional) disorder treatment must be by psychiatry.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is erythema indurum? What causes it? Is it contagious? Is there a cure? — Mrs. D. E. C.

Erythema is a patchy redness of the skin, and there are many kinds of it. Erythema induratum is a form featured by hard nodules in the legs, usually in women and more frequently in younger ones.

The nodules are reddish in color, but may leave a brown spot on the skin after the nodules have disappeared. (The nodules usually disappear by themselves, although rest, and periods of keeping the feet elevated, speeds their departure.)

There was a time when erythema indurtum was thought to be caused by the tuberculosis germ. This theory seems to be losing ground, but we are still lacking a good explanation of what does cause it. In short, I can't be of very much help to you, but there is reason to think that it is a contagious disease.

Intelligence No Substitute For Character

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the saddest sights in the world is watching a man trying to make intelligence do the work of character. For it is a common — and often fatal — mistake of men of intelligence to believe that the brain can carry the whole load of the personality.

The truth is, of course, that intelligence by itself is a neutral and integrated characters can go to nerve tissue and think can be helpful, but it is doubtful that B-12, being only a fraction of the complex, would offer any more effect than B-1 (or thiamine) or the whole complex.

As I said, the pain of tic doulloureux is of varying intensity. In milder cases, simple pain medication can provide relief. Brief inhalation of trichloroethylene (breathing from a small disposable plastic bag over a handkerchief) gives emergency relief.

In more severe cases, drastic measure sometimes have to be taken. Alcohol can be injected into the ganglion (or nerve) of nerve, temporarily paralyzing the nerve and thus stopping the agony. The hope is that general anesthesia will not be required when the alcohol wears away. Sometimes when the tic doulloureux will be gone. If this does not succeed, there is one other solution — cutting the nerve surgically and putting it permanent end to the pain.

Numbness or other alteration in facial sensation, and some trouble chewing are consequences of either partial or complete cutting the nerve. These, however, are preferable to extreme pain for some patients.

Cutting of the nerve should be a last resort, employed only when other methods of treatment are not adequate.

Dear Dr. Molner: What are the symptoms of a disease called leptomania? Can it be treated? Some say there is no such disease. — W. G. S.

Yes, there is such a disease but it is mental, not physical. It consists of a compulsion to steal things, very often with no reason for taking any particular article, but just for the sake of theft. Since it is a mental (or emotional) disorder treatment must be by psychiatry.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is erythema indurum? What causes it? Is it contagious? Is there a cure? — Mrs. D. E. C.

Erythema is a patchy redness of the skin, and there are many kinds of it. Erythema indurtum is a form featured by hard nodules in the legs, usually in women and more frequently in younger ones.

The nodules are reddish in color, but may leave a brown spot on the skin after the nodules have disappeared. (The nodules usually disappear by themselves, although rest, and periods of keeping the feet elevated, speeds their departure.)

There was a time when erythema indurtum was thought to be caused by the tuberculosis germ. This theory seems to be losing ground, but we are still

Individuality, when it is genuine, is not always easy to recognize. Sometimes it is hidden behind a mask of eccentricity, sometimes behind a mask of conformity. But it is always there, and it is the most precious thing we have.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Papers, pipelines and liquor stocks pushed prices up although morning trading was light on the stock market today.

B.C. Forest, Fraser Companies and Great Lakes Paper all gained ¼ among papers. Trans-Canada Pipe advanced ¼ and Distillers - Seagrams and Walker-Gooderham ¾ each.

Banks softened, Nova Scotia off ⅝ and Montreal ¼. Rothmans dipped ¼ among dull tobacco issues.

Hudson Bay Mining was up and Noranda ⅛ in quiet senior base metals. Speculative issues were light, Consolidated Mogul up 15 cents to $3.05, Iso five cents to $3.10 and Consolidated Discovery two cents to $2.36, all on poor turnovers.

On index, the exchange index was unchanged at 144.19, industrials .15 to 141.88, base metals .10 to 61.31, western oils .12 to 83.67 and golds unchanged at 133.36. Volume at 11 a.m. was 915,000 shares compared with 832,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Two speculative mines, Joutel and Bibis, romped through the day with heavy volume amid rising prices. Joutel was the more spectacular, rising 12 cents to $1.55 on volume of 222,369 shares. The stock at one point touched a high of $1.78. A company official said Tuesday that the firm is considering further work on its Quebec copper prospect.

Among foods, Oshawa Wholesale A dropped 1½ to 42 in light trading. Loblaw B and Weston B both fell ¼, and M. Loeb dropped ½.

Particularly weak stock was Chrysler, down 1½ to 42¾, after touching a new low during the day of 41½.

The senior base metals list was also weak, with Falconbridge off a point to 63 in heavy trading. Rio Algom and Noranda both fell ½.

The exchange index was down 21 to 132.51 and Industrials .20 to 141.73. Base metals lost .43 to 61.17 and western oils .43 to 83.55. Golds gained .74 to 133.69.

Business Briefs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

PLAN SMELTER

Plans for a $30,000,000 lead zinc complex to be built 25 miles north of Bathurst, N.B. have been announced by Brunswick Mining and Smelting Corp. Ltd. The smelter, the second in Canada capable of producing refined lead, will include a unit to produce sulphuric acid. Completion is scheduled for July 1966.

PRODUCTION IS UP

Production of steel ingots in the week ended Jan. 18 rose 47 per cent to 169,346 tons from 161,771 in the preceding week, the bureau of statistics said Tuesday. Output in the corresponding week in 1963 was 152,211 tons.

SHIPMENTS DROP

Shipments of uncoated, plain, round steel wire decreased in November to 11,341 tons from 12,716 in the same month of 1962. Shipments of iron and steel wire nails declined to 6,786 tons from 6,887, while welded or woven steel wire mesh for purposes other than fencing rose to 4,751 tons from 2,417 and steel wire rope to 2,235 tons from 2,048.

WON'T RAISE PRICE

Aluminum Ltd. announced Tuesday it has rescinded a one-cent increase in its U.S. price of primary aluminum ingots. The increase, announced last Friday, raised the price from 22 to 24 cents a pound delivered to U.S. customers. The move followed an announcement Monday that Aluminum Company of America would maintain its ingot price at 22 cents a pound and not follow the increase.

TANKER IS GIANT

A turbine tanker of 91,000 tons deadweight to be completed in Sweden in 1965 will be the largest vessel in the Swedish Merchant fleet.

T. Burnside, Madoc Reeve, Warden of Hastings County

Madoc village reeve Thomas Burnside was named warden of Hastings county at the inaugural session of county council held Tuesday afternoon.

The new warden, a veteran of nine years in his municipal council and four years as reeve, succeeds 1963 warden Charles Long who again this year is sitting as reeve of Tyendinaga township.

During his term in county council Warden Burnside has served as chairman of the finance committee and also as chairman of property.

The new warden defeated Rawdon Reeve Fred Beckett and Tudor Reeve Verne McMurray in a three way fight. Clerk Treasurer Carl Bateman administered the oath of office to the new warden. Invocation was by Rev. H. M. Davis, while congratulations were extended by County Judge J. C. Anderson.

FOUR NEW FACES

There are only four new faces on county council this year, two of whom previously served on the body.

The two new members are Reeve Bert Jones of Sidney and William Marsh, deputy reeve of Hungerford. The two who served previously on council are Reeve Wilmont Rose of Frankford, and Reeve Henry Alford of Deseronto.

Warden Burnside said two major problems facing county council this year were financing of the county's share of the cost of the new Belleville General Hospital wing, and the question of a county health unit.

Formation of a county health unit was recommended by a special committee at the December session but was tabled until the January meeting.

MADE MANDATORY

Also up for consideration at this session will be the appointment of a construction safety inspector made mandatory by the province.

The matter has been before council on several previous occasions but council members decided against the appointment.

"All of these matters would be simple if money were plentiful," Warden Burnside said, "but the money must come from the taxpayers and they are already taxed to the limit."

Council Votes Against Grant For Reception

Belleville city council is not ballot-minded.

At least council members don't feel that the city should contribute toward an after performance reception for National Ballet artists when they visit the city later this month.

Monday evening council voted against a grant of $50 to assist in reception expenses for the ballet artists.

Acting Mayor Ben Corke said he felt approval of such a grant might set a precedent.

Eleven Former Wardens Attend Council Meeting

Members of Hastings county council take a continued interest in the affairs of their county, even long after they have officially retired from municipal life.

At yesterday's inaugural session of county council no less than 11 former wardens, including last year's warden Charles Long, were on hand to see 1964 Warden Thomas Burnside sworn into office.

The oldest warden attending was Thomas Fleming of Ivanhoe. Others were James Sprackett, Earl Sager, Elmer Wood, Harry Coulter, Harleigh Hamilton, J. N. Brown, Harold Varty, Fred Mitchell and Leslie McLaren.

The new warden welcomed the former wardens and expressed his appreciation at their continued interest in county affairs.

Minor Injuries Sustained by Two Drivers

Drivers of two automobiles were treated for minor injuries after a rear-end collision south of Foxboro this morning.

Thomas Russell Bursell, 64-year-old Foxboro resident suffered a whiplash and Walter Van Der Kooy, 37, of Stirling, sustained head cuts.

The accident happened, say police, when Russell-Bailed his car on Highway 33 before turning into a driveway. Total damage was estimated at $500 when Van Der Kooy's station wagon crashed into the car.

Glenora Ferry 10-Ton Load Limit in Force

The Ontario Department of Transport at Kingston announced this morning that a restricted 10-ton load limit has been enforced at the Glenora Ferry at Adolphustown due to the low water level.

A department official said the restriction would be in force for an indefinite time starting at 8.00 a.m. Thursday morning. He said normally the load limit is 20 tons.

Tweed Worker Dies After Fall Into Boiling Tank

After lingering 40 days from his fall into a vat of boiling water, a Tweed factory worker died yesterday in a Toronto hospital.

Joseph Ambrose Langevin, 58-year-old employee of Hunter Veneer plant in Tweed, was rushed to Toronto General Hospital after his grim mishap at the plant.

Born in Tweed he was the son of the late John Langevin and the late Charlotte Letendre. He was educated in Tweed and had lived his entire lifetime in that community.

He had been employed by Hunter Veneer Limited for the past 15 years and on Thursday, December 12th, 1963, while pulling logs from a tank of boiling water, he accidentally slipped and fell backward into the tank. After being pulled from the scalding water, Mr. Langevin was rushed to Belleville General Hospital. He was later transferred to Toronto General Hospital where he died 41 days following the accident.

He was a member of St. Carthagh's Church in Tweed and a member of the Holy Name Society.

Surviving is his wife, the former Jessie Chalk. He was predeceased by an only child Lester, Marlene, eight years ago.

Also surviving are two brothers, William and Frederick of Tweed, and five sisters, Mrs. Mary Edwards of Brampton, Mrs. Joseph (Ada) Gaul of Toronto, Mrs. Vincent (Patricia) Prout of Bowmanville, Mrs. Leo (Joan) Mercer of Tweed and Mrs. John (Philistine) Gildey of Belleville. Two brothers, Frank of Midland and Napoleon of Tweed and two sisters, Mrs. Jack (Lucy) Counseyea of Tweed and Mrs. Frank (Madeline) O'Connor of Tweed predeceased him.

Funeral on Friday morning from the Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed, to St. Carthagh's Church for Requiem Mass.

Welfare Roll Shows Drop From Year Ago

General welfare assistance recipients here showed a 10.6 per cent decline during the month of November, 1963, as compared with the same month during 1962, according to the Ontario Department of Welfare.

In November there were 664 persons receiving general welfare assistance in the city as compared with 743 for November, 1962. The percentage of population receiving welfare was given as 2.2, down from 2.5 a year ago.

The number of persons receiving General Welfare assistance across Ontario shows a decline of 1.8 percent over the corresponding month of 1962. This is probably related to the favorable employment situation which has been improving throughout the year. The schedule of unemployment statistics registers a slight rise in the percentage of the labor force who were jobless as compared with October, though there are in actual numbers far fewer unemployed than last year.

Home and School News

DESERONTO P.S.

DESERONTO — The executive of the Home and School Association for Deseronto met for the first time in the new year last Thursday night and laid plans for the regular meeting to be held on January 24th at the Public School.

President William Kells advised that arrangements had been made to have Miss Mac Greer of Napanee give an outline on kindergarten classes and to show how to organize and conduct them.

While in session the executive also completed plans for the Valentine tea to be held at the home of Mrs. R. M. Loth on the 12th of February.

U.C.W. Meeting

RYLSTONE U.C.W.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. Lindsay Finch entertained the U.C.W. of Rylstone United Church at her home on Wednesday afternoon. There was an attendance of 13 ladies and some primary school children. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Will Northcott, the meeting was in charge of Mrs. Wilfred Spencer who opened the meeting with the devotional and the Scripture reading. Scripture excerpts were read by Mrs. Ross Dickie, Mrs. Jim and Mrs. Lindsay Finch. Mrs. Jack Spencer gave the Bible study assisted by Mrs. Cecil Bush.

Mrs. Ross Dickie gave the report of the sick and visiting committee, and also a reading, followed by prayer by Mrs. Alice Milne. Mrs. Clarence Thomson conducted a Bible contest.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Spencer with program committee to be Mrs. Ray Stewart and Mrs. Jack Spencer. Refreshments will be in charge of Mrs. Clarence Thomson and Mrs. Lindsay Finch.

UNIT 2 - U.C.W.

WELLINGTON — The first meeting of the new year for Unit 2 of the United Church Women of Wellington - United Church was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Centennial Parlor. The meeting was preceded with quiet music. Mrs. C. Hickes the retiring leader welcomed the new leader to the choir, Mrs. S. Foster.

Mrs. Hicks reported on the recent executive meeting at which time there were three fund raising projects for the year 1964. These include a smorgasbord supper in February; the summer tea and bazaar in July, and the fall bazaar in November. The corresponding secretary sent in her reports for the year which noted that Christmas greetings were sent to 11 shut-ins. A get-well card which is to be sent to Mrs. Reed a patient in hospital as the result of an accident, was signed by all the members.

Mrs. Taylor, program convener called upon Mrs. Hicks for the devotional which was based on the theme "The Day of Beginning Again" which was especially befitting in recalling the failures of the past year and a prayer for a better and more earnest effort to meet the problems and needs of the year ahead.

Mrs. Freeman gave a talk on India which dealt with the two religions which exist in that country and which play an important part in blocking the progress of that country. This year's study book is based on India and with the enlightening talk it was felt that members would understand the problems there so much better.

A story of the Taj Mahal and its reason for being built was read; also a short story on the birds of India.

Mrs. Foster thanked the ladies who had taken part and closed the meeting.

A social half hour followed.

EXHIBIT CRITICIZED

REGINA (CP)—An exhibit of abstract art by provincial artists in the Saskatchewan Power Corporation's new headquarters drew a storm of criticism. An SPC official defended the exhibit, noting that selection of the paintings had been left to an art expert appointed by the Saskatchewan Arts Board. But, he added, "I think our second display will be one of a more conventional nature."

Congregational Meeting

MARSH HILL UNITED CHURCH

MARSH HILL — The annual meeting of Marsh Hill United Church was held Thursday night in the Sunday School hall with the Rev. Robert Reid chairman, who opened the meeting. Mr. Charles Lloyd was appointed secretary of the congregation.

Printed financial reports of the organizations in the church were passed out and discussed and found most gratifying.

The film, "The Uncommitted" was shown.

During the business the resignation of the Sunday School superintendent, Mr. Allyn Finkle, was received and accepted. Mr. Douglas Detlor was appointed superintendent of the Sunday school.

By request of the congregation Mr. Reid is to call a meeting of the board of stewards in the near future, as there are several items of business to be discussed.

The duties of other church committees were discussed, and Mr. Reid closed the meeting with prayer.

Ann Landers

Fear and Anxiety Haunt Most Middle-Aged Women

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am enraged at that letter from the husband who signed himself, "Color Me Gone." Did it ever occur to him that many a wife would like to be colored Gone, too, especially after the big lummox has colored her black and blue a few times? But it's not so easy for a woman to pick up and leave.

I address these remarks to the louse who criticized his wife for allowing herself to get fat and "uninteresting." When did he last hold her coat or open a car door for her? When did he last tell her she looked lovely, or that the dinner was especially good?

And the heel says if he wants more than a peck on the cheek she calls him a sex maniac. How does he treat her when they're alone? Does he use tender words and make her feel feminine and special? Does he convey the notion that he is concerned with her pleasure and satisfaction?

Too many husbands are so mechanical and matter-of-fact about love-making that they make their wives feel cheap. I'll bet this Lover Boy saves his charm, his compliments and his company bedroom manners for some doll who isn't fit to shine his wife's shoes.

It's tough to be middle-aged, Ann. Our children need us less and less. We begin to feel useless. Our job is almost finished and we know it. If we don't have a husband who makes us feel loved and wanted we have nothing. — COLOR ME BLUE.

* * *

DEAR BLUE — You have described well the fears and anxieties that haunt millions of middle-aged women.

— It may surprise you to know that almost half of my readers are men, so approximately 25 million men will read your letter. I hope your husband is among them.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Can you settle an argument? What does "Lace Curtain Irish" mean? I am not telling which way I'm betting but a friend and I are in sharp disagreement.

Please don't tell us to look in the dictionary. We did and could find only "lace."

Thank you in advance. — PAT AND MIKE.

* * *

DEAR P. AND M. — Lace Curtain Irish are people of Irish descent who have fruit in the house when nobody is sick.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am engaged to marry a very fine boy in June, after we both graduate from college. The problem is his mother.

I am willing to go along with some of her ideas because I love her son, but enough is enough. She has asked me to have printed on the wedding invitations "No Gifts Please." Unless we do this, she says she will invite only 10 people from their side.

My mother and I have never seen this done and we are afraid we will look ridiculous. Help, please. — OLIVE.

DEAR OLIVE — No mention of gifts should be made on an invitation of any kind. Tell her she'll have to settle for the ten.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — In a recent column you said you'd print the name of the author of "Prayer For Older People" if you knew it. This prayer often quoted by former Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York was sent to him by William E. Robinson, who in turn received it from a Mother Superior who wishes to remain anonymous. — N. J. E.

DEAR ANN — The prayer for older people was written by my son, a Methodist minister who lives in Springfield, Ohio and wishes to remain anonymous. — CONSTANT READER.

DEAR ANN — I wrote "Prayer for Older People" in 1942. I wish to remain anonymous, however. My initials are — P. E.

DEAR N. J. E., CONSTANT READER, AND P. E. — No comment.

W. G. M. Visits Chapter 55 Eastern Star

On January 17th, in the Masonic Temple, Mrs. Agnes B. Young, Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, officially visited Belleville Chapter No. 55, Order of the Eastern Star.

Many members of the Order were present and each of the 16 chapters in the district was well represented, as well as Kingston.

Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, as Worthy Matron, presided with Mr. Douglas Ellis as Worthy Patron, assisting.

The distinguished guests included, Mrs. Agnes B. Young, Worthy Grand Matron; Mr. John Mulr, Worthy Grand Patron; Mrs. Audrey Elliott, Past Grand Matron; Mrs. Helen Marston, Associate Grand Conductress; Mr. Margaret McKeown, Grand Martha; Mrs. Peggy Murphy, Grand Electra; Mrs. Edna Dobbs, member of the Grand Chapter Benevolent Committee; Mrs. Evelyn Ewans, Kingston, and Mrs. Loella Brickman, Belleville, District Deputy Grand Matron; Mrs. Anne Mulr, wife of the Worthy Grand Patron; several Past District Deputy Grand Matrons and presiding Matrons and Patrons.

The Worthy Grand Matron commended the officers on the efficient manner in which they performed the duties of their several stations.

After the meeting closed, refreshments and a social hour were enjoyed.

Trinity W. G. Lists Officers

The annual meeting of the Women's Guild, Holy Trinity Church, Shannonville was held on January 14 at the home of Mrs. Arthur Long with 20 members present.

Rev. E. P. Smith opened the meeting and expressed his pleasure at being able to attend. Mrs. Fitzgerald thanked the members for their co-operation throughout the past year. Mrs. Whittle read the treasurer's report with a detailed account of all expenditures and the collection of a most successful year.

The installation of officers was conducted by Rev. Smith and resulted as follows: honorary presidents, Mrs. E. P. Smith and Mrs. E. Fitzgerald; president, Mrs. A. McKenzie; vice-president, Mrs. A. Long; secretary, Mrs. R. Kent; assistant secretary, Mrs. L. Reid; treasurer, Mrs. T. Whittle; card convener, Mrs. B. Kent.

Members of the altar guild were also nominated and are as follows: Mrs. B. Spencer as president and Mrs. B. Houston, Mrs. Marsole and Mrs. G. Reid as conveners. Mrs. L. Reid was nominated as choir mother.

Mrs. Fitzgerald as honorary president has spent 16 years as president in the Women's Guild. The new president, Mrs. McKenzie expressed appreciation for the honor of being nominated.

The minutes of the 1963 meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Mary Peters. It was decided to hold a euchre party on January 24. Mrs. Houston and Mrs. McKenzie will attend the Diocesan's congress to be held in Kingston.

A social hour followed with the hostess serving refreshments assisted by Mrs. Spencer.

Mrs. J. Williams on behalf of the members thanked the hostess for her hospitality.

Britain's expenditure on military defence in 1962 was 7.4 per cent of the gross national product, compared with 11.8 per cent in 1952.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

SIMPLIFY! SIMPLIFY!

I am not a reactionary. I don't want to go back to the good old days. In many ways the old days were not good at all.

But when I heard recently about a little girl, not yet in her teens, who was given a transistor radio, a camera, and her own telephone, for Christmas, I couldn't help wondering what had happened to the days when a child was content to receive an orange and a pair of skates at Christmas. Christmas giving at times appears to be getting to the point of the ridiculous.

Some psychiatrists attribute this extravagant giving to a guilt feeling on the part of the parents, for which they are over-compensating. The parents feel they have failed their child in some way, so they heap gifts upon him or her. They feel they have deprived their child of enough love, or time, or care, so they say, "Here, take this, and this and this. See how much I love you."

It doesn't compensate of course. The child is only too well aware of what is happening, and the parents may reap contempt for what they have been so with such a lavish hand.

The words of Thoreau come to mind here, "Simplify! Simplify!" You don't have to prove to your child that you love him. He understands with every word you say, but more important with things you don't say. A child has a sensitive antenna for every mood and inflection, every impatient gesture, every motion of rejection.

One cannot help but project into the future when the girl mentioned above is ready to marry. Is she going to be satisfied with anything less than her parents have in their home? By no means. She is going to want to start out with the things it may have taken her parents 25 years to accumulate.

Pity her poor husband — a young man starting at the bottom of the ladder on a small salary, trying to stretch it to cover a budget for rent, furniture, clothes, heat, light, food, medical bills, dental bills, entertaining and his wife's extravagant tastes. The answer is obvious. It won't stretch that far, so he becomes indebted to a friendly finance company, and from there on unless they are mature individuals they are lucky if they don't become another statistic in the divorce figures.

What is the moral of this? Whatever you want to read into it.

OLD SHIRTS FADE AWAY

Here is a handy tip I got from the "Opinion Digest". It is a use for old shirts. Many thrifty housewives hate to throw away shirts which perhaps have only a worn collar. This suggestion is to cut off the sleeves, and sew up the resulting holes. Stitch across the bottom of the shirt. Turn the shirt right side out and button it . . . except the two top buttons. Hang it on a sturdy wooden hanger and put one in each clothes closet. This can be as a laundry bag, and saves carrying the soiled laundry from room to room. Just pick up the filled shirts and carry them to the laundry room. They could even be dyed to match the room color.

It is of course possible to get new collars to replace the old. Also clean shirts are good sellers at rummage sales. One woman buyer said she bought them for her husband who was a painter and had to wear a clean shirt to work every day.

The regular meeting of Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority was held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. S. Calles. Four prospective members were introduced to the Sorority.

The president, Mrs. Joan Thompson conducted the business portion of the meeting.

Mrs. R. E. Wood introduced Sorority sister, Mrs. B. Wardman who presented a program entitled "Voice and Vocabulary Reflect the Inner You."

Upon completion of her informative talk, everyone joined in playing a word game.

Mrs. D. Fraser thanked Mrs. Wardman on behalf of the Sorority for her interesting presentation.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by the social committee.

POSTE — CALVERT

A lovely wedding was solemnized in Holloway Street United Church recently when Anna Beverley Calvert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arthur Calvert, Foxboro, became the bride of Ronald Edward Poste, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edward Poste, Belleville. The Rev. C. W. Coleman minister of the church officiated before a background of white Christmas trees with white lights and candles at the altar.

Traditional wedding music was played by the church organist, Mr. Angus McLeod who also accompanied the soloist, Mr. A. Hughes.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in a white silk velvet dress featuring a scalloped neckline and long lily-point sleeves. The skirt was highlighted with a chapel train. Her shoulder-length scalloped silk illusion veil flowed from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red Yuletide roses mingled with green fern.

Mrs. Robert Campbell of Pembroke as matron of honor. Mrs. Thomas Disney of Kingston and Miss Dorothy Poste, Toronto, cousin of the bridegroom as bridesmaids were identically attired in red velvet dresses featuring scalloped necklines, short sleeves and highlighted with short full skirts. They wore matching red velvet bow headpieces and each carried a white muff crested with red feathered carnations and sprigs of holly.

Mr. Bruce Poste of Belleville attended his brother, while Mr. Fraser McCarthy, cousin of the bride from Cornwall and Mr. Lowell York of Smiths Falls were the ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors where the bride's table was most attractive centred with a three-tier wedding cake topped and encircled with red Sweetheart roses and flanked with tapering candles in tri-branch candelabra. The bride's and attendants' bouquets added to the colorful nuptial setting. The bride's mother, received the guests wearing a royal blue brocade sheath with matching accessories and a corsage of white feathered carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a sand-colored dress of peau de soie with matching lace top, matching accessories and a corsage of green tinted feathered carnations.

For the wedding trip to the Pocono Mountains in Pennsylvania, U.S.A., the bride chose a cranberry double knit suit with grey Persian lamb jacket and hat, black patent shoes and bag and a corsage of white mums.

Guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Trenton, Bellevillle, Kingston, Smiths Falls, Pembroke, Cornwall, Montreal and Ottawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Poste will reside at 23 Sinclair Street, Belleville.

Historical Talk Given at W. I. Meeting

FOXBORO — The hostess for the January meeting of the Foxboro Women's Institute was Mrs. Cecil Hobbs. Mrs. Tripp opened the meeting in the usual way and gave a short talk on God's relationship to man and how His help could be a great influence on the lives and work as member of the Women's Institute, and concluded her talk with the request that each one make more use of the Bible during the coming year.

There were 16 members and two visitors present.

Mrs. Tripp asked Mrs. Hubble as "Tweedsmuir History" curator for the branch, to introduce the guest speaker, Mrs. Ralph Sills of Halloway.

Mrs. Sills is the "Tweedsmuir History" curator for both the East Hastings district and the Trent Valley Area. In her introductory remarks Mrs. Sills said "Everyone is interested in history; if you collect stamps or spoons, or just look on the bottom of a cup and saucer to see where it is made you are interested in history." Mrs. Sills went on to give some early history of Foxboro, including the first Women's Institute of Foxboro which had been organized between the years 1901-1903.

Following her talk Mrs. Sills conducted an oral contest using the names of some local residents, both past and present. Mrs. Trupp thanked Mrs. Sills for her interesting and informative talk.

During the remaining business correspondence was read, letters of thanks from some of those who had been remembered at Christmas with gifts from the Foxboro Women's Institute, a letter from Mrs. Trivers and a letter regarding the Women's Institute essay and song contests. It was decided to take no action in regard to either of these contests.

Since the February meeting is the only meeting before the annual meeting in which business can be conducted, it was decided to call a board meeting, held at Mrs. A. Calvert's on January 20.

Miss Cook as convener of the program committee, read the motto as prepared by Mrs. I. Badgley. This, two, was most interesting and thought-provoking.

Following the usual closing a delicious lunch of quick breads was served by the lunch committee with Mrs. Hubble serving coffee, and a most informative and enjoyable evening was brought to a close with a social hour.

A special British committee has recommended a huge expansion program that would allow doubling the number of university and college students to 560,000 by 1980.

Ladies' Aux. A.N.A.F. List 1964 Officers

The Army, Navy and Air Force Ladies' Auxiliary held their first general meeting of the 1964 season, on January 20th. The meeting was held in the auditorium of the A.N.A.F. veteran's building, Front Street. Comrade Martin Dracup presided. The general business was dispensed with, and the election of officers for the 1964 season commenced.

NEW OFFICERS

Comrade president J. R. Boyle of the A.N.A.F. Unit 201, declared all offices vacant. With the assistance of Comrades 1st vice-president P. B. Kelly and 2nd vice-president, H. Ford, the following members were elected to office: president — Miss Elizabeth Buckley; 1st vice-president — Mrs. Gladys Fitzgerald; 2nd vice-president — Mrs. Alice Storms; treasurer — Mrs. Elizabeth Lundberg; secretary — Mrs. Jean Gannon; executive — Mrs. Mabel Galbraith, Mrs. Peg Charleston, Mrs. Terry Cusnock, and Mrs. June Walker.

During the meeting Dominion Command past president, J. C. Lundberg presented Comrade D. Buckley with a life membership. The annual audit of the books was accepted and a vote of thanks was given to the past treasurer, Comrade E. Buckley for a job well done.

It was announced that the Provincial command meeting will be held in Hamilton on January 25th. There will be a sports day held in the A.N.A.F. and A.F. Saturday, January 25th, commencing at 1 p.m. Tea will be a mixed event. The members are also reminded that the 1964 dues are due with the final deadline March 31st. The winners of the draw were first prize, Com. G. Hargreaves; second, Com. J. Lundberg. The meeting adjourned.

HANDLE BUSES

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Students at Percy Gray Public School here are being taught how to handle a school bus when it is in emergency, part of an experimental project which might lead to the establishment of school bus patrols at all public schools, the program teaches students how to evacuate a bus, switch off the engine and operate emergency flares.

University Women's Club Views Interesting Slides At January Meeting

Members of the Belleville and District University Women's Club were entertained in delightful fashion at their January meeting, held last Thursday evening in Education Hall of the Belleville General Hospital. Mrs. A. C. Locke, a member of the local club, assisted by Doctor Locke, "transported" those present to Europe, North Africa, India and South East Asia, by means of beautiful colored slides, taken by Doctor Locke in late 1962, when he and his wife attended an ophthalmological conference in India.

Many outstandingly beautiful views, such as those of the Taj Mahal, the "Little Mermaid" of Copenhagen and various cathedrals, gave pleasure to the audience, while a number of candid shots of everyday scenes, people, and dwellings proved educational, and most interesting.

The highlight of the trip was a visit to South Thailand where Doctor and Mrs. Locke's son-in-law and daughter, Doctor and Mrs. Gordon Grey, are on the staff of a Christian mission hospital. Shots of this area, a part of Thailand, infrequently visited by tourists, showed it as a primitive, but beautiful island. The audience saw thatched, native dwellings, built on two-foot stilts; barefoot boys and girls, dressed in sarongs; a string of covered rice-boats, travelling along one of Thailand's many muddy streams and several flowering plants, including an organ cactus in bloom.

Doctor and Mrs. Locke were introduced by Miss Josephine Tickell and thanked by Mrs. A. E. May, who presented to them a Black Diamond cheese on behalf of the club.

BUSINESS MEETING

A business meeting, chaired by the president, Mrs. J. E. Pugh, preceded the travelogue. It was announced that in appreciation of being chosen to print the C.F.U.W's "Chronicle" for the past three years, the Belleville and District University Women's Club Wholesale Fund. The president expressed the club's gratitude for this generous donation.

Draw tickets for the Manly MacDonald painting were distributed by the ticket convenors, Mrs. D. G. Burr and Mrs. W. J. Musgrove and members were notified that this year's Spring Fair would be held on May 2nd in St. Michael's auditorium. The general convenor is Mrs. A. S. Lewis.

OVERSEAS' PROJECT

Members voted to donate $50 from the general funds to C.U.S.O., Canadian University Services Overseas, an organization devoted to the project of sending Canadian students to work and study in underprivileged countries. Last year, 83 per cent of the Ontario U.W. Clubs supported C.U.S.O. It was pointed out that the Club could if desired, continue to aid Miss Ashun, a Ghanian student at Queen's, who is sponsored by the Kingston U.W.C. and aided by several U.W.C.'s in eastern Ontario.

It was announced that the reading group would meet on Monday, January 20th, at the home of Mrs. W. L. Langlois, 201 MacDonald Avenue and that Mrs. R. E. Barrett would lead the discussion at this meeting.

Regret was expressed that a Mother of the Year, Mrs. J. P. O'Riordan had been in hospital in Florida after a car accident there during the Christmas holidays. She has now returned home.

Coffee and delicious sandwiches were served at the conclusion of the meeting by Mesdames J. H. Bateman, D. G. Burr, B. R. Collins, H. U. Graham and J. Haig.

Congregational Meeting

ST. MARK'S ANGLICAN

BONARLAW — The annual meeting of St. Mark's Anglican Church was held on January 15, with a good attendance.

Rev. Robert Stewart was chairman and opened the meeting. Mr. W. J. Barlow was nominated for secretary. Reports were read from each organization. Mr. Barlow was re-elected secretary of the church. Mr. Ernest Heath was re-elected people's warden. Mr. Ernest Stiles re-elected minister's warden. The business was discussed.

The ladies served lunch and a cup of tea.

MAIL CALL

Question: A neighbor of ours plays the piano beautifully, so, when he was visiting at our home one night, I asked him to play for our guests. He didn't seem overly happy about the idea, but sat down and played a few pieces. When others pressed him to continue, I stepped in and told them "some other time," so he wouldn't have to spend the entire evening at the piano. My husband said later I should not have asked him to play, that it was a discourteous gesture toward someone who is a guest in the house and not a paid entertainer. How do you feel about this? — Mrs. C. K., Hackensack, N. J.

Answer: If a hostess knows a guest would be pleased and flattered to be asked to entertain, then it would be correct to ask him. But it should be done quietly, to give him a chance to beg off if he doesn't feel like taking the spotlight that particular evening. Even someone who usually enjoys being the whole show might have an off-night when he'd prefer to sit quietly and just enjoy some conversation. It's rather rude, then, to lead him to the piano, announce he's going to play and let it go at that, whether he likes it or not.

An invitation to play or sing, or whatever, should be withheld until the talented guest is given a chance to indicate how he feels about entertaining. Anyone who plays an instrument or sings professionally, however, should not be asked to give a one-man show on the spur of the moment, no matter how much a hostess knows her guests will enjoy it.

If the professional volunteers to entertain, that's another matter, but he should never be pressed to perform — either by his hosts or fellow guests. It's like asking an advertising man to run up some ads or a doctor or lawyer to give free advice. So, to recap, a hostess shouldn't request a professional to entertain her guests, but she certainly may accept the services if he volunteers them, and a talented, non-professional guest may be asked to perform if he's not shy about it and the invitation is handled with tact and discretion.

Question: My husband and I have been invited to his secretary's wedding and reception. She's been with him for seven years and intends to continue working after marriage. We're both very fond of her and have accepted the invitation. To the best of our knowledge, my husband is the only member of the firm who has been invited, so chances are we won't know another person at the reception. It's to be a luncheon at a hotel, immediately after the ceremony — which will be held in church. I don't know what arrangements have been made for seating guests. Should we sit at any table where there are two seats available, or should we wait until the bride's mother assigns us places? What about mingling with other guests? Should we introduce ourselves, or will someone else make the introductions? — Mrs. J. L. B., Philadelphia, Pa.

Answer: After going through the receiving line, guests who do not know anyone else may mingle and become acquainted. It's not necessary to wait until a member of the family introduces you formally. Even though the reception is held in a hotel, "house rules" still are followed, and guests may introduce themselves to each other in the usual social way. If, when lunch is served there are no place cards, guests take seats at any table they choose. Since you and your husband won't want to intrude on any arranged grouping (a number of people often decide in advance they're going to sit together at the same table) it would be more tactful to delay sitting until you see how the tables are filling up. When it's obvious there will be extra seating at one or more tables, you may then ask those seated at one if you may join them, just in case they may be holding the places for other friends. The best method for strangers to use, when there are no place cards, is to move slowly and take places when the bulk of the crowd already has been seated.

Women's Institutes

PINE GROVE W. I.

MARSH HILL — The January meeting of Pine Grove Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Boswell Reid with 13 members and four visitors present. The president, Mrs. Alex Tammen, opened the meeting in the usual manner and read a poem.

Christmas cards had been received from the Canadian Institute for the Blind and from the W.I.'s adopted boy. These were passed around for the members to see.

Conveners of standing committees reported, also Mrs. F. Campbell from the Country Woman Magazine.

During the business it was decided to hold two card parties, one on February 1st and the other February 15.

Current events were given by everyone.

Mrs. Harry Coulter, public relations officer, presided over the program. Roger Reid favored with a piano solo.

Mrs. Herrington, district president was introduced; she spoke of the Unesco gift coupon project No. 367. This is used to organize Institutes among the Indians, through which they are encouraged to practise their crafts and home making.

Mrs. Herrington spoke of the centennial for Canada, birthday of a nation. "How are we as housemakers going to prepare ourselves for this centennial? The Fathers of Confederation comparatively young men, worked together for a common goal," she stated.

Mrs. Campbell thanked the guest speaker for her informative address.

Mrs. David Little, former member of Pine Grove W.I., gave a piano solo. Mrs. Coulter read a selection. Pamphlets on health were on display which the members were at liberty to take home.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Jayne Gay.

Low-Low Calorie Dressing

by Mary Moore

Since festivities have subsided and hostesses have regained their strength and zest for entertaining, ladies' luncheons are being planned. But the girls are on reducing diets.

I have a clever friend, Margaret Duddy, who lives in Victoria, B.C., who has worked out a very low-calorie diet dressing which she has given me permission to use in this column. She worked on this dressing for a long time until she had it exactly to her liking for she is a great salad eater and a reducer, too, like most of us. There are only 4 calories per tablespoonful. You could use it for your own salads or make a hit with your girl friends if you served it on a salad plate for a bridge luncheon.

MARGARET DUDDY'S DIET DRESSING:

2¼ cups warm water, twenty ½-grain saccharin tablets, 1½ tablespoons gelatine, ½ cup cold water, ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon dry mustard, 1 cup cold water, ½ teaspoon butter, 2½ teaspoons salt, 2 teaspoons accent, ⅞ cup white vinegar, 3 cloves garlic, grated, ¼ cup horseradish, 1¼ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon Angostura bitters (optional).

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Beef and Kidney Pie; Chili Sauce; Broccoli; Caesar Salad; Apricot Whip; Custard Sauce; Coffee.

Measure the warm water into a large pot and add saccharin tablets and stir until dissolved. Soak gelatine in the ½ cup cold water. Mix together dry the flour and mustard and stir into the 1 cup cold water until perfectly smooth. Now add this to the warm water and cook, stirring constantly until thick. Remove from heat. Stir soaked gelatine in until dissolved, now add butter, salt, accent, vinegar. Grate the garlic on very fine grater, coaxing through the little nubs which remain in your fingertips with the tip of a paring knife. Add grated garlic along with the horseradish, Worcestershire sauce and Angostura bitters. Stir thoroughly. Allow to remain in saucepan until cold, stirring occasionally. Pour into three 16-oz. jars, covering tops with foil before screwing on tops. Store in refrigerator.

If you are going along with my idea of a ladies' luncheon serve this diet dressing on

TUNA SALAD WITH GRAPEFRUIT GARNISH (4 servings)

Two 1-lb. cans tuna, 1½ cups diced celery, 2 tablespoons chopped green onions, 1-3 cup chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon lemon juice (optional), ¼ to ½ teaspoon salt, shake of white pepper, 1 cup diet dressing (above) or 1 cup mayonnaise.

Drain and flake tuna. Gently stir in all remaining ingredients. Pile on cupped lettuce leaves on individual salad plates. Garnish with drained fresh grapefruit sections and avocado strips which have been brushed with a little grapefruit juice to prevent browning. Top with sprig of parsley. Serve with Italian bread sticks.

Pauline Jewett Gives Impressions of Meet

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — The only woman MP to attend meetings of the Canada-United States Interparliamentary group in Washington last week said Tuesday that some of the discussions "degenerated into chit-chat" because of lack of planning.

Pauline Jewett (L—Northumberland) said in an interview that the exchange of views between American and Canadian legislators was useful, but that similar meetings in the future would benefit from more formal agendas.

"Although the informal, off-the-record nature of the meetings was helpful and interesting, I thought less time would have been wasted if the structure of the discussions had been set down more definitely ahead of time."

Dr. Jewett was one of 18 MPs and six senators from Canada who attended the week - long Washington sessions.

The group's discussion were designed to familiarize Canadian and American legislators with their common problems.

Half the delegates met U.S. representatives to discuss defence and external policies, while the rest of the group considered economic relations.

As a member of the latter group, Dr. Jewett presented Canadian views on the United States interest equalization tax and defended the Canadian withholding tax.

Outside the group's discussions meetings, delegates were entertained at a White House reception where they met President Lyndon B. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson.

Told that Dr. Jewett was a Canadian MP, Mrs. Johnson held up the receiving line for several minutes to chat with the former Carleton University professor.

The Canadian MP also met U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Senator Ted Kennedy and Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine.

Asked what impressed her most about the Washington meetings, Dr. Jewett said:

"One is always struck by the difference in attitude of American politicians to current issues, compared with the Canadian attitude. Even among the most progressive American circles, there is a tendency to talk and think constantly in cold war terms.

"Maybe this attitude is justifiable—I don't know. Perhaps they were also impressed by the difference in our Canadian attitudes."

Women Make up Third Of University Students

CARACAS, Venezuela (Reuters)—Women students now outnumber men two to one in the school of dentistry at the Central University of Venezuela here.

In the school of pharmacy, there are four women to every man.

At the December general election four of the 158 House of Deputies' seats go for decided went to women. It was regarded likely that some seats yet unallocated under the complicated proportional representation system will also go to women.

But until 1935 the only form of public activity open to Venezuelan women was charity and Red Cross work.

The Andean General Juan Vicente Gomez, who kept the country under his dictatorial boot from 1908 until 1935, held that women had no place in politics.

The story of the emancipation of Venezuelan women starts with Gomez's death in 1935. The next major step in the female emancipation was the general election of 1947, in which women voted for the first time and had the right to stand for election to Congress.

In 1947, there were only three women lawyers and two women medical doctors practising in the republic. But after that women enrolled at the universities in ever-increasing numbers, until today they make up about one-third of university students.

Many women graduates now are practising as doctors, dentists, lawyers and architects. Some are working in the country's big oil industry as geologists and engineers.

WHY DO TV DEALERS IN THIS AREA SELECT THE NEW CHANNEL MASTER GOLDEN CROSSFIRE ANTENNA FOR THEIR OWN USE?

Let's face it!

Among TV experts, this is what is known as a tough fringe area. In too many homes like yours, the TV picture isn't very good. Your family's video enjoyment is marred by snow... ghosts...blur...and other forms of annoying interference.

Here's where your TV dealer enters the picture! Because he is a TV expert, he knows best how to get improved reception. And he knows which antenna is best qualified to do the job.

That's why he has chosen the new CHANNEL MASTER GOLDEN CROSSFIRE for his own use. Antenna power gives you "picture power!" Because the CROSSFIRE puts more "picture power" to work than any other antenna —you get a sharper, clearer picture on EVERY channel!

That goes for black-and-white and color TV! And you get marvelous FM, too!

It's all done with a wonderful new space-age principle—Proportional Energy Absorption! Found exclusively in the Channel Master CROSSFIRE!

AT NO EXTRA COST...you get lustrous new rooftop glamour in the CROSSFIRE—a beautiful "Golden Overcoat". And because this "overcoat" is the very same type of corrosion-resistant finish used in civilian and military jet aircraft and space missiles...you can rest assured that your peak picture performance will last.

Successful Living

Reformed Alcoholic Yearns For Return of His Wife

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I am an alcoholic, and due to my drinking I was disbarred by the law society and just finished serving a sentence for misappropriation. After my wife left me, I returned to Alcoholics Anonymous. I had "played" with A. A. in the past, but it was only to please my wife, and I never really thought I had to give up drinking for the rest of my life.

I now know differently. I returned to A.A. voluntarily because I want sobriety more than anything in the world. I have actually lost the desire to drink. I am working hard on my A.A., have found a laboring job and paying off my debts. My only problem now is my wife. She insists that I live separate for a year. She says she doesn't want a divorce and sincerely hopes I can work my problems out, but she is incapable of even offering any wifely support or encouragement.

I can't help but feel that she is not really giving me a chance — for how can she know that I am living an A.A. life unless she lives it with me? It is encouraging to see her attend A.A. meetings with me, but that is as far as she will go. I feel I should shake hands with her rather than the peck on the cheek she allows.

I do not believe that absence makes the heart grow fonder, and I know that a continued separation will only make a reconciliation that much more difficult. — REFORMED ALCOHOLIC.

DEAR REFORMED — She is encouraging you all she dares. In her own way she is giving you strength to stand on your own two feet. Get that first tough year under your belt and I'll promise you she'll talk turkey.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My daughter 18 years old is allergic to wheat, oats and cured cheese. I can provide other substitutes at home. What should she do when asked to a shower where the lunch will be sandwiches and cookies?

They know of her allergies but provide nothing else. Should I send food with her? After all she is 18.

Effect of wheat — her hands itch for one to two weeks, depending on the amount eaten, and she feels miserable. — QUANDRY.

DEAR QUANDRY — Why not? A sandwich and cookie tucked into her bag and nibbled at while others are eating will make her less conspicuous, not more so, if she handles it right. A whispered explanation to her hostess should be enough.

One mother whose eight-year-old son is allergic sends along his food in a small package; she paves the way with a phone call to the hostess, who serves it to him on a plate with as little fuss as possible.

At 18, your girl may be more self-conscious, but she's going to have to learn to handle this some time. Why not now?

• • •

To PIMPLE-FACE — You have adolescent acne. It can be greatly improved by proper living habits, proper diet and skin treatment. I am sending you an article which covers the situation.

• • •

(Don't just muddle along. A letter to Doris can get you professional help.)

House Mother Takes Course At College

STORRS, Conn. (AP)—Mrs. Margaret E. Hanson has been a house mother at the University of Connecticut for the last two years. It didn't take long for the Canadian-born woman to catch the educational bug from her student charges.

Now 56, Mrs. Hanson—who was raised in the backwoods of New Brunswick and never attended formal high school—hopes to get a college degree by 1970.

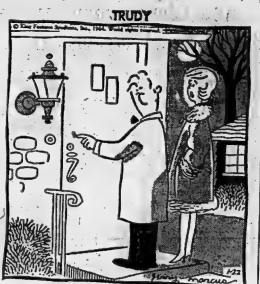
She is resident counsellor at Tau Kappa Epsilon Fraternity on the campus. She began taking two courses each semester.

In Canada, Mrs. Hanson lived too far from the nearest high school to attend daily classes. She went instead to a country school house, doing high school-level work. She passed entrance examinations at the provincial normal school at Fredericton.

"I passed the exam when I was 14 or 15 years old," she says, "but the minimum age requirement for admission was 17.

A year before she reached the minimum age she got married. "And raising a family indefinitely postponed plans for college," Mrs. Hanson says.

All of her eight children now are grown, and many of them go to college. Mrs. Hanson says she doesn't think it's too late for her to get her long-delayed education.



By the end of the current semester, she should have 24 hours of class work behind her. Mrs. Hanson currently is an unclassified student, but will be able to enrol as a regular student when she completes 36 hours of course work.

Her primary interest now is English, but she also is taking courses in Spanish and hopes to visit Spain this summer with one of her sons.

Once she graduates from the University of Connecticut, Mrs. Hanson plans to do church work in Houlton, Me.

OBSERVES TEENS

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. R. Packer Parris, administrative secretary of the Barbados YWCA, says she is impressed by the swimming pools, parties, courses and other amenities the movement in Canada provides teen-agers, but wonders if they are doing their part in strengthening it. Here to observe the movement, the mother of four says that in Barbados the girls stay closer to home and are more concerned about their education.

"Now remember, don't drink too much, dance with other women, or tell any of your jokes—Just relax and have a good time."

Congregational Meeting

WHITE'S CHURCH

WHITE'S DISTRICT — On Tuesday evening the members of White's Church congregation met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones for their annual meeting with the Rev. Dr. Swann in charge.

Following the devotional period by Dr. Swann the secretary, Mr. Lorne Hunt read the minutes of last year's meet. Reports of the past year were given by the treasurer, Mrs. Albert Jones, the Sunday School treasurer, Mrs. Lorne Hunt and the U.C.W. report. All showed an active year. During the summer the church floor, windows and chairs had been painted. A space heater and new pipes were added. The U.C.W. ladies were busy with teas, quiltings and other social gatherings. The Sunday School held their picnic in the summer with a bake sale for extra funds. Missionary and Temperance programs were held.

The credit and thanks for a most successful year goes to all officers, teachers, pianists, minister, supervising minister and to all others who gave of their talents and time whenever any task was to be done.

U.C.W. Meeting

UNIT 2 U.C.W.

FRANKFORD — Unit 2 of Frankford United Church Women met at the home of Mrs. Clay Rumney for their annual January meeting.

The president, Mrs. E. Sykes welcomed all and opened the meeting. There were 19 members and three visitors present.

Mrs. E. Sykes conducted the business period. The secretarial report was given and Mrs. Dick Reid gave the treasurer's report for the past year.

Mrs. Doug Montgomery outlined the U.C.W. program study for the coming year which consists of study of South Asia and Bible study with the book, entitled, "God and His Purpose",as guide. A health unit for Hastings County was discussed. A tea and bake sale will take place on February 15th.

Mrs. L. G. Hoyle and Mrs. B. Rumney conducted a short worship service, the theme being prayer. The devotional talk was given by Mrs. D. Reid telling the story behind the famous "Praying Hands" painted by Albert Durer.

Rev. C. Judd gave an interesting resume from "The Word and the Way" on the six subjects studied last year.

A poem was read by Mrs. Huth Bolton.

The meeting was concluded with refreshments.

The Experts Say

Always Buy Four Pairs Nylons, Same Color, Size

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — If you've ever been taught without presentable stockings on a Monday morning because of runs in every nylon you own, make this resolution now: Buy four pair at the same time in the same color and size. Don't ever buy just one pair again.

Experienced hosiery saleswomen say this is the only way to avoid "stocking run twitch"—that constant shifting of position to hide a gaping run down the back of your left leg.

The saleswomen, asked about current hosiery trends, say it makes sense to buy a good supply of nylons in a basic shade for everyday wear.

Then if you wreck one stocking, the other can be paired with an extra and you save money.

But you'll probably want an extra pair or two in different shades to go with party dresses or suits. Hosiery should be matched to the color of your outfit—not to your skin tones, say hosiery department directors.

COUNT TO 25

Once you've bought a good supply of nylons, the trick is to hang on to them.

The woman most successful at this sort of thing—those who say smugly "I've had this pair of stockings for two months without putting a run in them"—are the ones who count to 25 slowly before attempting to put on a stocking.

They remove their rings, check fingernails for sharp corners and then carefully slide the delicate fibres on, while holding their breath.

Many women have thankfully adopted "runless" nylons and find them economical and long-lasting. However, some brands have a slightly rubbery feeling which gives the stocking all the allure of a plastic diving suit.

Most popular hosiery shades now are dark brown, grey and taupe, but don't get too attached to them. Stores will be receiving new spring stockings in February and there'll be a new crop of unusual colors to choose from as well as basic shades.

Incidentally, if you are one of the shoppers who thought those colorful "textured" stockings with the delicate designs would never do, you were wrong.

Department stores say they have been a sell-out success in most areas, especially with teen-agers who like them for wear with the winter season's high boots.

Construction Roundup

BAY BRIDGE

The Bailey section is coming out of the Bay Bridge, and the roadway may be completely clear by tonight. Department of Highways men working under foreman Bill Bell, Central Bridge men working under Ken Fox, and Bill Finkle Jr. working with one of his father's cranes, began talking the Bailey sections apart Monday. The whole thing has been jacked up and mounted on rollers, then chained to the supports of the permanent bridge for stability. With the chains loosened, the Bailey sections can be pulled through the end of the bridge for the crane to lift off.

No problems in their own work but the men on the job are impressed with the speed cars are going on the bridge in this weather. They point out that a bridge takes less time to change temperature than a road—which means a bridge may be covered with glare ice while the road on both sides is just wet. Slow down, they say.

Just like when the Department of Highways men were putting the Bailey section in place, the double decker used for working under the bridge dumped Saturday, while Central Bridge's men were preparing for the move. Lawrence Gay of Belleville and Ross Ray of Springbrook jumped, and were left hanging on the beams under the bridge. Nobody got wet. The raft is a series affair, supporting a second deck about five feet above water level, and used only for working on the underside of the bridge.

UNION CARBIDE

Building permit was issued Monday of this week for a $45,000 concrete block warehouse to be built for Union Carbide by White Lumber and Construction. The 8,000 square foot building will be to the east of the present plant, and will have 16 feet of inside clear storage height. Plans call for completion early in the spring.

STIRLING MOTORS

Glass is being installed now at the new Stirling Motors building on Highway 14, just south of Stirling. Derek Lawday, erection foreman for Pittsburgh Glass will be through tomorrow or the day after, and the building will be closed. There's a lot of glass involved—across the front and part way down the sides of the 124 by 58 foot building.

General contractor Wieger DeJong started in November, taking seven feet of muck off the site and replacing it with gravel. An outside concrete block is laid now, roof is finished, ten doors are in place on the five double service bays, and the heat is ready to turn on. When the glass is in place, the building will be heated and the inside work can be finished up. The doors are big enough that ready-mix trucks can be driven into the building when time comes to pour the slab.

FRANKFORD COMMUNITY CENTRE

Lonellest job in the district right now must be the work Jack Graham of Ares Heating and Cooling Distributors, Trenton, is doing on the Frankford Community Centre. He's been there since the start of the year, and hasn't part of the year, and hasn't part of the year, and hasn't part

DESERONTO

Will Install New Chlorinator At Pump House

DESERONTO — Under the heading of correspondence the Council quickly disposed of a number of items Monday night. Among them was a reply from the local provincial member, C. T. Rollins, indicating his inability to attend a meeting with the Town Council on industrial development because of the opening session of Parliament in Toronto.

However, the member did invite the Council to set an alternative date or make arrangements to meet him in Toronto while the government was in session.

No immediate action was taken by council on this matter.

In dealing with the question of a pure water supply for Deseronto a letter from the engineering firms of Rissy and Sarrington of Toronto was read covering the new chlorinator and the present state of the town's water.

Although further study of the town's water samples was needed because of the high algae count it was indicated by the engineering firm that the new chlorinator should be installed as soon as possible.

Council gave indication that the installation would be a temporary one and agreed that the Public Utilities should proceed on that basis.

The letter from the Board of Education outlining their motion for dissolution under the Secondary Schools Act was tabled until the first November meeting of Council. Under the Act dissolution of the Board can come after the electorate indicate approval by plebiscite at the time of municipal elections. This would not be until December of this year.

Fire Service Costs Are Up

DESERONTO — The cost of fire protection in Deseronto and area has risen substantially as a result of the Town Council's decision to act upon the Fire and Police Committee's recommendation for an increase in hourly cost and standby fees.

Tabled by Committee Chairman Howard the report incorporated a letter from Fire Chief Al Fraser outlining suggested pay rates and proposing the increase of one dollar per hour for the first hour of firefighting to the sum of two, with a continuing rate of one dollar per hour for each hour or portion of thereafter.

Although the requested increase in standby fees was not large it was felt by the Fire Department and its representative Committee on Council that the increase would advance pay rates to a point in line with neighboring rates.

In determining the amount of increased fees to the Town, the Fire Chief based his figures on the 1963 record of 82 fire alarms for Deseronto and area. The proposed figure for 1964 was in excess of six hundred dollars.

Council also agreed to meet the estimated cost of $600 for equipment and supplies in immediate need by the Fire Department.

REQUEST TABLED

The request of the Victorian Order of Nurses for an extension of one year on their Health clinic now in Deseronto on a trial basis was tabled along with a request for a grant of funds from the town.

In tabling the letter it was felt that by the time of the next meeting of council more information relative to the clinic would be available. It was understood by the mayor and Reeve that the county council would be receiving their report on a Health Unit in the meantime.

A memo from the Department of Municipal Affairs was put in hand and a decision made by the council to make formal application for funds under the Winter Works Program.

Under the heading of new business council approved an expense account of $120 for the year to help meet the out-of-pocket expenditures made by the Streets Chairman when answering calls and supervising local work.

DEATHS INCREASE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — Cholera deaths in Saigon rose to an estimated 150 Tuesday and experts predicted a major epidemic in several Vietnamese provinces. The U.S. military assistance command warned that "the present situation has the characteristics of a dangerous and explosive epidemic."

LONG RANGE FORECAST — A large area of Central Canada is expected to have above-normal temperatures from mid-January to mid-February, according to the long-range weather outlook of the U.S. weather office.

Light precipitation is expected over most of the eastern part of the country. Precipitation is given in inches of rain; one inch of rain equalling 10 inches of snow.

Other normal temperatures: New York 34, New Orleans 55, San Francisco 50. Other normal precipitation: New York 3.2, New Orleans 3.9, San Francisco 3.6.

evidence that he had received 7,500 shares through Continental and said his actual transaction was with that company rather than Farris, though he had had earlier discussions with Farris on a stock option.

In July, 1963, before he became a judge, Farris had written him offering an option on 10,000 shares at $2.50. He wrote saying he intended to exercise the option after leaving mayoralty and told Farris he was still interested when the company head called to congratulate him on his elevation to the bench that fall.

Next February, he was advised from Vancouver by Continental that 10,000 shares were bought for him at $2.50. Subsequently, Continental sold off 2,500 shares at $10 to cover the cost of the whole 10,000, and the remaining 7,500 were forwarded to Mr. Justice Landreville.

John McGraw, head of Continental, testified at an earlier hearing that this transaction was made on instructions of Farris, who had deposited the 14,400 shares with Continental.

Mrs. Hall said she received her 150 shares from McLean during a trip to Toronto where the company's head office is located. She said McLean gave her a large white envelope but did not tell her what was in it, saying: "Put this away. Some time it may be worth some money."

She said her vote had not been influenced in favor of NONG.

At the time she received the stock, she said, the company's franchise had been approved by the Gravenhurst town council and the Ontario fuel board.

Other former officials mentioned in the testimony were not called as witnesses. Farris did not testify.

times to deteriorate despite increased funds from the Ontario and federal governments for non-basic services.

Municipal revenue is limited to taxation on property. The system is inadequate, the brief complained, and requested that consideration be given to a taxation system based on ability to pay.

Municipalities lost the right to collect personal income tax in 1936 and to collect corporation taxes in 1944.

The brief said both sources of revenue have increased vastly and questioned whether municipalities were getting a fair share of the increased wealth.

was shy on specific recommendations. Mr. Short polished to half-a-dozen suggestions in the brief for amendments and additions to Bill 163.

Dr. Hagey said the 5,000-word brief contained "many statements that are critical without being constructive."

In addition to pointing out the specific amendments recommended, Mr. Short contended that the onion could not spell out detailed changes on the basis of other criticisms without dismantling the "inherent principles" of Bill 163. He suggested that proposing modifications in the bill's principles would go beyond the committee's terms of reference.

Among the UAW recommendations was one saying the full cost of medical care for the needy and half the cost for all other residents should be paid from taxes. Bill 163 would have the government pay full medical insurance premiums for persons on welfare and part of the premiums of another, undefined group judged to need help.

The UAW said coverage under the government - proposed standard medical plan should be extended beyond just physician services to encompass a full range of health care.

A public body should oversee premium rates and fee payments instead of leaving regulation of premiums to the insurers and fee schedules to the doctors, the union said.

WANT INCLUSION

In other briefs presented Tuesday, the Ontario Chiropractic Association and the Victorian Order of Nurses each appealed for inclusion of their services in the medical insurance plan. Bill 163 now excludes all but physician care from coverage.

Rev. H. L. Wipprecht of Cobalt, a United Church minister, said in a personal brief that the medical plan should be tax supported and benefits should be expanded to include coverage of drugs, dental and optical costs.

"The care of our health should merit the same consideration at least as other government-financed projects such as schools, roads and parks, which are financed by taxation on an equitable basis," he said.

CFA Rejects Principle to Increase Price

By JACK PICKETTS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—A principle that could have resulted in a one-cent increase in the price of a loaf of bread in Canada was rejected Tuesday by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

The principle involved, as some western grain growers saw it, was that the price of wheat used domestically for human consumption should be based on the Canadian economy, not sold more cheaply at International Wheat Agreement prices.

One delegate to the CFA annual meeting here said this would mean a one-cent increase in the price of bread. The underlying principle, as supporting delegates called it, came up in a resolution considered by the CFA asking the federal government to implement a two-price system for wheat used domestically for human consumption, a policy to which the government "has committed itself."

It's a principle that has been talked about by grain growers for years. Some say they have "subsidized the bread eaters of Canada" and are only asking people eating bread "to pay for it on the basis of the living standard."

IS DEFEATED

The resolution was defeated after several delegates, including CFA President James McBentley of Edmonton, felt it would be "exceedingly unwise" in view of the huge quantities of wheat being exported at reasonable prices.

The CFA commended the government for "developing policies" which made wheat sales possible. It drew attention to the "tremendous contribution currently being made by the wheat growing industry to the national economy and to (the) correction of the country's exchange difficulties."

The CFA also approved a resolution asking that the federal government's freight assistance policy on feed grains moving from the Prairies to Eastern Canada and British Columbia be continued and recognized as a national agricultural policy.

The federation passed a policy statement that called for the establishment at the next session of Parliament of an eastern and British Columbia feed grains agency.

He returned to Parliament in 1957 as MP for the Montreal riding of Laurier.

Filling the unofficial post of Quebec lieutenant has been a ticklish task for the prime minister because of conflicting currents of opinion within the province of Quebec, and in the federal Liberal party organization there.

Mr. Cherrier was regarded by some as representing a Quebec old guard which is rapidly being submerged by a new wing led such people as Maurice Sauve, who is to become minister of rural development and forestry when that new department is established.

Mr. Favreau appears to be somewhere between. He worked closely last session with House Leader J. W. Pickersgill and served as an on-the-spot legal draughtsman when amendments to government bills were being considered on the floor of the Commons.

On that date the last of three storage dams will be in operation under the treaty. The construction program will take nine years.

The estimated $501,000,000 figure in 1973 is a calculation comprising three factors.

One is the power-sale advance of $274,800,000 payable next Oct. 1.

Another is $80,800,000 in flood control payments, in instalments varying in size made as each dam is completed.

The third is interest earnings by B.C. on the U.S. money.

Since B.C. won't need all the power at once to feed the dams, it has been calculated that the province can reinvest the unneeded power profits of at least five per cent and probably more.

The U.S. is advancing the power-sale sum at a discount equivalent to 4½ per cent a year—so B.C. has room to make a profit.

As planned, the $501,000,000 will be the $447,100,000 cost of the three Canadian river-control dams. It will also leave $54,400,000 which is described as enough to install half the maximum hydro generating machinery at Mica Creek, largest and costliest of the three dams.

This generating capacity will provide 1,800,000 kilowatts or 6,402,000,000 kilowatt hours annually at a cost of less than 1.5 mills per kilowatt hour, statements issued to the protocol said. B.C. is committed to install this capacity when "economically feasible" — likely starting about 1975.

B.C. is expected to start work before Oct. 2 on dam construction, which will employ 2,000 men at peak periods over the nine years and 1,500 at other times.

ARE PAID BETTER

OTTAWA (CP) — Academic staff in technical universities and colleges in Ontario and Quebec get better pay than their counterparts in other provinces, a bureau of statistics report shows. The bureau in a report issued Tuesday lists the average salary in 1963-64 for teaching staff in Canada's technical colleges at $9,451, in the Western Provinces at $9,000 and in the Atlantic Provinces at $7,919.

Publisher at 15 Has Quit Journalism for His School

MONTREAL (CP) — Eddie Goldenberg, 15, has quit journalism after publishing and editing The News Review, a widely read weekly, for the last seven years.

Eddie, a Grade 10 student at suburban Westmount High School and the son of H. Carl Goldenberg, noted lawyer and labor mediator, decided to throw in the towel so that he'd have more time to spend on his studies.

The first copy of the weekly was published in January, 1957, to compete with a similar journal launched by another Westmount youngster.

The other paper lasted one week.

When Eddie called it quits he had a subscription of 180, including such personalities as Prime Minister Pearson, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley of Nova Scotia and Premier Joey Smallwood of Newfoundland.

During the seven years Eddie didn't miss a single issue, except during the summer months which he spent at a boys' camp.

SISTER HELPED

The Review covered a wide range of topics, covering in capsule form the outstanding news of the week. There were occasional editorials dealing with such matters as elections and bilingualism. The paper also carried riddles and a book section, and covered sports.

Eddie received help from his sister Ann as well as his mother and father. After the paper was made up in Eddie's bedroom-office it went down to his father's office to be typewritten, mimeographed and mailed to subscribers in all 10 provinces who paid $3.50 a year for it.

The young editor sometimes covered important news events in person. He has sat in the Parliamentary Press Gallery at Ottawa listening to major debates and has interviewed the last three prime ministers—Louis St. Laurent, John Diefenbaker and Lester B. Pearson.

His plans for the future—to concentrate on law with an eye to entering politics eventually.

DESERONTO

Anglican Ministry Affects All Peoples Says Rector

DESERONTO — "I went as an Anglican and came back a Christian," said the Rev. Morris Soutter of Deseronto in describing the effect of his ten-day stay at the Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies at Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, earlier this month.

He qualifying this statement Mr. Soutter spoke of the change of attitude that had taken place in him and the others respecting the ministry of the church. "I went," he said "as an Anglican clergyman whose task it was to minister to Anglicans at least, that was how I understood it. I see my ministry now as one affecting all people whether they be Christian or not. And, significantly, I have come to see that I share that ministry with others whether they be ordained or not."

As the only Canadian attending the special course for clergymen this month Father Soutter found himself a lone ambassador of Church and State. He found much interest in the Canadian attitude to the American racial issues and in Canada's own question of bilingualism.

"But our main concern was the Church," said Father Soutter. "For ten full days, morning, afternoon and evening, we applied ourselves to the meaning of the ministry and to our specific part in it."

He indicated that all nine denominations represented had come to the seminar conscious of their differences and to some degree on the defensive. In the end they had recognized that they were "ministers together," and as Christians responsible to one another and to the needs of the world.

The Institute for Advanced Pastoral Studies in a non-denominational and ecumenical institute under the directorship of Dr. Reuel L. Howe, Professor of Pastoral Studies and priest of the Episcopal Church of America. It is located in Cranbrook House once the family home of printing scion William Booth of Detroit. The home is now part of the Cranbrook Foundation, a body set up to administer the holdings located on the country estate of his well-known Detroit family.

In the shadow of the great towers of Christ Church, Cranbrook and surrounded by buildings now dedicated to education, science and the arts, the Pastoral Institute functions. Its ongoing program involves clergymen from all parts of the world and from widely divergent denominations.

Cross-Canada Survey

All Legislatures Will Be Struggling With Problems Of Finances and Education

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

By mid-February Canada's 10 provincial legislatures are expected to be in session, and a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows all will be struggling with the problems of municipal finances and education costs in various forms.

Quebec opens its legislative session Jan. 14, followed the next day by Ontario. The British Columbia House starts work Jan. 23. Though no firm dates have been announced for Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick or Saskatchewan, all are expected to start on or before Feb. 13. The Manitoba legislature opens Feb. 6, Prince Edward Island Feb. 11 and Alberta Feb. 13.

Reports from provincial capitals indicate that only Saskatchewan faces the prospect of an election after its session. Premier Woodrow Lloyd, who leads 33 CCF members in the legislature at Regina against a Liberal opposition of 21, is expected to call the vote for April, May or June.

Natural resources rank as major debating topics in at least two provinces.

Newfoundland is awaiting a consultant's report on financing a $45,000,000 bond issue for a new privately owned pulp mill. When the report is received the legislature will be called into session, Premier Joey Smallwood has said, adding it would be early in the new year."

IRON FOR JAPAN

Newfoundland also expects debate on Premier Smallwood's plan to sign contracts with Japanese interests for sale of iron ore from projects proposed for Labrador.

British Columbia is looking to final approval of the Columbia River treaty under which the province will sell its downstream power benefits to the United States while going ahead with its own hydro development on the northern Peace River. Also being considered is possible use of the Fraser River for power.

In Prince Edward Island, a municipal affairs act, the province's first, is expected to be introduced.

Rising education costs in Nova Scotia will be mainly responsible for an expected boost to $108,794,000 from $100,432,000 in the provincial budget. A royal commission has been studying the cost of borrowing money in the province and is expected to make its report in the coming session. During last fall's election campaign Premier Robert Stanfield promised there would be no tax increases.

In New Brunswick another commission has been studying municipal finances and taxation. Its report is expected before the legislature meets, prompting debate and perhaps some legislation.

Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec has promised provincial portable pensions legislation which will include using accumulated capital for provincial development.

In Ontario, a budget of between $1,400,000,000 and $1,500,000,000 is in prospect. Debate is expected to be heated on medical care insurance. A new Liberal leader will be chosen to succeed John Wintermeyer who quit after his personal defeat in the election last year that saw Premier John Robarts return with an increased majority.

Finances are major issues on the Prairies. Manitoba may have to impose retail sales taxes to meet rising costs. The province, along with Saskatchewan, is considering the question of financing Roman Catholic separate high schools. Alberta is planning to provide low-income groups with payment of medical insurance premiums.

Other major items coming up for debate in the legislatures include:

Newfoundland: Lowering the voting age from 21, though not necessarily to 18.

P.E.I.: Revision of the Highway Traffic Act, higher civil service salaries and adjustment of the island's liquor laws.

Nova Scotia: Establishment of a ministry of fisheries and study of a royal commission report on school bus safety.

New Brunswick: Electoral reform, possibly including a redistribution of constituencies in line with population shifts.

Quebec: Establishment of an education ministry and re-enactment of the provincial labor code following public hearings last year.

Ontario: New laws governing sale of used cars, and stiffer licensing regulations for dealers.

Manitoba: Revision of the Manitoba Companies Securities Act, financial assistance for hospitals, financial aid for parochial schools, and study of religious education in public schools.

Saskatchewan: Revision of land expropriation laws, an investigation of child care on Indian reserves, and possibly a plan to let cities share in taxes paid by industries located just outside their borders.

Alberta: Legislation to require lending agencies to state clearly the interest rate and service charge they make in contracts, and revision of the Landlord and Tenants Act and the Land Titles Act to bring them into line with modern urban growth.

British Columbia: Opposition demands for more social workers in the province, which now has fewer than it did 10 years ago.

Increasing Use Thermal Power Is Predicted

By RUSSELL FEDEN

MONTREAL (CP) — Increasing use of thermal power plants to fill Canada's electricity needs was forecast Monday by D. A. Hansen, president of the Canadian Electrical Association.

Mr. Hansen, general sales manager of Calgary Power Limited, made the prediction at a press conference opening the CEA's eastern zone.

"Thirty years ago, nobody thought that Ontario Hydro would be getting into thermal power for a major part of its needs," he said. "Canada still has a staggering volume of electric power available in remote places that can be generated very cheaply.

"But depending on the distance and the amount of power transmitted, the transmission costs could be greater than generating costs."

Mr. Hansen announced that Canada's output of electric power increased by five per cent to 27,000,000 kilowatts in 1963.

Of the 1,219,000 kilowatts added last year, 785,000 were from hydro-electric plants and 434,000 from thermal plants.

PLAN MORE

Some 1,349,000 kilowatts of new capacity were to be commissioned in 1964, and most of this would be thermal. Included in the total was the 200,000-kilowatt nuclear plant at Douglas Point, Ont.

In generating larger units of power, "nuclear reactors are becoming more and more competitive with other fuels," Mr. Hansen said.

Transmitting power from large, remote hydro-electric developments involved the use of extremely high voltages in power lines. Such lines "are being or will be constructed in all provinces."

Last year, Ontario Hydro commissioned 450 miles of 500,000-volt power line and Quebec Hydro was building a line to Montreal from the distant Manicouagan project that would operate at 735,000 volts—highest in the hemisphere.

Mr. Hansen said all problems associated with extremely high voltage transmission have been "thoroughly licked."

However, consumption of electricity was increasing at a terrific rate. The economic hydro-electric sites in Canada would be developed "in our lifetime," and thermal power plants would have to handle any further increase.

Lynx Shot In Denmark

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Four men out to shoot foxes on the island of Falster had the surprise of their lives Monday as they closed in on a thicket of spruce and fir trees.

There jumped a lynx, an animal not known to have lived in Denmark for several hundred years and practically extinct here since the Stone Age.

Stunned, three of the men forgot to raise their guns, but Ernst Pedersen, a carpenter from the town of Gedser, hesitated for only a second, then fired and killed the animal with one shot.

Zoologists expressed disbelief at the first reports of the lynx, but Monday night experts confirmed it was really a lynx, and a big male one, too. The dead animal was dispatched to the Aarhus, Jutland, Zoological Museum.

The last known killing of a lynx in Denmark was in 1610.

Zoologists presume the lynx killed Monday came to Denmark in the winter of 1962 when ice closed the straits between Sweden, northern Germany and the Danish isles.

SUPPLIES SANDSTONE

SHEDIAC, N.B. (CP) — A quarrying firm here is supplying the 17,000 square feet of sandstone required to finish the exterior of the Fathers of Confederation building being constructed at Charlottetown. Smith Quarry buys the sandstone from a Wallace, N.S. quarry and ships it by truck to the P.E.I. capital.

STUDIES HISTORY THROUGH GUNS — Syd White, 49, of Winnipeg has collected more than 80 firearms from various historical periods. He says his chief enjoyment in the 11 years he has been collecting them has been in studying their history.

Winnipeg Man Uses Guns As Guide to History Study

WINNIPEG (CP) — Syd White's hobby is studying his tory through guns.

The 49-year-old Winnipeg actuarial consultant has accumulated more than 80 firearms in the 11 years he has been collecting them, and he says each has a story to tell.

"My main interest is in the research and history of them," he said, pointing to a wall lined with dusky gunmetal and flintlocks.

"They've been used to oppress people; they've been used to liberate people. I'm interested in the effects these particular weapons had on the battles they were used in and their influence on the course of history."

He gestured toward shelves of books—some of them hundreds of years old—all dealing with guns and their history.

"I read them as I get them and then use them for reference."

A native of Sydney, Australia, Mr. White is an employee benefits consultant with a national firm here.

His collection ranges from early flintlock muskets and carbines through the percussion era to modern military arms and includes such items as colt revolvers issued to Canadian militia units and used during the Fenian Raids.

One of his treasures is a polished wooden case with a set of Manton dueling pistols made in 1817 by Joseph Manton, a leading British gunsmith.

Judge Reserves Decision in Civil Action

PICTON (Staff) — After listening to the testimony of several witnesses in a day and a half, the Honorable Mr. Justice E. G. Moorhouse reserved judgment in the Supreme Court hearing of the civil damage suit between the plaintiffs, Jesse Mason of Picton, and Marie Kurth of Napanee, vs. the H. J. Heinz Co. of Canada Ltd., the defendant.

The statements of damages, and out-of-pocket expenses of the plaintiffs came in for very careful scrutiny by Mr. K. A. Flanigan, the defendant's attorney.

Mr. Justice Moorhouse said he would have his judgment ready in ten days.

SETS A RECORD

Teresa Fletcher, skipping her rink at the Prince Edward Curling Club, wound up on the losing end of a 22-0 score in the Ladies' Draw on Monday.

"Now I know how it feels to be really walloped," she said with a big grin. "At least, I have set a new record for the club," she added.

Mrs. Buchanan, Burned in Fire, Dies in Hospital

PICTON (Staff) — Mrs. Ross Buchanan, 28, injured in the December 7th fire which took the life of her seven-year-old son and destroyed the family's home, died in Kingston hospital on Tuesday.

The fire took the life of seven-year-old Louis John Buchanan and seriously injured the mother.

The Buchanan home was located on the Glenora Road two-and-a-half miles east of Picton.

Johnson Given Stereo Set Through Baker

WASHINGTON (AP) — A local insurance agent has sworn to Senate investigators that in 1959 he gave a stereo set costing more than $500 to Lyndon B. Johnson at the suggestion of former Senate aid Robert G. Baker.

President Johnson at that time was the Senate Democratic leader and Baker was secretary to the Senate Democratic majority.

The story of the gift of the stereo set was told to the Senate rules committee in a closed session by Don R. Reynolds, who described Baker as associated with his insurance agency. The committee made the testimony public Tuesday.

Reynolds said he paid $342.25 for the stereo set and another $42.50 to have it installed in Johnsons home. He also told about a $200,000 insurance policy issued on Johnsons life.

Along with the transcript of Reynolds testimony, the committee made public a statement from Walter Jenkins, a close associate of the president, saying he was informed that "the alleged gift of a record player to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson . . . was a present from Robert G. Baker."

Baker resigned under fire Oct. 7 from his $19,600-a-year Senate post. The committee is investigating whether he engaged in outside business dealings that conflicted with his official duties or involved other improprieties.

The White House said it was clear from the committee record that Johnson "never had any conversation with Mr. Reynolds about the record player and considered it a gift from a long-time employee." Press Secretary Pierre Salinger added that Johnson gave the stereo set to one of his household employees some time ago.

SEEKS HELP FROM U.S. — This is Chief Fenghuhu, Kelabit tribal leader of 3,000 people of the Tamabo Mountains of Borneo. The tribe, consisting of former headhunters, are caught in the midst of an undeclared war along the Malaysian - Indonesian border. Chief Penghuhu, through Conrad Fink Associated Press writer, sends a special message to President Johnson. "Tell your chief the Kelabit people would like to live in peace and not war," he says. "If he can stop the trouble along our border the Kelabit people will be his friends." (AP Wirephoto)

'We Need Help' Says Ex-Headhunter Converted to Peace

By CONRAD FINK

BARIO, Malaysia (AP)—A special message to President Johnson from high in the Tamabo Mountains of Borneo: The chief Penghuhu wants your help.

"We have heard the United States of America is a mighty and kind," the Kelabit tribal leader told this Associated Press reporter. "Tell your chief we need help."

The chief Penghuhu and his 3,000 people, former headhunters only recently introduced to the 20th century, are caught in the midst of an undeclared war along the Malaysian-Indonesian border.

British troops have moved into Kalabit jungle hunting grounds about 400 miles northeast of Kuching, Sarawak, to defend against terrorist bands attacking across the border from Indonesia.

The Kelabits are afraid to go into the jungle.

U.S. military strength is fabled in the Tamabo Mountains because in the closing days of the Second World War an American plane parachuted rifles to the Kelabits, who launched a fierce attack on Japanese troops.

There were many rifles floating down from the sky," the chief said with a smile. "I caught three Japanese officers."

COLLECTED FEW HEADS

The chief, about 57 as near as anybody can guess, also has several heads to his credit. They were taken with knives during tribal conflicts before the war.

"We once were a fierce people, but now we can think only of peace and happiness," he said.

The British, who formerly controlled North Borneo and now defend it under an agreement with Malaysia, have decorated the Penghuhu four times. On special occasions he dons his bemedalled uniform and the tribesmen bring out their 19 - year - old American carbines.

The Kelabits live in huge communal long houses on both sides of the Malaysian-Indonesian border and are greatly disturbed at being told that their relatives live in enemy territory.

Their confusion at being involved in the war they do not understand is typical of the reaction of tribesmen throughout Sarawak and Sabah, which with Malaya and Singapore form the Malaysian federation.

President Sukarno of Indonesia has sworn to crush Malaysia, and there have been a number of terrorist raids which the British say are backed by Indonesia.

Rabbi Leiner Wins Action Against Police

TORONTO (CP)—Eight Metropolitan Toronto policemen have agreed to an out-of-court settlement in a civil action brought against them by a New York City rabbi.

Austin Cooper, counsel for Rabbi Norman Michael Leiner, said Tuesday the agreement had been reached and included a letter of apology from Toronto Police Chief James Machery.

Although Mr. Cooper declined to disclose the amount of money in the settlement, it was learned from another source that Rabbi Leiner agreed to accept $4,000.

The rabbi claimed in the suit he was unlawfully arrested, falsely imprisoned, detained in custody and assaulted. His injuries, he said, included nervous shock, bruises, sprain and a broken rib.

He was arrested Jan. 26, 1962, on a charge vagrancy in an area where police were searching for a suspected pervert.

After his release, he claimed he had been beaten. His charges were investigated by a royal commission under Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells who found the rabbi had been arrested unlawfully but that both he and the police were at fault.

Named in the suit were Det. Sgt. Alvin Spencer, Det. William Patterson, Probationary Detective Harold Nash and Constables Robert Sharpe, Edward Mullen, Raymond Fast, Roy Lawson and Alexander Greenway.

Russian Girl Able to 'See' With Fingers

LONDON (Reuters) — Russian scientists say they have proved a 23 - year - old girl, Rona Kuleshova, can see with her fingertips, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

A Soviet oculist, Prof. Rfim Rabkin, told Tass that under scientific test conditions and blind-folded, the girl correctly identified different colors in a spectro - anomaloscope by applying her fingertips to the eyepiece.

The spectro - anomaloscope can show colors of the spectrum from red to violet. A normal person can only see these colors in the instrument when pressing the eye to the small eyepiece.

The professor said the phenomena of seeing through the fingertips, though now established, remained a mystery. However he believed the skin of Miss Kuleshova's palms and fingertips might contain light - sensitive elements in which light radiations induced photochemical processes.

RCMP Saddle Given LBJ By Pearson

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson now has an RCMP saddle to add to the collection at his LBJ ranch in Texas.

The saddle was presented to the U.S. president before a dinner at the home of Canada Ambassador Charles Ritchie when the Johnsons and the Pearsons exchanged gifts.

"We know what a wonderful horseman you are," Pearson told Johnson as the gifts were exchanged.

"I'm a good one to give this present—I never rode a horse in my life," Pearson added with a smile.

Reputation of Tanganyika Is Smeared by Bloodshed

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bloodshed in the streets of Dar es Salaam has smeared Tanganyika's reputation as a model of peaceful post-colonial development.

No clear cause for this week's army mutiny has emerged from the confused reports being received in London. The position of President Julius Nyerere, although officially reported safe, remains uncertain.

Most observers are agreed, however, that if Nyerere goes then the chances of moderation prevailing are diminished.

In the two years since Tanganyikan independence from Britain, the 40-year-old British-educated president has earned the respect of Negro and white alike as a "quiet nationalist" amid the turbulent extremes of African politics.

Under his guidance Tanganyika has, until now, stood out in proud contrast to the chaos that followed the premature transfer of power in the Belgian Congo.

VIEWS DIFFER

Some commentators see the mutiny as "purely an army matter," an ill-disciplined protest against white officers and poor pay conditions. Others trace a connection with the recent coup in Zanzibar and detect a Communist-backed plot to take over the whole of East Africa.

The timing of the mutiny, with 200 Tanganyika police flown up in Zanzibar, suggests the mutineers were at least in collusion with the new Zanzibar leaders, but the Communist theory seems alarmist at this stage.

All previous Communist attempts to grasp power in Africa have failed, largely because the African leaders are more concerned with budding nationalism than political ideology.

If the Tanganyika revolt is the work of any political force in a minority group's impatience with Nyerere at his difficulty in finding fast answers to the national's economic problems.

SECURITY FORCES NEEDED

The mutiny seems to have caught Nyerere unawares and demonstrates the need for strong security services in newly-independent countries. Many African leaders, in their haste, have dismissed security forces as an unnecessary hangover from the days of white rule.

The lesson of Tanganyika and Zanzibar will likely be heeded by Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta's new government, politically intrigue fanned by tribal rivalries is a constant threat to the government.

The best long-term hope for stability in East Africa is to speed up negotiations on federation among Kenya, Uganda, Tanganyika and Zanzibar. This could forestall future moves by militant minorities.

ASKS REVIEW

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government urged a federal court of appeals Tuesday to reconsider a decision by three of its judges overturning the conviction of the American Communist party for failure to registering as agent of the Soviet Union. The justice department asked that all nine judges of the U.S. Court of Appeals here review the 2-1 decision handed down Dec. 17, reversing the year-old conviction of the party.

Marcel Chaput To Do Research For Separatists

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Chaput has resigned as president of the Quebec Republican Party, apparently to become the philosopher of the separatist movement.

Ending a 63-day fast Monday night, Mr. Chaput said he was resigning at the request of the party executive and of a committee of 23 persons "of good will" who had told him he would be more useful to the separatist cause fully alive than half dead.

He planned to devote himself to research, study and writing in the field of separatist doctrine.

"I have worked full time for two years for separatism," he said. "I left a well paying job to do so, and now I leave the leadership without a penny in my pocket. I hope my friends will help me for a while."

He said the fast raised $22,000 for the Republican party, which he founded in December, 1962, and which he had once hoped to lead in the next Quebec election on an independence platform.

IS SECOND FAST

The objective of the fund-raising fast, he second in less than a year, had been $50,000. He raised $10,000 in a 33-day fast last summer.

Mr. Chaput lived on water and fruit juice during the 63-day fast. His first meal on ending the fast was a bowl of tomato soup and a cup of tea.

He said he has a man in mind to succeed him as party leader so he cannot reveal his name because the man's present position does not allow him to publicly himself with the separatist movement.

Other party sources said it will be up to the executive to decide whether the party can be led by a man whose identity would remain a secret to all but two or three members.

Mr. Chaput has a doctorate in biochemistry from McGill University. He left a job with the Defence Research Board in 1962 to espouse the Quebec separatist cause.

Before setting up a political party he belonged to Le Rallie-ment pour l'Independance Nationale (national independence rally), a group that believes separatist efforts at this stage should be concentrated on education rather than political action.

Subsequent efforts by Mr. Chaput to unify the separatist movement were rejected by RIN leaders, who said he is not sufficiently conscious of social problems.

MAKE SUBSTITUTION

ZANZIBAR (Reuters) — Zanzibar's new revolutionary government has substituted Kiswahili for English as the country's official language. The government has ratified an order of the Afro-Arab-dominated government it toppled Jan. 12 which made English the official language.

Opposition Turned Back By Vote in Move to Have Compulsory Medical Care

TORONTO (CP) — Liberals joined with New Democrats in supporting a government - operated compulsory medical care scheme Tuesday but were turned back by the Conservative government of Premier Robarts in a 62-to-27 vote in the legislature.

Premier Robarts scheduled debate on the resolution in a surprise move, then added to the surprise of the two opposition parties by speaking on the motion himself. Mr. Robarts derided any idea of compulsion in medical care.

In the first full-scale debate that the house has taken part in at this session, the premier said he has no doubt that the government's medical care bill introduced during the last legislature will be changed before it again reaches the house floor.

Much had been made out of the fact that the bill had been put before an independent committee, he said. However, this was the same method the government had used successfully in introducing its hospital insurance scheme.

The resolution was sponsored by Stephen Lewis, the freshman NDP member from Scarborough West. Mr. Lewis said a voluntary, privately - administered, government - sponsored medical care plan simply could not do the job.

FORCE COMPULSION

But Mr. Roberts said his government did not believe in compulsion. "We believe in the right of the individual," he said. "We don't believe in taking away every choice he has left."

The premier expressed astonishment that the Liberal party was supporting the NDP resolution. "I am delighted to find out that the policy of the Liberals coincided with that of the NDP," he said. "It's the first time I've found out what the Liberal party really thought."

Speaking for the Liberals was J. B. Trotter of Parkdale, who said that the profit of insurance companies would have to be taken out of medical insurance plans before the people of Ontario were to enjoy good health.

He called the Conservative bill "regressive legislation" that treated the public with contempt. "We of the Liberal party support this (NDP) resolution and feel it should be acted upon forthwith," Mr. Trotter said.

Mr. Lewis said in his maiden speech in the legislature that the right of the people of Ontario to have public-administered medical care was "a right and inviolable as the guarantee of education."

WILL FORCE DIVISION

He said a private plan would impose class distinction, necessitating a division of the population into first and second class citizens.

It was inconsistent for the government to supervise a plan allowing private insurance companies to make a profit out of health, Mr. Lewis said.

He suggested that the Hagey committee, appointed by the government to undertake what it called a medical services inquiry into inquiry, was there only to present a "congenial façade."

Mr. Lewis's contention that a plan similar to Saskatchewan's should be adopted in Ontario was supported by Mr. Trotter. "We have to face the facts," the Liberal member said. "The plan in Saskatchewan is succeeding."

Premier Robarts said the Liberals had made too such remarks during the last election campaign. "Having listened to (Mr. Trotter) I can only wonder if he speaks for all Liberals," the premier said.

Mr. Roberts said the medical care plan was developing much as the government had hoped it would. The bill had been referred to a committee in order to let the people of Ontario have their say.

"I haven't a doubt in the world that it will be changed before it comes on the floor of the house again."

Union Trustees Will Keep Watchful Eye on Seminar Planned by Marine Union

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's marine union trustees will keep a watchful eye on a three-day "educational seminar" planned next month in Toronto by the Canadian Maritime Union (CLC).

The trustees are expected to have a representative attend all sessions of the special school—including the final day when a proposal to be tabled in the hammered out for a new 1964 contract with Upper Lakes Shipping Company of Toronto.

This was the company that broke with the maverick Seafarers' international Union of Canada (Ind.) in 1962 and set off the events that led to the appointment of the three-man board of trustees over the SIU, the CMU and three other waterfront unions.

The CMU's contract with Upper Lakes involves 14 ships and about 450 seamen, expires April 6. Contract demands may be served anytime after Feb. 4.

About 25 seamen off ships connected with Upper Lakes expected to attend the CMU school —first of its kind ever tried by the fledgling union set up by the CLC to provide Canadian sailors with an alternative union to the SIU.

MARKED BY VIOLENCE

The battle between the SIU and the CMU in the last few years was marked by violence, gunshots, boycotts and terror and led to a federal investigation of waterfront labor turmoil by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris of Vancouver. He recommended the trusteeship as a way of cleaning up the situation.

The school starts Feb. 3 with a keynote speech by William Dodge, executive vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress and a leader in the union fight for unions. The SIU and its president, Hal C. Banks, Charles H. Millard, a former trade union leader who is one of the three government trustees, will address the school on the first day.

The school will wind up with the election of a negotiating committee to meet officials from Upper Lakes shipping.

Under the federal trusteeship law, the trustees play an advisory role in the collective bargaining process.

Appointed last October, the three - man trusteeship sought early this year to steer shipowners and the five unions under their control into industry-wide collective bargaining.

The effort, however, collapsed when shipowners decided to negotiate separately for the time being at least.

Two Charged With Slaying Are Remanded

TORONTO (CP) — Two suburban North York men charged with the brutal slaying of Richard Spence, 18, during the weekend were Tuesday remanded to Jan. 28 on charges of capital murder.

Thomas Elley, 21, and Neil Collins, 20, were arrested in their homes Monday, eight following a tip to Det. Leonard Simpson. Both live within two blocks of where Spence's battered body was found. Police seized a five-foot length of 18-inch plank and a knife.

Spence was battered on the head and stabbed several times in the chest. Police believe he was then thrown down an embankment of a partially - completed expressway. His body was discovered by a nearby resident, Jaje Heiskala, who was out for a Sunday stroll.

Spence was released from Guelph Reformatory Saturday after serving a four-month sentence for breaking and entering.

MOOSE PLENTIFUL

An aerial census in 1958-59 estimated Ontario's moose population as 125,000 animals, believed its largest in history.

Ten Eskimo Youths Learn Fast at Military School

CHILLIWACK, B.C. (CP) — Ten teen-agers, who had never seen traffic, paved roads, tall buildings or television, are wheeling trucks and bulldozers around at Canada's only school of military engineering.

The 10 Eskimo boys range in age from 17 to 20 and as they learn from their army instructors so are the people around them learning.

For example, although their English is limited, they explain that few Eskimos today live in igloos. Few know how to build them. They live in houses and seldom use kayaks. They travel in boats propelled by outboard motors and travel over the snow by motor-driven vehicles rather than behind dogs.

The youths are not in the army. They have been sent here from their Arctic homes by the department of northern affairs to learn skills to help them in the 20th century north. When they go back it will be as mechanics, truck drivers and operators of bulldozers to keep the airstrips clear of snow.

Cpl. Wilfred Figgitt, army instructor, says he has never had students who learned so quickly.

"The Eskimos catch on fast," he says. "Most of them were driving trucks within three days."

After watching it done once, all 10 made perfect splices in steel cable.

C. E. Harris, northern affairs official in charge of the project, says that prior to their arrival here none had seen grass or any of the various types of fruit and berries grown locally. An abortive attempt to eat a horse chestnut resulted in a lecture on food.

They call their barracks-block "big house" and when they arrived last October they found it too hot. They asked permission to sleep outside on the ground.

Hunting and fishing restrictions mystify them, especially Mosessee Kayak from Pond Inlet, northernmost member of the group.

The 19-year-old's dextrous hands are scarred badly as a result of a childish attempt to skin his first kill—a seal he knocked over at the age of nine. By the time he killed his first polar bear, at the age of 10, he had learned how to handle his skinning knife.

All speak similar dialects, at least they sound equally incomprehensible to their army instructors. All 10 are homesick.

They recorded Christmas messages in their native tongue to their families, but they ended them with "Merry Christmas" in English.

They arrived in northern trading-post dress—but here they work in army fatigues and coveralls. Officials watched them closely for signs of influenza, but outside of a few colds, the change in climate hasn't affected them.

They have taken to a southern diet of pork chops, but they retain their taste for raw fish.

Their average education level is Grade 3.

"This is only a reflection on the distance between their homes and schools and their ability to get there under adverse conditions," Mr. Harris says.

"It's no criterion of their native intelligence."

POLICY ON POLICIES

ST. HYACINTHE, Que. (CE) — Only French - Canadian firms need apply, the city of St. Hyacinthe stipulated in calling for tenders on life insurance policies to cover its 100 employees. City employees formerly were insured under group plans with U.S. companies.

TO INSTALL SIGNS

WINNIPEG (CP)—The CNR has announced plans to install reflectorized cross-arm warning signs at 23 grade crossings between Armstrong, Ont., and Biggar, Sask., during 1964. The rail-way installed 483 of the new signs at crossings in the Prairie region in 1963.

TRYING AGAIN

DORSET, England (CP) — Thousands of salmon were bred with two heads when a hatchery attempted restocking of the Hampshire Avon last year. So a new attempt is to be made, this time using a filter to eliminate water impurities blamed for the deformities.

SAFETY LESSONS

ENFIELD, England (CP)—School children in Middlesex are to be given "kiss-of-life" instructions as part of first aid lessons. The mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration instruction will be through films, talks and demonstrations, follo wed by practice on a model.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TRANSFER SHARES

Redemption of six per cent convertible subordinated debentures of Home Oil Co. Ltd. has resulted in 682,521 shares of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. being transferred to debenture holders, the firm said Monday. Debenture holders had the option of receiving $1,072.62 in cash for each $1,000 in debentures held or Trans-Canada stock at $27 a share.

LEAVES COMMITTEE

Gen. Howard Graham, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, has resigned from a provincial government committee set up to investigate the Ontario securities business, it was reported Monday.

SALES INCREASE

Sales by chain stores in November increased 8.6 per cent in value to an estimated $337,906,000 from $329,636,000 in the same month of 1962, the bureau of statistics said Monday. With gains in all preceding months of the year except March, sales in the first 11 months of 1963 advanced 5.3 per cent to $3,459,462,000 from $3,284,943,000 a year earlier.

RESCINDS INCREASE

Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corp. said Monday it is rescinding its increase in the price of aluminum ingot, following the decision by Aluminum Co. of America not to raise its prices. Reynolds Metals Co., which initiated the increase Thursday, had no immediate comment. It was expected to rescind as well.

New Telescope For Astronomers

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian astronomers have won another round in their battle to restore this country to its former position of eminence in the field of astronomy.

The federal government has agreed to consider representations by astronomers in government and the universities for construction of a powerful new optical telescope on a Rocky Mountain site in either British Columbia or Alberta.

A brief outlining the need for a new telescope and proposing one with a reflecting mirror at least 150 inches in diameter has been presented to the government by the Dominion Observatory. It is expected to be considered by cabinet in the near future.

The proposed new telescope would be among the most powerful in the world. It would compare favorably with the world's largest optical telescope at Mount Palomar, Cal., which has a reflector 200 inches in diameter.

Estimated cost of the proposed telescope would be about $10,000,000. However, this expenditure would be spread over six or seven years, the time it would take to complete construction.

OPENS UP NORTH

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—More than 3,000 miles of roads have been built in the park and forest regions of Saskatchewan's northland since the founding of the natural resources department's construction branch. The roads have opened up timber, fishing and tourist areas, as well as providing ready access to fire hazard areas.

Canada's Top Weatherman, P. D. McTaggart, Takes on B. C. University Presidency

By JOHN LeBLANC

TORONTO (CP) — As Canada's top weatherman for four years, Patrick D. McTaggart-Cowan has become used to seeing the outlook change suddenly. He also has the forecaster's habit of sticking his neck out.

The two attributes help explain why he had abruptly shifted from the job of Dominion Meteorologist to the presidency of British Columbia's new Simon Fraser University and why the university is going to try some switches from academic orthodoxy.

Like the forecaster, he expects to make mistakes. But he counts on the advantage, from now on, of being able to do something about it effectively, unlike the weatherman with a "fair and warm" prediction on his hands and a storm blowing up.

If the transition from weatherman to the inner circle of higher education seems startling, it is not shocking so in the case of this studious 51-year-old scientist, a Rhodes Scholar in his youth and a man with an impressive record of getting things—especially new things—done.

OPENS IN 1965

And they don't come any newer than Simon Fraser University, named after the explorer who expanded the fur trade west of the Rockies in the early 19th century. Its campus perched on the very ridge of Burnaby Mountain near Vancouver will not take in its first students until the fall of 1965.

There are intriguing possibilities," said Dr. McTaggart-Cowan as he packed for a homecoming trip to Vancouver, his first Canadian home. Born in Edinburgh, he was brought to Vancouver as an infant and lived there until he graduated from University of British Columbia in 1934.

At UBC Dr. Gordon Shrum, a professor of physics, inspired him with an enthusiasm for science that led to his graduating from Oxford with an honors degree in what the atomic age calls nuclear physics.

Dr. Shrum, a big name internationally in meteorology, recommended him for his first job with the Dominion Meteorological Service in 1936. Twenty-seven years later, as Simon Fraser's chancellor, he was able to offer his former star pupil the presidency of the new university.

LECTURED AT UBC

It was, incidentally, under the eye of Dr. Shrum that Dr. McTaggart-Cowan had his one and only teaching experience. He lectured for a semester in physics at UBC before going to Oxford.

After some months in the British weather office at Croydon, he went in 1937 to Newfoundland, where he organized a weather service for commercial transatlantic flights then being carried on experimentally.

This proved the keystone of the vital wartime ferrying of planes from North America to Britain, and between 1942 and the end of the war he was chief meteorological officer of the RAF Ferry Command at Dorval, Que.

This brought him membership in the Order of the British Empire, and he also has received the Coronation Medal and the Robert M. Losey Award from the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences for "outstanding contributions to the science of meteorology as applied to aeronautics."

After a post-war period with the provisional International Civil Air Organization, he became assistant director and chief of the met branch's forecast division in 1957 and in 1959 became director. His resignation went into effect Jan. 1.

READS AVIDLY

"I really loved that job though I'm drawn by the challenge of the new one," he said amid a clutter of packed household effects and moving men in his home at Thornhill, just north of Toronto, an hour's bus, subway and streetcar run from his downtown office.

He used to use the two hours of daily commuting to catch up on his reading of 100 scientific publications a month. A longer run—70 miles—took him to a 200-acre farm he bought in 1957 in the Muskoka area where he mixed small - game shooting, swimming, fishing, skiing and golfing, along with gardening at home.

Looking back on his years in the weather service, he said its big problem is lack of personnel.

WEATHERMAN BECOMES COLLEGE PRESIDENT — Patrick D. McTaggart-Cowan, 51, resigned effective Jan. 1 as Canada's top weatherman to become president of British Columbia's new Simon Fraser University at Vancouver. Dr. McTaggart - Cowan, Dominion Meteorologist for four years, is a former Rhodes Scholar, graduating from Oxford University with an honors degree in physics. (CP Photo)

Canada's appalling" shortage of mathematics and physics graduates — probably the worst among the developed countries — was reflected sharply in the service.

PROJECTS DELAYED

We have a long list of demands that we can't meet for lack of men," he said. One of these was a project with the Ontario lands and forests department aimed at a closer tie in between forecasting and forest fire prevention.

We undertook five years ago to do this in British Columbia and are only filling the commitment this year by killing an other job," he said. This is wicked, in view of the value of the forest industry."

At his new university, he's hoping to do something about the shortage of scientists. He has ideas of fusing the studies of such allied subjects as biology, zoology and botany and for focusing a number of sciences—possibly physics, chemistry, biology and mathematics—on a single research project.

As a Scot, he has an eye on the economics of such consolidation. And working for the government," he notes, has taught me a healthy respect for the taxpayers' money."

PLAN SPEEDUP

A Simon Fraser departure from academic orthodoxy will be a year-round operation with three four - month semesters. The trimester system will enable the capable and willing student to get through the normal four-year course in less than three.

To help further in speeding things up, students will be offered an opening course in fast reading and study habits.

Plans are to turn the study of modern languages upside down, stressing the spoken word ahead of literature.

It makes me sad that while I can read French well I can only just talk it, and with a fair degree of self-consciousness," Dr. McTaggart-Cowan said.

I expect we'll be making some mistakes," the president said. But we intend to stay flexible and, adaptable, and we'll try to correct them fast."

One innovation he's sure won't be a mistake. His weatherman's eye rocked on coastal B.C.'s damp skies tells him the university's 900 - car underground parking lot with enclosed accesses just can't miss.

Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — Bemersyde Chapter, IODE, held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. F. G. DeCarroll on Thursday evening, with the regent, Mrs. George Vice, presiding.

As the fiscal years draws to a close the reports were in part a summing up of the year's work, although formal reports will not be heard until the next meeting.

The regent, Mrs. Vice, expressed her appreciation of the keen interest shown in chapter work as was in evidence by the large group, when 49 members were in attendance.

Some discussion took place concerning the positive establishment of the Red Ensign as the official Canadian flag. Members were asked to write individual letters to the local Member of Parliament, asking that this be done. Mrs. Murray Locke, standard bearer, spoke on this issue.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

Public relations convener, Mrs. R. Bennett in her report reminded the members that February 13th will be the 64th anniversary of the founding of the IODE. There are now 976 chapters and from the first small group of women who supplied clothes for the soldiers in the Boer War they are now a national voluntary organization raising over $1,000,000 for education, emergency welfare and other community services.

Over $350,000 is spent annually and activities in the educational field now include school adoption programs from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Arctic to the Caribbean. There are 62 schools and eight hostels in Yukon and North West Territories and 42 schools in Northern and Southern Labrador. Bemersyde Chapter has an adopted school in Jamaica.

The IODE program also includes work with Eskimos and Indians and sponsors students from undeveloped countries who wish to further their education in the Western hemisphere.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM

The educational program includes scholarships and bursaries, some valued at $2,000. The Lucy Morrisch Memorial Fund used to assist students in higher education constitutes a real contribution to the cause of education in this province and as long as it can be maintained will have a profound influence on the future of young people in Ontario. The details of this work were given by Mrs. F. M. Rutherford, educational secretary.

Nomination for provincial counsellor was Mrs. J. O. Bennor, Campbellford. Mrs. Bennor has represented this area as provincial counsellor for the past few years. For national counsellor, the nominee was Mrs. Donald Murray of Peterborough.

A committee was named for the dinner to be held soon. This includes Mrs. R. Anderson, Mrs. J. Trimble, Mrs. E. Hendricks, Mrs. D. Carswell, Mrs. M. Donald, Miss Carol MacArthur, Mrs. A. Burgis, Mrs. D. Meyers.

NOMINATING COMMITTEE

A nominating committee was named as follows: Mrs. E. Hendricks, Mrs. S. Clegg, Mrs. A. L. Malcolm.

Groups have completed their projects for the year and new groups will be organized in February. At the close of the meeting Group 4 served lunch.

The next meeting will be held on February 20th at the home of Mrs. D. Carswell.

Mrs. R. Douglas thanked the hostess, Mrs. F. G. DeCarroll, for opening her home.

RAISED $787,388

OTTAWA (CP)—The Unitarian Service Committee of Canada raised $787,388 for overseas relief in 1963, Executive Director Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova reported in her annual review Monday. The total includes $467,945 in gifts-in-kind such as new and used clothing, dental equipment, soap, safety pins and other articles obtained from 25 USC depots across the country.

TOKYO (CP)—The eager Canadian exporter sees Japan as a country for conquest—one that devours raw materials and foodstuffs with the appetite of an army of Sumo wrestlers.

The Japanese manufacturer, whether he is producing transistor units or huge turbines, or maybe bolts, looks on Canada as an ideal outlet for the finished goods his country must sell abroad to survive as an industrial power.

An ideal marriage of complementary economies? In many ways it is.

One side is Canada with its abundance of natural resources, products of forest and farm. On the other side is Japan with its 95,000,000 people to feed, its mass-production techniques and its enormous pool of skilled labor.

But even ideal marriages have their tiffs, and they can get out of hand if one partner sits sulking on a tatami mat while the other lounges sullenly on a Westernstyle settee.

The Japanese aren't sulking, far from it, but they do feel their position isn't fully understood by Canadians. Canada also has a wronged-partner posture in regard to some Japanese practices.

Trade figures are the big bludgeon in the Japanese arsenal of argument.

LOPSIDED BALANCE

Canada in 1962 exported to Japan goods worth $215,000,000 and in return took goods valued at 125,000,000-ending up $90,000,000 to the good in balance-of-trade sheet.

These are figures tallied by Canada's statisticians. The Japanese, by their reckoning ended up the trade year more than $140,000,000 in the red in dealings with Canada.

The fundamental problem of Japan, which was far down the queue when nature distributed the world's natural resources, is to finance through exports the importation of raw materials needed for industrial expansion and economic progress.

A value equivalent to 23 per cent of Japan's gross national product is involved in foreign trade compared with only seven per cent in the United States with its largely self-contained economy.

The people of Japan must be fed—no mean task, as only 16 per cent of the land area can grow anything. Japan exported $340,000,000 worth of foodstuffs in 1962—here her world-roving fishing fleets played an important part—it had to import to the tune of more than $760,000,000.

In short, catering to the appetite of the Sumo wrestler—the highly favored traditional of Japanese sport—is a waste of time if he can't earn the money to pay for his daily tubs and vats of beer and rice.

FLOOD OF IMPORTS

Trade liberalizations Japan has been obliged to put into effect to fulfill obligations as a member of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and other international tariff and monetary agreements have brought about a flood of imports and worsened a sagging balance-of-payments problem.

Japan has surmounted three major foreign exchange crises in the last decade but the situation remains precarious. Naturally, its trading partners would all buy as much as they sell, the threat would evaporate.

But Canada won't accept the Japanese contention that a balancing of trade accounts between the two countries is a reasonable objective.

For each thing there is the vast difference in size of population. On a per capita basis Canada already buys more from Japan than any other country with the exception of Australia.

Another — In addition to Canada's adherence to the principle of multilateral trade which is the cornerstone of GATT—the major portion of Japanese manufactured goods competes directly with Canadian domestic production.

Canada also is critical of a Japanese tendency to hamstring potential Canadian exports of fully manufactured goods by introducing restrictive tariffs or other devices once quantitative restrictions are removed.

BIGGEST SHIPBUILDER

"There is," said one Canadian source, "widespread suspicion that Japan's domestic industry could stand considerably more competition than it is subjected to."

The fact remains that Canadian-Japanese trade increased tenfold in the years 1950-62. Japan stands third among Canada's export customers. Canada is Japan's sixth-bets market.

Both countries are working hard to erase existing frictions.

Japanese exporters, speaking through the country's great trading firms, say they can avoid harming Canada's domestic producers — while selling more — through a greater diversification of exports coupled with continued voluntary quotas, much as they dislike the latter.

Canada for its part has no objections to a narrowing of the Japanese trade deficit through increased imports from Japan provided this takes place without disruption of Canadian industry.

There is no doubt Canada is dealing with a giant still far from full growth.

Japan is the world's largest producer of ships, rayon staple, cameras, sewing machines and motorcycles. It is the second largest producer of synthetic fibre, television sets and radios and may have already surplanted West Germany as the third-ranking iron and steel producer after the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

WHEAT TOPS IMPORTS

Agricultural products account for more than half of Canada's export total to Japan, with wheat by far the leading single item. Industrial raw materials —such as copper and iron ore, asbestos, lumber, aluminum and woodpulp—make up another 30 per cent of the over-all figure.

Canadian imports consist mainly of fully manufactured goods, textiles accounting for approximately 35 per cent. In a sampling of other principal items are radios and tape recorders, radio and TV tubes, plywood, footwear, and cameras and optical instruments.

There has been a nibble of interest lately in Canadian crude oil as an added export commodity. A market is emerging for feed grains such as barley—Japan still doesn't promise a chicken in every pot but the poultry industry is a going concern.

The food level of the people is getting better," is the way a trading firm official put it.

The Canada-Japan Council, an association of firms interested in expanding Japanese - Canadian trade, makes this prediction on two-way trade potential based on Ottawa's plans to double the gross national income by 1970.

Canada could expand its sales to Japan to $436,000,000 by 1970, mostly in the raw material line . . . Japan's sales to Canada by 1970 could reach $382-500,000, mainly in the finished goods field."

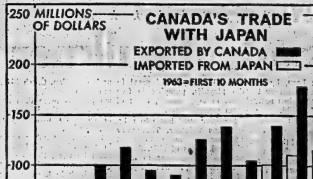
SHREWD SHOPPERS

But to make the prediction come true will require sharp salesmanship on Canada's part. The Japanese are great blenders of raw materials, shrewd shoppers in the international market place.

When Japanese steelmakers reached agreement recently for the purchase of 800,000 tons of coal from Canada annually over a three-year period, they already were peering deeper into the future.

The coal announcement concluded:

Other Canadian deal is expected to affect favorably future negotiations to purchase coal from Australia, the United States, the Soviet Union and Communist China."



The wise businessman coming here to wheel and deal will have to be prepared to drink innumerable cups of green tea before getting down to business. And he had better remember to carry an ample supply of business cards.

Exchanging of cards is part of the great ritual of Japanese courtesy. But more than courtesy is involved.

In the words of one Japanese businessman:

"It is a very practical custom. It enables us to assess immediately a man' professional qualifications and his social status.

Tomorrow: Poverty and wealth in the fishing industry.

JAPAN SEEKS TRADE BALANCE — Trade between Japan and Canada has increased 10-fold between 1950 and 1962, but Japan is unhappy over the lack of balance in these dealings. In 1962, Canada exported goods worth $215,568,000 to Japan, while importing $125,359,000 from that country. Graph covers only first 10 months of 1963. (CP Newsmap).

Must Retain Patients For Teaching

TORONTO (CP) — The medical schools of Ontario expressed concern today that widespread extension of medical insurance might curtail clinical teaching in hospitals.

The faculties of medicine of the universities of Toronto, Western Ontario, Ottawa and Queen's called for safeguards against any deterioration of hospital teaching units in a joint brief to an inquiry committee studying draft legislation for medical services insurance in Ontario.

The schools noted that good medical education requires an adequate supply of patients in the hospital teaching units and top instructors and researchers.

Mindful that patients in teaching units traditionally have been public charity cases and that the draft legislation intends to supply such persons with medical insurance, the schools asked for measures to insure that "the number of available patients for teaching in university hospitals should not be diminished."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Perhaps the most colorful rainbow—dangling the heaviest pot-o'-gold—to flash across the finite firmament since the great John L. "whicky-ed" himself to glory and oblivion may fade into nothingness next month in Miami Beach.

Riding the rainbow to the accompaniment of poetry, music, "little fezes," and the purr of Cadillacs is Cassius Marcellus Clay, a self-appointed "Establishment."

Gaseous Cassius will flutter earthward like a rent-a-car television commercial. And waiting in the wings will be the heavy of this long-awaited bounty-and-the beast classic, one Sonny Liston.

The handsome scion of a Louisvillian cotton-pickin' sire unbeaten in 19 professional fights, is heavily favored to eliminate the human bulldozer from Philly in eight rounds by one Cassius Clay.

But the Clay-dubbed "ugly ole bear," who wears the championship crown has other ideas. He hasn't the slightest intention of letting this doggered-spouting Adonis from the Louisville cottonlands snatch the bauble from his pate.

The personal tantalizing, taunting and teasing by Clay has not gone unnoticed by the powerful Liston. Once he was irked to the point where he told Clay "if you're still around after eight seconds of the first round, I'll give you the fight."

But cocky confident Cassius goes his merry way, quipping quips, chanting roundelays and gushing his endless doggerel.

On the other hand, boxing insiders, wise in their ways of men and the sport who have seen scores of all ilks come and go, talk in quiet tones of the impending tossing of the Clay Christian to the Lions Liston. These tones are usually reserved for the seriously ill or the dead.

They talked in hushed tones of what will happen if one of those mule's hind legs that the champion uses for arms, connects with the C. C. cranium.

The Britisher, Henry Cooper, before he went bye-bye in the fourth round (according to Cassius) plus landed a heavy blow to the Clay noggin which drove him through the ropes causing young Mr. Clay to wonder why he did not get the licence number of the truck that hit him.

As one writer puts it, "Given a shot like that, Liston might actually break the prettiest of heads, one admitedly fragile and unproven in the punch-absorbing department.

"The head," he says, "is irreplacable and ought to be guarded tenderly. Such as keeping hands up in front of it while boxing, a knack as yet unmastered by the Clay organization."

And given a shot like that, the "ugly bear" might make good the only "round" bout he has made. It was the shortest "pome" on record and straight to the point. Quoth Mr. Liston:

"Go in O".

But the rumors insist that Liston who loves a buck where Cassius adores a million, has not been averse to "staging" scenes with the "Lip" to keep the promotional waves breaking on the shores of public interest.

It is said that last November Clay drove up to Liston's home and "awoke" Sonny by shining his auto spotlight on Liston's window. A neighbor called the police. Sonny raced into the street brandishing a cane.

At Liston's camp in Miami Beach, Clay during a self-invited visit babbled at Sonny: "I'm the greatest, man, you're the ugliest and I'm the prettiest. You got to go when we fight."

Liston is supposed to have said "When you ready, you got it. I can leave my legs at home and beat you." Then he appeared to lose his temper, glowered and ordered Clay "Outta here." He stepped through the ropes and cocked a huge fist at Cass who "quickly shut up and jumped out of the way."

Clay's plans after the fight?

"When I get that championship" he is reported as saying, "I'm going to put on my old jeans, and get an old hat and grow a beard. And I'm goin' to walk down the road until I find a little fox (girl) who loves me for what I am. And then I'll take her back to my $250,000 home and I'll show her the Cadillacs and the patio and the indoor pool in case it rains. And I'll tell her: 'this is all yours honey, 'cause you love me for what I am'."

After the two or three million melee in Miami Beach February 25th, the above could be recalled as "famous last words."

Varsity 'Mop' Line Is Broken

TORONTO (CP) — University of Toronto Blues' Mop Line may have played its last intercollegiate hockey game.

The forward trio of Steve Monteith, Sonny Osborne and Ward Passi was split last Saturday when Passi suffered a broken leg in a game against University of Montreal Carabins in Montreal. Doctors say he will be out for the rest of the season.

Termed the "Mop Line" from the first letters of the players' surnames, the group joined forces last season. They finished 1-2-3 in league scoring, accounting for 39 goals and 56 assists in 12 games.

They were selected as a unit on the college all-star team.

Osborne, the centre, graduates from the Ontario College of Education this year, likely ending for good their playing combination in college circles.

Island's Only Full-Blown Hero ★ ★ ★ ★

Newfies Sad; Faulkner Sent Down

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

From the Annieopsquotch Mountains to Little Heart's Ease, the National Hockey League has undoubtedly lost some meaning.

Alec Faulkner was sent down to the minors Tuesday.

Among the good folk of Newfoundland, perhaps only Premier Joey Smallwood could lay claim to as faithful a following as the 27-year-old centre with the spare build and blonde crew-cut.

He was the island's only full-blown sports hero. The weather was of secondary interest over most Newfoundland coffee-tables at breakfast. Everyone wanted to find out whether Alec had picked up any points the previous night.

But Detroit Red Wings apply a criterion other than popularity to their personnel. From a forward they want production. And this hasn't been, by any stretch, a productive season for the affable, quiet-spoken native of Bishop's Falls, Nfld.

DOWN TO HORNETS

Tuesday, Wings sent him to Pittsburgh Hornets of the American Hockey League along with forward Johnny Macmillan, acquired earlier this season from Toronto Maple Leafs.

An injury was a big factor in Faulkner's downfall. He suffered a broken left hand and appeared in only 26 of his club's 43 games to date. Sometimes it's tough to come off the shelf and work back into peak trim.

But in the 26 appearances the record showed he mustered only four goals and seven assists for 11 points.

Wings apparently were counting on bigger things from him, based on his work last season. In scheduled play, his mark was a so-so 0 goals and 10 assists. But he looked great in the playoffs, pumping in five goals in eight games, three of them game-winners.

Faulkner went home to a tumultuous welcome. There was 1,000-car motorcade to greet him and scores of gifts. As the first Newfoundlander to make the NHL level, he was the pride of the island.

WITH TORONTO

He actually made the jump to the NHL in 1961-62, playing a game with Toronto Maple Leafs, a bonus tryout for his fine work with Rochester Americans of the AHL where he wound up with 73 points in 69 games.

Maple Leafs left him unprotected in the off-season and he was drafted for the $20,000 grab price by Red Wings.

Detroit's disappointing fourth place showing so far this season probably contributed to Faulkner's demotion. Coach Sid Abel has been shuffling his personnel perhaps more than anyone else around the league, trying to come up with a winning combination.

Faulkner's number came up in the scheme of things and down he went. Now he has to show all over again that he belongs back in the big time.

Play in the NHL resumes with two games tonight. Montreal Canadiens go against the Maple Leafs in Toronto and Boston Bruins take on the Rangers in New York.

Both Montreal and Toronto are expected to have key men sidelined. Bernie Geoffrion of Canadiens has a throbat injury and Bobby Baun of Leafs, a fractured left index finger.

Coach Toe Blake of Canadiens planned to juggle his lineup to cover Geoffrion's absence, employing Billy Hicks on a regular instead of spot basis.

Many And Varied Complaints

How They'll 'Beef' At Olympics

By JIM BECKER

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) Athletes from 35 countries are arriving in force for the winter Olympics, which open next Wednesday.

When you get that many people together in one place there are sure to be some beefs. Here are a few you can look for—they come up every four years without fail:

Food — The French will say the food is terrible. The Italians will call for more spice. The British will complain about the tea. The Americans will complain about the steaks. The Asians will complain about the rice. The Russians will bring their own food.

Clothing — The American men will say their uniforms don't fit and were bought from relatives of the coaches. The girls will say the uniforms make them look like sacks of potatoes rejected by the board of health. The skiers will say all the skis are for the left foot. The Russians will take what the government gives them and like it.

Snow — Before the races, the snow will be too soft, too hard, too slow and too fast. After the races, the snow will say the snow was too soft, etc. The winners will say conditions were fine.

KNOCK OFFICIALS

Officials — The French will say the judges favor the Germans. The Russians will say they favor the Americans. The Americans will say they are stupid. Some figure skaters will imply that they were bribed.

Conduct — There will be charges that some of the girl athletes have strayed off the reservation. There will also be charges that some of the boys have strayed off the reservation. The Australians will be accused of breaking training. They will admit it gleefully and invite everyone in for a beer.

Amateurism — The Canadians will say they are handicapped because they are honest about their hockey players and leave the professionals home. The Europeans will say the athletes from the Communist countries are really pros. An American official will say that all the other athletes are really pros and his poor boys don't stand a chance. Avery Brundage will say they are all amateurs. A Russian champion, who has been listed as a student for 13 years and owns the only Rolls Royce in Minsk, will just smile.

Olympics Defeat Czechs 3-2

PRAGUE (AP) — The Canadian Olympic hockey team edged Czechoslovakia's B squad 3-2 in a game at Ostrava Tuesday night.

The Czech news agency Ceteka said the teams were tied 1-1 after the first period, the Canadians led 3-1 after the second and the Czechs scored an unanswered goal in the third.

The Canadians were shut out 5-0 by the Czech Olympic team during their first game in Czechoslovakia last weekend.

Canadian goals were scored by George Swarbrick, Bob Forhan and Gary Begg.

The travel-weary Canadians started slowly in the first period but came back strongly in the second and third periods. The score would have been higher if not for the top-notch goaltending of Mikulaj, former Czech national team goalie.

The Canadians were tagged with seven of the 12 penalties handed out during the game.

In the 11-game tour to date the Canadians have won four, lost three and tied one. They have three more games to play.

Rangers Nip Wings 5-3

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Wings took a 2-0 lead early in the second period only to have St. Paul Rangers come back with four goals in six minutes for a 5-3 Central Professional Hockey League victory Tuesday night.

It was the 19th game in which Cincinnati has led and lost.

St. Paul goals were scored by B. Taylor, Bob Woytowich, Hall, Plager and B. Rosa. Scoring for Cincinnati were Leafman, Hincks and R. Ross.

Aces Whip Americans

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Aces scored three goals in both the second and third periods Tuesday to whip Rochester Americans 6-2 in an American Hockey League game before 9 496 roaring fans.

Ed Lawson and Bronco Horvath scored for Americans in the first period but Aces goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley put for several games with an injury, shut out Rochester for the rest of the game.

Cleland Morison scored twice for Aces and had an assist to lead the Quebec scorers. The others were Jim Morrison, Leon Rochefort, Bill Dineen and Wayne Hicks.

Canadians Pull Sled Surprise

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP)—Italy's No. 2 four-man bobsled, piloted by eight - time world champion Eugenio Monti, turned in the best time in training runs Tuesday on the Olympic chute at Igls near here.

Monti's blue, streamlined sled flashed down the 1,506-metre chute, perched on the slopes of Mount Patscherkofel, with an aggregate time of 2:09.15 for two heats.

West Germany's No. 3 sled, driven by Hans Maurer, produced the second best time of 2:09.36.

But the big surprise was Canada, whose No. 1 sled came from behind to capture a second third place, well ahead of more experienced teams from Austria, Italy and Britain.

Monti's sled clocked the day's best time of 1:04.34 in one run, coming within reach of his record mark of 1:04.07 set last year.

Win Top Fishing Award

FRANK AND FRED AITKEN

Those 'Aiken Boys' Again

The younger half of Belleville's crack "lunge-landing" team won top honors in the Fish and Game Association 1963 competition.

Frank Aiken, a year or two junior to eighty-year-old brother Fred won the Judge Anderson Trophy for "Best Fish of the Year" with his 36-pound eight ounce munky.

He also won a $20 fishing tackle award, courtesy Ray's Sport Shop, Madoc.

The competition awards in nearly all classes were made at the annual "Ladies' Night" banquet of the club held at Club Canara last night.

Ivan Pukanstik took speckled trout honors with a five pounds eight ounces beauty. Jim Matthews caught a five-pounder.

Dennis Fleary's 16-pound, three-ounce lake trout topped entries in this class. Graham Seeley was second with a 15-pounder, add 3 ounces—

A nine-pound, 14-ounce pickerel caught by Harry Hall was tops in this division. Carl Shaw had a six-pounder.

A four-pound, two-ounce small-mouth bass won honors for Stephen Walters, while Rolof Rudolph was tops with a five-pound, four-ounce large-mouth.

Two fine musky entries were the 28-3 ounce caught by Gord Cooper and a 34-14 ounce lunge, landed by Jack Atkinson.

David Wilder's 225-pound buck took the deer prize with Bruce Bishop's 200-pound bear being tops.

The moose award was won by Earl Luck who bagged a 1,515-pound bull.

And No Links Were Missing

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Pork - shop owner Pietro Rancati paid off Tuesday one of the longest soccer bets in Milan history—150 feet of sausages.

He bet 25 of his customers six feet of sausage each against one bottle of sparkling wine that his favorite team, Internazionale of Milan, would beat Milan of Milan in their annual homefield game last Sunday.

Milan won 2-0;

No Boxing Career For Jimmy Brown

Sticks To Football

Speaks To Sales, Ad Club, Guests

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Football star Jimmy Brown walked by with the grace and velvety softness of a tiger, drawing a huge sigh from Norman Rothschild.

"There goes five million bucks," said Rothschild, Syracuse boxing promoter and restaurateur. "Yes, there goes the guy who could have been heavyweight champion of the world. And still could be the champ."

Brown says he'll stick with football.

"I offered him $150,000—$50,000 a year for three years—to sign a fight contract with me before he graduated from Syracuse University," explained Rothschild the other night.

"He is the most wooderfully co-ordinated athlete I've ever seen, and I've seen such great athletes as Sugar Ray Robinson, Bob Cousy, Elgin Baylor, Jackie Robinson and plenty of others," said Rothschild.

WATCHED HIM PLAY

"I watched Brown play football, lacrosse and basketball in his college days at Syracuse and I've seen him play often with Cleveland Browns. And he's the best. I was convinced he could become the heavyweight champion before Sonny Liston won it and I think he would have a great chance to win it in three years even if he turned to boxing at 28."

Brown, the great fullback and record rusher of the National Football League, becomes 28 Feb. 17. He was an All-American in lacrosse as well as football at Syracuse before turning pro with the Browns in 1957.

Brown earns about $60,000 a year, including his salary with the Browns and his outside activities.

How about fighting Liston?

"That man," replied Jimmy, "You've got to be out of your mind. I'd rather play three straight days against the Giants, Bears and Packers than to get in the ring with him."

George "Sparky" Anderson, guest speaker at last night's Sales and Ad Club, demonstrates a baseball grip to Belleville's "Mr. Baseball," Jack Carson, and to three youthful city stars, Bob Moon, Frank Farrell and Bill Goodfellow. 'Sparky' Anderson Makes Popular Hit

By GARRY ALEXANDER
(Staff Sportswriter)

George "Sparky" Anderson talked baseball to a near-record turnout at the monthly meeting of the Belleville Sales and Ad Club last night and stressed the importance of education for athletes during his short, but effective address.

Anderson, newly - appointed field manager of the International Baseball League's Toronto Maple Leafs, departed from the usual lengthy "dinner speech" style but won friends and likely fans for the Leafs with his warm, personable manner.

"It is becoming more apparent all the time that a youth must secure a good education first, then, if he is still so inclined, worry about a pro sports career," Anderson told the gathering which included many special baseball guests of the Sales and Ad Club.

The speaker spiced his address with several humorous yarns of the diamond, touching briefly on his own shots at major league baseball.

"My first game with the Phillies, played before around 30,000 fans, was quite an experience. We were playing the Dodgers and that's a lot of people to hear booing you all at once but I was lucky and got off to a great start. We nipped the Dodgers and I drove in the winning run. The press crowded around — but that was the last time I saw those boys," he laughed. Anderson has spent most of his 12 years in professional baseball in triple "A" ball, one step down from the majors.

"Seriously, the best thing I can tell you fellows is to forget about comparison. There is too much of it in sports. Be happy with the class of ball or hockey you have and get out and support it in your own community," he said.

Anderson proved to be quite an attraction to a number of members and guests following the official part of the evening. He spent almost two hours chatting with local baseball officials, Sales and Ad members, and three juvenile players, guests of a club member.

He told them that the first thing a pro scout would be looking for in young players would be the ability to hit the fast ball. "Curves and change-ups fool lots of boys playing regularly in the big time but you have to be able to hit that fast pitch," he said. He also said that a player must "come to play," not just when he felt like it but at all times.

Earlier Anderson told seven persons that his Leafs would be a "real good ball club this summer—we will take it all," but added that nowadays it takes more than a winning club to fill ball parks.

The speaker was introduced by Mac White and thanked by George Warg. White, in his introduction, pointed out that Anderson was the youngest man in a manager's position in triple "A" baseball.

Gerry O'Connor, club president, welcomed the guests and new members to the club while other business was also conducted for a short period.

Included among special baseball guests at the head table were: Jack Carson, Ken Sodden, who said "I am thinking—and just thinking—that I may be sponsoring the baseball club here this year once again," Les Barton, Al Kelleher and Russ Soule.

Will Oppose Gardens Addition

TORONTO (CP) — Two Liberals Tuesday promised opposition when the Ontario legislature considers a private bill to permit the Maple Leaf Gardens to build an addition that would overhang two city streets.

House Leader Farquhar Oliver and Ross Whicher, member for Bruce, said they'll ask "lots of questions" about the plans, approved by city council last year. The Gardens agreed to pay an annual rental of $30,000 for airspace over Carlton and Wood Streets.

Mr. Whicher said the city made an exception that would create a precedent when it gave its approval. He said there is nothing in the Municipal Act to allow an overhang over a public street. Permission must be sought through a private bill.

Moira Defeats Quinte

By DOUG BELLWOOD

Moira Trojans made a better showing in the Bay of Quinte, COSSA Basketball League by defeating Quinte Saints two games out of three. The bantams took a close 27 to 21 win over Quinte. The Quinte juniors won their game by a larger score of 49 to 36. The senior game was a surprise upset with Moira defeating Quinte by a 63 to 50 score.

Quinte Senion took over the leadership in the first quarter with a slim 13 to 10 margin. The second quarter was a very close scoring period with Moira getting 15 points to Quinte's ten. Moira took over the lead with the score at the half time showing Moira in the lead 25 to 23. Both teams displayed good, defensive ball, playing during the first half. The good rebounding also helped to keep the score low.

The third quarter was a repeat of the first two as the score increased slightly to 38 to 37 in favor of Moira. The deciding factor of the game came in the final quarter when Moira sank 20 points out of a possible 31 in foul shooting. There were 45 fouls called during the game. George Pugh and Bob Dunsmore were again high scorers for Moira, getting 16 and 10 points, respectively. John McGibbon also gained ten points. High scorers for Quinte were Jack Reppard with 13 points and Bill Leslie with 8.

Tony Meddings of the Quinte Juniors was the highest marksman sinking 17 points. Medvid and Valcar followed with 12 and 8 points, respectively. Bob Watson was high man for Moirs gaining 16 points. Milligan and Beresford followed with 11 and 7 points, respectively.

Reid and Hayman were the leading scorers of the bantam game with 8 points to their credit. For Quinte Buddle gained 7 points and Ellis followed with 6.

Seniors:

Moira — Pugh 16; Dunsmore 10; McGibbon 10; Jury 9; Mc-Martin 8; Graham 7; Bailey 3.

Quinte—Reppard 13; Leslie 9; Chatland 8; McBride 8; Hancock 6; Morton 6.

Wild Donnybrook Komets, Dogs Stage Riot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A thrilling overtime period, a wild donny brook and a load of penalties overin dowed the league - leading Fort Wayne Komets third consecutive defeat in the International Hockey League Tuesday night.

All the action took place in Windsor as the Bulldogs recorded a 5-4 overtime victory over a stubborn Des Moines Oak Leafs crew.

The second - place Toledo Blades were the culprits who handed Fort Wayne the loss, dumping the Komets 5-3 in Toledo.

In spite of the setback, Komets' third after 10 straight wins, Fort Wayne commands a seven-point cushion atop the standings. They have 52 points against Toledo's 45.

The idle Port Huron Flags are in third spot with 37 points, four up on the Bulldogs. Chatham Maroons have 30, followed by Des Moines with 29 and Muskegon Zephyrs with 28. Fort Wayne will have a chance to snap their losing streak when they play host to Des Moines tonight while Port Huron visits Chatham.

BENCHES CLEARED

With seven minutes left in the second period in Windsor, the teams staged a wild fight with both benches cleared.

Once peace was restored referee Ken MacLeod assessed 54 minutes in penalties. The chief bad guy was Des Moines' defenceman Cy Whiteside, drawing 20 minutes with a pair of majors and a misconduct.

PAQUETTE TO APPEAR

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — Don Paquette of the Montreal Alouette football club is scheduled to be formally arraigned here Friday on charges of hit-and-run and assault. A justice of the peace read the charges to Paquette Monday because the sessions court judge visits St. Jerome only on Fridays. Paquette was released on personal bail of $100.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros and Montreal Junior Canadiens have practically locked up first and second places respectively in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series—but there's a battle going on for the next two positions.

The Marlboros, with 61 points were idle Tuesday night while the Canadiens, 10 points behind, were dumped 7-5 by St. Catharines Black Hawks in Montreal.

Peterborough Petes, who hold down third spot with 42 points, have a mere two-point margin over Niagara Falls Flyers and the Black Hawks. The Flyers kept pace with the Hawks by blanking the last-place Kitchener Rangers 4-0 on home ice.

Oshawa Generals stretched their lead to 11 points over Hamilton in the race for the last playoff spot by defeating the Red Wings 9-4 in Bowmanville.

HAVE 39 POINTS

The Generals have 30 points, followed by Hamilton with 19 and Kitchener with 15.

The Marlboros can add to their spread over Montreal Thursday when they visit the Red Wings. St. Catharines can move into a tie for third with a win over the Petes in Peterborough.

The top scorers cashed in on losing cause in Montreal as Canadiens' Andre Boudrais picked up two assists to run his league-leading total to 99 points and Yvan Cournoyer registered his 43rd and 44th goals of the season. Boudrais has now hit the scoreboard in 32 consecutive games.

Ken Laidlaw paced the St. Catharines attack with a pair of goals and as many assists. Singles went to Dennis Hull, his 33rd, Chuck Kelly, Brian McDonald, Fred Stanfield, his 25th and Ken Hodge, his 27th.

Mike Hyndman, Leo Thiffault and Jean Guy Lagace each scored once for Montreal.

RUSSIANS BEAT U.S.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's No. 2 hockey team walloped the Eastern League All-Stars 12-1 Tuesday night, making it three losses in three games for the touring squad.

Picton Ints. Shade Napanee 6-5

PICTON (Staff) — The Napanee Pringles threw a man sized scare into the Picton Intermediates as they outhustled, outshot, outskated and almost outscored them before dropping a close 6-5 decision in a regular scheduled game in the OHA Intermediate "B" League here last night.

Picton were lucky to come up with the win, to keep their unbeaten streak alive. "Old Man Percentage" just has to catch up to the Picton team and it sure looked like he had last night.

The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of the first, Picton led 5-4 at the end of the second and they each scored one in the third. Napanee pulled Norm Parrish in favor of a sixth attacker with over a minute to play in the last period, and came close to firing the equalizer as they applied sustained pressure at the Picton end, and only some sensational work on the part of Tom O'Halloran kept them from forcing an overtime session.

It was without a doubt the best game seen in the Intermediate class in Picton this year. Both teams stayed on the ice, not in the penalty box, and both teams checked and backchecked like fiends.

Picton opened the scoring when Larry Pero took passes from Carl Stacey and John Kennedy to walk in and fire one to the short side at the 1.05 mark. Carl Stacey made it 2-0 at the 10.51 mark with Lionel Bolty picking up an assist, and it looked like another route for the locals.

Napanee, however, had different ideas and they came back roaring with Joe Maracle firing an unassisted goal at the 16.14 mark. Jerry Conway fired the tying marker at the 17.27 mark, with Pat Gilmour picking up an assist.

The same Pat Gilmour put Napanee into a 3-2 lead at the 1.49 mark of the second period, with Maracle laying down a perfect goalmouth pass. Jim Guernsey tied it up at the 10.09 mark with Bolty and Rolland Berry helping.

Playing coach Davy Jones put Picton one up at the 11.30 mark as he backhanded Ron Weese's shot into the net. Claude Schrader took a pass from Jones at the 15.15 mark and Picton had a 5-3 lead. Roger Smith got that one back at the 18.42 mark with Bill McNevin getting up the play.

At the 3.06 mark of the last period, Napanee once again tied it up on the picture goal of the game. Roger Smith picked up the puck at his blue line, took advantage of the fact that Picton was changing lines on the fly, wheeled down right wing, crossed behind the defence, pulled the trigger and the light went on.

At the 6.10 mark, Bolty sent Stacey away, and although Carl fell as he neared the Napanee net, he picked himself up and somehow managed to slide the puck into the net.

There were only nine minors called in the game, with Picton having the odd one at 5-4.

Napanee outshot Picton 33-31.

NAPANEE — Parrish, Gilmour, Cox, Holmes, G. Brady, D. Brady, Maracle, McNevin, Smith, McGill, Bartlett, Aylesworth, Murphy, Conway.

PICTON — O'Halloran, Botly, Stacey, Pero, Schrader, Fawcett, Weese, Jones, Guernsey, Baker, Keller, Berry, Kennedy.

Expressions Of Sympathy
Kennedy Tributes Canadians

BOSTON (AP) — U.S. Senator Edward Kennedy, in one of his first public speaking appearances since the assassination of his brother, President Kennedy, thanked Americans and Canadians Tuesday for their expressions of sympathy.

Kennedy chose a sports dinner honoring member of the Hockey Hall of Fame and other sports notables to extend his thanks.

The Massachusetts Democrat said it was "the first time I have had an opportunity to talk to my friends in Boston and from across the border.

"I want to extend my heartfelt thanks for the support and prayers I've received for my brother."

Kennedy referred to the B'nai B'rith Sports Lodge, which gave its annual awards dinner, as "an organization which does so much good for so many people."

"It is particularly an honor for me to be here since my brother was honored by your organization himself in 1957," he said. "I want to thank both of you from Boston and from Canada. Our neighbors from north of the border are our oldest and truest friends and our closest allies."

Thirty members of the Hockey Hall of Fame were on hand to receive plaques. Also honored were baseball pitcher Sandy Koufax of Los Angeles Dodgers, 1920 Olympic track star Paavo Nurmi of Finland, and John W. Galbreath, owner of Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team and Kentucky Derby race horse winner Chateaugay.

Hall of Fame members present included Fred Taylor, now 90, and Jack Adams, who won seven Stanley Cups as manager and coach in Detroit and is now president of the Central Professional Hockey League.

North Shore Hockey

Stinson Construction and Consecon played to a 3-3 tie in a Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League game last night. The game was postponed from December 5.

Stinson's scored the tying goal late in the game while playing shorthanded to grab a point in the split in points. They led 1-0 after one period and it was 2-2 going into the third.

Dave LaRue was the game's top scorer, potting two goals and assisting on the other for Consecon. Bob Adams had a goal and an assist.

John Emerson paced Stinson's with one goal and one assist. Pete Mitchell and Keith Dickey fired the other goals.

The contest was a clean, well played one from start to finish.

REDS LOSE FORWARD

MOSCOW (AP) — Vladimir Yurrinov, forward on the Soviet Olympic hockey team, has appendicitis and will not be able to play in the winter games at Innsbruck, Austria. Officials said he will be replaced by Viktor Yakushev, a veteran of four world championship tournaments, including the 1960 winter Olympics.

Regals, Oaks Post Senior Victories

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Most of the action took place in the third period as Guelph Regals and Oakville Oaks played shorthanded to grab posted victories in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series Tuesday night.

Bob Brown fired two third-period goals to clinch a 6-3 win for the Regals over the league-leading Woodstock Athletics in Guelph.

And in Port Colborne the Oakville crew counted three third-period goals to register a 5-3 comeback victory over the Sailors.

The Athletics defeat left them with 37 points atop the circuit, a margin of six over the idle Welland Bruloaks. Galt Hornets hold down third place with 29 points, followed by Oakville with 24, Guelph, 19, and Port Colborne, 10.

ROCKET WILL PLAY

When Buick builds a LeSABRE--

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

Buick LeSabre 2-door Sport Coupe

Buick builds a high-priced car, and puts a low price on it

Lots of cars are in LeSabre's price class, but that's where the resemblance ends. For instance: Does anybody else in LeSabre's class treat you to that gentle Buick ride or impressive Buick performance and new gas economy? No. And who else gives you 15-inch wheels, finned aluminum front brakes, extra cushioning for middle-seat travelers, and separate heat ducts and controls for the rear seat? Right again: Nobody in LeSabre's field but LeSabre. If all this makes you think a LeSabre would look awfully nice in your garage, you should see how nicely it fits a budget. You know who to see about it, of course: your Buick dealer. Who else?

Charlie Connell Tops In Sports

OTTAWA (CP)—Of the great athletes Ottawa has produced, none was more versatile or profited less from his skills than Charlie Connell. His love of sport, and his ability, got him into just about every top game of his era.

At various times he was the best middleweight boxer in the Canadian Army, the finest all-around football player in the country and the hottest lacrosse star the capital had ever seen.

Connell starred with Ottawa Rough Rider clubs hat won the Grey Cup in 1925 and 1926 and was the best player of the series when Ottawa won the Mann Cup, emblem of the national lacrosse title, in 1928.

But in all his years of sport he never earned a nickel.

"I was born about 15 years too soon," Connell says. "I was on the way out when salaries were on the way in."

He has few regrets, however. "We had a lot of fun playing in those days, more than most of the athletes of today, I'll wager."

Connell, 65, retired in December after almost 42 years as a photo-engraver in the mapping division of the federal mines department. He's now settling down to a quiet life of retirement in his comfortable home in east-end Ottawa.

In his younger days Connell was involved in some kind of sport every month of the year—boxing, lacrosse, hockey, football and basketball.

"I remember one night in the early '20s when I went from work to box three rounds at a smoker. Then I ran over to the YMCA and played in the first game of a basketball doubleheader. From there I went to the old arena and was in the last half of a hockey double bill."

Lacrosse, however, was his first love. He broke into Ottawa's senior league when he was 13 and for almost 20 years was a standout on every top lacrosse club the city produced.

Those were the days when lacrosse was one of the most popular sports in the country. An exhibition game in 1923 between Ottawa shamrocks and a touring Oxford - Cambridge team drew 9,000 fans.

Connell remembers that game in particular because of one of the Oxford players, a standout forward named Lester B. Pearson. He still has a photograph of that team with the present prime minister, looking serious under a thick thatch of dark hair, prominent in the centre row.

SCORED EIGHT GOALS

In the Mann Cup finals of 1923 Ottawa Emmetts and Winnipeg Wellingtons staged one of the closest battles in the cup's history. The best-of-three set became deadlocked when each team won a game and tied the third. Ottawa took the fourth game 5-2, Connell scoring three goals. He had eight of Ottawa's 20 goals in the series.

"Lacrosse was a great sport, but it was a rough one and it died out quickly when the fans started to go for easier games," Connell says. "Then we ran out of players. They couldn't take it, either."

After each lacrosse season Connell swapped his stick for a football helmet and carved himself out a reputation as one of the best plungers in Canadian football, although he never weighed more than 175 pounds.

He was with Ottawa Rough Riders from 1922 to 1932, scored two touchdowns in their 1926 Grey Cup victory over Winnipeg and was a defensive star when Riders edged Toronto Varsity 10-7 the following year in the national classic. There was no Western challenge that year.

It was in 1927 that columnists Ted Reeve of the Toronto Telegram and Mike Rodden of the old Toronto Globe picked Connell as the best all-around football player in Canada.

HURT IN LACROSSE

Earlier in his career Connell almost turned exclusively to boxing. During his army service in the First World War he won the middleweight title at the Valcartier, Que., army camp and later the Canadian Corps title in England.

After returning to Ottawa he boxed regularly in inter-city competition but gradually drifted away from it.

Through all those years in rough and tough sports activity, Connell was seriously injured only once. It came in lacrosse, of course.

"Somebody caught his stick in one nostril in a game at Cornwall and just about tore my nose off. It was hanging by a few shreds of skin but I wouldn't let the doctors there touch it. I was afraid they'd take the whole thing off."

He returned to Ottawa, four hours on the train, where a doctor was waiting to meet him.

"He sewed it up really good, but he still got a bit of a twist in it."

New League Will Go 'Or Flop'

OTTAWA (CP) — General manager Red O'Quinn of Ottawa Rough Riders believes the new United Football League entry in Montreal will either "go over real big or flop resoundingly."

O'Quinn said in an interview the Quebec Rifles coached by Sam Etcheverry could capture the imagination of Montreal fans—like the New York Mets became the darling of baseball fans.

"No one should laugh or sneer," said O'Quinn, "because that's what they did when the Mets opened for business. And everyone knows how many people came out to laugh and kept coming."

O'Quinn said the extent that Canadian Football League clubs should co - operate with the United League probably would be a topic for discussion at the Canadian league's annual meeting in Edmonton.

"I don't think anybody is too worried about the development," he said.

New Eagles Owner Fires Coach

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Jerry Wolman was approved Tuesday as the new owner of Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League and immediately dropped coach Nick Skorich.

Wolman said he already has talked to three former pro coaches, including Joe Kuharich, former Washington Redskins coach and now an assistant to NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle, and Paul Brown, former coach of Cleveland Browns.

He declined to name the third man involved, saying only that he also was a former head coach in the NFL.

Wolman said the Eagles expected to decide on their new coach sometime during next week's league meeting in Miami Beach.

'One Way Or The Other' 'End Within Five' - - Liston

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Sonny Liston predicted Tuesday that his Feb. 25 title match against Cassius Clay at Miami Beach will end within five rounds "one way or the other."

"No matter who wins, we'll all go home early," the champion said while gulping down a glass of milk at his training camp.

A reporter recalled that England's Henry Cooper, knocked out in the fifth round by Clay last summer, said recently that Cassius would give Liston lots of trouble for eight to 10 rounds.

"Cooper better be training hard too," said Liston, jokingly. (all in five."

"I'm going to get him next." Cooper is considered a likely opponent for the winner of the Liston-Clay bout.

Reminded he has predicted variously that the fight would end in three, five and eight rounds, Liston again said: "Inside of five."

Clay celebrated his 22nd birthday in Miami Beach last Friday and Liston sent him a birthday message saying the champion had a surprise for him but would wait until Feb. 25 and give it to him personally.

"Liston's talking too much," Clay said at the time. "He will

Jerome, Kidd In Comeback

By PHIL DECHMAN

TORONTO (CP)—Two noted Canadian runners — a sprinter and a distance man—will be trying to regain their old form at the Telegram-Maple Leaf Indoor Games here Friday night.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver, a co-holder of the world 100-metre record, at 10 seconds will be running for the first time since he tore a thigh muscle at the 1962 British Empire Games at Perth, Australia.

At one time a co-holder also of the world 100-yard record of 9.2 seconds, Jerome will be competing only in the 50-yard dash Friday. He will have tough competition from Brooks Johnson of Washington, D.C., Sam Perry of Fordham University and Anthony Jones of Trinidad.

Toronto's Bruce Kidd returned to his long-distance running this winter but a recurring foot ailment again forced him out of action. Now he will attempt to prove against stiff competition in the three - mile event that the injury is not chronic. Kidd was third in the event at the 1962 B.E. Games after winning the six-mile race two days earlier.

JUST OFF RECORD

American Bob Schul has a time of 13 minutes, 31.4 seconds, just five seconds off the world indoor record and only three seconds better than Kidd's Canadian record. Australian Alby Thomas, former world record holder is just seven seconds faster than Kidd outdoors.

Some other Canadians will carry the role of favorite into the meet. They include top-ranked Bill Crothers of Toronto, 16-year-old runner Abigail Hoffman, also of Toronto, and shot-putter Nancy McCredie of Brampton.

Skelton Surpasses Material So His Show Never Tiring

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—After a few seasons, most weekly variety shows and comedians in particular start to show unmistakable signs of fatigue—dull sketches plus a tendency to throw away lines and forget cues.

Red Skelton has been a television regular for at least a decade and his program always is high on any list of the most popular shows.

But there is a gayety and warmth about Skelton's show that transcends the material and must reflect the talent of the star. He seems to enjoy his show, particularly the most outrageous sight gags, as much if not more than the audience.

Only Red could have pulled off Tuesday night's pantomime in which a man with an allergy, his sneezes knocked down a door, swept the whiskers off a barber and onto a woman and finally blew Red out of his own shoes.

Recommended tonight: CBS Reports, 7:30-8:30 EST—The Business of Herein.

Tri-Service Drug Store Is Big One

CAMP PETAWAWA, Ont. (CP)—The "biggest drug store in Canada" has a stock worth between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000 and a staff of 100 prepared to handle up to 500,000 pounds of drugs and equipment a month.

It's the No. 1 Central Medical Equipment depot at this big military camp 85 miles northwest of Ottawa.

A tri-service effort, the depot is responsible for medical supplies shipped to Canada's armed forces throughout the world as well as to diplomatic missions, military attaches, UN operations, government agencies, cross, institutes and foreign aid allotments.

"Every single item is carefully checked to guarantee positively that it is sterile and chemically correct," says Lt.-Col. W. G. Thurwell, the depot commander.

In addition to checking and shipping such things as pills, bandages, scalpels, forceps, X-ray and sterilizer machines, the depot staff also manufactures some basic ingredients.

"There are some drugs and medicines that come under a joint services formula and these are made right here, as other common solutions," says Col. Thurwell. "We find in some cases it cheaper to make these ourselves. Other medicaments are not readily available on today's markets, so we manufacture them."

The medical building not only contains the supplies but a chemical laboratory, a huge vaccine freezer, a repair department and woodworking shop where shipments of drugs are boxed and their destination pencilled prior to departure for such places as Germany, France, West Nem, Egypt, Jordan and hundreds of other spots occupied either by Canadian troops or diplomats.

Fish of Kings No Sucker For Common Lures of Man

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — It can fight with the tenacity of an enraged muskie, but it won't rise to a lure.

It is a rare one that goes under 35 pounds, but it takes no great skill to land one — only a lot of fortitude.

It is a sturgeon, the caviar fish with a regal name that sports fishermen shun because it can only be caught with deep line and a worm.

Actually the sturgeon isn't bottom in the path of the sturreally that fussy. With its toothless, sucker-like mouth, it stays at the river bottom scavaging in an aimless, blind way. If your line is long enough, and the hook and worm lie on the bottom in the path of the sturgeon, you may hook one.

"You can catch them this way, but only by happy chance," says Albert Courtemanche, Montreal wildlife director. "Some people in the province have had success with this manner, and they have a lot of fun if they do hook one. But it isn't done systematically."

THEY'RE FIGHTERS

Richmond Pelletier of Montreal says they fight like a muskie. It took him 30 minutes to land a 35-pounder near Montmagny. "They give quite a fight when you do get hold of one." Pelletier spends half the year taking provincial waters to obtain data for the commercial fish-and-game club he founded and directs.

But Quebecers, as do most anglers, like to catch their fish with a casting rod or spinning reel.

They leave the sturgeon to the commercial fishermen.

In these parts, the sturgeon is sometimes referred to as the aristocrat of the Laurentians.

Closed Circuit TV

Million Will See Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Nate Halpern, president of Theatre Network Television Incorporated, said Tuesday 1,000,000 seats have been assured for the closed-circuit telecast of the Sonny Liston - Cassius Clay heavyweight title fight Feb. 25 at Miami Beach, Fla.

Halpern said about 250 locations in theatres, sports arenas and other places had been arranged. He said the number could reach 300 and the total seats available could reach 1,250,000.

At an estimated average of $5 a seat, the TV receipts for the fight could range between $5,000,000 and $6,250,000.

The total take is divided roughly 50-50 between the exhibitors and TNT, which shares its take with the fighters. Halpern would not state the exact percentages involved.

Of the amount finally turned over to the promoters, Liston gets 45 per cent and Clay 25 per cent.

The fight gate at Miami Beach has been sold to Bill MacDonald, of Miami for $625,000. He will pay off the fighters on the 45-25 per cent to Liston, 22½ per cent to Clay. If the fight should attract a sellout gate of $1,200,000, the promoter would get the rest after deducting expenses.

EXHIBIT PICASSO

New Radar Equipment At Halifax

HALIFAX (CP)—New radar equipment that will enable weather forecasters to obtain a more accurate picture of conditions as much as 200 miles away has been bought by the transport department for use by meteorological officers at Halifax international Airport.

Built by Curtis-Wright Electronics in the United States for about $150,000, the radar will help fill in "blind spots" in the Atlantic south of Nova Scotia, says Ralph O'Brien, officer in charge of the Halifax Meteorological Bureau.

"At present a storm can blow up from anywhere out at sea and it is often quite difficult to locate it and then point its course."

The radar will help forecasters guide aircraft from the path of storms and will benefit farmers by making long-range forecasting (24 to 48 hours) more accurate.

The new equipment will supplement the present system of obtaining information from air force gear, aircraft from air at sea.

Bass Singer Gets Ovation In London

LONDON (CP)—Joseph Rouleau, Canada's Canadian bass singer with the Covent Garden Opera Company, scored a considerable personal success when he took over a taxing Verdi role usually reserved for the great artists.

Rouleau, a craggy 34-year-old from Matane, Que., followed Canada's Ilaria Christoff and Nicolai Ghiaurov into the part of King Philip II of Spain in Don Carlos. Critics agree he rose nobly to the high challenge of their success.

"Magnificent presence . . . unusually impressive . . . a sensitive performance and clearly deep feeling" were some representative opinions from the critics.

Leslie Ayre in The Evening News said it was a severe test for Rouleau to follow the Russian vocal authority. "He came immendably through it.

"If his performance lacked the subtlety of Christoff and the sheer weight of voice of Ghiaurov, it was yet highly enjoyable, credibly characterized and sung with authority."

Noel Goodwin in The Daily Express, commenting that Rouleau seemed to gather power and experience as he went along, summed it up as a "convincing and satisfying debut."

The role was the most important yet filled by the Quebec singer, who has been with the Royal Opera House for six years. He now is principal bass with the company.

AUSSIE TO RUN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Albin Thomas, who in 1958 established the later-broken two mile marks of eight minutes, 32 seconds, and has also run the mile three times under four minutes, is entered in the Royal Canadian Legion's International Meet of Champions to be held Saturday in Winnipeg.

Minor Hockey

Maple Leafs thumped the Bruins 6-1 and Black Hawks edged the Rangers 5-5 in a pair of Midget division games in B.M.H.A. play last night.

Cole's second goal of the night gave Hawks their only victory. Denyers, Walsh, Hyderman and T. Harrington got the other goals. Ford drew two assists, Sinclair, Park and Hyderman one apiece. Hibbard and Brecher each pulled two goals for Canadiens and Kelly got the other. Scott and Lang drew assists.

Leafs' half dozen goals were shared by seven players. P. Foley, Tomaso, Smythe, Sager, Olson and Morgan were the marksmen. Assists went to Morgan, Foley, Akey, Doran and Tomaso. Summers scored for Bruins with Ellis and Swager assisting.

In Squirt games, the Rangers went on a scoring spree to trounce Canadiens 15-2. Brian Cousins was the only three-goal man for Rangers but M. Flynn, C. Janitsch, R. Meagher, W. Andrews and D. Snyder each scored two. Ian McDonald and J. Bowen got the other goals while B. Somers, Meagher, Cousins, J. Stather and Andrews drew helpers. D. Lupenestte scored both Hab goals.

Bruins defeated the Wings 3-1, led by C. Evans who scored two goals and assisted on the other, scored by D. Chatterje. R. Foster was the lone Wing marksman.

Leafs whitewashed the Hawks 4-0. G. Duffy scored twice, P. Ackerman and B. Creelman each once. Creelman also picked up an assist.

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Jack Lemmon, Shirley MacLaine in Billy Wilder's "Irma La Douce", Technicolor, Panavision (EST) 8.30; 9.50.

AT THE PARK — "In The French Style" — Jean Seberg, Stanley Baker — 7.30; 9.50.

AT THE PARK — Sidney Poitier won the Silver Bear award for "most outstanding" at the Berlin Film Festival. The award was for his role in "Lilies of the Field," a United Artists release opening Thursday at the Park Theatre. Show times for the happiest pictures of the year are at 7.00 — 9.10 p.m. Sidney Poitier, 36, is the first Negro actor to win the coveted "Bear." He came to the United States at the age of 15 from an island in the Bahamas.

AT THE BELLE — The Belleville favorite, Shirley MacLaine, as the Irma of "Irma La Douce", the laugh riot everyone's talking about, is holding over for a few days at the Belle Theatre. Her reception on Irma has been great with all the screaming and laughing is about. The enjoyment of this great comedy is enhanced with Technicolor, Panavision.

Roy Disney Is Producer Of Money to Run Empire

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Yes, it has been a good year," said Roy Disney with characteristic understatement.

Roy is the other Disney"—the older brother who produces the revenue to bring Walt's dreams to reality. The success of this partnership is shown in Walt Disney Productions' annual report.

From 1953 to 1964, gross income increased to almost $82,000,000 from $6,000,000. Profits last year were at a record high of $6,574,000.

As president and financial mind of the Disney empire, Roy leaves the spotlight to Walt. But in a rare interview he discussed the partnership.

"He's a grand guy," said Roy of Walt. "It has always been a job keeping up with him. He gets the ideas, then I have to look at them from a practical, prosaic view.

"Sometimes I've had to say no, and he'll accept it if he knows that my decision didn't come from lack of vision. There have been times when I just couldn't get the money.

'HE'LL LISTEN'

"He's not a dead guy to work with. He knows what he wants and he'll listen to you—if you have been a good year," said Roy. But if you're just shooting off your mouth, he won't hear a thing."

Roy, nine years older than Walt, joined his brother's fledgling cartoon business in 1923.

"My job is to help Walt do the things he wants to do," said Roy. "I deal with the banks and give Walt a free hand. The trouble with a lot of other movie companies is that the banks make decisions on the pictures."

Has the studio ever been in real trouble?

Roy smiled.

"We've always been pretty stretched out," he said. "Maybe that's why we've done so well—we always owed so much money. Only in the past three years have we been able to breathe more easily. . . .

"Product has always been our strength," Roy said. "It is the floor of every operation. The new money we get goes into the new product. If the time ever came when we got in financial trouble, all we would have to do is shut down new production, and let the money roll in from what we've already made."

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For January 22

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Creative ideas come to fore. Analyze various methods. Choose the one which is economical. Take definite steps to turn plans into action. Stress the practical.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Associate may be wearing rose-colored glasses. Best for you to be on scene "in person." Taking word of another individual might prove costly. Stress independence.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Cycle moves up. One who appears to break promise may be merely stalling for time. Hold your ground. Show of confidence, determination wins day. Stress patience.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Key is being dedicated. Stress idealism. Don't be ashamed of beautiful emotions. Those who scoff are merely envious. Fine evening for making new social contacts.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Various possibilities exist. You may have difficult time arriving at decision. Best guide is provided by intuition. Your emotional reaction tends to be correct.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Day when you could be lucky. Applies especially where professional efforts are concerned. Be ready with facts, figures. Then express confidence. And move efficiently.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Good lunar aspect later coincides with fulfillment of major ambition. Take time for full significance to soak in. Be patient — analytical — aware of potential.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Force yourself to be realistic. Means sentiment has no place in making important decisions. Check the facts. Remember: promises are easy to make — and break!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Say yes to added challenge, responsibility. Trying to shrug off changing conditions leads to difficulty. Hold off on major decision. Higher-ups are interested.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Prestige rises. Others will pay heed to your words. Day to spread influence, gain new friends. Key is co-operation, pleasant disposition. Be patient with valley associates.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Fine for basic changes, pursuit of creative endeavors. Key is greater self-expression. Dig deep to find out how you really feel. Applies to one of opposite sex.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Listen closely to opposing views. Scorpio individual may be able to help —if you throw away false pride. Straighten out affairs at home. Rediscover loved ones.

If today is your birthday . . . you have sparkling personality, much ambition and this year could see you achieve great success.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Gemini, Cancer, Leo. Special word to Capricorn: Cooperate with fellow worker. You'll be happier as result.

Supreme Court Judges in Ont. Get Pay Raise

TORONTO (CP) — Legislation to provide a $3,000 annual pay increase for Ontario Supreme Court judges, retroactive to Jan. 1, was introduced in the legislature Tuesday by Attorney-General Cass.

The increase will bring the allowance paid by Ontario for the judges' work in connection with provincial statutes to $4,000 a year. The present allowance of $1,000 has not changed for some 80 years.

The increase will be the second in a year for the judges, whose salaries rain from $21,000 from $18,000 last July from the federal government, which is responsible for judges' salaries.

Nearly Thousand Miles Of Sub-Standard Sections In Trans-Canada Highway

By RONALD LEBEL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The federal government may take a new turn in its highway policy this year as the Trans-Canada Highway nears completion.

The whole question of federal aid for highway construction is expected to be discussed at the Quebec City federal-provincial federal conference in March.

A more technical conference of public works and highways ministers and their advisers also may be called after the Quebec meeting.

The government is under mounting pressure from the western provinces and the construction industry to enter a joint program for a modern Trans - Canada Highway, north of the first one.

At the same time, the Quebec government is reported anxious to withdraw from the national highway program and levy a 10-per-cent gasoline tax to finance its own highway system.

The Pearson government has said it is seriously considering a second cross-country highway program or extensions of the present route. The Liberals are on record as accepting the "opting-out" formula for provinces that wish to withdraw from joint programs.

WEST NEARLY READY

Meanwhile, the western half of the 4,860-mile highway is due for completion in time for the 1964 tourist season. In the East, however, long stretches of substandard, winding pavement remain and four more years will be needed at least to rebuild them all.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows there are nearly 1,000 miles of sub-standard sections in Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec and Ontario.

The longest incomplete legs are in the Lakehead-Northern Ontario region, between Quebec City and Fredericton and in central Newfoundland and Nova Scotia.

Construction activity in the Atlantic provinces is expected to be stepped up this year as a result of increased federal aid. Effective April 1, 1963, the federal contribution to Trans-Canada costs in the Atlantic provinces was boosted to 90 per cent.

Previously the federal government paid 50 per cent of the costs, except for the section built 10 per cent of each province's mileage where Ottawa contributed 90 per cent. The arrangement continues for the other six provinces.

PROGRAM EXTENDED

There was little extra response in the Atlantic provinces in 1963 to the new arrangement since it was announced in May when highway planning was nearly completed for the summer.

Another decision by the Liberal government last year was to extend the Trans-Canada program for four years to Dec. 31, 1967. The ceiling on federal participation was lifted to $625,000,000 from $400,000,000.

Since the mammoth project was started in 1950, the federal government has spent nearly $500,000,000 on construction of parks stretches, and the provinces have spent more than $300,000,000.

When the highway was begun, the federal government estimated construction would take six years and cost $300,000,000.

The biggest construction effort occurred for six years in consecutive year in Quebec, which did not sign the federal-provincial agreement until October, 1960.

TWO YEARS TO GO

This was the second picture province by province:

Newfoundland — Two years' work and about 200 miles of construction remain to be done, plus some paving of graded stretches. Two dirt stretches will be completed from Bishops Falls to Badger and from Junction Brook to the Hampden Junction in the middle section of the island highway. Paving continues on the 10-mile stretches were awarded in December and the final contracts were being let in January.

Prince Edward Island—The highway was completed more than a year ago, but improvements are under way. A 20-mile stretch between Borden and Summerside was repaved and widened to eliminate spring breakup closings last year. The improved section will be extended to Charlottetown.

Nova Scotia—Of a total mileage of 316, the province must still complete 177 miles, including some entirely new stretches. Last year 12.1 miles between New Glasgow and Truro were graded and 3.3 miles between New Glasgow and Antigonish were paved. Several stretches were repaved. Four years' work remains to be done.

New Brunswick—The stretch between Fredericton and the Nova Scotia border was completed with the paving of 14 miles. In all, 34.5 miles were graded and 18.3 miles paved. 11 bridges and interpasses were built. This year's plans call for building 40 miles, paving another 40 miles and erecting 15 bridges, mostly in the Fredericton-Grand Falls link. A 9.5-mile stretch between Aulac and Cape Tormentine, the P.E.I. ferry terminal, will be paved this year, completing that link. As told, the province has about 122 miles to complete.

Quebec—Last year saw two projects in the Montreal area and paving of a 20-mile stretch in the Drummondville area. The Montreal projects were the paving of 13 miles on the western outskirts and a short one on the 975,000,000 Boucherville bridge-tunnel complex between Montreal and Laval and the south shore near the site of the 1967 world's fair. An agreement was signed to build a $178,000,000 six-lane expressway crossing Montreal island east to west for 17 miles The federal government will contribute $45,000,000 to the expressway and 10 expressway projects, Montreal Island municipalities will spend $35,000,000 and expressway users and Quebec will finance the remainder. Of the 400 miles in the Quebec section of the highway, at least 150 miles remain to be completed, mostly between Quebec City and the New Brunswick border. Another 100 miles are being graded or paved, mostly between Drummondville and Quebec City.

Ontario — Between $5,500,000 and $6,000,000 was spent last year, with about the same outlay planned this year, mostly in the Lakehead - Kenora region. New construction covered 15 miles near Kenora, 20 miles near Dryden and 10 miles near the Sault Ste. Marie district. This year's work will include six miles of new road and the Nipigon and widening and improving parts of the 354 miles still below Trans-Canada standards. This work is expected to last until 1967. Of the 1,454 miles in the province, 1,100 have been completed.

Manitoba—A total of $1,068,000 was spent to widen and improve the province's 309-mile system, which now is complete. The province is seeking federal aid to extend four - lane stretches.

Saskatchewan — About $500,000 was spent to rebuild sections of the province's system in 1967. A 17-mile stretch between Qu'Appelle and Sintaluta and a 14-mile stretch between Herbert and Ernfold were repaved. A section near Swift Current is scheduled.

Alberta — The highway has been completed, but scattered improvements were made in 1963. An overpass was built with federal aid at the Calgary entrance of Bowness. Without federal aid, the province widened a four-mile section west of Bowness, which now is complete, and began a grade separation at Happy Valley, between Calgary and Banff. The province intends to extend the four-lane section westward.

British Columbia—The province's stretch is due for completion by late spring. A 35-mile stretch between the Coast Mountains Bridge in Vancouver and Abbotsford is the last remaining link. Of this total, 18 miles between Vancouver and Port Mann was opened in December. A bridge is nearing completion at Port Mann and an eight-mile stretch is being widened in the Fraser Canyon. The canyon portion is closed two days each way. Paving continues through three tunnels. Improvements are under way at Golden and Chase.

McNamara Decides to Scrap One-Half of the U.S. Bomarc Anti-aircraft Missile Force

By HAROLD MORRISON

WASHINGTON (CP) — U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara has decided to scrap about one-half of the U.S. Bomarc antiaircraft missile force, plucking out all the early-model Bomarc - A nuclear weapons, closing down two bases and eliminating 1,366 defence jobs.

The defence department Tuesday announced that the Bomarc squeeze—leaving only the solid-fuelled, longer-range Bomarc-B missiles intact—will take place between July and December. The department argued that elimination of the Bomarc-A models, which became operational just about three years ago, won't degrade continental air defence and at the same time will help reduce defence costs.

It said the decision was taken in line with an appraisal of the current character of the air attack threat. In his budget, President Johnson said "the strategic threat to the U.S. is shifting from manned bombers to ballistic missiles."

"Moreover, a larger portion of the Soviet missile forces is being deployed in submarines at sea or otherwise protected," Johnson said.

IS CRITICAL

McNamara has been sharply critical of the Bomarc program, suggesting a year ago that the only reason the department keeps them in service is because they had been paid for and that they likely would be eliminated in the next several years.

Almost at the same time the U.S. government was insisting that Canada implement a pledge to accept U.S. nuclear warheads for the two Bomarc-B squadrons in Canada.

The heated nuclear controversy was instrumental in part for the downfall of the previous Canadian administration and the necessity of the 1963 Canadian general election. The present Canadian government has accepted the warheads for the squadrons at North Bay and La Macaza, Que.

The U.S. has invested about $2,000,000,000 in the Bomarc missile complex, establishing eight bases in the industrial region of the northeast. The U.S. Air Force originally had demanded more bases but these were turned down by Congress.

RANGE IS 250 MILES

The Bomarc-A has a range of about 250 miles and must be filled with liquid fuel before it can be fired. The Bomarc-B missiles have a permanent packing of solid fuel, speeding up the firing process. They also have a long range of about 400 miles.

The Bomarc-A models are to be withdrawn from five of the eight U.S. Air Force bases, some of which have a mixture of A and B models. The Bomarc-A is to be withdrawn from Dow in Bangor, Me.; McGuire, Wrightstown, N.J.; Suffolk, N.Y.; Otis, Falmouth, Mass., and Langley, Hampton, Va.

Dow and Suffolk are to be closed as far as Bomarcs are concerned. The others will have to get along with only their present allotments of Bomarc-B weapons. These B models also are located at air force bases at Duluth, Minn.; Kincheloe, Mich., and Niagara Falls, N.Y.

WILL TRAIN

ANTIKOKAN, Ont. (CP) — C. M. McIntosh, director of the Ontario department of education, said Tuesday the department has authorized use of the Quetico Conference, and Training Centre here for direct training of unemployed persons. They will be trained in such work as guiding, resort staff work, souvenir manufacture, woodcrafts and ceramics, he said. Atikokan is 120 miles west of Port Arthur.

Castro Backs Nikita

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Fidel Castro has put Cuba behind Premier Khrushchev in his ideological dispute with Communist China following a Soviet pledge to pay more than $1,000,000,000 for Cuban sugar in the next six years.

Castro's support of the Kremlin was proclaimed in a joint Cuban - Soviet communique issued Wednesday to mark the end of the Cuban leader's 10-day visit to Moscow. Castro is with Khrushchev on a hunting holiday in the Ukraine.

Castro praised Moscow's policy of peaceful coexistence, called the treaty limiting nuclear testing "a step forward toward peace and disarmament" and supported the Soviet Communist party's measures "to remove the existing differences and strengthen the unity and cohesion of the ranks of the international Communist movement on the proper behavior of a gentleman, and I am convinced, more than ever before, that he deserves an Oscar for sheer gall.

Persuasive Robt. Kennedy Gets Indonesia, Malaysia To Agree To Truce, Parley

Will Stop Borneo Border Fighting And Hold Talks With Philippines

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Indonesia and Malaysia, responding to mediation efforts by U.S. Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, agreed today to stop the fighting along their Borneo border and to join the Philippines in a conference of foreign ministers.

After announcement of the agreement, Kennedy flew to Bangkok, Thailand, for three hours of conferences with Thai officials. He was to go on to London to give British officials a review of his talks in Asia.

The 38-year-old attorney-general said he hopes the foreign ministers' meeting will lead to a new summit conference of the principals in the Malaysia dispute — Indonesian President Sukarno, Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia and Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal.

However, some senior diplomats in Jakarta were not overly optimistic that another summit conference would produce a resolution to the crisis resulting from Sukarno's drive to smash it.

WILL TAKE WEEK

Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio, appearing at a joint press conference with Kennedy, said the cease-fire in the undeclared guerrilla war in Borneo probably could be implemented within a week. He implied that Indonesian regular troops would prevent raiders crossing from Indonesian Borneo into the Malaysian jungles of Sabah and Sarawak states.

There was no immediate comment from Malaysia. Britain is pledged to defend Malaysia, where it retains bases, and has several thousand British troops are in North Borneo. Sukarno, ambitious for influence in Asia, sees the dominant power in Southeast Asia, contends that Malaysia is a device to maintain Britain's colonial influence.

The Philippines also has opposed Malaysia but only in diplomatic field and without the threats of violence that came from Jakarta. Philippine opposition is based on that country's claim to Sabah, the former British North Borneo.

Kennedy said the Malaysia crisis would be solved through consultations of the governments concerned without preconditions and without outside interference. This underlined his view, expressed repeatedly during his Asian tours, that a settlement should be worked out by the Asian countries themselves.

He said the treaty had protected Canada's interests and the revisions therefore had to be examined closely.

Davie Fulton, a B.C. Conservative leader who as federal justice minister negotiated the 1961 treaty, said he still thinks it is a mistake to sell the whole B.C. power slice in the U.S. rather than bringing the cheap energy back into Canada.

"This leaves us the more expensive Peace River power to use ourselves," he said in reference to the B.C. plan to construct thermal power in northern Peace River for domestic use although it is a long transmission line into the southern part of the province.

Mr. Douglas said the treaty revisions contain sugar coating for a bitter Columbia River pill and he reiterated doubts about Canada's right to divert Columbia water for use on the Prairies.

Premier Bennett said the Washington signing marks the happiest day in his 12 years as head of the provincial government.

Changes In Election Act Discussed

TORONTO (CP) — Government and opposition legislature members agreed Wednesday on the need for election machinery revision and making daylight time uniform throughout the province.

Premier Robarts said changes must be made in the province's election setup but he didn't know whether a select committee of the legislature, as suggested by the Liberals would do.

Andrew Thompson (L — Toronto Dovercourt) had presented a resolution calling for a select committee to consider election expenses, government payment of a portion of the expenses, open statements of expenses by candidates, permanent registration of voters and voting ages and other changes.

Conservative John White of London South agreed with Maurice L. Belanger (L.-Ottawa - Sandwich) that different starting dates set by municipalities for daylight time causes confusion and inconvenience for persons who live in one zone and go to school or work in another.

Mr. Belanger asked the government to make the start of daylight time uniform throughout Ontario.

Mr. White said legislation could just establish a starting date for daylight time without making it compulsory.

Reg Gisborn (NDP — Wentworth East) said daylight time should be asked whether they want daylight time. The question of whether daylight time should be instituted all is the issue, he said. Attorney - General Cass agreed.

School teacher Robert Nixon (L.-Grant) agreed with Mr. Thompson that the voting age should be lowered to 18.

Mr. Thompson also said that a select committee should investigate whether the mass media of broadcasting and newspapers — could give free publicity to candidates during election campaigns.

Kenneth Bryden (NDP—Toronto Woodbine) said the idea of government paying for campaign expenses was being pushed by Liberals across the country and indicates they might be feeling guilty about where their campaign funds originate.

"There is no better way of keeping in touch with the people than going out and asking for a few dollars," he said

Defence Budget Down

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — The 1964-65 defence budget will be the smallest in 12 years—under $1,500,000,000—it was learned on good authority Wednesday.

The defence budget for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1964, will be presented to Parliament with other government spending estimates soon after the Commons reconvenes Feb. 18.

The peak defence budget since the Second World War was $1,882,418,000 in 1952-53. The $1,845,455 defence budget will be the smallest since 1951-52's $1,415,474,000.

The 1963-39 defence appropriation was $1,451,741,000 but this amount did not include a $237,000,000 withdrawal from a special equipment account.

CHOPS AWAY

Defence Minister Hellyer has been chopping away lightly at defence expenditures almost since he assumed his portfolio last April.

He cut about $75,000,000 from the 1962-64 defence budget of $1,696,000,000, then proceeded to announce reductions of $100,000,000 effect in the 1964-65 fiscal year.

These include: Smaller procurement of ships, planes and army troop carriers; mothballing of 64 warships; closing of five naval refueling and army establishments, 12 RCAF stations and units and the west-ern half of the mid-Canada warning line; and military and civilian personnel cuts.

Still to be announced are closing of the RCAF base at Gros Tournois, France, and of several heavy radar stations in central Canada.

FEW INCREASES

In comparison to these reductions, there have been few increases in defence spending: provision for new conventional submarines from British beginning in late 1963 and of a few pieces of equipment; and a $20,000,000 pay increase for the armed forces.

Another added expense, expected to be announced soon, will be conversion of CF-104 aircraft for bombers to take on a conventional as well as nuclear role.

Defence authorities look on reorganization of the eight squadrons of CF-104s as little more than taking the best of a bad situation.

The two squadrons at Gros Tournois will be moved to the two bases in West Germany. The two squadrons at Marville, France, will do photo-reconnaissance instead of bombing.

Many senior officials, admittedly with the benefit of hindsight, regard the CF-104 program as $500,000,000 down the drain.

SPENT TOO MUCH

A nuclear weapon could be delivered more accurately and more cheaply with a ground-to-ground missile like the Americans have, and $800,000,000 was millions spent too much to spend on a system to deliver TNT bombs in the same vehicles as Second World War Mosquito aircraft, they say.

Furthermore, the crowding of all nuclear CF-104s into four German fields would mean their virtual total destruction in any war in Europe.

However, the government does not expect to be able to shed the nuclear bombing role in Europe until 1968 at the earliest.

The government white paper on defence is expected to outline the various future alternatives, including transport duties and close support of the army, for the RCAF in Europe.

Leaders Discuss Canada-U.S. Economic Issues

Prime Minister Off To Florida For Holiday

WASHINGTON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has obtained agreement from President Johnson to explore the possibility of making a special set of principles to guide Canada-U.S. economic relations.

At the same time the Canadian leader, in two days of talks with Johnson, achieved U.S. agreement for an almost immediate renegotiation of the air routed agreement governing cross-border commercial traffic.

Before taking off today for a Florida holiday of about a week or 10 days, Pearson expressed satisfaction with his first formal meeting with Johnson. While Johnson will be a busy man in this presidential election year, Pearson noted he never had been in Canada. The president was told he would get a warm welcome if he found time to come.

A highlight of their two-day talks was the formal exchange of agreements covering marketing of Columbia River power in the U.S. and joint agreement to turn the Franklin D. Roosevelt home on Campobello Island, N.B., into an international park to symbolize Canada - U.S. friendship.

STILL MANY PROBLEMS

Their discussions, ranging over world and domestic issues, was said to have established a warm and close relationship between the two leaders. But Pearson told a press conference Thursday many problems remain and that much determination and effort will be needed to resolve them.

The winter freeze - up had cooled the Great Lakes union issue but if Canadian ships should again be harassed by U.S. ports next spring, he said, "there will be lots of trouble in Canada." The two leaders agreed to their communique to co-operate with each other and with labor and management in both countries "to avoid industrial strife along these waters."

Pearson said also they discussed how he and Johnson reached agreement on almost all points in discussion — with the "modest" exception of who is the top U.S. quarterback. Pearson picked Y. A. Tittle of the New York Giants; Johnson favored Sammy Baugh, retired Washington Redskins player.

REVIEW TROUBLE AREAS

The two leaders reviewed world trouble spots with emphasis on French President de Gaulle's plan to recognize Communist China. Pearson said it wouldn't be proper for him at this time to disclose the nature of discussion, but as made clear his own views are a lot closer to the U.S. than to France.

The prime minister said he had no intention of playing "honest broker" between de Gaulle and Johnson. He didn't believe they needed any agent. De Gaulle didn't think much of the current North Atlantic Treaty Organization: Pearson and Johnson did. De Gaulle didn't favor Pearson's drive to arm the United Nations with a

Medicare Draft Bill Questioned

By CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Discussion of Ontario's draft medical insurance legislation in public hearings this week produced pointers on how some unsettled features of the plan might work in practice.

Statements by members of the government - appointed inquiry indicated that fundamentals of the draft will remain in the final plan; maximum premiums are likely to range around $180 annually for a family, $70 single, and insurers will share high-cost risks.

The legislation introduced by the Robarts government last April as Bill 163 leaves gaps that must be filled to produce a workable plan. It has other sections that have been interpreted in different ways.

Among the questions: How far the 14-member inquiry committee can go in advising changes in the draft, how much private insurers will be able to charge for the proposed standard medical plans and whether Ontario's 100-odd commercial and non - profit insurers will compete or co-operate in selling the standard plans to residents who decide to buy.

Committee statements indicated there will be no tampering with Bill 163's basic structure.

The bill is based on the principles that medical insurance should be available through private insurers to citizens who want to purchase it, with government participation limited to helping persons or people judged to be in need of help. The schedule of benefits to be

Tanganyika Revolt Not Tied To Zanzibar Says Nyerere

DAR ES SALAAM (AP) — Tanganyika's President Julius Nyerere said today he believes there was absolutely no connection between the army mutiny in his country this week and the Communist-linked coup in Zanzibar 11 days ago.

Nyerere also said he had erred in failing to keep the public informed during the army uprising. "It was a mistake I fully acknowledge," he told a press conference.

At least 17 persons were killed in rioting and looting that followed a mutiny by the Tanganyika Rifles — the country's two-battalion army — against their British officers Monday, in addition to demanding Tanganyikan officers, the soldiers insisted on higher pay and faster promotions.

At the height of the revolt, then-President Nyerere had been deposed or fled.

Nyerere admitted that tension had been created by his 48-hour silence after the mutiny. He said he wanted to make sure the revolt was under control before addressing the people. Nyerere broke his silence with a radio address to the nation Tuesday night in which he appealed for calm.

He said the troops had genuine grievances but added their demands for pay raise did not justify their actions.

When asked whether the rebellious troops would be punished, he broke off the press conference.

Burton and Fisher Exchange Words Over Liz and Divorce

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton were here today for a possible solution of their hopes to marry, but angry words from Eddie Fisher made their chances seem remote.

A dust of epithets and a mob scene were added to filmdom's most famous—and lengthiest—love epic Wednesday.

Said Burton: Fisher says publicly he wants to ease the way for Miss Taylor's divorce from him, but his demands "are in the realm of the fantastic. . . ." The singer should make his demands public, said Burton, or "live up to his public image" and do what he calls "the gentlemanly thing."

Said Fisher: "I have just read Mr. Burton's pronouncement

Diefenbaker Wary But Uncommitted

McNaughton, Fulton, Douglas Assail Columbia Treaty

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — Thorough parliamentary study of the revised Columbia River Treaty seems assured from reaction to the details made public here Wednesday's signing in Washington.

This was evident from the tone of comment from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, New Democratic Leader Hazen Douglas, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton and B.C. Conservative Leader Davie Fulton.

The minority Liberal government will present the 1961 treaty and its revisions to Parliament in the hope of getting ratification by Oct. 1 at the latest.

The first stage after Parliament resumes Feb. 18 is expected to be the reference with the package to the external affairs committee, where witnesses will testify.

However, British Columbia already has spent $9,000,000 on advance engineering for the three-dam storage system that is involved and may proceed with further work before parliamentary approval is granted.

Federal officials have suggested that B.C. may benefit under the treaty revisions by some $100,000,000 more than it would have received otherwise—both in power-value increases and in savings on other revisions made to the 1961 document.

Reaction to the treaty revisions, which appeared to be carefully tailored to meet various objections, indicate that the whole issue is still a warm one.

Gen. McNaughton, former head of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, said in a brief statement that he remains firmly opposed to the very basics of the 1961 treaty.

Gen. McNaughton got the key U.S. concession returning half the extra power to B.C. from Canadian Columbia storage but he later attacked the 1961 treaty as a sellout of Canadian sovereignty.

He reiterated Wednesday that he opposes the sequence of storage dams adopted at the insistence of B.C. after U.S. agreement had been reached to follow the system.

Under the so-called McNaughton system the Kootenay River would have been diverted into the headwaters of the Columbia in southeastern B.C.

This would have placed control of all the Columbia waters in Canadian hands and boosted Canadian power output.

B.C. insisted, however, on another arrangement—flooding the Arrow Lakes Valley of the Columbia River near Trail and reguiating the outflow through dams —although Canada retains some diversion rights.

One is Libby Dam in Montana, backing water 40 miles into Canada to provide essential U.S. flood control. Another is the High Arrow Dam near Castlegar, B.C., close to the U.S. border, which would create a navigable Columbia Valley land to the foot of Revelstoke and displace 7,000 persons.

Gen. McNaughton said he will place his opposition before Parliament on this ground. He reserved judgment pending study of various treaty revisions which added to tighter Canadian control or improve values to B.C.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who as prime minister signed the original treaty with former president Eisenhower three years ago, said the revisions are necessitate a thorough examination in Parliament and in committee."

He said the treaty had protected Canada's interests and the revisions therefore had to be examined closely.

Davie Fulton, a B.C. Conservative leader who as federal justice minister negotiated the 1961 treaty, said he still thinks it is a mistake to sell the whole B.C. power slice in the U.S. rather than bringing the cheap energy back into Canada.

"This leaves us the more expensive Peace River power to use ourselves," he said in reference to the B.C. plan to construct thermal power in northern Peace River for domestic use although it is a long transmission line into the southern part of the province.

Mr. Douglas said the treaty revisions contain sugar coating for a bitter Columbia River pill and he reiterated doubts about Canada's right to divert Columbia water for use on the Prairies.

Premier Bennett said the Washington signing marks the happiest day in his 12 years as head of the provincial government.

Quick-Release Drawers Beat Freezes, Thaws

WASHINGTON (AP) Something for which many a serviceman has felt a need—"quick release drawers"—have been devised by a member of the U.S. Army's infantry board.

The current edition of Infantry Magazine, published at Fort Benning, Ga., home of the board, explains the idea suggested by Lt.-Col. James A. Sudderth—with pictures.

Says the service magazine: "Who would appear to be a boon to active duty personnel in areas which present daily extremes of temperature or to the commander who must venture out into the cold and then return to a heated office.

The magazine says the basic principle of closing—which provides for adding or removing items of clothing as the temperature varies, is fine for shirts, sweaters, jackets and trousers for the upper torso, but the lower torso is not so well accommodated.

A soldier may be comfortable in a cold night listening post but when his unit moves out at dawn on a foot march, he begins to sweat.

"Then as the temperature rises, he can easily take off a jacket," says the article, "but to reduce a layer of clothing from the lower body he must remove at least his outer trousers and his boots."

Sudderth's sudden - removal system would end this.

Slide fasteners are attached at each side of the quick release drawers at the waist. A man can zipper them on or off "in less than 10 seconds," without taking off his pants and boots, says the author.

Proposed Building Program At Belleville Hospital Wins Approval of County Council

Hastings county council Wednesday afternoon gave its stamp of approval to the proposed building program at Belleville General Hospital.

Total cost of the proposed new hospital addition is estimated at $7,186,000 with grants of $2,694,200 expected to reduce this figure to a net cost of $4,500,000 to be shared 65:35 percent by the city of Belleville and the county.

The county's share of the net figure is estimated at $1,575,000.

Yesterday, following an hour's caucus discussion, council voted for the county to "participate in the building program of Belleville General Hospital as submitted in accordance with terms of the private bill based on present estimates of a net cost of $4,500,000 of which the county will be obligated to a share of 35 per cent or $1,575,000."

NO DECISION

At the same time council authorized its special five member hospital building committee to explore all possible methods of financing the county's share of hospital building program and report their recommendation to council.

Council made no decision about obtaining the county share of the hospital costs.

This year the county will continue the three mill levy which has been collected to finance the cost of the new county administration building.

A balance of about $50,000 remains to be paid by the county on this structure and the three mill levy this year will result in a $45,000 reserve being built up.

When the hospital extension gets underway in 1965, council will again review the hospital matter and then decide on financing details.

COUNTY PART OWNER

Hastings county is a part owner of the Belleville hospital as result of a private bill passed early last year in the Ontario Legislature.

Under terms of the private bill the county acquired 35 percent of the hospital assets and as the assets grow is obligated to pay 35 per cent of the future capital costs.

Plans for the new addition to the hospital have been under discussion by the hospital board for several years, the final decision being to build a hospital extension using the present site. Plans are to raze some older parts of the present hospital to make way for the new extension.

Yesterday Reeve William Shannon of Marmora, chairman of the county's special hospital building committee, reviewed the history of the hospital from its earliest beginnings until it was taken over by the city in the late 1940's.

He said that approximately 40 per cent of patients in the hospital originated from Hastings county.

Because of this and the fact that the county felt a moral obligation it had agreed to become part owner in the hospital on a 35 per cent city, 35 per cent county basis.

Reeve Shannon said that immediate plans for new construction, which would increase the hospital's bed capacity to about 442 beds. Construction of the new extension would provide for later bringing additional storeys bringing the ultimate bed capacity to between 650 and 700 beds.

PLANS BEING DRAWN

Hospital authorities said today that the first stage of detailed plans are now being drawn by the architects. It was felt however, the board would be in a better position to call tenders before the end of the year.

The west wing of the hospital, along with the upper floors of the south wing will be razed to make way for the new extension.

Present rating of the hospital is 259 beds which will be increased to about 442 with completion of the extension.

Assessment Commissioner System Coming Council Told

Within three to five years a policy of licencing all municipal assessors in Ontario will go into effect and counties in all probability will be forced into adoption of the county assessment commissioner, system.

This was the forecast heard Wednesday by Hastings county councillors who were told that they should commence looking ahead toward possible changes in the present system.

County assessor Cecil Geen told council that three counties in the province had now adopted the county assessment commissioner system under which a commissioner, directs all assessing in the county.

"In the case of Hastings about six full time assessors would be required to do the field work," he said.

Lennox county had been the first to adopt the new system with apparent good results, while Prince Edward this year have adopted the assessment commissioner system.

ASSESSMENT CHANGES

Under licensing in the county with a total of 27 local assessors would be given a new appointment $18,000. Under the commissioner system, the cost for assessing would be $15,000 to $20, plus office and equipment costs.

Mr. Geen felt, however, that better assessments would result through the new system. Assessment would be more consistent equalization report as at present and assessments in the county by local assessors would stand unless changed by a county court of revision.

County Clerk Treasurer Carl Bateman said that he had been told by provincial assessment officials that licensing of all municipal assessors was only a matter of time, however.

To be licensed assessors would have to take special training and write an exam. Only those who passed the block-long exam would make the additional grade.

NEW MANUAL COMING

"If licensing is to be forced on us local men would have to be given the opportunity if they want to continue as assessors," Mr. Geen said.

Mr. Geen said the new revised assessment manual would be published in the spring and he doubted if many of the local assessors would attempt to interpret the new manual.

Warden Thomas Burnside said that what council had been told by Mr. Geen and Mr. Bateman had given food to thought.

"Whether we like it or not it appears that we are going to be forced into changes in our present assessment system," he said.

Mr. Geen said that assessments made last year showed increases in all county municipalities but two. These were at Deloro and in the town of Marmora where there had been a decrease in industrial assessment.

N. A. Beach Gives Address At Y Dinner

The YMCA Board of Directors met as a dinner at Glenwood night to principals and representatives of the elementary and secondary schools of the city.

Following the meal the directors boys and girls and Hi clubs of the YMCA performed an induction ceremony for this year's new members. This solemn ceremony points out the high ideals of the Hi-Y movement and can be expressed through service in the home, school and community of each member.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. N. A. Beach, executive secretary of the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Association, formerly with Alberni Indian Residential School in Belleville, was the guest speaker for the evening. Mr. Beach, who also was a YMCA background, pointed up the concern of adults for the future leaders of the world. He suggested that, schools and YMCA's, work together centred on this problem of leadership. As educators, he said we must use sport as a means to stimulate youth to make good use of their time in order to achieve their potential. The individual will set his own level, but we must provide a tremendous opportunity for growth and the courage him to participate in a wide range of activities.

He urged that we together "get on the ball" to develop the kind of leadership that is truly needed.

Y'S MEN'S DINNNER

Tonight the Y's Men's Club will be entertained at their regular Thursday night dinner meeting. A past president of the club, Mr. G. E. Hyde, will be reminiscing of his days as a Y's Man and member of the YMCA.

Y's Men and former members are invited to attend.

A large number of displays at the "Y", which the public are welcome to see and to study, will be on hand.

This week is open house and everyone is invited to visit the family YMCA.

County Council Committees Are Approved

Standing committees for the year 1964 were approved Wednesday by members of Hastings county council, as they continued the second day of their inaugural session.

Yesterday's session was taken up mainly with the hearing of reports and request for grants by county and other organizations.

Reeve John Wilkes presented the county home report, while Reeve Shannon of Marmora presented the hospital report which dealt mainly with plans and costs in connection with the proposed new hospital addition.

Members of council standing committees for this year are as follows:

Roads and Bridges — Clayton Hall, Allen Ketcheson, Clayton McMurray, Fred Beckett, Ernest Wells and the Warden.

Finance — Gerald Irvine, Verne McMurray, F. Peever, C. Thompson, J. Wilkes, M. J. McAlpine and the Warden.

Home for the Aged — Mrs. A. Sexsmith, George Peck, G. Fitzgerald, Golden McIlroy and the Warden.

Agricultural and Reforestation — Barton Morton, R. Clarence Graham, Calvin White, William O'Brien, Earl Mackey and the Warden.

Hospital Board appointments — W. A. Shannon and the Warden.

Children's Aid Society—Guy Hughes, Norris Irwin and the Warden.

Publicity — H. A. Thompson, Elgin Cook, T. Armstrong, Gerald Caldwell and the Warden.

Administration of Justice — Charles Long and C. E. Bateman.

Emergency Measures Organization — William Marsh and the Warden.

Resolutions and Public Relations — Henry Alford, H. W. Rose and Bert Jones.

INCOME INCREASES

The median family income in 1963, rose to $5,950 in 1963 from $3,091 in 1949.

Plan Meeting Concerning Centennial

Plans for a meeting concerning centennial projects occupied the attention of the executive of the Community Planning Association of Canada's Belleville branch who met recently at the home of Mrs. William E. Riley, secretary.

R. Greig, chairman of the Centennial Committee, unfolded a four-foot-long drawing made by P. Wiegand as a sketch of a proposed historical restoration of the South Front St. area. It showed a street of Loyalist homes, some already existing on the spot and some that might be moved in to create the kind of progress in other parts of the city—all looking out over a waterfront with dozens of old time pleasure craft along the harbor.

The buildings, according to this scheme, would be of various pieces only in appearance, and internally could be made to function as restaurants, business offices, or other commercial properties. A foundation would have to be laid, and underminister the block-long area and ensure that Belleville's proud heritage would be displayed attractively to tourists and others approaching from the water via Victoria and the new Dundas St. bridge.

PROJECT TO BACK

It was thought that a Centennial Project such as this would be most suitable for the Planning Association to back, because it could have a seminal effect, increasing the value and usefulness of large areas not directly involved.

Mrs. D. Cain, chairman of the meeting, pointed out that February 11 would be the earliest possible date for a public meeting to present this or other Centennial projects. C. D. Lundy, vice-chairman, agreed to engage the Library auditorium, where the CPAC has met before.

E. Gilbert, membership chairman, agreed to have his address printed on membership applications so that applicants would not have to be sent to the national office of the Community Planning Association in Ottawa and then back again.

BY-LAWS PRESENTED

The Belleville branch gets half the five-dollar annual membership fee to help carry on its work here. Members receive the Community Planning Review, a national quarterly. Information leaflets will be circulated as widely as possible in Belleville, since the Planning Association is of interest to many citizens.

By-laws of the CPAC were presented recently at the national parent organization, those of the Ontario Division and those of the Oakville branch. Oakville's by-laws might well serve as a model for the newly-formed Belleville branch.

Dr. J. Hinchey Delivers Medical Paper at Que.

Dr. John Hinchey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hinchey of Belleville, presented a scientific paper entitled "Current Concepts in The Management of Acute Cholecystitis" at a recent meeting of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada held at the Chateau Frontenac in Quebec City. The paper reviewed the Montreal General Hospital experience with over five hundred cases of acute inflammation of the gall bladder.

Dr. Hinchey graduated from the faculty of medicine at McGill in 1959 and returned at the Montreal General. He was awarded a Medical Research Council of Canada grant in 1963 and received the degree of Master of Science from McGill University at the Founders' Day convocation last October. He is at present Chief Surgical Resident at the Montreal General Hospital.

Credit Manager For Local Firm In Custody

The former credit manager of a Belleville tile company, who disappeared nine months ago after a series of payroll cheques were cashed, has been arrested at Windsor.

Belleville police have been seeking 36-year-old John Austin Law since last April, for questioning in the alleged cashing of nearly $1,000 in cheques of Pidutti-Fabbri Ltd.

Investigations started after Law failed to return to his office April 6. Police say cheques, some of them cashed in the Kingston - Bath area and drawn on the company payroll, were discovered when returned to the company's bank in Belleville for processing.

Belleville police this morning were informed of Law's arrest in Windsor. Local detectives are now considering what charges will be laid.

Order Accused To Pay Fine

A Toronto man, who claimed he was unemployed, was told by Magistrate T. Y. Wills today he must pay his fine for impaired driving within a week or dispose of his car.

Judson Carl Mallory, who pleaded guilty to the charge, was fined $75 and $5 costs.

Asked by the magistrate when he could pay the court, the 56-year-old accused said he was unemployed and drawing unemployment insurance.

The magistrate pointed out Mallory could also drive "an instrument of destruction" on the highway.

"I will give you a week—otherwise you can get rid of your car," Magistrate Wills said.

Mallory was stopped by OPP Constable L. E. Davis on Highway 2, west of Belleville, after the motorist driving had a forced several cars off the road.

Evidence showed that sedatives had been prescribed for Mallory, which compounded the effect of alcohol.

Castro

The statement appeared to end Castro's flirtation with Communist China, which takes opposite positions on all these key issues.

Along with Communist China, Cuba has refused to sign the Moscow - supported test ban treaty. This has annoyed the Soviets in view of their heavy economic aid to the Caribbean nation.

While the communique gave no specific Castro pledge to sign the treaty, the Cuban government praised "the successes achieved by the Soviet Union in the struggle for ending nuclear tests and the agreement to keep nuclear weapons off vehicles in orbit."

RENEWS PLEDGE

Khrushchev renewed his promise to protect Cuba from any U.S. invasion "with all means at its disposal."

The joint communique also endorsed Panama's efforts to seek revision or abrogation of the 1903 Panama Canal Treaty and denounced the "aggressive policies" of the United States.

However, Castro added his government is prepared to re-establish "good neighbor relations" with the United States on "the basis of peaceful coexistence of states with different social systems."

The communique also demanded the establishment of Malaysia and once more demanded Nationalist China's seat in the United Nations for Communist China. It blamed "the aggressive actions of the imperialist forces" for tension in Cyprus, South Korea, South Viet Nam "and in a number of other areas of Africa, Asia and Latin America."

DETAILS DELAYED

The Soviet - Cuban trade agreement announced in Moscow Tuesday, but no details were made public until today.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Russia had agreed to buy a total of 24,100,000 tons of refined Cuban sugar at six cents a pound from 1965 through 1970. The current world price is nearly 11 cents a pound, but Tass said the 6 cent price would remain constant for the six-year period.

A. V. M. "Bert" Millward, AOC, Air Materiel Command, yesterday presented a unit badge, sanctioned by the Queen, to the commanding officer of No. 6 Repair Depot at Trenton, Group Captain C. R. Thompson.

Could Not Hear Order

BUFFALO (AP)—A woman critically wounded a deaf-mute who could not hear an order she gave during a holdup of a tavern Wednesday night, police said.

Miss Anita Furrow, 23, was arrested a short time after the holdup, along with Robert Hayes, 37.

Police said they were charged with first-degree robbery.

The deaf mute, John Johnkins, 34, entered Izzy's tavern just as the woman turned to leave after collecting more than $65 from the bartender, police said.

She ordered Johnkins to lie down. The bartender and two customers explained that he was a deaf-mute and asked her to show mercy.

Unit Badge Presented to 6 Repair Depot

TRENTON — At a ceremony in the drill hall at No. 6 Repair Depot at Trenton yesterday, Air Vice Marshall J. R. "Bert" Millward, Air Officer Commanding Air Material Command, presented a unit badge to the commanding officer at No. 6 Repair Depot, Group Captain C. R. Thompson.

The unit badge was approved by the College of Heraldry and sanctioned by Her Majesty the Queen in December, 1963.

Airmen and airwomen based at 6 RD were reviewed by the Air Vice Marshall prior to the ceremony. The 6 RD band, under the direction of Sgt. Howard Kelly was especially praised by the Air Vice Marshall for their performance at the review and for the fact that all of the band members are volunteers, many buying their own instruments.

Air Vice Marshall Millward, who was commanding officer at RCAF Station Trenton from Aug., 1952 to Aug., 1954, referred to the legendary bird incorporated in the badge, the Phoenix, as being "one of a kind," and said that since No. 6 RD is now the only repair depot within the RCAF organization, it too was "one of a kind."

Group Captain Thompson, in accepting the badge on behalf of the depot, said that the fact that the symbol had been sanctioned by the Queen, pointed up the fact that the first word in the RCAF crest stood for "Royal," and that the men and women in the RCAF served the Queen.
